Students Are Invited To Visit the Lighting Institute

Students will find a visit to the Lighting Institute one of interest and educational value. Here you will be shown practical demonstrations of the science of lighting—considered as a training course for the electrical industry. See the miniature city and the problems of lighting that are solved—historical electrical equipment and other subjects any student will appreciate.

From time to time in the course of our travels we are queried regarding the origin of the expression:

"I'm from Missouri; you've got to show me."

The original statement is generally credited to the late Willard Duhan Vandiver, former Columbia resident and father of Vance Vandiver who makes his home here. Col. Vandiver gets credit for it in Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, in addition to other sources.

Col. Vandiver made his epic remark at a banquet given by the Five O'clock Club in Philadelphia in 1899. The members of the House Committee on Naval Affairs were in Philadelphia inspecting the navy yard, and they were tendered this banquet. The colonel, incidentally, was a committee member.

Col. Vandiver, a Democrat, and his close associate, Gov. Hull, Republican chairman of the committee, did not bring formal wear with them, as they did not think it was a full dress affair. The two friends agreed to attend the function in their business clothes, but Hull backed down and came to the banquet in a formal suit.

The only one at the function in street clothes, Col. Vandiver was conspicuous to the entire assembly of notables. He became uneasy and uneasy as the evening wore on. When it came time for the usual after dinner speeches, his friend Hull, when called on, complimented the fine hospitality of the city of Philadelphia.

Hull, a short, heavy individual, was the direct opposite of his Missouri cohort, who was tall and thin. Hull's dress suit was ill-fitting, but he continued his praise for a city whose tailors could make him a suit in fifteen minutes.

When he was called on, Col. Vandiver, wrathful at being conspicuous, turned on his fellow speaker, and half in jest and half in anger said:

"You have heard Gov. Hull's posterous story of how the tailors made him a suit in fifteen minutes but I have a different explanation for you. When I came to Philadelphia today I had an evening suit. The fact of the matter is that Gov. Hull stole mine—that is why he is here in conventional dress and I am not.

"I come from a state that raises corn, and cotton, and cockleburrs and Democrats, and frothy eloquence neither convinces nor satisfies me. I'm from Missouri; and you've got to show me."

Col. Vandiver's definition of the slogan "Show Me" is: "The typical Missourian may be a little slow in action, but he is alert and not easily taken in. He is a man of good, hard sense, and must be convinced before he is converted."

We hope you didn't miss that fine article about Don M. Nelson, defense purchasing czar, which appeared in the June 14 issue of the SATURDAY EVENING POST. It was a fine write-up, but it wasn't necessary to make us all feel mighty proud of Don and the work he is doing in Washington.

Tom Bowen, manager of the Tiger Hotel here, and Chef McCook are gentlemen of rare good taste and discernment. Right smack at the top of their dining room menu is the entry "Bob Hill's Special—Old Boone County Ham and Eggs." Of course we realize that the personal element here is not altogether unattractive. In fact we'll come right out and say that there is considerable satisfaction in having one's name on the menu of a first class hotel.

But the main point is to remind you that you haven't lived until you have polished off a plate of old Boone County ham and eggs. We recommend it highly. The high sassiety gals can endorse cold creams, pillow slips, and cigarettes to their hearts' content. We'd just as soon have our picture taken with one of those country hams. Naturally, it is assumed that corn bread and gravy is included. But raisin sauce is absolutely out. We'll have none of it.

Every where we go we continue to hear that one of Missouri's primary needs is a bang-up march song, and we agree heartily. We have in mind what it ought to be, but we can't slap it together ourselves. The tune should certainly be indicative of the campus atmosphere. It should include snatches of "Dixie," "Old Missouri," "I'm A Son," and all that's typical.

We hope someone with a touch of genius will come forth with the answer. It might even prove a step toward campus immortality as far as the author is concerned.

Again our thanks and appreciation go to Jim Taylor, Kansas City, chairman of our magazine committee, for his staunch support, and his fine work which has been so essential to the progress of THE ALUMNUS. Jim, you know how grateful we are.

Many years ago we began sending letters to newborn children of our alumni, greeting them and telling them we'd be happy to help them enroll at M. U. seventeen years hence. Already many of them are beginning to come in, and some bring those birth letters with them. Indications are we shall have a greater Hope O' Tomorrow enrollment this fall than ever before. We want you parents to urge your boys and girls to come in the alumni office, and give us the pleasure and privilege of working with and for them.

This daylight saving business is getting us down. Let's get together all over the country and settle the mess. Let's either adopt it 100 per cent or drop it 100 per cent. Doesn't make any difference to us which way it's decided, just so it is once and for all.

We have received last-minute inquiries regarding when the Homecoming game will be next fall, and when Missouri and Kansas will play. We are going to make a thorough survey of the situation this month and give you a report in July. It depends to a great extent on whose Thanksgiving we'll celebrate. Watch for this important announcement next month. It'll take us that long to get it straight.

