WITH THE EDITOR

News Items Solicited

We are grateful to the many alumni who send us news items about the alumni from time to time. We would urge alumni everywhere to send us news items about other alumni, especially clippings from newspapers. There are hundreds of these news items which we would never know anything about unless our thoughtful friends send the clippings to us. These news stories make decidedly interesting reading in the University Alumni Magazine, and they usually contain information which is helpful to us in keeping the address records correctly. Many Missouri editors regularly send us clippings on news pertaining to alumni. We appreciate their cooperation too.

We want to remind every alumnus that changes of residence or business addresses, promotions, weddings, births and deaths should also be sent to this office promptly.

The Office— Your Headquarters

From several alumni the suggestion has come that we should have an alumni office adequate for entertaining visitors. This is impossible in Jesse Hall on account of crowded conditions. We realize, of course, that our facilities in this regard are decidedly limited. It was, as all alumni know, our ambition to have long since established appropriate alumni headquarters in the Memorial Union Building. Until that structure is completed it is questionable when such quarters will be provided.

We have in the last few weeks made an effort to "dress up" the office. We are happy that the alumni are taking enough interest in the work to be thinking about quarters. We have not forgotten what King George said when opening the new London County Council Building some years ago—"An authority meanly housed, never commands the respect to which it is entitled."

"Raising The Deficit"

Russell R. Casteel, President of the St. Louis Alumni Association, recently conducted what he called a game of "raising the deficit." This was an effort to provide funds to carry on the work of the organization and will be continued throughout the year. Membership cards, made up attractively in old gold and black, have been issued and honorary membership cards furnished to many of us here in Columbia, for which we are grateful. "Raising the deficit" is quite an interesting game to watch and if you haven't seen Rusty Casteel in the role of auctioneer you have missed something. Pat O'Brien was President of the St. Louis Alumni Association last year and as a result of his experience he and Rusty work like "pitcher and catcher" when anything is auctioned off to "raise the deficit."

The Class Spirit of Yesterday.

Speakers at the 1908 Silver Anniversary Reunion held at Homecoming reminded us again that class spirit was a product of the good old days. Class spirit has gone, more or less, in this day and age. Divisional spirit has taken its place. In other words, the spirit of the students is centralized more in the school or college in which they are enrolled rather than in a spirit developed by the student body as a whole. There is no question but that class spirit is a splendid thing.

O. E. Reed stated that one of the influencing builders of class spirit was the weekly convocation held in the auditorium of old Academic Hall, now Jesse Hall. It was at these weekly meetings that the Ags, the Engineers, the Lawyers, the Medics, the Arts and Science and Teachers College students were brought together. Each group had special seats reserved, designated by their names painted on the pillars. It was at these weekly convocations that they met on common ground.

There is no question but that the acquaintances which a student makes during his or her University career prove of inestimable value in later years. Mr. Reed stated that acquaintance was well developed at convocation and that convocation not only furnished a place for students to meet other students, but it also afforded the opportunity for students to meet and hear faculty and administrative representatives with whom they would have no other means of contact.

It is seldom nowadays that all the students get together at the same time and place. Someone has said that the football mass meetings are adequate substitutes for convocations. We do not subscribe to this opinion. May be it would be well to revive the weekly convocation period.

A sincere and conscientious trial of the old convocation plan would certainly prove interesting. We believe that students are just as eager to develop class spirit and they are just as appreciative of acquaintanceship and fellowship as they were twenty-five years or more ago, and we are of the belief that many of the so-called old-fashioned University customs and policies were productive of excellent results.

Faculty Club Popular With M. U. Professors

Few clubs have measured up so well to their purpose as has the University club, which today enjoys the active interest of its 175 members.

At the time of its organization in 1924 the club was assigned the rooms on the ground floor of Lathrop Hall with the aim of providing a meeting place for its members for social, recreational and educational activities and to promote the best interests of the University. However, as early as 1915 a faculty club had been organized with its rooms located in Allen Place, and later in Pemberton Hall, which is recalled as the upstairs of the Old Palms.

As the name of the organization implies its membership is open without vote or formality to the men of the faculty and others who hold office with the University. Upon vote the club may invite men to join who are directly connected with University activities. Honorary membership is extended to all Curators, and a limit of five such memberships may be offered annually to men for service to the University, State or Nation.

At the time of the completion of Tate Hall the club was given the ground floor of the north wing. Among these rooms is a lounging and reading room invitingly stocked with magazines, newspapers, and a goodly number of books belonging to the Club library by donation of its members. There are chess, card, and billiard rooms all well equipped.

Has Varied Program

Their annual program includes tea in the lounging room every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from four to six, the various tournament, a fall reception for new faculty members, an annual party given at the women's gymnasium for the men of the faculty and their ladies, and a program by the different club members every Saturday night. These weekly programs, which are regularly attended by sixty to seventy-five members are never on "shop."

During the summer the rooms are open to visiting professors, and during the year University guests are frequently entertained by the club.

It has become a tradition in faculty life for the professor to lounge between classes in these rooms which are so well equipped and conveniently located.

At their last annual meeting held in January the following officers were elected: President, Jay W. Hudson; vice-president, Herbert M. Reese; secretary, Elmer A. McKay; treasurer, Harry C. Bauer. The other board members are W. C. Etheridge, A. L. Westcott, and C. B. Rollins, Sr.

Are Supported by a Tax on Property

Municipally-Owned Property Pays No Taxes

Privately-owned utilities pay taxes; municipally-owned utilities do not. Millions of dollars were lost last year to the State of Missouri through Municipal Ownership of Utilities.

This loss must be made up by individual taxpayers, or the Schools and Governments must suffer severe handicaps.

If the Municipally-Owned Utilities were on the tax rolls, the taxes of every other citizen would be lower, or the need for further reductions in the educational program of the state eliminated.

We realize that taxation is necessary for the maintenance of Schools and the functions of government, but we ask the Taxpayer, in fairness to business and to himself, to know the facts—and to support candidates for public offices who are known to favor an amendment to place all utilities, whether publicly or privately owned, on an EQUAL TAX BASIS.

Kansas City Presents the Nelson Art Gallery

This Modern Museum, Housing Treasures of Every Culture and Age,
Is Built for the Generations to Come

By MALVINA LINDSAY

PART of the glory that was Greece will live again in Missouri when the William Rockhill Nelson Gallery of Art in Kansas City is opened early in December. This modernistic Greek edifice, sitting serenely on an eminence on a 20-acre wooded tract is one of the most notable buildings in the Southwest. Its art treasures, which will epitomize man's reach after beauty from the Babylonian era to the present, are expected to make it the cultural Mecca of the United States.

In connection with the opening of the art gallery, Whistler's famous painting "Mother," lent by the Louvre in Paris to American galleries for a year, will be exhibited. The painting is now at the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago. A loan exhibition of American paintings of the last fifty years also is being planned for the gallery opening. The gallery's permanent collection of paintings and art objects, assembled at a cost of approximately $3,000,000, will be on display.

The classic gray limestone gallery, erected at a cost of about $2,500,000, is said by art authorities to be the best achievement in the museum type of building in the United States. It has more exhibit room than the Cleveland museum, and more floor space than Kansas City's largest building, which is a 30-story skyscraper. The building is made so solidly that it will be as strong 1,000 years hence as today. It is large enough to house the art collections of many generations to come.

Built on Oak Hall Site

The gallery occupies the site of Oak Hall home of the late William Rockhill Nelson, publisher of the Kansas City Star, whose $11,000,000 gift to the city made the art collection possible. In the heart of the gallery is preserved the oaken-paneled room in which Mr. Nelson read and studied and probably planned his art bequest. The room, which is in its original furnishings, is the only remaining unit of Oak Hall, the commodious buff stone mansion of the publisher.

For all its classic structure, the building expresses its environment effectively in the carved allegory of Western civilization on its outer walls. This bas-relief tells the story of man's conquest of this part of the

A Living Center of Cultural Interest

West. On twenty-three limestone panels are depicted rugged scenes, such as Indian attacks and the trek of the covered wagons. These carvings gird the south, east and west walls of the gallery.

The building has about 100 rooms, no two alike, but each designed as a background for some special form of art display. The rooms are arranged irregularly and informally, without the long corridor or institutional effect. There are few windows, as it has been found that outdoor light is not the best for art exhibitions. Artificial light coming through the glass in the ceiling is evenly diffused in such a way that there are no shadows and no variations due to the weather.

