Sen. Steve Skowronski, who represented the 25th District, won with 57 percent of the vote.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

In the Senate, the Kansas Senate Republican Majority won seats, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.

The Kansas Senate Republican Majority won races in 16 of 24 Senate races, enough to give them control of the chamber. Republican candidates faced conservative candidates who shared their interests, including the PAC associated with the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed Republican candidates. Senate Republicans won 15 of 21 state Senate races, the most victories since the 1980s.