Missouri men in good company

Ask any alumnus who's a Massachusetts Mutual policyholder. (And there are lots of them!) He'll tell you Mass Mutual is an outstanding company.

It's dynamic growth is reflected in the fact its assets are now over 2.7 billion dollars.

Its life insurance policies are known for their built-in quality — progressive, liberal, flexible.

And its representatives are of top calibre.

For instance, nine times as many Mass Mutual men are members of the Million Dollar Round Table as the industry average. Six times as many have received the industry's National Quality Awards.

And four times as many have earned the Chartered Life Underwriter designation.

Furthermore, the achievements of Mass Mutual representatives are reflected in their own incomes. Over a hundred Mass Mutual men are now averaging $30,000 a year. In our entire sales force, men with 5 years or more experience are averaging close to $14,000.

If your job isn't pointing to the kind of future you feel you deserve, let us tell you more about a career with Mass Mutual. Just write a personal letter about yourself to Charles H. Schaaff, President, Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., Springfield, Mass. It could well be the most important letter you've ever written.

ART MUSEUM - 1962

2 / MISSOURI ALUMNUS / MARCH '63

By Saul S. Weinberg

Curator, Museum of Art and Archaeology

While the opening of the Kress Gallery was the major event for the Museum of Art and Archaeology in 1961, the Museum's growth in 1962 was epitomized by the acquisition of further new quarters on the fourth floor of the Library, as well as in Jesse Hall. Early in the year the Gallery of Casts (Fig. 1) in 325 Jesse Hall was opened, after complete refurbishing of both the room and the casts. The decorative scheme and the arrangement of the gallery are the work of Professor Lawrence McKinin of the Art Department. Alumni who recall the collection as it existed prior to 1941 will especially appreciate the lightness and brightness of the new gallery. Many departments of the University are thankful that the casts were stored for twenty years rather than discarded, as has happened in so many places, for the collection has rapidly proved its renewed usefulness in a variety of ways. Only late in the year was the Museum able to move into larger quarters in the Library—a gallery now in course of arrangement in which the collections of ancient art are to be displayed, and a large office and workroom-storeroom. With the exception of an exhibition of primitive art—African, Oceanic, Central and South American—on the second floor of Jesse Hall, all the collections are now housed in the Library.

Thanks to alumni and friends, these collections have again grown both in size and diversity during 1962. Of 190 objects accessioned during the year, 145 were gifts. Ten were purchased with a grant from the Alumni Achievement Fund, an especially welcome recognition both of the importance of the Museum and of the role the alumni should play in its growth. With part of the Chorn Memorial Fund it was possible to purchase the exceptionally fine group of Tarentine gilded terracotta plaques described below. Sixteen other donors contributed objects from their varied collections; seven of these had previously given gifts, some several times. Again, these acquisitions represent most parts of the world and some seven thousand years of art history.

Primitive art of Africa, Oceania and especially Central and South America is again very well represented, having formed all or part of the gifts of eight donors. The unusually fine wooden female figure shown in figure 2, its forehead decorated with gold studs, is from the Ivory Coast and is the gift of Mr. Richard Miller of Philadelphia. He is also the donor of the rare painting on stone (Fig. 3) from the Sudan. Two masks of the Ibibo tribe, Nigeria, came from Dr. Jack V. Wallinga of Minneapolis. The large and important polychrome hook shown in figure 4 is from

New Guinea and is an anonymous gift. From the same donor comes a large Mexican figure in stone (Fig. 5). Other stone figures from Mexico, several vases and vase fragments, a number of terracotta figurines and numerous heads—Nayarit, Mescala, Mixtec and Aztec—were the gifts of Mr. Stanley Marcus of Dallas, Mr. Miller, Mr. David T. Owsley of New York and Mr. Harry Salpeter of New York. From Peru comes a group of vases and figurines given by Mr. Marcus and including the Chimú pottery vessel shown in figure 6, as well as two pieces comprised in the gift of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Metzger of New York, one of them a pottery whistle (Fig. 7).

Gratifying growth is seen in the areas of Egypt and the Near East. New acquisitions cover a wide range, including a Hacilar painted vase of about 5000 B.C., Egyptian predynastic vases of the fourth millennium, Talish and Luristan bronzes of about 1000 B.C., several fine Assyrian cylinder seals, an Egyptian glass vessel and bracelet and a faience pendant, these last included in the Metzger gift, a Cypriote lamp in the shape of a boat, a rare Jewish ceremonial box (Fig. 8), probably of the second century A.D., an Arabic glass bottle, an Islamic bronze bowl and, most important of all, a large Coptic stone relief showing a bird with outspread wings (Fig. 8), the gift of Mr. Leonard Epstein of New York. From the Middle East come a fine Graeco-Buddhist relief (from Gandhara) and an Indian miniature painting, an anonymous gift. The Far East is represented by four pieces of Chinese money of the fourth and third centuries B.C., the gift of Mr. Charles Summers of Columbia, Missouri, a modern Balinese mask, given by Mr. Stanley Marcus, and another large group of twenty-four Japanese woodblocks, one of which is shown in figure 10, again the gift of Dr. and Mrs. Martin J. Gerson of New York. Thirty other blocks are now on loan to the Museum, so that the entire collection of fifty-eight woodblocks is now in the Museum. We plan to study this extremely important group of material in detail preliminary to the arrangement of a special exhibition.

Returning to the Mediterranean world, the collection of Greek art and archaeology has been enhanced by many objects of exceptional quality and interest. The most ancient piece acquired in 1962 is a so-called Cycladic "frying-pan," most probably a pottery mirror, dated to the third millennium B.C.; it was part of the Alumni Achievement Fund gift. A stone "bird's nest" bowl from Crete is almost as old. To the Late Geometric period, about 700 B.C., belongs a fine large crater on a stand. A bronze two-handled bowl and a black-glazed phiale, used for pouring libations, are of the fifth century B.C. The fourth century is represented by a fine red-figured crater of South Italian manufacture (Fig. 11), by a rare Greek cylinder seal, but most particularly by the magnificent group of Tarentine gilded terracotta plaques (Fig. 12) purchased with part of the Chorn Memorial Fund, established by Mr. and Mrs. Leland

7. Terracotta whistle with figure in front, about six inches high, from Peru, Chimu period (1300-1400 A.D.). Gift of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Metzger.

8. Jewish ceremonial box with incised decoration, almost five inches high with lid.

9. Coptic stone relief of a large bird with outspread wings, almost twenty inches high, possibly sixth century A.D. Gift of Mr. Leonard Epstein.

Hazard of Pittsburgh, both Missouri alumni. The largest plaque shows the mythical battle of Arimaspians and griffins, while others show griffins, lions and tigers. Such plaques were used to decorate wooden sarcophagi. Of the Hellenistic period are an agate gem and a complete Rhodian wine jar, both of its handles bearing stamps that date it to about 200 B.C.

Pre-Etruscan Italy is the country of origin of a most unusual set of bronze buckles and belt attachments bearing highly stylized animal designs in pierced or open-work technique (Fig. 13). These were purchased with the Alumni Achievement Fund grant, with which an Etrusco-Corinthian olpe, or jug, of the seventh century B.C. was also bought. Included in the Metzger gift were two Etruscan bronze fibulae, while the Owsley group includes a bronze handle in the form of a lion. An Etrusco-Corinthian aryballos of the sixth century B.C. is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Schriever of New York. To about 500 B.C. are to be dated a very large and handsome Etruscan black-figured kyathos showing dancing women and a heavy terracotta basin with two rows of impressed figured decoration around the rim.

Imperial Rome is represented by a wide variety of objects, the most important of which is undoubtedly the life-size marble portrait head (Fig. 14) identified as that of the young Titus, emperor from A.D. 79-81. This valuable gift came from Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bachman of Scarborough, N.Y. Two very fine bronze statuettes, a winged Victory and a youth, are the gift of Mr. Leonard Epstein. With the Alumni Achievement Fund grant were purchased a bronze jug with a finely decorated handle, a terracotta lamp with an interesting relief decoration and an unusual glass bottle with incised designs. Five other Roman glass vessels were acquired during 1962, as were several coins (one of gold), a stamped pottery bowl, a jug of Castor ware, a piece of a decorated lead sarcophagus, an amethyst gem and twenty-two bronze buckles and pins, part of the Metzger gift.

14. Life-size Roman marble portrait identified as the young Titus. Gift of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bachman.

15. Early Christian finial of bronze covered with silver, possibly representing an emperor of the fourth century A.D. Alumni Achievement Fund purchase.

