The purpose of this study was to examine how elements of narrative advertising influence the cognitive processing of video advertisements. Results showed that varying levels of music and branding in narrative video ads influenced cognitive resources allocated to encoding, arousal, and attitude toward the ad and brand. The findings suggest that the right combination of music and branding could potentially improve the effectiveness of television and digital advertising.