'Let's go way over our goal'

United Way campaign leaders hope to exceed campus' goal of $160,974 in gifts.

Campus United Way campaign volunteers gathered in Memorial Union Oct. 3 to kick-off the 1985 drive. "The key to this is you," said campus Chair Gary Smith, director of Admissions and Registrar. "The magic is you."

Through 29 local agencies, United Way provides essential health, rehabilitative, counseling and character-building services. Gifts to the non-profit organization aid one in four people in the community. "People we serve as a result of this campaign is the most important thing to consider," said Associate Provost Gerald Brouder, Columbia general campaign chair.

Chancellor Barbara S. Uehling, honorary chair, said, "One of my great sources of pride in this institution is its participation in United Way. We have a real record—we have made our goal each and every year since 1978."

The campus' goal this year is $160,974, about $8,000 more than the 1984 goal. The campus goal represents one-fifth of the local goal of $800,000. "We at the University consistently have set the pace for the local campaign," Brouder said. "This sort of campaign doesn't work without people like you. We are a large part of this community. Let's go way over our goal."

Members of the campaign leadership cabinet are Milton Glick, dean of the College of Arts and Science, and Howard Kincaid, associate UMC Hospital and Clinics director, co-chairs; Cy Harbour, director of Engineering Extension, Academic I regional chair; Don Fancher, associate vice provost for Extension, Academic II regional chair; Roger Jett, manager of wage and salary in Personnel Services, administrative region; Judy Newberry, assistant director of Financial Services and Materials Management, hospital and clinics region; Kent Shelton, assistant vice president of Financial Services, UM region; and Robert S. Daniel, professor emeritus of psychology, retirees region.

As director of the campaign office, Gary Zwonitzer, associate fiscal operations officer, is in charge of records and supplies. Roger Gafke, vice chancellor for Development, University and Alumni Relations, is heading up publicity. The Columbia United Way board includes Richard Dowdy, associate professor of human nutrition, foods and food systems management; Otis Jackson, assistant provost; and Diane Magrath, wife of UM President C. Peter Magrath.

District and unit chairs also have been appointed. They will distribute United Way brochures and donor cards to individual faculty and staff. Contributors may choose to make their gift through payroll deduction or request to be billed quarterly by United Way. The campaign closes Nov. 8.

Manager keeps an eye on service

Charles Kratochvil had numerous reasons for accepting the job as University Book Store manager.

"It was an obvious challenge with the brand new store," he says. "There was a lot of room for personal growth." After a $2.9 million renovation, the expanded Brady Commons sports 44,000 square feet of space. In his new job, Kratochvil oversees the University Book Store, the adjoining convenience and computer stores, future store and lease operations in Brady Commons, and the Nook in Memorial Union.

Kratochvil also admired the management styles of A.K. Rahman, director of Memorial Union and Brady Commons, and Norman Moore, vice chancellor for Student, Personnel and Auxiliary Services.

But there are two other reasons he left his job as director of retail operations of the University of Illinois-Chicago bookstore and joined the UMC staff July 22.

"I think Columbia is an ideal place to raise a family. I was impressed by the people and the community," says the 32-year-old father of two, Christopher, 5, and Denise, 2. "It's also a fisherman's paradise."

The avid angler hasn't dunked a fishing line too often. Working 12-hour days at re-shaping Book Store policy from accounting procedures to marketing plans is taking most of his time. He expects long hours to abate somewhat once things are in order. Long hours haven't shortened his enthusiasm for his new job, however.

"I'm excited about the staff and the facility here," he says. "I think we can be extremely competitive while keeping an eye on service, not just profitability."

Kratochvil's is the voice of experience. While a 19-year-old undergraduate at

RESEARCHER FORECASTS BRIGHT FALL

This fall should bring one of the best Missouri color shows in years, says Steve Pallardy, UMC forestry researcher.

"We've had a good growing season. Now all we need are sunny days, and cool nights without freezing. I grade this year's color a solid B+—even better in some places."