16. Drawing of St. Bartholomew, attributed to Pierino del Vaga (1500-1547).

From Early Christian times comes a rare piece of sculpture in bronze, once all covered with silver, of which only a part remains (Fig. 15); it was apparently a finial from a standard and may portray an emperor of the fourth century A.D. This too was purchased with the Alumni Achievement Fund grant. A terracotta lamp with a long inscription and a chalcedony gem are also Early Christian. From mediaeval Europe come a Merovingian buckle, included in the Metzger group, and a Frankish torque of silver.

Important to the growth of the museum was the initiation of a program of acquiring master drawings of the Renaissance and later. The earliest of the four drawings purchased this year is a magnificent example of the Italian Mannerist style of the third quarter of the sixteenth century, a St. Bartholomew (Fig. 16) attributed to Pierino del Vaga. Two drawings of about 1700 were bought with part of the Alumni Achievement Fund grant; they are "Moses Exhorting his Followers," by G. A. Pellegrini (1675-1741), with a study for the same composition on the verso, and a rare red-chalk portrait of a young woman (Fig. 17) by Alessandro Magnasco (1681-1747), which represents the baroque style in North Italy. The fourth drawing, by John Flaxman (1755-1826), represents Orestes killing Clytemnestra. A Flemish bronze horse and a polychrome wooden Madonna, both of the seventeenth century and anonymous gifts, are welcome additions in a period not yet well represented in our collections.

Two pieces of twentieth-century art, much sought after for the Museum, are the gift of the Howard W. Lipman Foundation of New York. They are the painting "Harem Beauties" (Fig. 18) by the American painter L.-M. Eilshemius (1864-1942) and a small bronze male figure by the contemporary American sculptor, John Kearns.

This brief report should make manifest the continued growth of the Museum of Art and Archaeology during the past year. That growth has not yet been as great in many directions as we would like. The concern expressed last year over the areas of Mediaeval, Renaissance and post-Renaissance art is still deeply felt, though some progress has been made in building these collections. What is implicit in this concern is the need for purchase funds as well as for gifts of objects, for with such funds we can begin to strengthen the weaker parts of the collections. It is for this reason that the grant from the Alumni Achievement Fund and the continued additions to the Chorn Memorial Fund are so important. This is an area in which alumni can make vital contributions to the growth of the Museum.

It must not be forgotten, however, that the Museum is only five-and-a-half years old. Considering this, its inventory of over eight hundred items, the range and importance of the collections and the potential for future service to the University should be a source of great satisfaction to the alumni and friends who have played so large a part in helping to build the collections. It will not be long before the healthy child we now nourish will be full grown, ready for a home of its own. In long-range planning, it is to the acquisition of a museum building that we must soon turn our attention.

Report from the alumni president:

When it was charter night in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA, Feb. 23—Alaska, 49th territory to attain U.S. statehood, was first to attain University of Missouri National Alumni Association charterhood. It was my pleasure to present Charter No. 1 to the Alaska chapter here last Wednesday. Actually, I am here also to report on "Exercise Timber Line," a simulated war exercise jointly produced by U.S. and Canadian armies and air forces. I hitch-hiked a ride up on an Air Force C119, one of the famed "flying boxcars."

A series of "charter nights" are now under way in Missouri and other "South 48" states, but it was Alaska which drew the first charter, the presentation timed with "Exercise Timber Line."

I told the Alaskans that there are 67,000 known Missouri alumni, over 100 chapters—but, so far as I know, none actually "chartered" in this way before—and about 10,000 "card-carrying" dues-paying members, which our administration is trying to add to substantially this year. I reported to them my recent flying visits to chapters in New York, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Houston, San Francisco, Oklahoma City, Los Angeles and several smaller Missouri towns—each city producing enthusiastic chapters helping us achieve our goals.

The Alaska charter was presented to Maj. Ray Crane, Ft. Richardson, chairman; Miss Yvonne Barnett, Anchorage, secretary; Russell Brown, Anchorage, vice-chairman; and members of the executive committee, Sgt. Charles Clutts and wife, Joan Russell Clutts, Ft. Richardson, and Professor Capps, Anchorage junior high school teacher. This committee will expand chapter membership from a list of 38 known Mizou alumni now resident in Alaska.

The presentation was made in Arctic weather, on the ramp of Lt. General George Mundy's C118 airplane, with General Mundy's honor guard as impromptu stagehands. General Mundy, commander-in-chief, Alaska-U.S. Armed Forces, then flew your president and several other newsmen up to Ft. Greely to cover the exercises, designed to test men, clothing and weapons in mountain terrain and temperatures as low as 76 degrees below zero.

From Fort Greely, I teamed up with Fred Kiewit, feature by-liner for the Kansas City Star (and a Kansas alum) and we "penetrated" the Arctic wasteland 50 miles beyond Ft. Greely (coldest U.S. Army post), interviewed Eskimo scouts and ski-troopers, slept overnight with the troops, ate cold C-rations and drank pine flavored melted snow, then returned to Greely via a glacier-river in an M-59 amphibious-track troop carrier. I confess my Tiger spirit—and Kiewit's Jayhawk spirit—got pretty low when our vehicle bogged down on the glacier-river, the heater went out, the wind whistled with a "chill factor" of 35 below zero, and it appeared we would spend the night on the glacier. But the driver of our vehicle (a graduate of Pitt, no less) proved his mettle and we got back to Greely before this writer caught anything more than a sore throat. The incident proved, if anything, that when sheer survival is at stake, a Tiger can count on help from a Jayhawk and a Panther.

I am also convinced, after my experiences during the past eight months, that our Alumni Association is "on the move" and that "Operation Higher Education," like "Exercise Timber Line," is likely to be successful.

Eight students from East Africa recently completed a special four-month training program in community development at the University, under sponsorship of the Agency for International Development. They are the first students to complete the work in a new category of enrollment, the Resident Short Course, which was established by the University last October, primarily for foreign students sent here for special training. University President Elmer Ellis formally presented Certificates of Completion to the eight at a ceremony in the Student Union.

WORLD UNDERSTANDING

Turkey, Liberia, Peru and the USSR have in recent years been the summer destination for a number of Missouri students as a result of their involvement in the University YMCA program. No longer content to just read about world affairs while in college, the modern student is seeking ways of becoming actively involved.

Building a waterfront facility for a Y boy's camp in Tuzla, Turkey; helping to erect a recreation center in Greenville, Liberia; and constructing the first shower facilities for a Y building located in the slums of Lima, Peru—these were not exactly what Council Smith, Calvin Brooks and Dick Hedge had in mind when they joined the YMCA. However, after participating in the YMCA's varied program and being challenged by new ideas, the Christian faith and the needs of their fellow man, each one in his own way decided to volunteer his services for a summer on a YMCA overseas work program. Still other YMCA students have found themselves spending eight weeks of the summer in the USSR and Eastern Europe participating in a cultural exchange program with Soviet youth.

Of course, not all of the Y's international programs are as dramatic as these, but they are, nevertheless, important. Each one is designed to build world understanding.

The YMCA at Missouri is the recognized leader among campus groups when it comes to programs with an international flavor. Discussions about Cuba, the Congo, and the UN are commonplace at the Y whether they take place during a formal program or over a cup of coffee in the Y office. More than one foreign student has referred to the YMCA as his "coffee house," for this is where he meets his friends and talks over the issues of the day.

Participation by foreign students in the YMCA is nothing new, of course, but perhaps the amount and nature of it might surprise some. At the present time Y members come from 20 countries of the world. As for participation, nearly all of the University's 400 foreign students take part at one time or another during the year in YMCA activities. Foreign students are active in every Y program area including discussion groups, leadership training, faculty firesides, service projects and athletics.

Soccer, established as a Y program last year, has proved to be very popular with foreign students. In fact, four of this year's entries included teams composed primarily of students from Korea, Turkey, Iran and Latin America. On one occasion, an all league team made up of both foreign and American students represented the Y in an informal game with students from the School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla.

The YMCA conducts a foreign student orientation program in the Fall. Y International Week-ends are popular programs in which a group of 60 to 70 American and foreign students spend the weekend at a YMCA camp near the Lake of the Ozarks. The motif of these programs is recreation and good fellowship. Inevitably, however, we find that more than a few serious discussions spring up.

The YMCA also provides the M.U. foreign student with one of his few opportunities to observe and participate in American family life. Usually built around a weekend, this program frequently involves about 25 foreign students and an equal number of American families in a community away from the campus. Buffalo (Mo.), Shelbina, Mexico, Montgomery City and Hannibal have served as host communities in the past. In addition to living with a family for the weekend, the student has the opportunity to visit schools, churches, places of business, farms and other points of interest during his stay. Few programs have brought as high praise as this one from those involved.

