FLOYD ERNEST NELSON

(Written text and photographs provided by Floyd C. Nelson Jr. and William John Krause II). Floyd Ernest Nelson was born on April 20, 1907, in Detroit Lakes, Minnesota, and was the son of Nels Christ and Mary Elizabeth (Johannesson/Nelson) Nelson. As was part of the Swedish tradition of that time, Floyd was named after Floyd Lake which abutted the property of the family farm in Becker County, Minnesota. Floyd traveled with his parents to homestead in Montana when he was four years old. His parents homesteaded in the buggy creek community near the Tampico, Montana. Floyd grew up on the family farm and helped his parents and neighbors farm and ranch this area. In the early 1920's he traveled to Anaconda, Montana, and worked at the copper smelter in this mining community. Floyd's father, Nels Christ Nelson, died in 1927 and as a result Floyd returned to the homestead to help his mother and younger brothers farm and ranch. Floyd worked on the Fort Peck Dam project in 1933. He worked with a crew that cleared trees and brush from the site where the spillway was to be built. In addition, Floyd drove a truck hauling dirt in the construction of the spillway. He also was employed to build the grade for the railroad at that time. Floyd Ernest Nelson married Bertha T. Stensland on June 2, 1934, in Glasgow, Montana. Following their marriage they lived in the Highland Community, and their home was the former Highland School which was moved a quarter of a mile from its early-day location to the land that they farmed, ranced and owned. Bertha Stensland was born on July 15, 1911, and was the daughter (second child) of Elias and Anna (Olson) Stensland. She was born on the original homestead of the Stensland family in the Highland community. Mrs. Dickman was the attendant at her birth. Bertha attended Highland School through the eighth grade and graduated from Glasgow High School in 1930. Bertha Stensland was a lifelong member of the Highland Lutheran Church, where she was baptized and then confirmed on September 14, 1925. She was also a member of the First Lutheran Church of Glasgow, in Glasgow, Montana. Following graduation from high school Bertha Stensland completed Teacher's Training and became a rural school teacher. At that time teachers renewed their teaching certificates every two years by attending college for nine weeks during the summer months. Bertha attended college at Billings and Miles City, Montana. Bertha Stensland taught at Buggy Creek, Tampico, and Riverside Schools. Following her marriage to Floyd Ernest Nelson, Bertha was a substitute teacher at the Tampico School. Floyd Ernest and Bertha T. (Stensland) Nelson had three children: Floyd C. Nelson Jr. (Sonny) born on January 27, 1935 in Tampico, Montana; Beverly Ann Nelson born on September 3, 1936 in Glasgow, Montana; and Donald Bruce Nelson (Donny) born on January 21, 1956, in Glasgow, Montana. Bertha (Stensland) Nelson was very active in 4-H and was a leader of the Tampico Boy's 4-H Club for 43 years. On September 28, 1986, during 4-H Achievement Day, Bertha was honored for 40 years service as a veteran leader. She became a leader in the Tampico Boy's 4-H Club in 1946. At that time, there was a Tampico Boy's Club and a Tampico Girls' Club. The clubs were consolidated under the Tampico Boy's Club in 1949 and Bertha (Stensland) Nelson was the organizational leader. Her three children (Sonny, Beverly, and Donny) as well as her grandchildren that lived in the community, were all active 4-H members under her leadership. Bertha dedicated over 50 years of volunteer service to young people of the Tampico and Glasgow communities. She was honored by United States President, Ronald Regan, and the Governor of Montana, Ted Schwinden, as well as numerous other state and national officials for her leadership and volunteer service. Bertha was a member of the Hospital Guild in Glasgow and also was a Bible School teacher in Tampico during Bible study sessions given by the Lutheran Church of Glasgow.
Floyd enjoyed hunting, farming, and working with livestock. Floyd Ernest Nelson's brand was HO—. Floyd also enjoyed visiting with relatives and friends over a cup of coffee. Floyd Ernest Nelson died at his home in Tampico, Montana, on February 2, 1990. Burial was in the Highland Cemetery, in Glasgow, Montana. Following the death of her husband, Floyd, Bertha (Stensland) Nelson continued to live on the ranch in the Tampico area. She thoroughly enjoyed visiting with family, friends and company in general, and all could count on her for a hot cup of coffee and a home cooked meal. Bertha T. (Stensland) Nelson died at the Frances Mahon Deaconess Hospital on March 20, 2006. Bertha was 95 years old at the time of her death. Burial was in the Highland Cemetery, in Glasgow, Montana.

FLOYD E. NELSON
BERTHA STENSLAND NELSON

Floyd was born to Nels Chris and Mary Nelson on April 20, 1907 in Detroit Lakes, Minn. He came with his parents to Montana when he was four years old. His parents homesteaded in the Tampico area and the land is still farmed by Floyd and his sons.