Has Ventilating System

The stuffy atmosphere usually associated with art galleries and cultural assemblages will not be in evidence at the Nelson gallery. The air will be taken from off the roof, washed and purified in a large machine, brought to an even temperature and pumped through the building.

Floors are made of cork, rubber and other springy materials so they will be restful to the feet. Walls are covered with different kinds and shades of Japanese straw cloth so they will be pleasing to the eyes.

In the center of the gallery is a patio or open court with a fountain in the center. Halfway up, a balcony runs around the four walls of the art gallery. This patio, with its sunlight and expanse of open sky, is designed to serve as a palliative for the fatigue and confusion that often befall museum visitors. The patio will be known as Rozzelle court, in honor of the late Frank F. Rozzelle, Kansas City attorney, who left a $150,000 art bequest to the city.

A visitor on entering the Nelson gallery finds himself in a majestic hall of stately marble pillars. Twelve of the columns are of black marble from the Pyrenees. Twelve are of Missouri marble from near Ste. Genevieve. This great hall of pillars runs from the south or main entrance to the north wall and is almost as wide as it is long. It provides a sublime introduction to the gallery.

One wing of the gallery, known as the Mary E. Atkins Museum of Fine Art, was built from a bequest made by the late Mrs. Atkins of Kansas City. This wing will contain many of the more modern examples of art. Mr. Nelson's bequest being limited to the work of artists dead thirty years at the time of the purchase.

Provision has been made to insure the gallery's being a live rather than a dead center of cultural interest.

THE WRITER

MALVINA LINDSAY, who graduated from the University in 1913 with a Bachelor of Journalism degree, is now a feature writer for the Kansas City Journal Post. She has had writings published by leading American magazines. Miss Lindsay is a member of Theta Sigma Phi.

Hitler Receives President Williams

President Walter Williams, Missouri's Ambassador-at-Large, and Mrs. Williams, are being honored and received abroad.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler on November 3 granted a long and cordial interview to President and Mrs. Williams. The German leader questioned President Williams on conditions in America and voiced his hope that Germany would copy things that have proven good for the American people.

Clippings from a German paper gave an account of a dinner honoring President and Mrs. Williams by Alfred Rofenberg, Chief of Foreign Politics in the Party. On this occasion and in the presence of the American Ambassador and other high government officials tribute was paid to the founder of the first school of journalism and his principles, which should not only be applied to the press but to politics and international relations.

The Carl Schurz Society in Berlin held a reception in honor of President Williams. Among other distinguished persons present was Dr. Albert Hermann Henrich Schnee, former governor of German East Africa.

In a news story published in the St. Joseph News Press on November 9 Mrs. Williams tells of their hearing Herr Adolf Hitler make his first speech for the vote of the people at the November 12 election. President and Mrs. Williams were among the honor guests and were seated on the platform from which the Chancellor addressed the audience of 30,000 people.

President Williams is studying and traveling in the German-speaking countries as recipient of the Oberlander grant, and is on a sabbatical leave of three months from the University.

Dr. Brashear Writes Book On Life of Mark Twain

Dr. Minnie M. Brashear, a member of the English Faculty at the University, has been studying eight years on the life of Mark Twain and is the author of the very recently released book, "Mark Twain, Son of Missouri."

It is a point of argumentation among literary critics as to how Mark Twain became a genius of American literature, and it is into this literary war that Dr. Brashear's book takes issue. In her writing she contends that there is too much speculation and not enough research about Mark Twain.

Dr. Brashear's defense of early Missouri was written not only on research, but observation. She has lived in Hannibal and the Mark Twain country, and one of her grandfathers came to Florida, Missouri a short time before Mark Twain was born.

Dr. Brashear, received her A.B. degree at the University in 1908 and a Master's degree in 1922. Since then she has taken a Doctor's degree from the University of North Carolina. It is by way of the press of the University of North Carolina that this book, "Mark Twain, Son of Missouri" is offered the reading public.

Many M. U. Alumni On Stephens College Staff

The old adage about the distant horizons being the most promising may be true in some ways but not in the literal sense for the thirty members of Stephens College Staff who are alumni or former students of the University.

Dr. James Madison Wood is president of this college in Columbia, which last year celebrated its centennial. Dr. Wood took an A.B. and B.S. in Education, degrees at the University in 1907.

Other alumni or former students on the Stephens College Staff include: Werrett Wallace Charters, director of Research; Roy Ivan Johnson, head of division of Skills and Techniques; Weldon Perry Shofstall, dean of Administration; Frank Gosney Nifong, director of Health and Physical Education; Pearl Beauchamp, professor of Latin; Carl Newton Rexroad, professor of Psychology; Mollie Grace White, professor of Chemistry; Mabel Schultz Childers, instructor in German; James Henry Dougherty, instructor in Elementary Education; Ruth Mumford, instructor in Physical Education; Rolf Raynor, Riding instructor; Laura Anita Searcy, instructor in English Composition; Ruth Ann Sleeper, instructor in Public School Music; Zay Rusk Sullens, instructor in English; Virginia Brown, assistant in History; Agnes Menzel Goldthwaite, assistant in charge of Kindergarten; Ann Barclay Sorency, alumnae secretary and secretary to the Hon. Roy T. Davis; Dorothy Martin, assistant Librarian; Eleanor Dilts, assistant Alumnae Secretary; Dorothy Kingsbury, assistant in Chemistry; Helen Clanton, publicity secretary; Grace Pepperdine, secretary to the President.

Harvey S. Walter is director of Admissions, and has the following assistants; Fred D. Bruton, Justin Brown, John B. Kyd, J. Scott Henry, and Enoch A. Collins.

Frank W. Dearing is secretary of the Board of Curators and Treasurer of the College.

Dr. Robbins on K. C. Program

Samuel A. Dew, A.B. '04, reports that the Parent-Teachers meeting in Kansas City of the 16th of October was unusually well attended, there being over two thousand parents and students in attendance. This group assembled at the Southwest High School and enthusiastically received the address of the evening by Dr. William J. Robbins, acting president of the University.

Prof. and Mrs. Pommer Celebrate Golden Wedding

Fifty years ago last September Prof. W. H. Pommer came to Columbia to be head of the Music department at Christian College, and the following October 3 he married Miss Stella Smith. The wedding services were read by Dr. Schuyler of Christ Church at the home of her parents in St. Louis.

Prof. Pommer, whose grandfather was one of the first piano makers in this country has studied abroad at the Royal Conservatory at Leipzig and the Imperial Conservatory at Vienna, and was on the continent at the time Wagner, Brahms, and Liszt were in the foreground of a music conscious world.

After holding various positions as musical director and supervisor Prof. Pommer became head of the music department of the University in 1907, and retired in 1922 as professor emeritus.

Prof. and Mrs. Pommer entertained a host of their friends at a reception in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 609 Maryland, where they reside with their only child, Miss Sibyl Pommer.

MRS. FRANK J. MILLER, wife of Dr. Miller, who recently was a member of the faculty of the department of classical languages, was stricken with paralysis early in August. She is slowly, but steadily recovering. Dr. and Mrs. Miller are in Denver.

GWINN HENRY, former head football coach at the University for nine years is now coaching the Gunners, a St. Louis professional team. Before coming to the University he coached at the College of Emporia, Emporia, Kansas.

A New Deal for Missouri Athletes

Calls for an Individual Case Study of Each Player by an Adviser
With Attention to the Student's Background and Schedule

by ALBERT KERR HECKEL

A SUCCESSION of disappointing football seasons has deeply stirred a great many of the friends of the University of Missouri. Faculties, alumni, students, and fans all have their own particular set of opinions as to the reasons for unsuccessful seasons; opinions differ also as to athletics in general, their place in college, and the importance of athletic success or failure. Frequently there is too much readiness to criticize or condemn without a careful study of facts. The defense of extra-curricular activities in college is usually well presented; the case of the college itself is not so well presented.

I suppose nobody will deny that the main business of a college or university is to educate, just as few would deny that the numerous side-shows which we call student activities are not without their value. Many of them are distinctly worth while, but the institution which cannot convince its students that these activities are secondary in importance to the classroom, lacks vitality and punch.

Normal Intelligence Basic

At least normal intelligence in the student is the first requirement for success both in colleges and in later life. Other valuable qualities must supplement intelligence. I do think that too much is sometimes claimed for football as a character-builder; yet such qualities as courage, skill, alertness, team-play, self-discipline, self-reliance, loyalty, and sportsmanship in accepting defeat or victory, are encouraged by the game. These are qualities which add robustness and vitality not only to the individual but to the college itself. Any university would be the poorer without them.