The YMCA's effort to involve students in world affairs takes other forms too. Among the most ambitious scheduled for this spring is a Model United Nations. More than 550 students will take part in the debates of the General Assembly, Security Council and other branches of the UN which will challenge the participants to try to understand the positions on world issues of countries other than their own.

Helping students to learn and understand something about world affairs is obviously an important part of the YMCA's program. This emphasis comes naturally to an organization which is part of an international Y fellowship at work in 80 countries. Members of the YMCA Board of Directors as well as the students themselves are enthusiastic about it. Some of the results are obvious and immediate, others may be longer in coming. In either case, the YMCA feels that its international program is meeting an important need for today's student.

A Basic Home Reference Library For the College Graduate

Your basic home reference library will be determined by who you are, what you do, and where you live. Lawyer, banker, doctor, writer, realtor, housewife; east, west, north, south: each will need his or her own books of reference. Is there such a thing as an average man or woman college graduate and a library to suit? I think not. Individual differences in taste and need are infinite; regional interests are extremely varied.

So any choice of 25 basic home reference books is arbitrary. My selections are mostly orthodox, although I have salted in a few eyebrow-raisers. Alice in Wonderland and Andersen's Fairy Tales, for example—just to make you ask, How can he call them reference books? I'll tell you. Because I've found myself referring to them again and again through the years since boyhood, using them in the aging process as touchstones, measuring sticks, and lodestars. Isn't that a good enough definition of a reference book?

I have suggested locations for these books—living room, kitchen, study or den, and bedroom. You may prefer to shelve the Modern Home Medical Adviser in the rumpus room. Some people read in the bathroom, if not actually in the tub. I don't. But I do keep a few reference books in my car, to read when tied up on the freeway.

The secret of a good reference library is to have the books always there. Lend not your books. Don't try to compete with the public library. The paperback revolution has brought thousands of good books down to purse level. Architects, particularly of tract houses, seem to be unaware that people are buying books as never before. Although I own hundreds of paperbacks, my reference books are all in hardbound copies for the hard wear they get.

All of the 25 reference books in the following list are in print and can be bought at, or through, your local bookstore. If there isn't a bookstore in your community, you are lacking one of the hallmarks of civilization. Church, school, library, park, bookstore—the essentials for cultural living.

The basic things in life are of the brain, the stomach, and the heart, and my reference books relate to all three. He who lives and reads not is no more alive than he who reads and lives not. I remember what that great public librarian, Joseph L. Wheeler, retired head of the Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore, said when queried as to why he had thousands of books shelved in every room and on the stairs of his home: "Books are cheaper than wallpaper." And who was it who said, "Books! Next to mother's milk the best food."? See Familiar Quotations. Use your reference books!

book to be chained—to your wife, of course, who is already secured to stove and sink.

THE COOKOUT BOOK. With an introduction to the techniques of barbecue cooking and entertaining. By Helen Evans Brown and Philip S. Brown. Ward Ritchie Press. $7.50. Imaginative and appetizing recipes for barbecuing meats, fowl, and seafoods, in a volume that was chosen by the American Institute of Graphic Arts as one of the year's most beautiful. Incidentally, the Browns agree that the best cooks are of the male sex—outdoor cooks, that is.

LAROUSSE GASTRONOMIQUE. THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF FOOD, WINE, AND COOKERY. By Prosper Montagne. Crown Publishers. $20. The first English translation of this huge French classic. The accent is on that country, for there is no denying the French leadership in the world of food. The articles and illustrations cover everything relating to the subject, including places, plates, partridges, and parsley.

WINE AND SPIRITS, A Complete Buying Guide. By William E. Massee. McGraw-Hill. $8.95. Includes all countries and their drinks, with advice on how to store and serve.

HORTUS SECOND. A Concise Dictionary of Gardening, General Horticulture, and Cultivated Plants in North America. Compiled by L. H. Bailey and Ethel Zoe Bailey. Macmillan. $13.50. This is a revised and enlarged second edition of the classic American work on green growing things. If you are lucky, you will have a kitchen garden with lettuces, parsleys, herbs (and snails), and HORTUS will be your bible.

MODERN MEDICAL ADVISER. Edited by Morris Fishbein, M.D. Garden City Books. $4.95. Written under Dr. Fishbein's direction by various medical authorities, this is a good book to have around just in case.

STUDY, DEN, AND BEDROOM

ALICE IN WONDERLAND and THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS. By Lewis Carroll. Grosset & Dunlap. $2.75. The older one grows, the better it reads. This edition includes the original illustrations by John Tenniel. The author, whose real name was C. L. Dodgson, was a professor of mathematics who lived for 45 years in the same bachelor quarters at Christ Church, Oxford, none of which accounts for this work of genius.

FAIRY TALES. By Hans Christian Andersen. Grosset & Dunlap. $2.75. Here again it's a coin flip as to whether it be Andersen or Grimm. I flipped, and the great Dane won. This edition has illustrations by Arthur Szyk.

ISLANDIA. By Austin T. Wright. Rinehart & Co. $5.95. This is a long utopian novel, written in secret by a law professor and published posthumously. Throughout the world a body of readers have organized and called themselves Islandians, sans dues or by-laws. This novel is the standard reference work by which they live.

THE PORTABLE EMERSON. Edited by Mark Van Doren. Viking Press. $2.95. Though he lived and wrote a hundred years ago, he is more modern than we are, his prose seeded with time bombs, set to go off in succeeding generations. If you are timid, conservative, and a slave of the status quo, don't let this book in your house.

THE PORTABLE THOREAU. Edited by Carl Bode. Viking Press. $2.95. Here is another Yankee radical who whipped progress, conformity, togetherness, and all the other dogmas which bite our heels. This too is a subversive book which should be given to the young and kept from the old.

THE PORTABLE MELVILLE. Edited by Jay Leyda. Viking Press. $2.95. Includes the best of the novels, stories, poems, and letters of the great mariner-mystic, who won popular fame, and lost it, and won it again—posthumously. Melville was born and died in Manhattan, and that island community has yet to erect an appropriate memorial to him.

THE PORTABLE WHITMAN. Edited by Mark

Van Doren. Viking Press. $2.95. The good gray Quaker poet's Leaves of Grass stays forever green through the years which wither most things. "Who touches this book, touches a man."

THE PORTABLE MARK TWAIN. Edited by Bernard de Voto. Viking Press. $2.95. Includes Huckleberry Finn, that revolutionary novel which points to the ultimate reconciliation between white and black.

SHAKESPEARE'S COMPLETE WORKS. Edited by W. J. Craig. Oxford University Press. $4.50. Next to the Bible, and counting out the dictionary, this is the most basic book in English. I have chosen this from among many good editions simply because I have lived with my copy for 30 years and worn it beautifully smooth.

THE HOLY BIBLE. King James Version. Oxford University Press. $9.75. Choice of a Bible is a personal matter. You may prefer a modern translation. I don't. Give me the organ music of the King James. This edition is leatherbound, a handy size, with concordance and index. Keep it by your bed, to be read first thing in the morning and the last thing at night.

O.M. Scott sets up loan fund

Orland M. Scott of Bronxville, N.Y., vice-president and group executive of International Business Machines Company, has established a student loan fund with a gift to the University. Allan Purdy, director of aids and awards, said the IBM Company has matched Mr. Scott's gift and the fund will be known as the Orland M. Scott Loan Fund.

Mr. Scott, a native of Ash Grove, Mo., received a B.S. in Business Administration degree from the University in 1944. He was employed by IBM before entering the University. After graduation he served two years as a commissioned officer in the U.S. Navy, then rejoined IBM where he has served in a series of important executive positions.

Mr. Scott was honored during Business Week at the University in 1957 with a Citation of Merit presented by the University Alumni Association and the School of Business and Public Administration.

missouri memo

"Women is heartbreakers" appeared one day on the office bulletin board of the Beaumont (Texas) Enterprise. The miserable news announced the resignation of Amy Bolton, B. J. '62, one of six professional women sportswriters in the nation. Known as "Kitten" to her co-workers, Amy had resigned to marry Bill Broussard, whom she met when he worked on the Enterprise copy desk but now living in Odessa, Tex. After weathering the disbelief of several Missouri coaches while she was writing for the Missourian, Amy met the same challenge when she joined the staff of the Enterprise last summer. According to the Enterprise's sports editor when he wrote about his prettiest writer in a "farewell" column, "she made the grade in a big way, succeeding far beyond the fondest expectations and her stay with the Enterprise has been an historical one." While there, she covered Lamar Tech, both at home and on the road; reported three high school teams' games; and followed the Texas Longhorns to their first undefeated season in nearly 40 years. She has understood coaching lingo like a veteran. About the dressing room stories, there was no problem—she interviewed people before they got there. While at M. U., Amy served as a "Little Tiger" with the cheerleading corps. Matrimony finally nabbed her but not before she saw her Missouri Tigers play in the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston. Then she put away her pad and pencil (but only temporarily, she says) to await her December 26 wedding date. "Everybody will be happy except we on the Enterprise" writes the paper's sports editor. "Women is indeed heartbreakers!"