Floyd spent his early years on the family farm and helping his neighbors. In the 20’s, he spent time working at the smelter in Anaconda. His father passed away in 1927, so he returned to the farm to help his younger brother.

In 1933, Floyd worked at the Fort Peck Dam. He was on the crew that cleared trees and brush in preparation for the building of the spillway. He also drove a truck hauling dirt in building of that structure. He later was employed in building the grade for the railroad.

In 1934, Floyd and Bertha Stensland were married and they are living in the Highland community. Their home is the old Highland School, which was moved one-quarter mile from its old location to its present one. Floyd and Bertha are owners of former homesteader’s land and besides farming were ranching also.

They have three children: Floyd, Jr., Beverly Ann, and Donald Bruce. They attended the Tampico School, which was then the closest school, and then graduated from Glasgow High. There wasn’t a school bus to Tampico, so the parents had to get the children to school. When they became of high school age, a bus took them to Glasgow.

Floyd and Bertha are Lutherans and were members of the Highland Lutheran Church. Now they are members of the First Lutheran Church of Glasgow.

They have six grandchildren: Jackee Nelson Svien of Napa, Calif.; Sally in Kalispell, Mont.; Gina Nelson Reyling of Glasgow who is attending school in Los Angeles, Calif.; Theresa Nelson of Billings; Bill Pederson attending medical school in Albuquerque, N.M.; and Barbara Pederson of Billings who is attending school in Fullerton, Calif. They also have three great grandchildren: Jessica, Joey and Arielle Svien in Napa, Calif.

Bertha was the second child of Elias and Anna Stensland. She was born on July 15, 1911 on the original homestead in the Highland community. Mrs. Dickman was the attendant at her birth.

She attended Highland School through the 8th grade and graduated from Glasgow High School in 1930. She became a rural school teacher after Teacher’s Training and graduation from high school. Teachers had to renew their certificates every two years by attending college nine weeks in the summer. Bertha taught at the Buggy Creek, Tampico, and Riverside Schools. She attended college at Miles City and Billings, Mont. After her marriage she substituted teaching at the Tampico School.

Bertha has been active in 4-H and has been a leader of the Tampico Boy’s 4-H Club for 43 years. Her children and grandchildren have been members of the club. On 4-H Achievement Day, Sept. 28, 1986, Bertha was honored for 40 years service as a volunteer 4-H leader. She also was a Bible School teacher in Tampico during two-week sessions of Bible study given by the Lutheran Church in Glasgow. She was also a member of the Hospital Guild in Glasgow.
ELIAS AND ANNA (OLSON) STENSLAND

Elias and Anna (Olson) Stensland were early homesteaders in the Highland Community.

Elias was born April 25, 1878 in Haggeboastal Lyndal, Norway, and came to the United States when he was 18 years of age. He filed on a homestead near Antler, N.D.

Anna Olson was born April 10, 1875 in Konso Skoffeland, Norway, and came to the United States as a young girl. For many years she was a cook at Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn. She was proud to have been a close friend of Helga Fjelstad, a school matron for 33 years who lived to see Fjelstad Hall named for her. It was a dormitory and also housed a library. Later Mom moved to Mohall, N.D. There she and Elias were married on July 7, 1906.

Grandma Randi Stensland and Mom each filed on a homestead of 160 acres about 12 miles northwest of Glasgow in 1908. This community was known as the Highland community for it was above Milk River on the hills.

They came to Glasgow by immigrant box car on the Great Northern Railroad loaded with household goods, horses and machinery. A well had to be dug by hand and lumber was hauled from Glasgow to build a house and barn.

During the early homesteading days neighbors lived very close and helped each other. Most communities first built a school and then a church. These two held most of the social life of the early settlers.

Early church services were held in various homes. A church was built in 1923 with the help of the whole community. It was the Highland Lutheran Church. For money to operate the church and pay the ministers, the Ladies Aide put on family affairs for all of the community to enjoy, even though they were not of the Lutheran faith. Dad was secretary-treasurer for many years. He also served as secretary-treasurer of the Glasgow Lutheran church. In 1937 the Highland church was joined to the Glasgow Lutheran church. Mom was the secretary-treasurer of the Highland Ladies Aide for many years.

The rural school, Highland, was built one half mile north of the farm. Many of the teachers roomed and boarded with the folks. At one time there were eight rural schools in District 14. The school programs, and especially the Christmas ones, were big events in the community and people came from far and near. Benches were set up and there was always a large Christmas tree with candles. When they were lit someone would have to stand by and watch for fear of fires.

The Dolson grove, a shady spot, was a popular place for picnics for many years. At the end of the school year they would have picnics as well as one on the Fourth of July.