An unsympathetic faculty is very often blamed for unsuccessful seasons, but I have yet to find a member of the faculty at Missouri who "has it in for the athlete" because he is an athlete. On the contrary, I know there is great rejoicing when an outstanding player wins distinction in scholarship. Missouri can boast of football captains who were Phi Beta Kappas or Rhodes Scholars. Occasionally we do find a professor who has a "blind spot" for athletics, but in general, when faculty resentment of athletics exists, it is against "over-emphasis" and not against athletics as such. What the faculty wants is "fair play for things of the mind."

But if the college is for the boy, and if teaching is its primary business, we need to find a way to reach the boy and fit the two together. Educators take too much for granted. They know educational values as such and expect the student and the public to recognize these values. We of the faculty are too inclined to present a curriculum of study to the student and say in spirit, "You may take it or officially recognized by the University. Those who have not played football little realize how fatiguing an afternoon of practice is. The football squad leaves the field with tired bodies. It is small wonder that slipshod study is often the penalty for the afternoon of physical exertion. The cumulative result can easily be the elimination of too many athletes from the university. There is a remedy for this which would not necessitate a lowering of scholastic standards. It lies in proper personal guidance. We are not going to help a boy adequately unless we come to know him. There are too many real and significant differences among individuals to find a pattern which will fit them all. We cannot hope to accomplish our educational purposes by merely exposing a student to the professor in the classroom. Education is not a contagion.

Know the Real Boy

How can I help John if I do not know the real John, his ambitions, his mind, his temperament, his character? The football coach has a very effective way of discovering ability in a player; the college depends too exclusively upon examinations and assigned tasks for discovering ability in a student. How can our teaching be made to reach boys who range from inferiority to excellence in their capacity to learn? Differences in abilities demand differences in treatment. In addition to the question, "What is John doing in his studies?" may we not ask, "What are the studies doing in John?" Are we fitting John for the university; are we also fitting the university for John? He makes the transition from high school to college and at once meets with new responsibilities and new values. Instead of spending his whole day in the classroom under supervision, he now makes out a schedule of courses in which his hours in the classroom are intermittent. With supervision withdrawn, his work is likely to be as haphazard as his schedule. If students knew how to make wise use of the time between classes there would be fewer failures. How can we restore supervision without pampering the college man? It is in the belief that a satisfactory answer to this question can be found that I have offered my services and engaged to secure other faculty men to act as leave it." Can we expect youth to have a maturity of judgment or self-reliance to follow unfamiliar paths unaided? When we show as much concern over strengthening a boy's brain as the football coach shows over training the boy's muscles, we may get education and athletics into their right places and proportions.

Whether we like it or not, football is and is likely to remain a vital part of college life. Why not work on the principle that the athlete is here to get an education, and see to it that he gets it? Hold him to the required standard of scholarship, but give him a chance. He is in a sport which is

Governor Hockenhull of New Mexico Known to '03 Classmates as "Andy"

GOVERNOR HOCKENHULL

Exactly ten years after James F. Hinkle, a member of the class of '82, stepped into the highest executive position in the State of New Mexico another Missourian, Andrew W. Hockenhull, a member of the class of '03, becomes Governor of New Mexico.

Missouri alumni in New Mexico were quick to dispatch the welcome news of this honor conferred upon an old classmate who was known in his college days as "Andy." Governor Hockenhull, born in Polk County in 1877, graduated from Southwest Baptist College at the age of twenty years, and came to the University where he proved himself an all-around student. He was catcher on the baseball team and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

In the fall of 1901 he married Miss Mamie Drake, of Bolivar. They have three daughters. His youngest daughter was born on June 17, 1917, which was the twelfth birthday of his oldest daughter.

From his record of service citizens of New Mexico have realized him to be a man of capabilities and sound business judgment. Prior to his governorship he served as Probate Judge, Assistant District Attorney, City Attorney, and Lieutenant Governor, from which rank he was elevated to his present position. Governor Hockenhull was also president of the Clovis National Bank.

Although Governor Hockenhull hasn't been back to the University since his student days he writes that he often comes in contact with old students and enjoys renewing old acquaintances. He hopes to visit the University within the coming year.

A former governor of New Mexico, James F. Hinkle, was likewise born in Missouri and educated at the state University. He was born in Franklin County in 1862 and married Miss Lillie E. Roberts in 1892. Of this marriage there are four children, two boys and two girls. One of his daughters, Mrs. Frederick Homer Ward, formerly Lillian A. Hinkle, graduated from the University in 1927, and was a member of Pi Beta Phi. John I. Hinkle, a brother of the former governor, graduated in law in 1892.

Hinkle's Steady Rise

Since going to New Mexico and making his home at Roswell James F. Hinkle took up live stock ranching and banking. He was not only chosen as mayor of that city, but served in the state legislature six times, prior to his election to the executive office.

Still another Missourian who has made an outstanding record in that western state is George Henry Hunker, born in 1876, who now has the responsible position as manager of the Santa Fe Branch of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation. This corporation serves the whole state and loans out millions of dollars in the interest of livestock in New Mexico.

Hunker, a member of Sigma Nu, received his degree in law in '97, and six years later married Miss Emma Vasse of Moberly. At present two of their four children are attending the University, a daughter, Helen, and a son, George. A nephew, Bernard, son of the late Chester A. Hunker, LL.B. '09, is also at Missouri this year. The late Mrs. Herman Daughtery, formerly Mary Hunker, the daughter of George Hunker, was a graduate of the class of 1927.

GEORGE H. HUNKER
EX-GOV. HINKLE

Among his numerous civic activities Hunker was state chairman of the Democratic Committee, and president of the Board of Regents of the New Mexico Normal University.

WILLIAM N. (BILL) COLLINS, B.S. in Ag. '21, is coaching football at the Joplin High School. Collins is a former University halfback, and has coached at Missouri Wesleyan and at William Jewell.

Do You Remember Way Back When?

The Law-Engineer Feud

It was back in the days of the gay nineties when the campus was graded down from the foot of the Columns to its present level. Bad weather set in and it became necessary to lay a board walk from the Academic Hall to the Law Building, which was at that time on the quadrangle diagonal from the Engineering Building. The Engineers feeling the dignity of their profession had been slighted in not being consulted took the board walk at night and moved it over to their building.

The following night the Lawyers sought to return the board walk, consequently a battle ensued and resulted in severe bruises and wounds to both Lawyers and Engineers.

The faculty met and suspended the principal contenders. The student body demanding their reinstatement declared a strike, and in the following days the students met in the chapel and the faculty in the President's office.

The newspapers in the State took up the fight along the line of lawlessness in the University.

Finally the faculty decreed that at the last tap of the bell those who had failed to sign a submitted pledge would be automatically suspended. The treaty was signed and peace returned—but life from then on took a different turn for the men of the rule and the men of the gavel.

The account of this incident was contributed by D. W. May, B.S. in Ag. '94, A.M. '96, of Benton City. Alumni and former students are urged to send in similar items.

An American Professor Differs with the Student Abroad in His Views of "Ol" Heidelberg and "New" Germany

by DR. KARL R. BOPP

Yes! to this thought I hold with firm persistence;

The last result of wisdom stamps it true:

He only earns his freedom and existence,

Who daily conquers them anew.

Goethe: Faust Part II (Taylor translation)

From the words of Faust just before he dies.

AN idea seems to be current that if a person spends a week-end in the United States of the Hesperides, he is an authority upon everything Hesperidian. The present writer does not pretend to such authority on matters German. He was asked to comment upon "Ol" Heidelberg and "New" Germany and does so with hesitation.

It is, of course, possible that different persons may be impressed differently. Hypothetically, for example, a person who knows the language of a country may have a different opinion of it than does a person who does not know the language; or again a professor may have an opinion which differs from that of a student in a present day German University.

German universities have been turning out perhaps two or three times as many college trained persons as could be absorbed into positions for which they had been trained. This fact is basic.

I. Fraternities

There are certain matters of minutiae in which German fraternities (of the duelling variety) differ from American college fraternities. For example, members of American fraternities typically wear a removable emblem on the vest; members of German duelling fraternities typically wear a permanent insignia upon the cheek. Again, there are certain differences in the emblems of the several American fraternities; but unfortunately, skillful as members of German fraternities are with the blade, they are not able to carve Greek letters upon the cheek of the friendly rival.

Although such duelling was prohibited in the state of Baden for a decade, the prohibition was about as effective as has been the prohibition of liquor in the United States. Then, of course, if necessary or expedient, students could always go out of Baden to duel—a journey of perhaps 10 miles. Yet, the restoration of duelling in Baden is cited as evidence for the generalization that "they (the students) were to be given more freedom than ever before."

