A bit about why:

In 2015, the Common Sense Census: Media Use by Tweens and Teens was released. The purpose of the study was to offer a complete picture of media use by teens and tweens in the US.

A top-down view of a desk with a spiral notebook, a pen, a water bottle, a keyboard, and a mouse. The notebook is open and has a blue horizontal band across the middle. The text "A few of the findings . . ." is written in white on the blue band. The desk is made of light-colored wood. There is a white water bottle on the left, a white keyboard on the right, and a white mouse on the bottom left. A small bowl of fruit is in the top left corner.

A few of the findings . . .

A top-down view of a desk with a spiral notebook, a pen, a water bottle, and a paint palette. The notebook is open and blank, with a silver spiral binding in the center. A white pen lies on the right page. A white water bottle is on the left, and a paint palette is on the right. The desk surface is light-colored wood.

“On any given day, American teenagers (13- to 18-year-olds) average about nine hours (8:56) of entertainment media use, excluding time spent at school or for homework. Tweens (8- to 12-year-olds) use an average of about six hours’ (5:55) worth of entertainment media daily. (13)”

“From gamers to social networkers, patterns of use vary widely among young media users. (13)”

“There is a large ‘digital equity gap’ in ownership of computer, tablets and smartphones.(17)”

Two Camps Exist:

Protectionist:

“Media literacy is seen as an inoculation against negative media influences and as a means to resist and challenge media power. (RobbGrieco & Hobbs 7)”

Empowerment:

“Learners have valuable media experience, interests, meaning-making skills, and expertise that can be cultivated and enhanced through the reflective practice and scaffolded support of Media Literacy Education. (RobbGrieco & Hobbs 7)”

First, choose a text:

Go through the following steps:

1. Consider the Visuals:

What do you remember about how the video looks? Lighting? The people in the video? What scenes stand out? What do you notice?

2. Consider the Sounds:

Listen to the sounds. What is said? Who says it? What kind, if any, of music is used? Are there other sounds?

3. Apply Key Questions for Deconstruction

Who is the author? What construction / writing techniques did they use? What do you think the commercial is saying? What lifestyle is endorsed? or rejected? What is the text selling?

4. Review your Insights. Be prepared to share with the group.

Let's watch it again,
this time with a more
critical eye:

Please use the following briefly to briefly explain the message delivered by this text:

<https://goo.gl/c6cOVB>

Some things you can do in your own
library:

Rethink Your Space

Try out a Makerspace!
Buy shelving on casters!
Minimize print purchases
in order to increase access to high quality
media and make space
for hands-on media
creation.

Go Online

Online access to digital resources increases access for users. Provide links to collections of
images, videos,
podcasts, etc.

Go Mobile

Mobile technology is changing the way people seek information. Have resources available and optimized for them to use.

Embed Yourself

Go to where the learning
is. Embed yourself in classrooms, small group
collaboration sessions,
teacher professional development, etc..

Beef up your Digital Literacy Skills!

Offer programming / learning sessions in crafting media. One cannot teach what one
does not know.

Play games

Try out something new.
Learn Minecraft.
Consider your level of
engagement as you do.
What did you learn
about your learning?