MEXICO . . . today's vacationland

The magnificent 18th century Cathedral is an outstanding attraction in Taxco, where the beauty and romance of Old Mexico are preserved for the modern visitor.

For "local color" at its picturesque best—and for many a tempting bargain—the tourist should be sure to visit a native Mexican market.

Romance rides with the voyager along the winding, tree-lined canals of Mexico's transplanted Venice—the famous "Floating Gardens" of Xochimilco.

High on the list of today's most popular travel thrills is a rail cruise to Mexico—a swift, safe journey aboard an air-conditioned train into the heart of a foreign land. For Mexico, despite its proximity to the United States and the relative ease with which it may be visited, is a foreign country, colorful, romantic, different, where each day promises some delightful experience and every mile unfolds a setting of unforgettable loveliness.

The visitor to Mexico finds an endless variety of distinctive attractions—scenic beauty, quaint customs and costumes, picturesque villages and markets, historic shrines, splendid cities and gay resorts. On the practical side, he is assured of dependable transportation facilities, comfortable, modern living accommodations, good meals and courteous, efficient service. Travel costs in Mexico are surprisingly low, and the rate of currency exchange—about five Mexican dollars for one of ours—gives an added lift to vacation budgets.

A trip to Mexico City, center of tourist travel in our neighbor republic, can be made quickly, conveniently from St. Louis via the Missouri Pacific's Sunshine Special. The Missouri Pacific also offers low-cost all-inclusive tours as well as attractive round trip fares for vacation travelers to Mexico. Details of these and other helpful information may be obtained by writing the railroad's passenger traffic department, 1601 Missouri Pacific Building in St. Louis.

The Ninety-Ninth Commencement

Judge Merrill E. Otis Delivers Address to 1008 Members of the Graduating Class of 1941 — Says America and England Share Common Destiny.

ONE THOUSAND and eight degrees were awarded at the ninety-ninth annual commencement exercises of the University held in Brewer Field House, Friday, June 13.

Rain fell in a fine mist on the academic procession which started from Jesse Hall, and occasionally strengthened into showers. It was the coolest commencement day in Columbia in recent years. A brisk wind which whipped back the long black gowns and exposed white dresses and sharply creased trousers to the rain made seniors grab their four-cornered caps.

Col. A. McIntyre, commandant of the R.O.T.C., led the procession to the field house as chief marshal. Albert E. Hensel served as all-senior marshal. The bell of Switzler Hall tolled as the seniors walked across Francis Quadrangle.

Judge Merrill E. Otis, of the United States district court in Kansas City, an alumnus of the University, delivered the commencement address. President Frederick A. Middlebush awarded honors and scholarships, and conferred the various degrees at the conclusion of the exercises.

Judge Otis' thesis was that the United States and England share a common destiny. With embattled Britain, America marches to one goal and destiny guarding the heritage of one law and history of the common culture of the Anglo-Saxon race, he told the graduating class.

Typifying the essential unity of the English speaking peoples are the Magna Carta, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States, Judge Otis said.

"They are not three; they are one, each merging, fading into the others. They are not scraps of paper; they are evidences of the iron resolution of our race that the great principle that government is the servant, not the master, of men, shall not perish from the earth.

"The Declaration of Independence is the resounding and rolling echo of Magna Carta. I dare say that if from each of the learned men here on this rostrum who never has read Magna Carta and who has not read the Declaration of Independence since he was a boy, if from each such his academic robe should fall away and sackcloth and ashes take its place, such a spectacle would be here presented as would make the gods on high Olympus laugh."

Judge Otis then read sections from Magna Carta prohibiting the king from seizure of property, sale of judgments, unlawful arrest, and guaranteeing standard weights and measures. He emphasized a parallel passage in the Constitution of the United States: "Neither the United States nor any state shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law."

America's history began not on July 4, 1776, but when ancient chieftains led the Saxons to the shores of Kent in 450 A.D., he said.

"Our fathers were at Hastings and at Runnymede," he continued, "and wherever, before they sailed into the west, the freedom of the English race was put in peril. For 1600 years no man has been able to fasten the shackles of slavery to our limbs. The history of the Anglo-Saxon peoples in the world is a history of freedom, of liberty, of ever growing human rights. It is one history."

To graduates who believe the American race a new, composite one of the old one of their fathers, the German, the Dutch, the Irish and the Italians, but also believe that the culture traits of the original ancestry should remain, Judge Otis said "their immigrant ancestor would not have said those things. It was his dream, perhaps unexpressed that his former nationality should fall from his shoulders like a cloak worn out," he added.

"Our sovereign law rules the Anglo-Saxons, not sovereign men," Judge Otis added. "Our sovereign law is older and infinitely more lasting than any royal house on earth and it arises from that stream of history which is also one. You may search the Constitution of the United States, you may search the constitutions of the states, and you will find nothing of any significance which originated east of the cliffs of Dover. Our law has had no real accretion from continental Europe since the decline and fall of Rome."