II. Faculty

"It was the members of the faculty who were to feel the touch of the new Government this time." "With the whole-hearted support Hitler and his leaders are receiving from the faculty . . . ." On the surface, at least, these two statements appear to be contradictory. They are reconciled in the article mentioned: many professors were dismissed. In a parenthesis it is asked: "May we say they were mercenary?" No answer is given; for it appears that the writer is convinced that everyone who is by now informed about what the movement really means will conclude that an affirmative answer only is even thinkable. What these mercenary advantages were is not stated. Perhaps they can be discovered.

Before the war any person who entered the German academic world required an independent fortune. It was a long path from the beginner to the full professor. Yet, until a person became a full professor he received no salary from the state. To be sure, he received some pay from his students; but, in general, that was small in amount. The theory was that a person who would profess should be driven into the field by his own nature and should not be attracted by salary.

The fortunes of many professors were lost during the war and the subsequent inflation. Certain methods of paying other than full professors were devised in order to keep them alive. But the income from the position remained small. Many persons whose word is not to be doubted stated to the present writer quite frankly that they could make more money somewhere else. Strange as it may seem to some, these persons are academic men for reasons other than salary.

Perhaps a specific example will illustrate the point. A certain friend of the present writer taught at a German university for 25 years. He was not yet a full professor. Consequently, he had received no professional salary from the state. True, he had other sources of income—else how could he live? But the chief source of his income was his private fortune—which unfortunately was practically wiped out during the inflation. This man was dismissed from his position. I repeat the question: may we say that he was mercenary?

"Removing the freedom from the life of the German student" seems to the writer of "Ol" Heidelberg really to mean the restoration of his freedom because it removes from him "undesirable" professors. This has happened before in Germany. Universities there were under political control after, say, 1819. Arndt, who said, "The Rhine is Germany's stream, not Germany's boundary," was removed from his position at the University of Bonn. Other persons, some at universities, others not, found out what it meant to be outcasts: Schleiermacher, Turnvater Jahn, Gneisenau, Freiherr von Stein. The "Göttingen Sieben" (1832) preferred dismissal to resignation.

But the traitor of yesterday sometimes becomes the hero of today; the hero of today sometimes becomes the traitor of tomorrow. So these persons who accepted responsibility, who had the courage of their convictions have become the authorities frequently cited by the "New Germany."

In a more basic sense, however, they are not suitable authorities. They insisted upon the right to express a particular idea; but basically they insisted upon the right to express any idea, however unpopular that particular idea might be. The first is but an evidence of the second—which they considered fundamental.

Financial Reports Presented at Fall Alumni Board Meeting

THE Board of Directors of the General Alumni Association held their annual fall meeting at the Tiger Hotel on November 4th. W. A. Cochel, editor of the Weekly Kansas City Star, and President of the General Alumni Association, presided.

Plans for the biennial meeting and election of officers at the 1934 Commencement were discussed. President Cochel was authorized to appoint a nominating committee.

The success of the conference last year of the officers of the Alumni Foundations of the various University divisions prompted the Board to schedule this as an annual meeting. This will give an opportunity to the officers of the foundations to exchange ideas and to take advantage of the plans perfected by the various foundation organizations. It was brought out in the meeting that although the divisional foundations were doing very little at the present due to financial conditions, it was apparent that the foundation officers are getting all their plans in readiness to take advantage of improved financial opportunities.

President Cochel and the members of the present Board have been eager to arrange for an annual meeting in Columbia of the presidents and secretaries of the one hundred and fourteen alumni associations in Missouri and of the officers of the alumni associations outside of the state. Lack of funds has handicapped these plans. When the Alumni Fund takes on greater proportions it is the hope that such an annual meeting may be provided. The benefits to be derived from such an annual gathering are obvious.

The audits of the Missouri Alumnus and the Alumni Fund for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, made by Williams-Hough Audit Company, of Columbia, were read, studied and accepted by the Board, payment for same authorized and the budget for each accepted and approved and the publication of the summaries of both audits authorized.

CORRECTION

In last month's issue of The Missouri Alumnus there was a mistake in the headline of the article on page 5. The word "Affected" should have been used instead of "Effected" in the second part of the headline, which was not written by the author of the article.

The student body of the School of Journalism has the unique distinction of being an incorporated body. It has taken the name of the Journalism Student's Association, and the organization is liable to legal formalities just as any firm or corporation in business.

It Was Homecoming at Ol' Missouri and a Memorable 1908 Class Reunion

"I T was great to be back in Columbia—to haunt the old buildings—to visit out at the "house" and to hash over the ol' days. Even if the Tigers didn't win the game it was a good fight—why, even the weather was fine!" are some of the remarks by those alumni and former students who made it up to Columbia for the 1933 Homecoming.

The ball started rolling on Friday night with the 1908 Banquet Reunion and the Homecoming Mass Meeting and Bonfire. Everybody was out and the Missouri spirit was as contagious as ever. One thing followed another and the Tiger Town Frolic at Rothwell Gymnasium concluded Friday's activities.

Saturday morning was the time of reunions and breakfast meetings, which broke up just in time to get over to the Memorial Tower where the R.O.T.C. unit was assembled and Armistice Day Services were held.

No time to spare until the Luncheon meeting, and then the Homecomers had to hustle to get the crowd together and get a parking place near the stadium, all the while keeping a lookout for friends.

And the game kept up interest and the hopes of a victory up to the last quarter. It was all good entertainment and the ol' Tiger-Sooner sportsmanship prevailing even in the period between the halves.

The Tiger Battery put on a special act, bringing out the cannon and firing on the Sooner prairie schooner at the opposite end of the field, but Oklahoma couldn't let that go by unattended so out they came with a portable fire department and did their loyal best with a fire extinguisher.

The Governor was given the military salute, the pep squads circled about, prizes were presented and band music filled the air.

After the game and the singing again of "Ol' Missouri" the crowd thronged back to town—dinner—and the dance.

1908 Banquet

THERE were about a hundred persons including guests and members of the family who gathered around the banquet table of the 1908 class on the evening of November 10. Never before in Columbia had banquet tables been so beautifully decorated.

The class president, Dr. Claude B. Hutchison, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of California, presided over the banquet.

"Life is so full of glorious opportunities that it is fun to live and even to grow old. I have been so imbued with this spirit that when I registered, without any subterfuge, I honestly put down my exact age!" said Mrs. Redmond S. Cole, who represented the mothers in her talk, "We, the Parents."

Other addresses given on the program were by C. L. Brewer, W. A. Cochel, Floyd E. Jacobs, O. E. Reed, Dr. E. Lee Miller, Miss Kathryn Spangler, Mrs. James E. Summers, Acting President William J. Robbins, Alexander W. Graham, and Allen L. Oliver.

During the banquet favors were passed out including novelty cardboard tigers from the Missouri Store, postal cards from the Co-op, a list of class members and their addresses, and a photograph of the columns by the General Alumni Association. Mary Jane Hill, Dorothy Ann Nowell, Dorothy Ann Fuqua, Gwendolyn Knight, Bettie Ann Estill, and Gloria Phillips, all daughters of alumni, passed these favors around.

The following morning the class met for the purpose of perfecting their organization for another reunion in 1959. In the absence of the president Dr. Edgar D. Lee presided. The following new officers were elected: J. A. Whitlow, president of the College of Engineering alumni; W. T. Cross, president of the College of Arts and Science alumni; Floyd Jacobs, president of the School of Law alumni; Miss Catherine Spangler, president of the School of Education alumni, and Dr. Lee Miller, president of the School of Medicine alumni. It was agreed that the rest of the present officers would continue in office.

Tribute was paid to the late Prof. L. M. ("Daddy") Defoe, who is still considered the real friend of the class of 1908. A collection was made to purchase flowers for Mrs. Defoe and Miss Mary Jesse, the daughter of the former president of the University.

H. H. Krusekopf, chairman of the tree committee, reported that the class tree planted as a memorial at their commencement was one of the hard maple trees planted in front of the president's residence on the quadrangle. At this anniversary the class planted a hard maple tree at noon on the quadrangle to the west of Neff Hall. Much water will pass under the journalist bridge and the young maple will shed many leaves until the next official reuniting of the class of '08, but they will return.

Alumni in Missouri Legislature

The Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Eighteen Representatives and Five Senators Attended the University

by HARVEY WERTZ

MISSOURI alumni are a potent force in shaping the new policies of the state in the extraordinary session of the legislature now at work drafting measures for liquor control and relief.

