Reading the Food Label

Using the Nutrition Facts label helps us make healthier food choices. Because there is a lot of information on this label, start by looking at serving size, calories in the food, the amount of selected nutrients in foods such as fat, and vitamins A and C.

What can you do with your child to make healthier food choices? Read the Nutrition Facts label!

- At home or in the grocery store, have your child look at the Nutrition Facts label to figure out how many servings are in a food package.
- Have your child measure out single servings of snacks like crackers and nuts so they become familiar with what a serving size looks like.
- At the grocery store, have your child use the Nutrition Facts label to identify foods that are high in vitamins A and C.
- At the grocery store, have your child use the Nutrition Facts label to choose snacks that are low in fat and sugar.
- Involve family members! Ask them to choose snacks at home and guess which are highest or lowest in vitamins A and C. Show them the Nutrition Facts label so they can see which snacks are high or low in these vitamins.

- At the store, have your child find cereal that is low in sugar. Try the cereal at home!
- At the store, have your child find canned fruit that is low in sugar. Try the low-sugar canned fruit at home!
- At the store, have your child compare serving sizes for nuts and dried fruit.

Macaroni and Cheese

Serving sizes are in common household measurements, like 1 cup or 1 teaspoon.

Limit these to avoid eating too much fat, calories, saturated fat, trans fat, cholesterol, sodium and sugar.

Get enough of these nutrients.

% Daily Value shows how a food fits into your daily diet.

% Daily Value
Low is 5 percent or less
High is 20 percent or more

Daily values are the amount of a nutrient in one serving of food compared to what is recommended for a 2,000 and 2,500 calorie diet.