Human words cannot adequately describe the goal of the Anglo-Saxons, Judge Otis said, but he was certain

Mr. Gentry

Mrs. Overholser

Four of the surviving twenty-three members of the University graduating class of 1891 celebrated their golden anniversary reunion in Columbia at commencement with an informal get-together at the alumni office the afternoon of June 12 and a dinner at Harris' Cafe in the evening.

Present at the dinner were Dr. John W. Connaway of Columbia, William R. Gentry of St. Louis, Mrs. M. P. Overholser of Harrisonville, and William Hall of Clinton. Mr. Gentry served as chairman of the reunion.

Prof. Phillips to Retire As Director Sept. 1

Dr. C. A. Phillips will retire from the position of Director of Training in the University of Missouri Sept. 1.

In this position he has been head of the Laboratory School of the School of Education for the last five years. After Sept. 1, Dr. Phillips will continue his connection with the School of Education of the University on a part-time professorship, offering at least one graduate course each semester in the field of elementary education. Prior to directing the work of the entire Laboratory School, Dr. Phillips directed the work of the University Elementary School and was Professor of Education, in charge of elementary education, beginning his work in 1924. Dr. Loran G. Townsend has been named director of training.

Dr. Phillips earned the degree of Bachelor of Science in Odessa College, the Master of Arts in the University of Chicago in 1910, and the degree Doctor of Philosophy at Peabody College in 1919. He was superintendent of schools at Lexington, Mo., 1900 to 1906; professor of education in the Central Missouri State Teachers College, Warrensburg, 1906-13; dean and head of the department of education of that teachers college, 1913-24; professor of education and director of the University Elementary School, 1924-36, and director of training, in charge of the University Laboratory School, since 1936.

Dr. Phillips is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi. He is a member also of the National Education Association of School Administrators. He served as president of the Missouri State Teachers Association in 1914.

For the last thirty years, Dr. Phillips has been publishing regularly various books and articles. In all, he has published either independently or in collaboration with other authors eleven books, eight monographs, and a number of articles in various professional journals.

Blue Key Honors Dean William G. Bek

A portrait of Dean William G. Bek of the University of North Dakota, a graduate of the University and former member of the faculty, was presented to the University of North Dakota recently by Blue Key in recognition of his thirty years of service.

Dean Bek received an A.B. degree from the University in 1903 and an A.M. in 1905. He was appointed instructor in Germanic languages in 1907 and held that position until 1911, when he resigned to go to the University of North Dakota.

He is faculty adviser of Blue Key at North Dakota and was largely responsible for the organization of the chapter there.

Dr. C. M. Jackson Gives Library to University

University students, medical students particularly, will find the library shelves filled with strange volumes and periodicals next fall. For during the summer crates of books will arrive from Minnesota and will be catalogued for the Medicine and general libraries.

This has been made possible by the gift of Dr. C. M. Jackson, retiring dean of the school of medicine at the University of Minnesota.

The Board of Curators at its last meeting accepted Dr. Jackson's collection of 1200 volumes in several sets of periodicals, anatomical and medical works, and approximately 10,000 unbound pamphlets and reprints.

Originally it had been planned to have the collection transferred after the death of Dr. Jackson, but word was received by President Middlebush recently that the collection will soon be ready for delivery.

Dr. Jackson is a former student and professor at the University. In 1898 he received the degree of Bachelor of Science; a Master of Science in 1899, and an M.D. degree in 1900. While a graduate student from 1897 to 1900 he served as a teaching fellow in biology. For the next two years he worked as an assistant in anatomy in the University and for a year went to Europe to study.

On his return, Dr. Jackson was appointed professor of anatomy. He held this post until 1909 when he was made dean of the School of Medicine. In 1912 he became the first editor of the University Medical Series.

One year later he left to join the staff at the school of medicine at the University of Minnesota, where he has remained until today.

In 1923 the University conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon him.

Paul Misses Out

Paul Christman, Tiger baseball and football star, returned to his home in St. Louis June 12 after trying out with the Detroit Tigers baseball team. No announcement was made by club officials regarding his signing a contract.

Commencement Speech

that "the enslavement of mankind is not that goal."

Freedom and liberty for all men in thought and speech and press and work and conscience and worship are the things without which none of us are willing longer to survive, he said.

"Our history is one, our law is one, our goal is one, our destiny is one!" he concluded.

Two Graduates, One Former Student Awarded LL.D.'s

Two outstanding alumni and one former student of the University were awarded honorary doctor of laws degrees by President Middlebush at the commencement exercises.

Judge Merrill E. Otis, commencement speaker and judge of the United States district court in Kansas City who received an A.B. in 1906 and A.M. and LL.B. degrees in 1910, was cited for his distinguished service as an interpreter of the law, and as a scholar and teacher in jurisprudence.