Fourteen of the twenty-three Missouri members are lawyers, three are graduates of the school of journalism, two are farmers, three are in the insurance business and one is a statistician.

The Governor of Missouri, Honorable Guy B. Park, graduated from the University with the degree of LL.B. in 1896. The Lieutenant Governor, who presides over the Senate is the Honorable Frank G. Harris, who graduated from the University with the degree of LL.B. in 1898.

Senator Frank P. Briggs, newspaper editor of Macon, B.J. '15, is chairman of the committee on municipal corporations. Briggs is also chairman of two other committees, the committee on printing and the committee on clerical forces, despite the fact that this is his first term in the senate.

Senator James S. Rollins of Columbia, LL.B. '10, better known as "Sid" to almost every Missouri student of this generation is chairman of the senate committee on insurance and is a member of the potent appropriations committee. This committee will be charged with properly dividing the additional revenue that this session of the assembly is expected to raise for relief and other purposes.

Senator Jerome M. Joffe of Kansas City, '12, is chairman of the senate committee on wills and probate, county courts and justices of the peace but it is as a member of the committee on criminal jurisprudence that he has been most useful.

This committee will have much to do with the liquor control and taxation measure which will be finally enacted into law. Joffe has been one of the most persistent and sincere advocates of high taxation and in general his ideas for liquor control conform to those advocated by Gov. Park and the advisory commission of which Dr. Walter Williams, president of the University, recommended to the Governor.

However he does not agree with the governor on other methods of raising revenue and his spirited battles against the governor's plan for a sales tax has attracted state-wide attention. Joffe's legislative career has been marked by his sincerity of purpose and his willingness to fight for his convictions.

Senator Lon Haymes of Springfield, '13, majority floor leader of the senate in the fifty-sixth general assembly, is chairman of the senate committee on criminal jurisprudence, member of the senate committee on criminal jurisprudence and of the senate appropriations committee.

Senator James C. McDowell of Charleston, LL.B. '15, is chairman of the senate committee on private corporations and like Joffe and Haymes, is a member of the senate committee on criminal jurisprudence.

Serving Eighth Term

W. E. Whitecotton of Paris, Pe.B. '87, is serving his eighth consecutive term in the House of Representatives. For sixteen years he has participated in writing Missouri laws and the house listens attentively when "Doc" brushes back his straggling locks of hair and expounds his theories of government and philosophy.

He is chairman of the committee on wills and probate, a member of house committee on agriculture, civil and criminal procedure, constitutional amendments, official fees and salaries and others.

John W. Taylor of Keytesville, '13, is the author of a sales tax measure which may be adopted to the task of raising the $9,000,000 of additional revenue which the governor believes will be necessary within the next year and a half. He was elected a month ago to fill a vacancy from Chariton county and celebrated a few days ago the twenty-fifth anniversary of his original election to the house where he served two terms. He also served one term in the state senate.

Few men in the house possess his insight into legislative problems or his ability to analyze a situation clearly before the house.

Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, '12, is the author of a liquor control and taxation measure and of a corporation franchise tax which has already passed the house. His liquor bill appears to have strong support and provides for a tax geared to the alcoholic content of the liquor.

Raymond S. Roberts of Farmington, '18-22, has not taken a particularly active part in the special session. However, he was joint author of the Brogan-Roberts beer bill which defined 3.2 beer as non-intoxicating.

William B. Weakley of Clarksville, B.S. Ag. '17, runs one of the largest orchards in the state. He is one of the younger group in the house and while he speaks infrequently his opposition to legislation for minority interests has earned an enviable reputation for him.

Received Two Degrees

Frank F. Catron of Lexington, received his Bachelor of Arts degree at the university in 1913 and his journalism degree in 1915. However he is known as one of the best lawyers in the house and his opinions are frequently sought by legislative veterans.

H. P. Lauf of Jefferson City, LL.B. '23, is chairman of the highly important committee on criminal jurisprudence. He is generally regarded as one of the best orators in the house and visitors in the gallery or even the corridors have no trouble hearing "Pete."

E. W. Couey of Sedalia, LL.B. '90, is next to "Doc" Whitecotton as a veteran from the university. He is chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments and a worthy legislator but he is best known for his ability to send the house into roars of laughter at his ready wit.

Fred E. McGhee of Springfield, '10-11, is a member of the committee on flood control, eleemosynary institutions, state library, and township organizations.

James M. Rice of Pittsville, '10-11, is a member of the appropriations committee and the committee on flood control. He and Weakley are the

THE WRITER

HARVEY WERTZ, left the University in 1925 with a B.J. degree and started his career with the Chicago Tribune. Before going with the St. Louis Star and Times in 1929 he had been on the staff of the New York Evening Post. Wertz is now Jefferson City representative for the St. Louis Star and Times. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi.

INTERESTING PEOPLE Among Missouri Alumni

FRANKLIN MILLER, Valedictorian of the Academic class of 1901, Phi Beta Kappa, is circuit attorney of St. Louis.

He was born in Lancaster, Missouri, and at the age of nineteen years had saved enough money by working in his father's store at Memphis, Missouri, following his high school days to enable him to attend the University. He was president of his freshman class, winner of the James S. Rollins' Junior Scholarship, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and QEBH.

In 1903 he graduated as valedictorian of the law class of Washington University, after which he established himself in the practice of law in St. Louis.

His two attempts for election as Circuit Judge shared the unfortunate fate of the Democratic ticket until 1920, when he was elected in a spectacular race to a six year term, being the only member of his party elected to that office since 1912. In the elections of 1928 at the time of the Hoover landslide Judge Miller won the office of Circuit Attorney by the record breaking majority of 60,000 votes being re-elected in 1932 by almost 100,000. He married Miss Maude Barnes, of Fort Smith, Arkansas in Washington, D. C. in 1907. Mrs. Miller attended the University, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, and graduated with an A.B. in 1904. Franklin Miller, Jr., graduated last June with high honors from Swarthmore College, and is now attending the University of Chicago. His twin brother, Henry, an alumnus of Washington University is in the law department of that school. A daughter, Katherine, is in her senior year at Wells College.

JAMES M. HUSTON, B.S. in Ag. '14, is president of the Production Credit Corporation of St. Louis, one of the four branches of the Farm Credit Administration serving the sixth land bank district.

Mr. Huston was born in Sweet Springs, on February 20, 1892. In 1916, two years after his graduation from the University, he married Miss Ben Johnson, of Purdin. Dorothy Margaret Huston and Jimmie Huston, their children are fifteen and thirteen years old respectively.

Mr. Huston taught school for four years during which time he did county extension work at Maysville, and at Platte City. In 1926 he accepted a position as appraiser with the Federal Land Bank in St. Louis. He was called in to the bank in 1928, serving in the Collection and Real Estate departments.

At the time of his appointment with the Production Credit Corporation he was vice-president of the Federal Land Bank.

Fred P. Huston, a brother of Mr. Huston, graduated with a B.S. in E.E. in 1912, and is now with the International Nickel Company in New York.

His sister, Mrs. S. F. Tuller, formerly Miss Margaret C. Huston, A.B. '23, Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, L. S. V., is living in Kansas City. She was formerly with the extension service as a home demonstration agent and a specialist in boys and girls club work.

WILEY FRANKLIN CORL, B.S. in E.E. '08, president of General Management Co., and allied Corporations, with offices at 1500 Walnut St., Philadelphia. Mr. Corl was born in Webb City in 1887 and graduated from Joplin High School before attending the University. He served with Arnold Construction in Chicago first as draftsman and later in appraisal and rate work. Following this he was with a consulting engineering firm and specialized in the electrification of coal mines in southern Indiana and Illinois. After this he went with the growing concern of the Southern Illinois Light and Power Company, first as general superintendent and later as vice-president. In 1918 Mr. Corl acquired interest in the Missouri Utilities at Mexico, which he sold after four years of development. His next position was with the Community Power and Light Company and in 1925 he resigned to organize the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation of which he has served as head since its beginning. In 1929 this company was acquired by the United Gas Improvement Company, of which Mr. Corl became Vice-President and moved to its headquarters in Philadelphia.

Even though he has been active in business Mr. Corl has found time to devote civic affairs, and has been president of several local Chamber of Commerce organizations. He is a member of the Masonic Fraternity and a Shriner. His principal diversions are dancing, horseback riding, and duck shooting.

In the fall of 1913 Mr. Corl married Miss Elsie Fay of Chicago. They have four children, Fay, Wiley, Jr., Dorothy and Ruth. Mr. Corl's brother, Marshall Corl is a former student and his sister, Miss Pearl Corl is a graduate of the 1912 class.