Looking back over more than 50 years as an educator, Dr. Roscoe V. Cramer, A.M. '25, Ph.D. '29, has the satisfaction of knowing that many changes, improvements and reforms which he envisioned and fought for have become realities. He always disliked seeing

IKE SKELTON, SR.

Ike Skelton, Sr., of Lexington, and Edwin J. Stark of Louisiana are new members of the University Board of Curators, having been appointed to six-year terms by Governor John M. Dalton. Robert Neill of St. Louis was renamed. Mr. Skelton, a member of the law firm of Skelton & Bradley, received an A. B. '25 and LL.B. '26. He was president of his senior class, and has been prominent in alumni activities. Mr. Stark, who attended the University's College of Agriculture in 1920-21, is president of Stark Brothers Nurseries. He has headed the American Association of Nurserymen, the Western Association of Nurserymen, and the State Historical Society. He is also active in Boy Scout work. Stark succeeds J. A. Daggs of Memphis, who asked the governor not to reappoint him after 12 years of service. The other retiring board member is Lester E. Cox of Springfield, who also served for 12 years.

Missouri children cheated—youngsters in the rural areas short-changed in their opportunities to secure an education, and ragged, unkempt children going to school hungry and sick. Above all, he wanted to do something about it. In 1928-29, Dr. Cramer conducted the first statewide survey of school financing in the state. He has consistently led efforts to broaden state aid to local school districts, even when this was almost a revolutionary concept. As superintendent of schools at Lebanon, Mo., and before that at Linn, Mo., he knew from first-hand experience the financial plight of poorer districts. He was chairman of the committee on sources of school revenue for the Missouri State Teachers Association for 12 years, and in 1937 was elected its president. "Everybody now is thinking about school aid, but back then people thought we didn't need to spend much for education because lots of people did well without it," remarked Dr. Cramer. His vision, however, was not confined to school financing. He was instrumental in setting up Kansas City's first Neighborhood Council, a forerunner of numerous city groups. His experimental method of teaching English and social studies as an integrated unit was tried at West Junior High School during the 1940's. The program has resulted in the common learnings classes adopted in most junior high schools across the nation. Educators from 35 states have visited West to study the program. Attracting national attention for the common learnings program. Dr. Cramer has spoken at several major gatherings of top school administrators. His textbook, "Administration and Supervision in the Elementary School," has been adopted in numerous schools of education. He is now writing another book. Dr. Cramer has taught summer school education courses at the Universities of Missouri, Minnesota and Michigan. Retired for three years, he displays the peace of mind of one fortunate enough to have spent his life doing what he has loved best—teaching children and helping others to teach children. Dr. and Mrs. Cramer live at 3819 E. 62nd St., Kansas City, Mo. They have three children, Dr. Quentin Cramer, 3615 W. 83rd St., Prairie Village, Kan., Mrs. Robert T. Copeland (the former Anna Lee Cramer) A.B. '46, of 6116 Elm St., Raytown, Mo., and Mervin Cramer, B.S. B.A. '51, of 6803 Fairlane Dr., Kansas City 34, Mo.

The latter was from a genuine Boone County ham purchased when Mr. Turner was in Columbia in October for the Arizona-Missouri football game. "The ham and I had quite a ride coming home," he said. "We missed the plane in Kansas City, so TWA shot us to Chicago on a jet, then jetted us back to Phoenix and Tucson. Lots of people noted that I was carrying a 'hog leg' in a shopping bag." # W. C. Windsor, realtor, becomes lay evangelist

W. C. Windsor

An article in the Alumnus in April 1960 traced the outstanding business career of W. C. Windsor, Jr., B.S. in B.A. '46; it told of his extensive holdings in varied fields and his long list of civic, religious and cultural activities. A recent interview in the Dallas Times-Herald is headlined: "Wealthy Realtor Gives Up Empire for Evangelism." It recorded that some months earlier Mr. Windsor, a top figure in Dallas business and civic life, had sold his vast Brook Hollow and Empire industrial and office-commercial development for $5,600,000. In December Mr. Windsor was honored at the annual meeting for the Texas for Christ Foundation when the non-denominational group presented him a plaque for "unusual efforts in Christian evangelism."

In explaining why he had given up many of his business connections to become a lay evangelist, the 6-foot-4, 220 pound businessman said he had sold his real estate holdings in order to "make myself more available for the Lord's work." At that time, he said, this activity was confined mostly to the production of television programs "to implement those who are interested in the simple gospel message of Christ. It is the most rewarding work I've ever done." Mr. Windsor has organized the Trinity Educational Foundation as a non-profit concern to further his aims.

He prefaced his explanation for his new interest with the observation that "I became a Christian 17 years ago. It was in recognition of the spiritual disillusion which is occurring within the visible church. Our purpose is to alert Christians to the condition and seek to glorify God as He chose to be glorified, which is by an acceptance of Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour by as many as possible.

"That's not popular, I'm afraid. But I'm not doing this to be popular. My best answer would obviously be that I wouldn't be doing it unless the Lord wanted me to do it.

"My conviction is that we have become so concerned with social affairs and political affairs that we are neglecting the basic message that Christ brought."

Mr. Windsor pointed out that he has not disassociated himself completely from secular business activities. He said he had other business interests besides the real estate he sold as president of Windsor Properties, Inc. Numerous honors have come to Mr. Windsor. In 1956 he was chosen Dallas' outstanding realtor. He is a former chairman of the State Youth Council. In 1958 he was named East Texas "man of the month." He has been an officer in many organizations in Dallas and over the state of Texas.

Mr. Windsor, married and the father of four children, served in the Navy in World War II and in Korea. He is the son of the late Wilbur Cunningham Windsor, '14.

Alumni move up at Kansas City

An M.U.-studded organization is the Paul Hamilton Co., realtors, of Kansas City, Mo. Guyton Hamilton, A.B. '56, has been named president of the firm, and his father, Paul Hamilton, Arts, Journalism '18, has assumed the newly-created position of chairman of the board of directors. Corporate headquarters and offices are located at 1016 Baltimore Ave.

With the company since 1956, Carl E. Bolte, Jr., B.S. B.A. '51, A.B. '55, has been named executive vice-president. He will also serve as manager of the downtown branch. His brother, Denslow E. Bolte, A.B. '54, with the Hamilton Co. since 1960, was formerly associated with the Prudential Life Insurance Co.; he has been named a director of the Hamilton-Phillips Mortgage Corporation. The Mortgage Corporation and the Hamilton-Phillips Insurance Agency are subsidiaries of the Hamilton Co., and share offices with the company's residential sales staff at 4890 Main St.

Other directors include Russell V. Baltis, Arts '23, sales manager for the parent firm, and Mrs. Helen Williams Rhodes, A.B. '16 (daughter of the late Walter Williams, former Journalism School dean and University President), personnel and advertising manager. David H. Powell, Arts '19, is head of commercial properties for the firm.

Paul Hamilton has been active in real estate since 1920, serving for 15 years on the sales staff of the J. C. Nichols Co. He founded the Hamilton Co. in 1948. Presently, he is chairman of the city planning commission. He formerly was president of the board of police commissioners (1944-48), and was president of the Real Estate Board in 1959-60. Mr. Hamilton lives at 4740 Roanoke Parkway, Kansas City. Guyton Hamilton is a founder and was the first president of the Guild of the Nelson Gallery of Art.

Maurice Richlin's facile pen

Light, entertaining movies with big-name stars have been coming out of Hollywood from the pen of a former M.U. student, Maurice Richlin, Arts '39, who has a background of radio and television writing. With his old friend, Stan Shapiro, he wrote Come September (Rock Hudson), Operation Petticoat (Tony Curtis), and Pillow Talk (Doris Day). The two writers received Oscars for the last named collection.

After brief sessions with the Los Angeles Times and the Hollywood Citizen-News, Richlin became a radio writer on the old Bob Burns show. Later, he served as pallbearer, as he puts it, on such shows as Edgar Bergen, Burns and Allen, and Dennis Day. Then he switched over to television, about 1949. His credits included Chevrolet Teletheater, the first Alan Young sketch-type show, Ray Bolger, Jackie Gleason, and quite a few specials.