Summers ceased to bring any relief from the wind, especially during the '30s. Any cloud in the sky sent everyone running to the cellars as this usually turned into a tornado or cyclone. There were many destructive hail and wind storms during those homesteading years and the safest places were the cellars dug beneath the houses or the root cellars dug to keep the potatoes, carrots, and other vegetables over for winter use. After milking the cows and separating the milk and cream, Mom would cool it in iced water and sometimes take it down the cellar as it stayed cooler there.

Another problem coming during the summer months were the gypsies who traveled the road near the house, and stopped at home to steal whatever was in sight.

In winter blizzards were common, resulting in large snow drifts. Horses pulling sleds were used for travel, as the roads were paths and ruts formed from common use. They would be very slippery in the winter.

Mail came from Glasgow on the “Skidoo”, a short train running on the Great Northern track. It hauled mail, milk, freight, and passengers. If you hauled your cream cans close to the track and waved, they would stop and pick them up and return the empties the next trip. In times of floods and muddy roads, passengers would walk to the track and get a trip to town. Dad hauled the mail for many years. In the winter he had a “cab” made of canvas to cover the sled. Mail was delivered on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. When the Milk River was flooding, he used a row boat to cross it and walk the four miles of a mile to the Tampico Post Office and store. The folks always ordered the Norwegian newspaper, DECORAH POSTER; a paper printed in Decorah, Iowa. Besides news, it had a cartoon, Par and Ola, in its weekly publication. Dad continued on with the mail route when he got a Model T. The rural route was discontinued in April, 1953.

Mom had a beautiful asparagus fern which she had in an old butter churn. This plant always sat near a west window and was never repotted. It only had an amount of soil removed by hand, so as not to damage the roots, and new field top soil added. This plant provided greenery for a lot of the funerals held in the Highland Church. It kept coming back and never seemed to hurt it when it was cut for these solemn occasions.

After the crops were harvested and during the winter months, Dad ground feed both for himself and neighbors who lived many miles around.

Four daughters were born to this marriage. Agnes married Chris Molvig and lived at Tampico; Bertha married Floyd Nelson and lived near the homestead; Elise married Bill Kirkland and lived in Nashua; and Gladys married Lloyd Fles- jen and lived in Glasgow.

Many happy times were had in the Highland community.
Basket and pie socials were very popular. The Easter, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year holidays were special occasions to be with the neighbors. Delicious dinners were served family style, with the parents always eating first, then the teenagers, and the younger ones were the last. There was always plenty of good food for everyone. There was no electric power, kerosene lamps or gasoline lanterns were used. Dad and Mom spent all their life on this homestead. Dad passed away on Feb. 7, 1960, and Mom passed away on June 11, 1951.

Most of the old landmarks from Highland community are gone, but if one wanted to walk around the prairies they could come across rock piles, cellar holes, old rotten lumber, and metal as reminders of an earlier era. Trails where cattle, horses, and buggies followed are still visible to one who knows where to look. Memories, both pleasant and sad, are about all that remain of the brave people who came to find better lives. Many left during the hard times and will be forgotten, but the survivors, like Mom and Dad, have many heirs who keep their memories.

Compiled by the four daughters—Agnes, Bertha, Elise and Gladys.

4 CHEERS FOR 4-H

To Bertha,

Bertha Nelson became a 4-H leader in 1946 taking over the Tampico Boys. At that time there was a Tampico Boys Club and a Tampico Girls Club—each separate. In 1949 the clubs consolidated under the Tampico Boys and has remained so since then with Bertha as an organizational leader.

Bertha and Floyd raised three children: Floyd, Beverly and Don—all who were 4-H members under her leadership. Her four granddaughters also benefited having “Grandma” as their 4-H leader.

Bertha has always enjoyed working with kids and continues to do so. We thank you—Bertha—for 40 years of volunteer work with “our” kids.

As a 4-H leader, I feel that I have helped members grow from young curious children to respected members of today’s society. They truly uphold the 4-H pledge of my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living. For my club, my community, my country and my world.

I am very proud to have been a 4-H leader, proud of all the members and what they have become today under the guidance of 4-H.

Bertha Nelson
4-H Leader

My Reflections by Bertha Nelson

“In 1946, I started as a 4-H leader of the Tampico Boys 4-H Club and remained a leader for the next 50 years. It was something I enjoyed and miss now. The club members were special, the parents always willing to help and the community always attended events.

In the beginning there were sewing, animal projects and gardening for members to participate in. The many events were held at the Tampico hall and still are held there today.

The County Extension Agent would attend a 4-H meeting and the agent, leaders and members would travel from home to home and look at the 4-H projects members were taking.

A few of the yearly events the club sponsored were IFYE delegate and outside speakers. Rural Life Sunday always had a good club attendance, also.

As a 4-H leader, I feel that I have helped members grow from young curious children to respected members of today’s society. They truly uphold the 4-H pledge of my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living, for my club, my community, my country and my world.

I am very proud to have been a 4-H leader, proud of all the members and what they have become today with the guidance of 4-H.”