Mr. Corl's rise to success has been an interesting one, and attainment has made his business none the less fascinating. Annually he has the occasion, prompted by a saving of time and money, to make a business inspection trip by plane, flying over 17,000 miles of the South American airways. Mrs. Corl accompanied him on his last trip.

CAMPUS COMMENT

Six Ancestors Served As University Curators

E. Sydney Stephens, Jr., now a senior in the College of Arts and Science, has the unusual lineage of five great-grandfathers who served on the Board of Curators of the University and a grandfather who was also a member. He also represents the fourth generation of Missouri graduates.

Dr. James Wynn Moss, one of his great-grandfathers, was the first president of the Board of Trustees of Columbia College in 1834 which was chartered as the state university a few years later, and at that time another great-grandfather, Dr. Anthony W. Rollins was named as the first president of the Board of Curators. That was in 1839, and in this same period another ancestor, Judge Warren Woodson served on the Board. Another great-grandfather, Col. James Hugh Moss, A.B. '44, acted on the Board in its early days.

E. Sydney Stephens, Jr., is also a great-grandson of Maj. James S. Rollins, who served so loyally as president of the Board of Curators that the State Legislature named him the Father of the University of Missouri. Other than these great-grandfathers there was a grandparent who served on the Board in the capacity of president, E. W. Stephens, A.B. '07.

His ancestry is not only identified with this University, but it is interesting to note that a grandfather, Rev. Joseph R. Gray, was the first graduate of the University of the South at Sewanee, and the first president of Princeton University, Dr. James Dickinson, is of his ancestral lineage.

A cousin, Harold B. Kline, who graduated in 1932 with Phi Beta Kappa honors and who was president of the School of Arts and Science as well as the local chapter of Phi Delta Theta, is also a descendant of Rev. Gray, Dr. Dickinson, Dr. Rollins, and Major Rollins. He is now at Harvard Law School and has been named as one of the fifteen highest honor ranking students.

E. Sydney Stephens, Jr., is the son of E. Sydney Stephens, Sr., A.B. '03, who is a publisher in Columbia, and Mrs. Stephens who was before her marriage, Miss Mary Rollins Gray.

Coming from such a pronounced background of civic and educational leadership it is little wonder that E. Sydney Stephens, Jr., an honor roll student, was elected president of the Junior class of the School of Arts and Science, and is now head of the local who among her other honors is a Mortar Board and L. S. V. She was president of Women's Pan-Hellenic Council, on the Workshop Executive Board and on the Junior League of Women Voters Cabinet. The Gamma Phi Betas are as proud of her as they were of Mary Ellen Hubbard who held the same office and similar honors back in 1929.

Ruth's father, George L. Hawkins, Sr., went to Missouri and his son, George enrolled this fall. Another son, Norman, now deceased, was in the School of Journalism.

chapter of Phi Delta Theta, of which his father was a member.

Cambridge-Missouri Debate Entertaining

When an English debating team invades our country it is always good entertainment be it debating or partee. The students expect as much and weren't disappointed when they attended the debate between Cambridge University and the University of Missouri, and filled the auditorium to capacity on November 14.

Michael Barkway of the Cambridge team took the affirmative with Robert Sciler, Kappa Sigma of the University team, against Alastair Sharp, of Cambridge, and Von Allen Carlisle, Sigma Nu, a veteran M. U. debater.

The question, "Resolved, That This House Approves of Co-education" was favored in the affirmative by a slight margin on popular vote.

A clever remark on the part of one of the Englishman was that his opponent would have done better to have put less fire in his speech and more of his speech in the fire. That was well said, but from some of the quick thinking done there would have been no time to have kindled a fire.

Journalism Show To Be in February

"Yes, mam, we're going to have a Journalism Show this year. It's going to be on February 9th and 10th and it's going to be held in Jesse Hall."

And there's no doubt about it. The Eighteenth Annual Journalism Show will be staged under the title of "Fancy Lady." The authors responsible are Bown Adams, Willard Corlett, and Weldon Kees. And other names appearing in important staff positions are Clair Callahan, Roy Keith, Peggy Minton Rhynsburger, Blanche Jameson McHarg, Beauford Bickley, and the ever-ready and the ever-needed E. K. Johnson.

Kappa Candidate Again Wins "Miss Miz-zou"

The Kappas evidently want to make it a habit of presenting "Miss Miz-zou" at Homecoming. This year their lucky girl was Elizabeth Adams from Guthrie, Oklahoma.

The election was run on a commercial basis to help defray Homecoming expenses. Marjorie Ohnemus, Tri Delta from Quincy, Illinois, was Elizabeth Adams' competition and the score in dollars was 161 to 137.

Olivia Harris Cole, also a Kappa, and from Tulsa, Oklahoma was the Homecoming Official Greeter. To welcome people to Columbia came natural to her as she has had relatives by the score to graduate from Missouri.

Workshop to Present "As Husbands Go"

Again this year the Missouri Workshop is playing a major part in student activities. For its second major production Workshop has chosen, "As Husbands Go." by Rachel Crothers.

Retains Swimming Trophy

The Tri Deltas evidently stand in good favor with their patron god, Neptune, as they were again victorious in the intramural swimming meet and won the trophy for the fourth consecutive year. The three other sororities who entered the finals were Kappa, Pi Phi, and Delta Gamma.

Heavy Schedule Too Much For Tigers M. U. Basketball Season Opens in December with Veteran Player for Each Position

The IOWA-MISSOURI game was played this year before a big homecoming crowd at Iowa on October 28, with the Tigers going down in defeat by a 14 to 7 score. The teams were evenly matched and both scored in the first half. Missouri played with a slight margin until the last four minutes of the game when Iowa blocked a punt, received the ball in Tiger territory, and crossed line in a last desperate drive.

The NEBRASKA - MISSOURI game on November 4 resulted in a 26-0 victory for the visitors. That first Saturday in November was from the climatic standpoint one of the worst days for football since the first year of the competition of Memorial Stadium. It rained throughout the ing, in spite of the wet and muddy football.

The OKLAHOMA - MISSOURI game played on Homecoming Day in Columbia, November 11, ended with the score 21-0 in the Sooners' favor. The Tigers played their best football of the year against the hard fighting, smooth running, aggressive Sooners. The game was hard fought through the four quarters and the teams were fairly evenly matched except for the brilliant running of Dunlap, Oklahoma's star quarterback.

The WASHINGTON-MISSOURI game was the Tigers third Homecoming in the last four games and Washington took a 33-7 victory. Washington University made brilliant

Alumni Want Broadcasting of Games

We have received a petition signed by alumni of the Big Six Universities who live in Bartlesville, Oklahoma, asking that broadcasting of athletic events be resumed by the member Universities of the Big Six. The petition was immediately referred to our Department of Athletics, and we are pleased to present the following facts.

The conference, having deliberated for more than two years on the subject of broadcasting, decided to eliminate the presentation of their football games on the radio for a year, as a trial period. The Big Six Schools were not alone in this movement, as hundreds of other institutions made the same decision. Among leading Universities taking the same course is Harvard, Yale, and Princeton.

The main objection to broadcasting collegiate athletic contests is that institutions resent being used as advertising mediums. Advertising concerns naturally reserve the right to use their own announcers and call the listeners attention to the immeasurable worth of their tooth paste, pancakes, or whatever the product might be. On the other hand it is natural that the educational institution in the case objects to the commercial "tie-up."

C. L. Brewer, director of Athletics at the University of Missouri, is strongly in favor of broadcasting football games, but he is opposed to the commercialization of football on the air. He believes that games should be broadcast as a service to the alumni and the friends of the University.

This question of broadcasting is to be discussed at the Big Six Conference Meet on December 9 with possibly the adoption of a new policy. It is believed and hoped that the commercial aspect can be eliminated and the games placed on the air advertising the University itself, and not some product wholly foreign.

In this case the University would use their own announcers and present the program from the angle of greatest interest to the listeners.

game and turned cold. Nebraska, with one of the strongest conference teams, held the upper hand throughout the game, scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter. The teams fought evenly through the next two quarters, with Missouri having two chances to cross the Cornhuskers goal line. In the last quarter the Tigers were well worn down and Nebraska added thirteen points to their score.

Sauer of Nebraska, an All-American fullback, and a teammate Masterson, quarterback, both played brilliant football. For the Tiger team, Woody Hatfield, did some outstanding kick-preparations for this game, for which they had pointed all season, and their team unquestionably played their best. Missouri was dead and slow from desperate fights with Oklahoma and Nebraska.