In recent years, Pallardy says, fall color has not been as brilliant, largely because of hot, dry summers. Leaves change color in the fall because chlorophyll in the plants begins to dwindle, and other pigments begin to show through.

GALLERY NAMED AFTER ROGERS

In a Sept. 30 ceremony, the Stanley Hall gallery was re-named in honor of Kate Ellen Rogers, chair of housing and interior design from 1954-84, and a nationally recognized leader of design educators. Rogers retired Sept. 1, 1984.

Rogers started the gallery in Gwynn Hall, and moved it to Stanley Hall when the building was constructed in 1960. Though remodeling has reduced gallery space, "It is still hospitable by the gracious rendering of corporate gifts," says Richard Helmick, associate professor.

A national touring show of computer artwork is now on display in the gallery.

GENERAL FACULTY MEETING PLANNED

The fall semester general faculty meeting will be at 4 p.m. Oct. 22 in Memorial Union's Mark Twain Room, N201-202.

Chancellor Barbara S. Uehling will present her annual state of the campus message.

EVENT FOCUSES ON WORLD HUNGER

UMC residence hall cafeterias will observe World Food Day Oct. 16 by serving a 400-calorie cereal dish that represents a full meal in many parts of Africa. "It's true that one individual or one institution cannot solve the world food problem. But it's also true that we can make a difference," says Roger Mitchell, dean of agriculture.

"Our college already has a significant effort funded by the Agency for International Development to help developing countries increase food production." The program includes work in Liberia and Tunisia.

Provost assigns committee tasks

Provost Ron Bunn gave assignments to three Council of Deans subcommittees at the Oct. 1 meeting.

The academic affairs subcommittee, chaired by agriculture Dean Roger Mitchell, will review the faculty tenure and promotion process, and the way in which summer sessions are conducted.

Tom Shaughnessy, director of Ellis Library, and his support services subcommittee will investigate campus response to maintenance and renovation requests. The group also will review telecommunications plans, including use of computers and the upgrading of the phone system to enhance communication between campuses.

The resources subcommittee, chaired by arts and science Dean Milton Glick, will examine procedures and problems related to private-gift solicitation, and study faculty incentive programs.

The subcommittees will present reports at the Nov. 22-23 dean's retreat.

In other matters, Bunn reported that a review of faculty positions left vacant by early retirement is still in progress. "All affected schools have submitted reasons why the positions should be retained," he said. "We will be reaching some conclusions soon, as to whether the positions will be re-filled."

Planned budget reductions will be implemented over the next two years, Bunn said. Schools assigned to the reduction category as part of the long-range plan are the College of Education, whose budget is to be reduced by $150,000, School of Nursing, $100,000, College of Public and Community Services, $50,000, and School of Health Related Professions, $25,000.

Bunn said that an announcement will be released soon on proposed mergers that include consolidation of the Colleges of Home Economics and Public and Community Services with the School of Health Related Professions, and the transfer of the School of Library and Informational Science to the College of Arts and Science.

In other business, Bunn urged the council to become involved in the review of undergraduate education on campus. He applauded the efforts of Faculty Council in forming a steering committee to identify areas that need systematic review of teaching in order to improve undergraduate education.

OFFICES MOVE: The Office of International Student Programs and Services has moved to A02 Brady Commons, on the basement level of the new addition. The move includes all personnel and services of the office, including Carl Leistner, Alice Weiss, Robert Burke, Janice McDaniel and Debra Denomme. The new telephone numbers are 882-8148 and 882-8149.

Behavioral Sciences Reference Center has moved to M249 Medical Sciences. Office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The telephone number is 882-6183.

KOMU CHOOSES NBC: The University has announced plans to reaffiliate its commercial television station, KOMU, with NBC. KOMU-TV had been an NBC affiliate for 30 years before switching to ABC in 1982. General manager Tom Gray cited a serious decline in audience since affiliating with ABC.

Advanced students in the School of Journalism serve as reporters for KOMU-TV newscasts. To help prepare younger students for television news reporting, the school hopes to raise $400,000 to $500,000 to equip the broadcast laboratory in Gannett Hall, which would provide a studio for classroom assignments, says Mackie Morris, instructor and chair of broadcast news.