Richlin's movie successes are piling up. Again as co-author, he wrote (with Blake Edwards) The Pink Panther, filmed in Italy this winter, with David Niven, Ava Gardner, Peter Ustinov, Claudia Cardinale and Robert Wagner. Then, on his own, he has written a screen play titled Soldier in the Rain, which will star Jackie Gleason and Steve McQueen, and is to be filmed this year. Richlin is also at work on a comedy tentatively titled Kelly Green.

Dr. James K. Farrell, B.S. in Ag. '44 and D.V.M. '50, is president of the M. U. Veterinarians' alumni organization. He lives at Boonville. Dr. Farrell succeeds Dr. Robert Hertzog of Lee's Summit in the presidency. Other officers are: Dr. William C. Monsees, B.S. in Ag. and D.V.M. '54, of RFD 1, Sedalia, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. Floyd D. Blake, B.S. in Ag. '51 and D.V.M. '55, of Bridgeton, president-elect.

The Carthage (Mo.) Evening Press has proclaimed May 3 as "Harlow Shapley Day." Dr. Shapley, A.B. '10, A.M. '11, L.L.D. '27, professor emeritus of astronomy at Harvard University, will be guest speaker.

The University of Missouri Nursing Alumni Organization will sponsor a reception at the Missouri State Nurses Association meeting in St. Louis on Friday, April 5. The reception, to be held at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel, will be held from 5 to 6 p.m.

Depew, Miss Eliza Barkshire, Mrs. Sally Taylor Newman, Mrs. Ruth Swet, Mrs. Sora Barth Loeb, Leo Arms, and Secretary Leslea Wink Miller. Other participants included Bob Newman, Walter Reed, Dave Depew and Dick Toft. Several campaigns similar to the one in Chicago are now in progress.

Roy P. Swanson

Swanson heads Missouri Bar

An M. U. alumnus, Roy P. Swanson of Kansas City, is the president of the Missouri Bar for the organization year of 1962-63. Mr. Swanson, who received his LL.B. degree from the University in 1923, is a member of the law firm of Swanson, Midgley, Jones, Blackmar & Eager. As president of the bar, he succeeds another alumnus, Jackson A. Wright of Mexico.

Mr. Swanson attended Park College in Parkville, Mo. before coming to the University. He has been practicing law in Kansas City since 1923.

The Missouri Bar head is a past president of the Lawyers Association of Kansas City; a member of the American Bar Association; the Kansas City Bar Association; and has been on the Board of Governors of the Missouri Bar since 1957, serving as president-elect in 1961-62 and secretary in 1960-61. He is a past president of the South Central Business Association and of the Naturalization Council; a director of Leidigh & Havens Lumber Company and the U. S. Supply Company. He was a member of the Jackson County Park Board and is currently serving as a member of the Jackson County Park Board and is member of the Board of Police Commissioners of Kansas City, Missouri. Also, he is a member of Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity, the Native Sons of Kansas City, the Scandianavian Club and the University Club, the Masonic Lodge and was Potentate of Ararat Shrine in 1956.

Mr. Swanson is married and has a son, Charles, of the home, and a married daughter, Mrs. Paul Bloczynski of Mason City, Iowa.

Friends honor Houston Harte

Houston Harte, B.J. '15, was feted by colleagues and friends at an appreciation banquet in San Angelo, Texas, on the occasion of his 70th birthday in January.

Mr. Harte went to San Angelo in 1920, after a brief experience as the publisher and editor of the Boonville, Mo. Daily Republican, to head the Standard-Times. Some fellow publishers in Texas referred to him as that "young whippersnapper" from Missouri. But, Mr. Harte put his vigor and enthusiasm into the newspaper business with a resolution to be "just as Texan as those who discovered the state." He discovered a lot of things about the newspaper business and it wasn't long before the spark of improvement had set in for all newspapers in the Southwest.

Something of the thinking of Houston Harte is reflected in excerpts from his page one editorial on May 2, 1920, when he assumed direction of the newspapers: "Newspaper plants may be bought and sold, but the newspaper itself is never private property. The newspaper, as such, is nothing more than a reflection of the community which it serves—the better the newspaper the better the reflection.

"A good newspaper may so reflect the good there is in a town—the business there is in a city—and so submerge the petty and the evil and the bad that it will lead its community to the highest accomplishment of its greatest power. . . . It is the purpose of the new Standard management to endeavor to represent the best interest of San Angelo and West Texas. . . . Horace Greeley once said, 'What the Lord was willing to let happen, he was not too proud to report.' We don't propose to go quite that far, but we do hope to be able to say that we give all the news that is fit to print. The Standard believes in the democracy that has accomplished things. . . ."

Messages from admirers—from Maine to Honolulu, from Canada to Key West, from the President and Vice President of the United States, from senators and governors—best illustrate the respect in which Houston Harte is held: "An inspiration to those in the newspaper profession;" "Reputation stands high; accomplishments stand out;" "Highest standards attained;" "Community builder;" "Civic builder; patriot;" "Competence and integrity;" to name only a few of the hundreds he received.

Quoting from a Standard-Times editorial: "Somewhere in Proverbs it was said that the spirit of man is the candle of the Lord. We hope that this newspaper always will be something of a candle of freedom and progress as it was for the man who lighted it. . . . Appreciation is possibly the most rewarding attribute of man. We are certain it has brought a glow to the man who had a chance to hear it."

Hoosiers pick Hugh Teeters

Heading the Central Indiana M. U. Alumni for 1963 is Hugh A. Teeters, who was elected president at a recent meeting of alumni in Indianapolis. Other officers, all from Indianapolis, are: John Boucher, 3736 Meridee Dr., vice-president; Gertrude Teeters, secretary; Robert Henderson, 401 W. 46th St., treasurer; and Pauline Hamra, 3460 N. Pennsylvania, adviser. Miss Hamra is immediate past president of the chapter.

Mr. and Mrs. Teeters, long-time boosters of the University, live at 7989 Evanston Rd., Indianapolis. The first meeting at which they will officiate will be held April 20 at the Hendersons' home. Showing of the Bluebonnet Bowl game film is planned.

class notes

09 Circuit Judge WALDO C. MAYFIELD, Law, is not a man to stand idle. Finding his docket empty and the next day's calendar rather light, he answered an appeal from another judge by going to a judgeless civil court where he summoned a jury and started trying a case. Court observers considered the gesture unprecedented. Judge Mayfield, a member of the Advisory Committee of the University of Missouri Alumni Association in St. Louis, said he "just wanted to keep busy." He lives at 4743 Bonita Ave., St. Louis 16.

10 THOMAS E. BREECE, BS Ed., AB, following his graduation from the University, went to Peking, China, where he joined the American faculty of Tsing Hua College, an institution established with the Boxer indemnity fund to prepare young Chinese men to enter American colleges. He met and later married Peking-born Ruth Pyke, like him a teacher of English, who was a daughter of missionaries. In 1916, Mr. Breece returned to America; in 1917 he obtained his AM degree from Harvard University. After teaching for a year at the University of Minnesota, the Breeses returned to China where for 30 years he was chairman of the English department of Yenching University. They returned to the States in 1948. About ten days later Communists took possession of the University. Resigning as a missionary, Mr. Breece taught in the Pasadena (Calif.) school system until his retirement.

20 O. T. COLEMAN, BS Agr., along with 24 other retired (Emeritus) members of the University's College of Agriculture and Agricultural Extension Service, was honored at a recognition dinner last November. He received a certificate for Meritorious Service to the College of Agriculture. Prior to his retirement in 1961, Mr. Coleman was Extension Specialist in Soils at M. U. He lives at 1307 Bass Ave., Columbia, Mo.

Mrs. Forrest (MARY M. PAYNE) Bebb, BS Ed., of 1300 Boston Ave., Muskogee, Okla., has become a life member of the University Alumni Association.

22 TRUMAN E. WITT, BS EE, retired last July as Kansas City district sales manager for the Century Electric Co. of St. Louis, after more than 40 years continuous service. Mr. Witt has since become associated with a manufacturers representative organization of St. Louis. He and his wife (LILLIAN GUINN, Arts '22) live at 2814 W. 48th Terr., Shawnee Mission, Kan. Also a graduate of M. U. is their son, TRUMAN E. WITT Jr., BS ME '49, of 3673 Fenley Rd., Cleveland Heights 21, Ohio.

24 MAYNARD L. DURHAM, BJ, 418 Bellaire Pl., Carthage, Mo., is president of Maynard L. Durham and Associates, Inc. His son, JOHN M. DURHAM, BS BA '58, is an investment broker with Cruttenden Podesta and Co., of Chicago, and lives at 1785 Robincrest Lane, N., Glenview, Ill.