With all scores chalked up excepting the Jayhawk-Tiger fight the Missouri team made their plans for the last game of the season on Thanksgiving Day. The Tiger team hadn't been on the winning side of the board this year and they left Columbia bent on taking full advantage of this their last chance of the season—and against Kansas at that!

M. U. Basketball Team Starts Season December 9

According to George Edwards, basketball coach for the University team, a great deal is going to depend on developing a center to fill the place of Norman Wagner, whose outstanding playing was a main-stay in the Tiger team.

The work of Ernest Schaper and George Beimdieck both on the floor as varsity men for the first year shows much promise. Captain Denver Miller, playing his third season, will again take the guard position with Kenneth Jorgensen, and Woody Hatfield.

For the forward positions are the veteran basketeers John Cooper and George Stuber. Stuber will report for basketball as soon as the football season closes.

Players other than Schaper and Beimdieck who are on the varsity for their first year are as follows: Albert Trowbridge, George Hine, George Marquis, Arthur Strang, and Evans Powell as guards; Gene Thompson, William Nowell, Wallace Blume, Lawrence Singer, and Grant Cooper as forwards; Gene Jones and Marshall Walker as centers.

To Speak On Program Arts and Science Week

Dr. Carl Wittke, professor of history at Ohio State University, who has traveled extensively in Germany will be the feature speaker at the annual Arts and Science Week at the University, December 7, 8, and 9. He will speak at convocation on "Universities in Nazi Germany."

At the banquet on December 9, Dr. Wittke will discuss the subject, "Can Education Save Democracy?"

Jackson V. Scholz, B.J. '20, former Tiger sprinter and subsequent member of the United States Olympic track teams in 1920, 1924 and 1928, has suffered the loss of his left eye as the result of an odd hunting accident which occurred at Springfield, Mass., October 29.

With a party of friends, Scholz was hunting small game when a shotgun pellet, fired from a friend's gun directly away from the group, ricocheted and entered Scholz's eyeball. The sight of the other eye was not affected. Scholz lives in Jenkintown, Pa.

advisers to the athletes. I once worked out a plan such as this in another institution, with seemingly good results. It had at least one conspicuous success in saving a freshman who became a football star and was chosen two years in succession as an All-American tackle; what is more important, he secured a college education.

The "Haven't Time" Alibi

The adviser to athletes will find some of them handicapped by poor ability, or poor study habits, or lack of capacity for sustained application, lack of purpose, poor preparation in high school, or by distraction and worries over financial difficulties. Perhaps the first thing to be done is to work out a time budget, a schedule of hours which allots proper time to the necessary business of education. Many a well-intentioned student who now offers the "haven't time" alibi will be amazed to find that he can get into the twenty-four hours of the day all the necessary opportunity for study, work, recreation, and sleep if he will only develop an efficiency schedule and live up to it. All students ought to have the attention of an adviser, but I am interested just now in the athletes, particularly because the situation demands that something be done for them if we are to fulfill the purposes of the university and give these men an education. Their record of scholastic accomplishment leaves much to be desired. Some few have been graduated with honors, many have failed of graduation or have taken five or six years to complete the normal four-year course. I believe we can help these men to help themselves. If fewer athletes are dropped for low scholarship, the increase in football material ought to result in a higher percentage of athletic victories, and add to the prestige of the University of Missouri as an institution of learning.

Nathan Edits "Cosmos"

A new collegiate publication is making its debut and much of its destiny lies in the hands of the managing editor, Charles Nathan, former student, who some few years ago was known as "Chick" to his fellow students.

Cosmos, published in New York, has designed itself for the 300,000 fraternity and sorority members. In the first issue of this magazine there is much of "Chick's" Missouri influence.

The front cover carries the autographed picture of Jane Froman, page 22 has a poem, "November at 'Old Mizzou," page 26 has a write-up of President Walter Williams, and in the sports section there is an editorial about Missouri Football.

Evans are lawyers. Evans is chairman of the committee on the permanent seat of government. Sizer is chairman of the life and accident insurance committee.

Charles D. Capella, Independence lawyer, '07-08, is a member of the house committee on education, university and school of mines, judiciary, banks and banking, redistricting, and roads and highways.

Houston H. Buckley, Hayti, '19-25, is chairman of the committee on flood control and is a member of the committee on military affairs, education and elections.

O. K. Armstrong, Springfield, B.J. and A.M. '25, is the lone Republican among the alumni serving in the assembly. He is reputed to be a strong candidate for Congress and has done yeoman service for his party in the overwhelmingly Democratic house.

ALUMNI MEETINGS

Chicago Alumni Enjoy Varied Program

Special news dispatches from the Windy City bring report that the Chicago Alumni Association, the boys and girls from "Old Mizzou," are going places this year. Their campaign is all outlined in a year book, "The Tiger Trail" (which incidentally can be obtained for ten cents by contributing said amount to Arthur E. Indermark, secretary and treasurer of the Association.)

According to this book, which also contains a directory of the Alumni in Chicago, the next Tiger round-up will be Wednesday, December 6, at six-thirty p. m., at Fred Harvey Restaurant, 308 S. Michigan. After dinner there will be dancing and cards.

South Side Meeting

From report of the sectional meetings other events of the year will likewise be well attended and enjoyed. The route of flight for the progressive dinner on the evening of November 9 included stops at the homes of the McPherron's, the Scott's, the Arm's, and the Wetherell's. The guests know for a certainty that Missouri hospitality and cuisine are lasting arts. On that evening the Chicago Alumni were especially happy to have as their guest Mrs. Jones, wife of the late President J. C. Jones.

North Side Meeting

On "Armistice Eve" the Chicago Missourians were gathered for a "jolly occasion" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cook in Evanston for the first North Side meeting of the year. After all the intellectual noses had been counted the games began. The registration book was signed by the eighteen guests and the evening was climaxed by a most appetizing buffet supper.

Laclede County Alumni Group Formed

The Laclede County Alumni Association was called together for its first meeting the cold and rainy night of November 4. However, the weather was a minor consideration to the fifteen alumni who attended.

According to word sent in by the secretary, Mrs. J. P. Bradshaw, formerly Catherine Ann Brandt, the Association is planning a dinner meeting on Saturday evening, November 25th. Bob Fields, the president, hopes for a big turn-out at this meeting when they will complete the permanent formation.

St. Louis Alumni Have "Conversational Party"

The St. Louis alumni held a most interesting conversational party the night before the Washington game at the Forest Park Hotel. Everyone present had an opportunity to express himself on various and sundry pending problems. There were no set speeches—it was just an old-fashioned gab-fest, where the welfare of the University was uppermost in the thoughts and expressions of the alumni. President Casteel presided. Director Brewer and Coach Carideo were there. "Brick" Travis, of St. Charles, President of the "M" Men, came over for the party. A goodly number of the younger alumni were present, indicating an interest on their part which should be cultivated further.

An Invitation to the K C. Alumni Frolic

According to Lynn Webb, president of the Kansas City Alumni Association, all alumni and former students who are on the trek to Lawrence for the Thanksgiving Game are cordially invited to the Missouri Frolic on the night of November 29th, at the Muehlebach Hotel.

Paul Hamilton is chairman of the Banquet Committee and is assisted by Julian Wornel and Harry H. (Hatch) Welch, Jr.

Pittsburgh Association To Have Dinner Meeting

The Pittsburgh Association has scheduled a dinner meeting at Carnegie Inn at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening, November 25th, according to word sent in by F. O. Calhoun, 230 Barth Avenue, Mt. Lebanon, Pa. At this meeting there will be held the annual election of officers. Members, with their wives and husbands are cordially invited.

Syracuse Alumni Plan to Organize

Plans are under way for the organization of an Alumni Association at Syracuse, New York. Larry Mitchell, of the class of 1928, is back of the movement and writes that he has met quite a few alumni in that vicinity and that they are planning to get-together for a meeting in the early part of December. Mitchell is with the Cummings Brothers, Investments, with office in the State Tower Building at Syracuse.

Forms Medic Alumni Groups in the West

Prof. C. W. Greene, while on his sabbatical leave last August, met with a group of University Medical alumni at a banquet in Portland, Oregon, and assisted them in perfecting the organization of a Medical School Alumni Association.

Dr. Franklin P. Johnson was elected president with Dr. Lewis P. Gambia in the office of secretary-treasurer. The members of the executive committee are Dr. William M. Marbut, Dr. O. R. Gullion, and Dr. Lee B. Bouvy of LeGrand, Oregon. With exception of the last named all the officers are residents of Portland.