"At a time when not only democracy, but the stability of law is on trial," President Middlebush said in presenting the honorary LL.D., "it is the high privilege of the University of Missouri to recognize your signal loyalty to the immemorial purposes of law and to the ideal order which all true law rightfully serves. You have gained wide repute not only as a conscientious interpreter of the law, but as a scholar and teacher in jurisprudence, with interests as a citizen actively extended to all matter of high concern to the larger community."

"And thus, to you, as jurist, citizen, and alumnus, who has brought honor to your University and to your state," Dr. Middlebush continued, "we add to your three other degrees, earned as a student, another degree richly earned by your noteworthy career."

Dr. John Lawrence Gerig, professor of romance languages and Celtic at Columbia University, who was born in Columbia and received an A.B. from Leading the procession into Brewer Field House for the graduation exercises are (1) Leslie Cowan, secretary of the University; (2) Judge Otis, the principal speaker; (3) President Middlebush; (4) Senator Allen McReynolds, Carthage, who delivered the alumni pledge; (5) Governor Donnell; and (6) Dr. John Lawrence Gerig, who received one of the three honorary LL.D. degrees.

the University in 1898, an A.M. in 1899, and a Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska in 1902, was cited for his high reputation as a teacher and founder of many important institutions of foreign culture in the United States.

"As a significant part of this commencement," Dr. Middlebush said, "we are glad to welcome you back home to the city of your birth and to the University from which you received your first degrees. We have watched your ever-growing eminence as a scholar in many languages, as well as your successful record as a teacher at the University of Nebraska, Williams College, and Columbia University. You are well-known as the founder of important institutions of foreign culture in the United States, and have been prominently identified with many linguistic and literary associations.

"You have achieved a high reputation as an author and editor. You have already been honored by various universities and governments. And now we add our appreciation of what your life has meant and still means to scholarship and research, and their efficient application to a better understanding between races and nations."

The honorary degree Doctor of Laws was awarded in absentia to William Emmett Moore, former student in 1893-97, managing editor of the Baltimore Sun. This is the first time the University has taken such action. Dr. Middlebush said, in conferring the degree, that Moore, for reasons acceptable to the Board of Curators, was unable to be present to receive the degree in person.

Moore's citation read in part: "Today the University of Missouri takes formal cognizance of your notable achievements in the field of journalism. As managing editor of the Baltimore Sun you have shaped its course in such a way that its present greatness owes much to your own ideals."

S. G. A. Faces Possible Abolition Next Fall

Doubtful of the value of the Student Government Association of the University, and certain of the "notorious evils" involved in S.G.A. elections, the Committee on Student Affairs will thoroughly investigate the association in October and may abolish or substitute a new organization for it, Dr. Darwin A. Hindman, acting director of student affairs for men, said last month in a resolution adopted by the committee.

Announcement of the investigation was made to give those interested opportunity to prepare briefs of their opinions in time for the hearings, Dr. Hindman said.

The resolution specifically charged S.G.A. with conducting elections involving "evils of a sort commonly recognized to be contrary to public morality, offensive to good citizenship, destructive to good government," and which have "had a tendency to bring the University into disrepute."

It questioned whether S.G.A. does "render any service and perform any real function" for the students.

Dr. Hindman disclaimed any idea of actually seeking the abolition of the organization, but said the committee sought to determine "how it could be made more valuable to the students and whether or not it should be continued in its present form."

The present Student Government Association was organized and incorporated in 1934 and theoretically controls many campus activities, giving all-school dances and officially publishing the newspaper and yearbook. Representatives on the governing boards of the publications are in the minority, however, and the publications have passed almost completely out of the association's control in the past few years.

Abolition of the association and substitution of the graduate manager plan used at many large universities was proposed by Chauncey Stanberry, student president in 1939, and by Russell Harris, editor of the 1940 Savitar, who made a joint investigation of the association in the summer of 1939, but S.G.A.'s financial condition at that time made any action impossible.

Chester Hill, student resident during the past year, said the campaigning by political parties on the campus could not be controlled by the candidate, and that the "underlying corruption" of the caucus system hamstrung S.G.A. officials.

Wood Taylor, newly elected student president, said he welcomed the investigation, but that he felt with adequate financial support of the association through an activity book the association could function "more as a service organization and less as a dance committee."

Curators Accept Gift Of Defoe Library

President Frederick A. Middlebush announced this month that the private library of Dr. Luther Marion Defoe has been accepted by the Board of Curators as a gift from Miss Hertha Eitzen. About half of the three thousand volumes deal with mathematics and engineering, while the rest cover a wide range of subjects.

Awards, Prizes Announced At Commencement

Robert Lee Powell of Hallsville was the winner of the 1941 Missouri Engineers of Chicago Scholarship as announced on the program at the commencement exercises.

Before presenting the awards, President Middlebush introduced several members of the Board of Curators. Gov. Forrest C. Donnell and Dr. Isador Loeb were also presented, and Gov. Donnell made a short speech.

