

The Body Project

Anatomy, Relationships, and Representations: An Interdisciplinary Study

Saturday, April 12, 2008

University of Missouri, Old Alumni Center

The Body Project, organized by graduate students, brings together researchers from a wide range of fields to present their work on the human body—its physiology, representations, and negotiations.

With a keynote address by Dr. Stefani Engelstein, Department of German and Russian Studies:

"Of Bodies and Disciplines:
A Morphology of Shape-Shifters."

To register for the conference,
email mubodyproject@gmail.com

Sponsored by the Center for Arts and Humanities and the Graduate School, in collaboration with the English Graduate Student Association and graduate students from Chemistry, Classics, Communication, Electrical Engineering, History, Integrative Anatomy, Learning, Teaching and Curriculum, Music, Physics and Astronomy, Theater, and Women's Gender Studies.