At the last annual meeting of the California State Medical Society at Del Monte, steps were taken to organize a branch of the University alumni of the School of Medicine and the response showed that there were fifty-five alumni practicing medicine in California. One of the most enthusiastic Missourians is the Honorary President of the group, Dr. William W. Ashley Newhall, California, who is the third oldest alumnus and a member of the second graduating class, 1875.

The group decided to meet annually at the time of the State Medical Meeting. Dr. Sam Ayers, '15, Los Angeles, is named president and Dr. Ben Dysart, '21, Pasadena, is secretary-treasurer. Other doctors serving on the board are: Leo P. Bell, '12, Sacramento; Hiram M. Currey, '23, Santa Ana; D. Paul Fagerstrom, '17, San Jose; Robert B. Hill, '09 Los Angeles; and Keith S. McKee, '17, Bakersfield.

Annual Ag Breakfast During International Show

The annual breakfast for the Agriculture alumni will be held during the International Live Stock Show in Chicago at 8 o'clock Monday, Dec. 4, at the Saddle and Sirloin Club, Stockyards Inn.

Ray E. Miller, Room 1200, 608 Dearborn St., Chicago, wants the news spread around to all Missouri Ag Alumni and former students, for this breakfast is going to be a real "get-together". It'll be strictly informal, and there'll be no speeches, but there'll be a lot of visiting.

Miller graduated in Agriculture in 1917, and returned for graduate work. He is now director of the live stock marketing division of the Illinois Agriculture Association.

Education Alumni Guests of St. Louis Association

A dinner meeting of the Missouri Alumni Association was held on the evening of November 9 in St. Louis at the Town Club, under the direction of Russell Casteel, president of the Association. Mrs. O. J. Rotty, B.S. in Ed. '21, president of the St. Louis Alumnae Association and H. H. Mecker, B.S. in Ed. '11, A.B. '12, A. M. '13, Principal of Ben Blewett Intermediate School, composed the committee in charge of this annual meeting which convenes at the time of the meeting of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

This meeting was well attended and the first speaker of the evening was Dr. William J. Robbins, acting president of the University, and dean of the Graduate School. Among other speakers was Dr. T. W. H. Irion, at that time president of the Missouri State Teachers Association. Dr. Irion is dean of the School of Education and director of the Summer Session.

Other speakers and guests of the occasion were Dr. Eugene Fair, president of the Northeast Missouri Teachers College at Kirksville; Dr. Henry C. Gerling, superintendent of city schools in St. Louis; Prof. J. D. Eliff; Prof. R. L. Davidson; Dr. C. E. Germane; Dr. Ralph Watkins; Dr. J.

H. Coursault; Dr. John Rufi; Dr. W. W. Carpenter.

Four Company "I" Men Meet After 35 Years

It was worth going to the west coast to the National Encampment of the Spanish-American War Veterans last August for four former University men to see each other after an absence of merely thirty-five years. They had all been members of Company "I", which was composed of University of Missouri boys. As J. H. Norton wrote, "We all knew George Pannel due to his youthfulness, but the rest of us, Royal H. Schwitzer, Horace Williams and myself, had to be introduced. Williams thought he knew me, but as an apology he remarked, 'Who the deuce are you? You've gotten so big and fat that I don't know you.'"

Spoke on Radio Program

F. B. Mumford, dean of the College of Agriculture, delivered a radio address over a nation wide hook-up at Chicago on November 15. This address was given in connection with the annual meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities of which he is a member of the Executive Committee, serving his fourteenth year in that capacity.

NELSON GALLERY

Seven large rooms are designed especially for the school children of the city. To these, teachers will bring their pupils to study art and to hear art lectures. An auditorium seating 700 persons will also be used by the children and will be available to adults for concerts and plays. The stage of this auditorium is large enough for a symphony orchestra.

A trip through the gallery constitutes a tabloid art tour of the world. The art of every nation and of every civilization is presented in a native background. In the Chinese room 50 by 100 feet, is assembled some of the oldest art in the world. This gallery contains a Chinese temple, which was dismantled, transported to America and rebuilt for the museum. Covering an entire wall of the Chinese gallery is the greatest Chinese fresco outside of China. It was obtained from a temple in Northern China and dates back to the fourteenth or fifteenth century.

The large Japanese room contains many ancient and valuable fabrics, tapestries and art objects from old Japan. The Indian room, 100 feet long, has a ceiling beamed with unfinished oak from the Ozarks. This will be filled with examples of the arts of the Indians of Southwest

A. P. GREEN HIGH GRADE FIRE BRICK

Real economy in Fire Brick Costs come from the proper application of the proper fire brick. No one fire brick can do all of the job or meet all of the requirements. That's why we make a complete range of high grade fire brick. There are six distinct brands—EMPIRE . . . OZARK and MEXKO are high grade fire clay bricks. KRUZITE . . . MIZZOU and BIG CHIEF are diasporic (High Alumina) "Super" fire brick. Each has its own specific formula . . . Each is designed to do a specific job. All clays used in the manufacture come from North Missouri, open-air, pit-mines owned and controlled by A. P. Green. Ceramic Engineers supervise the selection and gathering. Then comes definite and accurate control in the manufacturing. The result—Fire Brick "That Last Longer."

Engineering survey of your operating conditions and recommendations cost you nothing. If you are interested in fire brick economy, write us. We solicit your inquiries.

NELSON GALLERY

North America and Central America. The Colonial room is a duplicate of that of a sea captain in Salem, Massachusetts, in 1795. The woodwork, furniture and wall paper were taken from the Salem home and used in the gallery room. The original room was designed by Samuel McIntire, famous wood carver of New England.

The French room is a facsimile of a 1720 model. Its hand carved panels of oak, its furniture and rugs were transported from the original room in France. The English room is of the Georgian period, is paneled in Swedish white pine, and has carvings of vines and fruit. The Spanish room, a reproduction of one 250 years old, has a ceiling imported from Spain.

There is a South American room devoted to the ancient arts of that continent, also a Turkish room and a Persian room. The Dutch gallery contains many of the most valuable paintings in the gallery collection. There are rooms of other nationalities, as well as smaller rooms for special exhibits. Several large rooms are set aside for loan exhibitions.

The large library will contain reference books relating to all phases of art. Under the roof of the gallery is a large studio for artists to copy pictures and there is also a dark room for the development of photographs that students may take.

For several years the gallery trustees have been assembling the present collection of art treasures. Their experts have been searching throughout the world. One man searched in Europe, another sought out the old art of China, Japan and India, another made expeditions into Central and South America. Besides brush masterpieces of the great artists, besides many notable examples of statuary, the collection includes Chinese porcelains painted 2,000 years ago, Persian rugs dating to the days of Mahomet, old idols of the East, shrines and carvings from the Orient, treasure chests of Ancient Spain, bone and ivory carvings from the Arctic and the South Sea Islands, antique furniture of many nations, etchings, vestments, glassware, pottery and other examples of art handicraft from all parts of the world.

Some of the famous original paintings in the collection are Rembrandt's "Youth With a Black Cap," Rubens' "Old Parr," Backer's "Lady in a Wide White Collar," Poussin's "Triumph of Bacchus," Gerard Dou's portrait of himself; Tiepolo's "Hagar and Ishmael;" Millet's "Waiting;" Titian's "Portrait of a Man;" Goya's "Portrait of a Nobleman;" Guardi's

"Canal Scene." El Greco, Van Dyck, Franz Hals, Corot and other great artists are represented in the collection. There are portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds, George Romney, and others. Among the American painters represented are Stuart, Benjamin West, Fuller, Copley, Rembrandt Peale and Mather Brown.

Leaves Bulk of Estate

About $500,000 is available annually from the William Rockhill bequest to purchase art treasures. Virtually all of Mr. Nelson's fortune was left to the city for an art collection. The gallery building was provided through the bequests of Mr. Nelson's widow, Mrs. Ida H. Nelson and his daughter, Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood.

The erection of the art gallery was under the direction of the board of trustees of the William Rockhill Nelson estate. This board, consisting of William Volker, J. C. Nichols and Herbert V. Jones has charge of assembling the Nelson art collection. Under the terms of Mr. Nelson's will, this board was appointed by a board of university presidents to which the trustees render their reports. Dr. Walter Williams, president of the University of Missouri, is a member of the university board. The other members are Dr. E. H. Lindley, chancellor of the University of Kansas, and Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the University of Oklahoma.