Other winners of awards were Lillian Louise Sawford of Otterville who won the E. M. Carter Memorial Award; Mary Lue Hall of Harrisonville, the S. H. Ford Scholarship; Lloyd L. Garrison of Shelbyville, the Peabody Scholarship in Education; Jack Benton Gabbert of Dearborn, Scholar in American Citizenship; Dorothy Jean Harcourt of Independence, the Pi Lambda Theta prize.

Russell Sydney Burg of Clayton, The Journalism Students' Association Scholarship; Ethlyn Davis of Mexico City, D. F., the Volker Scholarship in Social Science; Jean Buchert of St. Louis, the W. S. G. A. Award; Enno Edward Kraehe of St. Louis, the Frank P. Blair Scholarship; Helen Marjorie Bryan of Speed, the Mortar Board Award; and John Allen Lister of St. Louis, the Gwinn Henry Award.

The Gregory Scholarships were awarded to Athol Romayne Baily, Wichita, Kan., in education; Louis John Budrewicz, St. Louis, in English; Mary Ferguson, Marshall, in sociology; John Robert Janes, Garden City, N. Y., in chemistry; Blaine Blair Nolan, Joplin, in education; Murrel D. Thomas, Rector, Ark., in geology; Dale Morris Yocum, Bynumville, in mathematics; Imelda Schuster, Pilot Grove, in English; George Francis Lemmer, Harrisonville, in history; and Celia Rothberg, Kansas City, in speech.

The Charles Kiepe Scholarship was awarded to Saul Klamann of Boston, Mass. The Edward K. Love Fellowships were awarded to James R. Hunt of Chester, S. D., Harold C. Reynolds of Springfield, and J. O. Keller of Armstrong, The Gregory Fellowship (physics) was awarded to Albert Sterling Eisenstein of Moberly.

St. Louis Alumni Will Hold Picnic July 12

John W. Hoffman, president of the St. Louis Alumni Association, has announced that the annual picnic of his group will be held Saturday, July 12, on the six-acre estate of Dr. John O'Connell. The picnic will be held from 1 to 7:30 p. m.

The following directions for reaching the O'Connell estate have been given by Mr. Hoffman:

Drive west on Page Avenue to O'Connell Avenue (10,300 West). Turn right (North) on O'Connell Avenue for 1½ blocks to O'Connell's. Or, one may drive west on Easton Avenue to St. Charles Road, on to Lackland Road, continuing west on Lackland Road to O'Connell Avenue, turn left (South) on O'Connell Avenue for one block to O'Connell's.

Mr. Hoffman reports that the place is the highest elevation in St. Louis County and the grounds are always delightfully cool. The O'Connell mail address is 10,300 Lackland Road, St. Louis County, Mo.

All possible facilities for entertainment will be available. There is a large swimming pool with locker rooms for men and women. There is a well-kept tennis court, six badminton courts, a volleyball court, and a soft ball diamond. There are plenty of tables available for everyone under the shade trees. Everybody is to bring their own picnic lunch.

Mr. Hoffman says that plans call for tournaments in badminton and volleyball, a soft ball game between the "Fats" and "Leans," and a bingo game.

There will be about ten or fifteen valuable attendance prizes awarded. Tickets for the picnic will cost 75 cents. Tickets and complete information may be obtained by calling Archie Klein, Main 0091; Elmer J. Weber, Chestnut 9800; or Mr. Hoffman, Chestnut 4282. William T. Kieffer is acting as general chairman for the picnic. He may also be contacted for tickets and information. Phone him at Central 3931.

The St. Louis association is anxious to make this the biggest turn-out ever held by their group. They are particularly anxious to have all recent graduates and former students of the University attend and get acquainted.

Record California Crowd

More than 125 persons attended the picnic supper held June 15 at the Kellogg Arabian Horse Farm, Pomona, Calif., by alumni living in Southern California. A feature of the event was a horse show on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Howell. The former is manager of the farm. A speech of welcome was made by James Hudson, former president of the association, and the present president, Miss Alma Kinkade, thanked the alumni for their splendid turnout. It was the last meeting of the season. Activities will be resumed next Sept. 15 with a dinner and dance at the Miramar Beach Club in Santa Monica.

The tree-planting was conducted by Sam Darnell (standing) and Verle Parker on the White Campus.

New Detroit Officers

Louis J. Schrenk, class of 1906, was elected president of the Greater Detroit Alumni Association at their banquet meeting this month. Thirty-five were present at the meeting. Other officers chosen are: Vice-president, Joseph Spurgeon; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Sidney Levy. Plans were discussed for the association's fall meeting at East Lansing when the Tigers play Michigan State. President Schrenk will work out definite plans for this get-together with Dean Ernest Anthony of Michigan State. Thanks to Lafe Allen for the report.

Washington Alumni

Donald M. Nelson, co-ordinator of purchases for O.P.M. and a graduate of M.U. in 1911, addressed the final spring meeting of Washington, D. C., alumni June 6 at the Harrington Hotel. Sixty-two persons were present, including members of the Missouri State Society.