25 HERSCHEL SCHOOLEY, BJ, has become manager of the Washington national office of the Independent Bankers Association of America. The Washington office is a new one for IBA, which has maintained its national headquarters in Sauk Center, Minn., the past 30 years. Mr. Schooley, with the Mexico (Mo) Ledger from 1925-1936, became journalism director at Hardin-Simmons University in Texas. He joined the Navy during World War II and served as Navy representative in the Department of Defense information branch following the war. In 1953 he was named civilian press chief of the Pentagon. He has served under Defense Secretaries Forrestal, Johnson, Marshall, Wilson and McElroy, and took over as press officer of the Interior Department when Fred Seaton took that Cabinet post. Mr. Schooley also served as public relations aide to Sen. John Tower (Texas) in 1961. His home address is 905 Braddock Rd., Alexandria, Va.

Dr. MARTYN SCHATTYN, AB, is chairman of the service committee of the St. Louis Unit of the American Cancer Society. A urologist, Dr. Schattyn is a member of the Board of Governors of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis. He lives at 9 Huntleigh Downs, St. Louis 31.

Dr. John A. Norton

Aerospace medical expert, health officer

Dr. John A. Norton, A.B. '33, B.S. Med. '34, has a quiet conviction that public health basically can be no better than the education you give those you are trying to help. As Fresno County (Calif.) health officer, Dr. Norton knows in advance he "quite likely won't be able to please everybody" but, "since they're paying for it, I pledge to give them their money's worth." Teaching is inherent in Dr. Norton, an aerospace medical expert. His father, John H. Norton, B.Agr. '97, B.S. Agr. '99, M.S. '07, is a retired professor of chemistry and helped institute America's first Pure Food and Drug Act in 1906. For the last three years, Dr. John A. Norton has been the director of education and training for the Air Force's aerospace medical division in San Antonio. In that capacity he helped tutor the nine astronauts selected by the Air Force to fly into space, and to train the 2,000 yearly graduates of the school. Dr. Norton received his M.D. degree from the University of Chicago and did graduate work in public health at the University of California at Berkeley, and internship stints in several California health departments. He joined the Air Force in World War II with much of his time spent with a preventive medical and epidemiological unit in the Far East. For a time he practiced privately in California. He has been instrumental in tracing the origins of several infectious diseases. More recently he contributed a chapter on preventive medicine in jet and space travel to an Air Force manual on these modes of travel. Dr. Norton's professional affiliations are many, including the American College of Preventive Medicine, the American Public Health Association, the Texas and Aerospace Associations, and the Society of USAF Flight Surgeons. He was retired from the Air Force with the rank of colonel in late January. He and his wife and two adopted sons have moved to Fresno. His father (who admits to 89 years of age) is presently in Fresno; his permanent address is 4750-15th Ave., Sacramento. The elder Norton is listed in American Men of Science.

nished quarters in Walter Williams Hall where open house was held for publishers and their friends each Saturday morning before M. U. home games. Donald E. Hayden

He collects people—and civic duties

Many people have a penchant to collect—stamps, buttons, coins or butterflies. Dr. Donald E. Hayden, A.B. (1936), A.M. (1937), collects people—those he finds worthwhile and those he likes.

Dean of the liberal arts college at the University of Tulsa since 1957, Dr. Hayden also collects non-paying civic responsibilities. He is chairman or a member of twenty-one different committees and organizations, not including his professional associations. For a time, he was almost compelled to make an appointment to have dinner with his wife, the former Mary Frances Dick, A.B. (1936), and their T.U. sophomore daughter, Elizabeth. Son Donald Jr., a torpedoman 3-c with the U.S. Navy, completed a seven-month tour of duty in the Mediterranean area and currently serves with the fleet in the Caribbean.

The door to the Dean's office of T.U.'s largest division (1500 students) is nearly always open. He knows most students by their first names. Often he inquires about some member of a student's family or checks on the progress of some activity in which he knows a student is interested. Dean Hayden says, "I like students; I like to teach. I often have the feeling I'm getting too far away from them in my office."

A native of Blairstown, Missouri, the 47-year-old dean went to Tulsa University in 1947 as assistant professor of English, became a full professor and assistant dean in 1956. He holds a Ph.D. from Syracuse University and was a member of its faculty and later headed the English department at Westbrook (Maine) Junior College, before going to T.U.

He now heads the recently-formed Tulsa Mayor's Committee on Human Relations; is a member of the official board of the First Christain Church, and serves on the teaching panels of three Sunday School classes. He served two years as president of the Council of Churches of Greater Tulsa. Dr. Hayden makes more than fifty major addresses a year and preaches several sermons a year to congregations as widely differing as First Baptist and Temple Israel.

His deep conviction that to believe and to teach one's religion and morality is not enough—that it must be put into action and that it doesn't become alive unless it is put to use—prompts his participation in so many public service agencies. His interest in and love for people is evident when he talks about the Human Relations Committee which demands untold hours of his time. "There's one thing certain," he says, "I don't believe we'll soon work ourselves out of a job!"

search in immunology and epidemiology. The awards are presented annually by the editors of Modern Medicine, international medical journal. Dr. Robbins received his MD degree from Harvard University in 1940. His father, Dr. William J. Robbins, was professor of botany and dean of the graduate school at the University from 1930 to 1938. In 1954, Dr. Robbins and two other doctors received the Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine for joint research on poliomyelitis. The Robbins family lives at 2469 Wellington Rd., Cleveland Heights 18, Ohio.

Mrs. George (MARGUERITE YOUNG) Davis, Jr., B.J. lives at 804 S. Atwell, Bellaire, Tex.

Bob Waldorf

Spirit pays off for Bob Waldorf's teams

Robert James Waldorf, A.B. '40, "kid" brother of John D. Waldorf, A.B. '30, and Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf, all stalwarts of the gridiron, has been a highly successful but unspectacular football coach since he left the Missouri campus. Now at Western Maryland College, he began his career at Simpson College in Indianola, Ia. From there he went to Marquette where he worked under Tom Stidham, then on to Antioch (Ohio) College, and Lynchburg (Va.) College. After the Army, he went to Battle Creek, Mich. High School where he broke a 30-game losing streak and in three years had won the Michigan High School 4-A championship. He duplicated this success at another high school at Arlington, Va., where in three years his Washington Lee High School team had won the state 4-H championship in Virginia. It was then that he went to his present assignment, at Western Maryland; in his second year he gave that team its first winning season in several years and last season won eight of nine games and the Mason-Dixon championship.

A friend describes him as "the type of coach who has done a lot with a little." At Western Maryland, where enrollment is small and athletic grants almost nil, Coach Bob plays and beats teams from much larger schools. Many of his players never even played high school ball.

Bob draws praise for his weekly reports to the alumni during the football season. Writing in the Richmond (Va.) News Leader, Editor James Jackson Kilpatrick, B.J. '41, calls these dispatches "delightful" by reason of "the charm, grace, and sincerity that Mr. Waldorf brings to his compositions. He loves his college, his team, and the great game of football." The editor quotes from Bob's final report of 1962 in which a review of the season shows that Western Michigan was outdistanced in every department but scoring. Wrote Coach Bob: "Almost all the statistics would indicate a terrible season, but it was the best we have had since 1951. You can understand why I am baffled even while, of course, being greatly pleased. I guess that football, somehow, is still a game in which the spirit transcends the statistics." To which Editor Kilpatrick adds: "It is the spirit of the Bob Waldorfs of football that makes the game what it is." Bob was an all-conference guard at Missouri.

Mrs. Waldorf also attended M.U. She is the former Martha Bryant, '40. Their address is M Route, 179 William Ave., Westminster, Md.

The fellow who was voted "the most natural person" by the Howard College (Birmingham, Ala.) student body 25 years ago, HUGH FRANK SMITH, BJ, is a columnist for the Memphis (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar. He devotes his leisure time to his Shetland pony farm, a 25-acre parcel populated by varied animal life in addition to the ponies. While a Howard College student, he was campus correspondent for the Birmingham newspapers and was editor of the Howard Crimson for three years. After his graduation from M.U., he was hired by the Press-Scimitar "on trial." Since he has never left, he says, "I've never been off trial." The Smith farm is located in Germantown, near Memphis. The address of Hugh Frank and his wife (whom he met on a Texas ranch when he was a young Naval officer) and their two daughters, Sarah Sunderland and Melanie, is Shetland Pony Farm, 8234 Old Poplar, Germantown, Tenn.

While lamps can be attractive, their first job is to give adequate lighting. Well designed lamps provide two things—the right amount of light and proper light diffusion to avoid glare and shadows.