ACE FELLOWS: Applications for the American Council on Education (ACE) Fellows Program are due by Oct. 31 in the assistant provost's office, 116 Jesse Hall. The program identifies and trains future leaders in higher education. During a one-year internship, fellows work closely with presidents and senior administrators.

Interested individuals should contact their dean's office. The provost's office will pay interview expenses, and provide funding for attending national seminars and travel if the candidate is selected.

CAR POOL: A staff member needs an occasional ride to UMC from Boonville. Call Susan Burns at 882-2021.

CREDIT UNION: Mizzou Employees Credit Union signed up its 10,000th active member in August. Carol Abraxas received a $200 check to open her checking and savings account.

The credit union began operations in 1969 with 40 charter members, and grew to $1 million in assets in its first 10 years. "Now after 15 years we're above $16.5 million and growing," says credit union President Hal James.

Faculty review letter on education benefit

Faculty Council discussed educational assistance for children of University employees at the Oct. 3 meeting.

The group reviewed a letter drafted by Staff Advisory Council, which proposes extending educational assistance for a maximum of six credit hours to dependent children of faculty and staff enrolled on a UM campus. The current educational assistance program allows employees to enroll in up to six credit hours a semester for 25 percent of the incidental fee. The letter recommends allowing only one family member to use the assistance at any one time.

Providing educational assistance for employees' children, the letter states, would benefit the University by attracting potentially good students who might choose another college, and would aid in retention of faculty and staff.

Some Faculty Council members wondered which sources would fund the proposed program. Others said that extending the program to dependent children would benefit only a select group.

At the Oct. 17 meeting, Faculty Council will consider a motion recommending that Personnel Services conduct a study of the economic impact of providing educational assistance for employees' dependent children on the four UM campuses.

John Bauman, professor of chemistry, reported that Purdue University spends $320,000 a year on a similar program. "We really are short of scholarships," he said. "Here's a way to give some scholarships with less pain than usual."

In other business, the council voted to recommend that Chancellor Barbara S. Uehling allocate $10,000 from the development fund for each of the next two years for the annual Research and Creative Activities Forum.

A joint meeting of Faculty Council and divisional policy committee chairs is scheduled for 3:40 p.m. Oct. 24 in S204 Memorial Union.

Each day our office handles 50-100 requests to park vehicles without permits on staff parking lots. Most of these requests are from employees who are driving borrowed, rented or new cars. Many employees are now using hangtags to display their permits. These tags can be transferred to any vehicle, they save time for employees who do not need to request permission to park and reduces the number of phone calls and police inquiries coming into our office.

Manager

Quincy (Ill.) College, he was named manager of the school's bookstore. Upon receiving his bachelor's degree in accounting and management from the University of Illinois-Chicago, Kratochvil went to work for the Follet Corp., a chain of university bookstores. He managed the bookstores at both Elmhurst (Ill.) College and Northeastern Illinois University before going to work for his alma mater in 1982. His duties at the University of Illinois-Chicago included managing one of the top five medical bookstores in the nation. Kratochvil hopes to establish a similar facility at UMC.

"I believe it's an area that's often overlooked," he says. "An important part of the process in medicine is books, to continue the education."

All of his experience has led Kratochvil to form his "student union philosophy."

"Unions are a place students can relax and relieve tension," he says. "It's an oasis from the academic community. Brady is an extension of that philosophy."

Kratochvil also has students in mind as he begins a push for a group book purchasing policy in coordination with other UM campuses. He calls it sharing resources and saving dollars. "I feel we can help students best by getting a better price on books when we order like this and give students a better return on their investment."

While Kratochvil believes the investment the University has made in Brady Commons is fantastic, he says the biggest asset of the Book Store is its 40 staff members.

"It's a matter of first impressions," Kratochvil says. "They meet the customers and service them. A bookstore commonly provides all the answers. The employees are the ones who have to do that."