1881 Participated In Intramurals

Sixteen University men's intramural sports had 1881 different participants competing during the school year.

Softball led in the number of contestants with 669 players. Touch football was second with 657.

Of the 1881 contestants, 981 were fraternity men and 900 were independents. There were 1855 regularly scheduled matches, 549 team contests, and 1306 individual matches.

Bour Presented Scroll for Services

J. Coy Bour, professor of law, recently was presented a parchment scroll by Edward E. Mansur, Jr., on behalf of the senior class of the School of Law for the services rendered his students. The presentation was made in Lee Tate Hall.—(Missourian photo)

Law Seniors Pay Tribute to Prof. Bour

The senior class of the School of Law presented a parchment scroll to J. Coy Bour, faculty member, honoring him as a teacher, scholar, and friend in Lee H. Tate Hall commencement morning.

The tribute to Bour, who has been a member of the faculty for many years and was acting dean for the year 1939, came as a surprise to him, and was presented on behalf of the class by Edward E. Mansur, Jr.

"We, the Class of 1941," the resolution said, "wish the record to show, as to J. Coy Bour of the faculty of our School of Law, that for his superb classroom work we are deeply grateful and thoroughly appreciative, cognizant, as we are, that it is the fruit of the most painstaking and zealous preparation, research, and thought."

"As a teacher of law he has fulfilled, to the highest degree, his functions of teaching; as a scholar he has our admiration; as a hard and exacting taskmaster he commands our respect; as a friend he has our affection."

Alumnus Named Secretary Of Teachers Association

Everett Keith, A.M. '32, of Columbia has been named secretary of the Missouri State Teachers Association, succeeding Thomas J. Walker, former student, who resigned after serving as secretary of the organization for three years.

Keith has been connected with the association for three years, serving as assistant secretary.

Walker, who asked to be relieved of the secretaryship, will continue as editor of "School and Community" the association's official publication.

Honor to Warren

David M. Warren, B.J. '18, was recently elected president of the Texas Press Association. Mr. Warren publishes newspapers in Borger and Panhandle, and is chairman of the board of the Panhandle State Bank in Borger.

Summer Enrollment Shows 15% Decline

With registration for the Summer Session approximately 15 per cent under the totals of last summer, enrollment for the current term totaled 1990 at the close of registration June 16.

Last year the Summer Session had 2334 students registered before the opening of class work, but late registrations brought the total to more than 2600 before the close of the first week of the term.

Dean Theo. W. H. Irion, director of the Summer Session, estimates that late registrations will increase the enrollment for the current term to a minimum of 2200 students, and that if this figure is reached, the University will show a proportionately lesser rate of decline in enrollment than is being shown by most other schools throughout the country.

University authorities attribute the reduction in enrollment to the absence of men called into military service and to the elimination of courses usually offered for people employed in agricultural extension work.

Enrollment in the Graduate School amounts to more than one-half of the summer session total. The School of Education, with 49 students, is the largest undergraduate group.

The enrollment by divisions: Agriculture 142, Arts and Science 317, Business and Public Administration 47, Education 349, Graduate 1052, Journalism 65, and Medicine 35.

McKenzie Resigns to Head Utah Department

Dr. Frederick F. McKenzie, assistant professor of animal husbandry in the College of Agriculture, has resigned to become head of the animal husbandry department at the Utah State Agricultural College.

Dr. McKenzie has been a member of the staff of the University since 1925. He holds master's and doctor's degrees from the University of Missouri, and a B.S.A. degree received at British Columbia University. McKenzie specializes in the field of physiology of reproduction, and has gained national fame in his research in artificial insemination.

Dr. McKenzie is now in South America, at the request of the federal government, assisting Peru and Chile with their livestock problems, thus aiding the government in its "good neighbor" policy.

At Utah he will succeed Dr. Ralph W. Phillips, who received degrees from the University of Missouri in 1931 and 1934. Phillips has been appointed to direct animal-genetics investigations at the Beltsville, Md., research center for the Department of Agriculture.

Five M. U. men were among 330 who on May 1 successfully completed their basic training period as flying cadets at Randolph Field, Tex. Those from Missouri in the class were Kenneth L. Glassburn, A.B. '40, Kansas City; Milton O. Hillebrand, former student 1936-40, Ulrich; Ralph F. Schmidt, B.S. in C.E. '37, Wright City; Lester J. Wolf, B.S. in B.A. '39, Kansas City; and John H. Schweitzer, B.S. '39, Hannibal. Schweitzer's picture was not available.

In early August they will win their wings and be commissioned as second lieutenants in the Air Corps Reserve of the United States Army. From advanced training fields they will go to active duty with tactical units of the air corps. In the next few weeks they will undergo rigorous training, specializing in either fast single-motored or multi-motored planes.

Journalism Library Displays Medal Won by Pierre J. Huss

The George R. Holmes Memorial Trophy, which was awarded in April to Pierre J. Huss, Berlin correspondent and central European manager of the International News Service, has been forwarded to the School of Journalism, where it will be placed in the Journalism Historical Library. Huss is a former student of the school.