The room above has met these requirements in an interesting arrangement. Diffused light from the recessed ceiling fixtures over the all-electric kitchen area provides general illumination, while the pull-down lamp gives ample local light for dining. Built-in spots in the ceiling, plus decorative lamps and wall panels (shown in the background), add a dramatic touch to highlight draperies and indoor plantings.

It's just one more example of how modern lamps combine smart decoration with good light!

“You don't look that old, sir”

This reminder of passing years during reminiscence is the mild sort of shock one can laugh about and forget. But also one can use it to take a long, practical look at the future security of his family.

Perhaps you've been postponing finding out how much and what kind of life insurance you should own. This could be the time to seek the help of a CML man. He knows how—and he has the tools—to fit life insurance to the precise requirements of your family. What's more, he doesn't tell you—he asks you: How much money do you want delivered to whom and when and how often?

Actually, your CML agent may be able to show you how to stretch your present life insurance to provide more money at the right times without increasing its cost one cent! Talk to him soon. You'll find him a fine man to do business with.

Dividends paid to policyholders for 117 years

Owned by its policyholders, CML provides high quality life insurance at low cost and gives personal service through more than 300 offices in the United States.

The Good Old Days . . .

"Is it impossible to secure order in the auditorium when something really worth listening to is taking place there? The disturbances caused by persons leaving the hall, by whispering, and other noises are inexcusable. The proper authorities could profitably see to it that on such occasions lumber and other truck should not be unloaded under the open windows of the auditorium and that musical instruments should not be tuned underneath it."—The Missouri Alumni Quarterly, 1906.

In 1907, stories appeared repeatedly in the student newspaper, the Independent, concerning the need for an elevator in Academic Hall (Jesse Hall). (Editor's note: One was installed in 1961.)

"During the 'coal famine' in Columbia last winter, the Farmers revealed a degree and quality of college spirit out of the ordinary. University exercises were in danger of interruption due to the scarcity of common ordinary coal with which Boone County is underlaid. Would not the Herefords and other pets in the University barn suffer? En masse, the farming population rose up, shouldered axes and saws, hied themselves to the woods and solved the fuel problem by cutting and sawing about twenty cords of wood for the department's use. Good for the Farmers!"—The Missouri Alumni Quarterly, 1906.

(From the University Missourian, Oct. 11, 1911, reprinted in Alumnus).

"When that fearsome creature, a girl, was reluctantly admitted for the first time in that branch of the University called the College of Normal Instruction in 1870, it was with misgivings. Two years later the following report was given to an anxious public in the University catalogue of 1872:

"We were not prepared to permit women to join in the worship of the chapel, nor yet to come to the University for attending recitations or lectures. They were kept at the back door a full year on the score of danger. Finding, however, that the young women did no manner of harm, we very cautiously admitted them to some of the recitations and lectures in the University buildings as supplementary to their regular exercises, provided always they were marched in good order with at least two teachers, one in front and one in the rear of the column, as guards. Finally . . . the young women were permitted to come into the chapel. By degrees and carefully feeling our way, as though explosive material was all around us, we have come to admit them to all the classes in all the departments, just as young men are admitted."

"As a student body we have not yet acquired the do or die habit. It has not been so long ago since we had to be taught how to 'root' for our teams. Time and again we have observed how the students on the bleachers lost their enthusiasm at critical stages of a game because of a fumble on the part of a player, or would become soundless and inert at sight of a loss of distance on account of a misunderstood signal, or a better play by our opponents. But such are the very times when loyalty to the team ought to manifest itself in heartier 'rahs than ever, heartier by far than when the ball is moving easily toward the right goal. Instead of cheers that should be forthcoming . . . we have noted, almost always, an agony of silent suspense, a veritable anticipation that the opponents would surely win. The student body gives up the game in advance. Whether a team wins or loses it is OUR TEAM, and we should stand loyally behind it, more especially when the tide of battles sets against it."—The Missouri Alumni Quarterly, 1907.

"Something ought to be done to confine the Alumni Luncheon within reasonable limits as to time. Many visitors are in Columbia only for one day, and want to meet old friends and have a good time generally. They do not, therefore, care to sit in one chair, even at a banquet, for four hours. Long speeches . . . ought to be cut out, and ten or fifteen three-minute speeches ought to be substituted for the long ones."—The Missouri Alumni Quarterly, 1906.

ROBERT D. LUSK, BJ '24, on Dec. 14, in Rochester, Minn., where he had gone for a checkup. Death was attributed to a cardiac ailment. Mr. Lusk, owner and publisher of the Huron (S.D.) Daily Plainsman, was one of South Dakota's foremost civic leaders and a member of a pioneer newspaper family in the state. A native of Yankton, S. D., Mr. Lusk worked in Washington, D. C., and New York City as a correspondent for United Press, following his graduation from M.U. He was night bureau manager for UP in Washington for a year. He went to Huron in 1926 at which time he and two other men purchased the Daily Plainsman. Mr. Lusk served as managing editor until 1936 when he became sole owner and manager. He was a vigorous crusader for soil and water conservation. An article published in the Saturday Evening Post at the height of South Dakota's dust bowl depression era won him national acclaim. His many civic interests included St. John's Memorial Hospital and Nursing School; Huron College and serving as a member of its Board of Trustees; and the Chamber of Commerce. A crowning achievement in his long and vigorous campaigning for civic development came in the fall of 1962 when the Daily Plainsman became the 14th newspaper in the U.S. to receive the Inland Daily Press Association's outstanding achievement award, a citation presented by the University of Missouri School of Journalism. Special mention was made in the citation of Mr. Lusk's efforts in the promotion of soil and water conservation. Mr. Lusk was a member of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalism fraternity, a past president of the South Dakota Reclamation Association, a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; National Conference of Newspaper Editors; first chairman of Dakota Dailies; a member of the South Dakota Industrial Development and Expansion Agency, and the Inland Daily Press Association. He was chairman of the state's Planning Commission in 1938 and a former member of the National Saline Water Advisory Board. Mr. Lusk is survived by his wife and daughter, of Huron. Two other members of his family are also M.U. graduates, a brother, EDWARD F. LUSK, AB '23, of Pawnee, Okla., and the latter's son, ROBERT E. LUSK, BS BA '51, AB '54, LL.B. '57, of Kansas City, Mo.

Prof. ARTHUR K. MILLER, AB '24, AM '25, on Feb. 1, in Iowa City, Ia. A native of Kahoka, Mo., Dr. Miller had been a member of the State University of Iowa faculty since 1931 and head of the department of geology from 1952-57. He earned his Ph.D. degree from Yale University. While on the SUI faculty, he gained an international reputation for his research in geology, having conducted scientific field work in Mexico, Africa, Europe, Russia and the sub-Arctic. In 1961, he was elected to honorary membership in the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, one of the highest honors accorded to a geologist. Several of his former students sponsored the painting of Dr. Miller's portrait; it was placed in the library of the SUI geology building. He formerly taught at Missouri and Yale universities. Additional honors included his election as national president of the Paleontological Society in 1957. His professional activities included membership in the Geological Society of America, Arctic Institute of North America, Geological Society of Switzerland, Paleontological Society of Japan, Geological Society of Mexico and the Institute of Advanced Study of Uruguay. He was the author of more than 180 papers, the majority having been published in the Journal of Paleontology. In addition, the Geological Society of America has published ten book-length studies of which Prof. Miller was a principal author. Survivors include his wife, the former BERTHA KEHR, BS Ed. '25, of 6 Melrose Circle, Iowa City, and two daughters.

Dr. E. K. MUSSON, Arts, Med. '25, on Sept. 9, in Chicago, Ill. A native of Norborne, Mo., he served with the U. S. Public Health Service during World War II, with the rank of lieutenant colonel. He received his M. D. degree from the University of Kansas, and an MPH degree from Harvard University. He served as city health director of Jackson, Mich., 1957-59, and held prominent positions in public health in Kansas, New York and Chicago.