The trophy, a gold medal some two inches in diameter, bears a likeness of Holmes on one side, and on the reverse the following statement:

"Awarded to Pierre Huss for the best example of an International News Service Reporter's Work, 1940."

The Holmes Award was established in 1939 as a tribute to the memory of George R. Holmes, who for twenty years was chief of the International News Service Washington Bureau. All the staff writers employed by I. N. S., both in the United States and abroad, are eligible for the award. A cash award of $200 accompanied the medal. The selection of the winner of the award each year is made by a committee of nationally known editors.

Huss was chosen as this year's winner for his almost uncannily accurate revelations regarding German military strategy leading up to the fall of France and his meticulous coverage of Nazi war operations in Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. The committee selected the correspondent largely on the basis of dispatches filed from the battle-line in the middle of May, describing the steady collapse of Belgium and clearly predicting that France and the Maginot Line could not hold out against the Nazi military juggernaut.

Huss' ability to chart the course of German strategy, his insistence that the Maginot Line was anything but an impregnable barrier and his time-table predictions of events on continental Europe stem directly from the close contacts he has made with leading figures who rule the German army and nation.

Born in the now occupied European principality of Luxembourg, Huss moved with his family at an early age to Belgium where they were living at the outbreak of the last war. His family was one of many to receive aid from the Belgian Relief Commission headed by Herbert Hoover, and when hostilities were over, Huss came to the United States.

After working for I. N. S. in Chicago and New York, he was named bureau manager in Mexico City in 1931. Two years later he returned to Europe as a correspondent—first to London and Madrid and later to Berlin, where he was eventually appointed to his present post of central European manager.

Huss attracted international journalistic attention in 1933 soon after Adolph Hitler's rise to power. He tracked the Fuehrer down at Berchtesgaden and obtained the first interview Hitler had granted to any foreign correspondent since he took over the reins of office.

Huss' territory has enlarged along with his reputation. Originally in charge of dispatches from republican Germany and a scattering of Balkan capitals, he now is in control of virtually all of continental Europe from the Bay of Biscay to northern Norway.

Herbie Gregg Joins U. S. Army Air Corps

Herbert Gregg, co-captain elect and forward of the University of Missouri basketball team, notified Coach George Edwards June 17 that he had been accepted by the Army Air Corps as a flying cadet.

Gregg had one year more of Varsity play in both basketball and baseball. He earned two letters in basketball and baseball. George Evans, Jr., a guard and two-year letter man, also notified Coach Edwards that he had made application for appointment as a flying cadet and would not return to school next year.

Emeritus Titles to Two

At commencement exercises the title of emeritus was conferred on two members of the University faculty who have retired. James Water Rankin, who taught here from 1910 to 1940, was made professor emeritus of English. Oscar Milton Stewart, 1901 to 1940 on the staff here, was made professor emeritus of physics.

Mrs. Jeffers To Retire

Mrs. Anna Jeffers, in charge of the biology library at the University, will retire in September. Mrs. Jeffers has been in charge of this special library for the last eleven years.

Three Tigers Candidates For All-Star Grid Game

Supporters of Missouri football will have an opportunity this summer to vote for three members of the 1940 team to play with the College All-Stars in the annual game with the professional champions in Soldier Field in Chicago.

Last year Don Faurot, the Missouri coach, was voted assistant coach of the All-Stars. Bob Waldorf, Tiger guard, played with the college team.

Missouri candidates this year are Paul Christman, all-America quarterback; Jack Crocker, the Missouri captain who alternated at end and guard; and Ray Schultz, one of the top guards in the Big Six.

Friends of the Tiger players are starting a series of petitions which carry their names.

If a Tiger fan desires to cast his vote individually, without waiting for the printed ballots, he may list his own team on a piece of paper, sign his name, and mail it to the Chicago Daily Tribune. Arch Ward, sports editor, of the Tribune, originated the all-star idea.

Fans also may list players from Big Six and Missouri Valley universities as their candidates for other positions on their favorite team. Only seniors are eligible.

Tigers Finish Second In Major Big Six Sports

The University of Missouri finished second behind Nebraska in major sports of the Big Six this year, tabulations of the Tiger sports publicity department show.

Nebraska who won three of the five championships, winning football and outdoor and indoor track. Missouri won the baseball title, while the University of Kansas and Iowa State shared the other championship in basketball.

Missouri teams finished third in football, last in basketball, and second in outdoor and indoor track.

A sixth in baseball was the biggest blot on the Cornhusker athletic record for the year.

In figuring the ranking each team is credited with the number it finished in that individual sport. Low score indicates the winner on the bases of the grand totals.

ORVILLE M. BARNETT, former student in the law school, in 1889-92, died May 29 in Columbia after a month's illness. Mr. Barnett was formerly Pettis County prosecutor and in 1896 was elected from that county to the State House of Representatives. He later became attorney for the University and served from 1914 to 1935.

DR. BERT MUNDAY, B.S. '97, M.S. '98, M.D. '99, of New York City, has presented the School of Journalism with a facsimile of the first edition of the New York Times. The copy has been restored by the library and is in a condition to warrant ordinary use. It consists of four pages, printed in 1851. Over each of the pages has been pasted a sheet of Japanese tissue, a tough, transparent paper which is used in mending manuscripts.

DR. W. R. SHAEFER, M.D. '97, well-known Boone County physician, died June 6 at his home near Columbia. He was 66 years old. Dr. Shaefer retired from active medical practice a few years ago. In 1938 he was elected presiding judge of the Boone County court and was serving in that capacity at the time of his death. Dr. Shaefer was a pioneer locally in making diphtheria anti-toxin when that serum was a rarity. He was well-known as a doctor for more than forty years by persons all over Boone County and he once estimated that he had delivered more than 3000 babies during his years of active practice. Among the survivors is a sister, Mrs. Norman C. Riggs, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who also graduated from the University. She is the former Miss Jean Shaefer.

ELBERT C. BROWN, B.S. in C.E. '09, represented the University of Missouri at the dedication of the Hoover Library on War, Revolution, and Peace June 21. The library is located on the campus of Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif. Mr. Brown is now head of the highway engineering department in San Francisco.

1910

PROF. and MRS. L. A. WEAVER, B.S. in Agr. '10, of the M.U. faculty, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Weaver, B.S. in Ed. '36, to Dr. W. S. Arbuckle, A.M. '37, Ph.D. '40. The wedding will take place this summer. Dr. Arbuckle is now a member of the faculty at Texas A. & M. College.

Alumni-Printed Volumes Lost on the Robin Moor

Fishermen in South American waters may hook educated fish if 200 sets of the Consolidated Encyclopedia are digested by hungry sharks and barracuda.

The Stephens Publishing Company of Columbia was informed by a telegram June 17 that the shipment of encyclopedias, printed by them here and en route to Johannesburg, South Africa, went down on the Robin Moor, May 21.

The shipment which included 200 sets of ten volumes each or 2000 books, was published for the Standard Education Society of Chicago as its foreign edition. The entire edition is being reprinted.

Three alumni, E. Sydney Stephens, Sr., H. H. Kinyon, and E. Sydney Stephens, Jr., are associated in the publishing company.

you're on

NEXT MONTH is Commencement. Are you going back? What will you tell the men from your class when they ask what and how you're doing?

If you're five or ten years out of college, you ought to be well started on the way up your personal ladder. If you're not — or if you can't see an inviting succession of rungs ahead of you — you may be on the wrong ladder!

Did you ever consider a ladder labeled "life insurance"? Hundreds of college men and women, with New England Mutual, have found it a profitable, satisfying way up.

Here is a business you can believe in. Here is a company that has flourished through wars and depressions — the first mutual life insurance company chartered in America. Here are real rewards for initiative and intelligence — plus the self-respect that comes from constructive service — plus personal independence.

To a limited number of men, New England Mutual offers unlimited opportunities. If you're interested — if you'd like your own chances of success in insurance to be measured fairly and frankly — write to Wm. Eugene Hays (Stanford '26), Director of Agencies, 87 Milk Street, Boston. No obligation either way, of course.

A good company to insure in is a good company to work with.

Missouri graduates in the vicinity of St. Louis, who may be thinking about entering the life insurance business, are invited to call upon New England Mutual's General Agent in that city.

He is FRANK M. SEE, class of 1911, and he is located in the Boatmen's Bank Building.

Tornado Causes 24-Hour Delay in "Kaki's" Wedding

Kathryn Westmoreland, former University student, postponed for twenty-four hours her marriage to Alfred McMurtry of Clarendon, Tex., when the roof and most of the large, two-story brick McMurtry house were carried away as a tornado twisted through Clarendon.

Guests, wedding presents, and the prospective bride and groom were assembled at the McMurtry home June 8, ready for the ceremony the next day, when the house was struck by the tornado which did thousands of dollars in damage in Clarendon and nearby towns.

None of the guests or other members of the wedding was injured. A barn and carriage house standing near the McMurtry place were demolished.

Long to Succeed Gerald As State Press Manager

H. R. Long, assistant instructor in the School of Journalism, will succeed J. Edward Gerald as manager of the Missouri Press Association, Sept. 1, according to an announcement by President Frederick A. Middlebush and C. E. Watkins, president of the association.

Gerald will return to full-time duty as associate professor of journalism. Long will spend half his time as head of the press group and the other half as instructor in journalism, under a cooperative agreement which has been in effect between the school and the association for several years.

Long sold the Crane Chronicle in 1940 to accept employment with the University and the Missouri Press Association. He was president of the Ozark Press Association in 1937.

Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Journalism were awarded to Long when he graduated from the University in 1930.