Dr. HORACE EDWARD ALLEN, BS Med. '28, AB '31, on Feb. 3, in Columbia, Mo. A specialist in ophthalmology, he had practiced in Columbia since 1938. He was a consultant in ophthalmology for the University's Student Health Service, 1938-46, and again in 1953-62, and was a consultant in the Crippled Children's Service from 1938 to 1960, with the exception of two years spent in military service. He served in the U.S. Navy, with the rank of captain. Dr. Allen received his M.D. from Washington University in St. Louis, and served his internship at St. Margaret's Hospital, Kansas City, Kan. He served as resident at the University of Missouri and at Polyclinic, New York City; he was an instructor in graduate eye surgery at the University Medical Center. Dr. Allen was a diplomate of the American Board of Ophthalmology. A musician, he traveled for several seasons with the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua circuits. He was a member of the Moolah Shrine Band of St. Louis, the University of Missouri band, and Jefferson City Symphony. Prior to establishing practice in Columbia, Dr. Allen practiced in Washington, D.C., then in Jefferson City and Lees Summit, Mo. He is survived by his wife, the former RUTH MELCHER, AM '52, 2109 Valley View Dr., Columbia, and a daughter by a former marriage, JANET ALLEN Huffman, B.M. '62, of 2235 Que St. N.W., Washington 8, D.C. Friends may make contributions to the Horace Allen Fund for instrumental musicians, which will be established at the University.

ROBERT LAWRENCE LINVILLE, AB '28, on May 25, 1960, in Washington, D. C. He is survived by his wife, the former VADA CLISER, Grad. '31, who lives at 3515 N. Washington Blvd., Arlington, Va.

NOAH C. HELLER, AM '33, M Ed. '38, on Jan. 19, at Terre Haute, Ind., of a brain hemorrhage. A native of Boone County (Mo.), Mr. Heller was its county superintendent from 1939-1942. For the past 15 years, he had been a chemistry professor at Indiana State College at Terre Haute. Earlier, he served as principal of the Ashland, Mo., school, as superintendent at Hallsville, Mo., and as a science instructor in Columbia public schools from 1937-39. Following service in World War II, Mr. Heller worked for a while with the Atomic Energy Commission at Oak Ridge, Tenn. He is survived by his wife, the former IDA STUBBLEFIELD, BS HE '52, of 331 N. 7th St., Terre Haute.

LEONARD MCGIRL, Agric., Engr. '33, on Feb. 1, in Philadelphia, Pa., of a heart ailment. A native of Odessa, Mo., Mr. McGirl was a star guard and captain of the 1930 University of Missouri football team. In later years, he played professional football with the Chicago Cardinals, St. Louis Gunners and Frankford Yellow Jackets, now the Philadelphia Eagles. After ending his professional football career, Mr. McGirl operated a produce firm in Philadelphia. He is survived by his wife, Marcella, of 6001 Torresdale, Philadelphia, a son, Dr. RICHARD E. MCGIRL, Agric. '53, of 5394 Oxford Ave., Philadelphia 24, and two brothers, RAYMOND MCGIRL, BS Eng. '33, of 510 Gabriel Dr., Kirkwood 22, Mo., and Dr. Eugene McGirl of St. Louis.

THOMAS O. MORRIS, Jr., BJ '33, on Jan. 30, in Daytona Beach, Fla., after a long illness. A native of Missouri, Mr. Morris had a varied career in advertising and sales management in the midwest and later in California. He was associated with the Columbia Broadcasting System in Los Angeles before serving as an account executive and vice-president of an advertising agency. Mr. Morris was instrumental in developing a public relations program for Prudential Insurance Company's western home office. He joined the company and was assigned to the Newark, N.J. home office as director of public relations. At the time of his death, Mr. Morris was director of public relations and advertising for the South-Central home office of Prudential in Jacksonville, Fla. Survivors include his wife, who lives at 2356 Jose Circle N., Jacksonville, and a son who is a student at UCLA.

AMOS O. HARDY, AM '38, on Jan. 10, at his home in Farmington, Mo. He was principal at St. Francois County high schools for many years. At the time of his death, he was St. Francois County (Mo.) superintendent of schools. Survivors include his wife, the former MARY LOUISE MEYERS, BS Ed. To the Editor:

Our project here in Colombia is called a Rural Community Development Project. The work involves us in every aspect of the lives of the rural Colombians—health and sanitation, school construction, agriculture, education, sports, etc. It is very interesting and satisfying work. I work near the capital city of Bogota, in a small town called Choachi. Our projects include rural school construction (in areas where the optimum education available is two years), road construction (where there are now no roads), health needs of the people, agricultural aid to farmers (mostly by way of getting information), and to set up a loan fund for rural home construction (a new project we've been thinking about.) It's surprising what a small amount of money can do here. We can get a school built for $1,000 (all of our projects use the labor and help of the people who are to benefit from them; this is a basic principle of Community Development).

Even though material progress is not necessary in all cases of community development work, it quite often is necessary to have material progress before the basic aims of C.D. are achieved. These aims are of an educational nature, such as teaching the people what they can achieve through group action, and the other values of acting through democratic processes as a community, for the good of all.

I'll be awaiting my further copies of the mag.

What has happened to my favorite column—p. 36? Consider this a complaint to the editor.

Clarissa Start
Post-Dispatch

(Editor's note—The ego of the person responsible for p. 36 has been pumped up by several such inquiries, and the one immodestly reproduced above is especially flattering since it comes from the highly popular columnist of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch's Everyday Magazine. The irregular producer of p. 36 contends this has been "one of those years," beset by myriad complexities and a disenchanting Muse; but, undaunted, he hopes to take pen in hand during the first breather between crises.)

To the Editor:

The article in the Missouri Alumnus last November commenting on Jim Taylor's long record as a Tiger football fan, as related by Ernest Mehl, sports editor of the Kansas City Star, was of great interest to me personally since Jim and I were roommates at the University during my freshman year 1906-07, and we have been close friends ever since.

We roomed at the residence of a Mrs. Ford on the west side of Hitt Street about a block east of the old campus. This land, I believe, is now occupied by the Library Building.

For the benefit of posterity, I think I should ask for a correction in your statistics since you have deprived Jim of about 14 years on his record. His first Missouri-Kansas game was not 1912 as stated, but actually 1898 when he was a twelve year old boy in grade school at Brookfield, Missouri. That makes an unbroken record of 64 years (excepting one year during World War II when he was

To the Editor:

In looking back over my undergraduate days at the University of Missouri, I recall two unforgettable teachers: Dr. Isadore Loeb, who was a model teacher, and Dr. Arthur O. Lovejoy, who died at 86 this month at Baltimore.

We had no idea of his distinguished background when we walked into his Philosophy I in the winter of 1910. He did not tell us that he had studied under William James, George Santayana, and Josiah Royce; he told us nothing about himself; indeed no teacher could have been more detached from his students. In all that semester I cannot recall that he ever looked at one of us, for he kept his eyes fixed on a bit of broken plaster in the ceiling all the time he lectured. No teacher ever taught more impersonally. It was as though he were too much in love with his subject to concern himself with anything or anybody else.

Why then was he so unforgettable? I believe it was because of the clarity of his thinking and the manner in which he brought the subject alive to us. All of his students who could be impressed were impressed, not by him but with the intellectual world that he opened in the military service in Italy).

In 1906 Jim and I attended our first Missouri-Kansas game together in Kansas City. The score was 0 to 0 on a muddy field and the next day the Kansas City paper, I believe it was the Times, carried the following as a headline:

"A year to prepare for an hour of play
Of goug'in' and kickin', and cuffin',
A battle for blood in a sea of mud
And a score of nothin' to nothin'."

In 1961 we were again together watching the Missouri-Kansas game at Lawrence. I enclose two pictures, the first is the year 1906 showing the two of us in our room deeply engrossed in our studies (note the mandolin on the couch); the second picture shows us somewhat matured, at the game in 1961.

Naturally we are both looking forward to a considerable extension of the present record.

Those who would not let themselves fall under the spell of his subject he had a unique method of eliminating without seemingly being aware of them at all. He announced at the beginning of the semester that he would give no tests, only a final examination. As we had no text, we knew we had to take careful notes. Then about two weeks before the exam was due he announced that instead of giving an exam he would require each of us to hand in a summary of his lectures. The flagrant loafers in the class looked up aghast, one of them from her incessant letter writing and the other from his dreaming; after class they rushed about frantically demanding the use of notes others had taken. They found no lenders and received the F that was coming to them because they had sat at the feet of a great philosopher and teacher and closed their ears to him.

All who listened to Dr. Lovejoy must have been richly repaid and must have always remembered him for what he gave them.

DEFENDER

Scuba divers . . . on the job for General Motors. Project: underwater tracking-range experimentation to help improve our Navy's anti-submarine warfare capabilities. That's right—even here in the dream world of the sea, GM people have a job to do. National defense! Land, sea, air and space requirements like an underwater surveillance system . . . or vehicles to move soldiers and cargo over swampy jungle trails . . . or a mobile atomic reactor to provide electric power for remote combat areas.

Working on these defense problems now are microwave and electronics experts, nuclear and solid state physicists, acoustics, ballistics and mobility specialists. They're the GM defender team. But, of course, GM is many teams and a great many people . . . all working for you!
