COMMENCEMENT

The seventy-first commencement of the University of Missouri will go down in history with at least two things to distinguish it from others. Stunt Week was combined with the formal exercises for the first time, and the commencement exercises were held in a tent.

About two hundred alumni were back to the University to attend the first Stunt Week at commencement time. The week was a great success judging by the number of alumni who were here and the attendance at the stunts and the interest that was taken in all the program which was carried out. The stunts by the different divisions in the University were never so well attended as they were this year.

Sunday the bacculaureate address was given by the Rev. John A. MacIntosh, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Ithaca, N. Y. The auditorium was filled. There were many alumni present who were back to take in the whole week.

The University cadets had a dress parade on the campus Monday morning. In the afternoon the students in the School of Engineering entertained the visitors on Rollins Field with a burlesque baseball game and track meet. The "longs" played against the "shorts" in this game. Foul hits were as good as any other kind for making runs. When the ball was hit the runner ran either to third base or to first. After a few innings the game was called "on account of rain." In the shot put, one man made a long put into the bleachers. The crowd scattered but the shot bounced away. It was a rubber ball.

The University band gave a concert on the campus Monday night. The students and alumni of the School of Law had a reunion and banquet at the Athens Hotel. The Coburn Players gave "Iphigenia" in front of the Columns. This was their third performance. The Saturday before they gave "Othello" and "Henry V."

Tuesday the students in the School of Journalism gave their annual yellow play in the University Auditorium. A burlesque on happenings of the year were given in the play. Stanley Sisson, manager of the University Dining Club, was tried before the student senate for giving cream to the Cafeteria and milk to the U. D. Club. The Yellow Extra was sold immediately after the play.

The agricultural students had their Farmers' Fair parade after the yellow play. The Fair was held on the state farm in the afternoon and at night. The Pike was between the machinery building and the stock barns and was wider than it was at other fairs. The attendance was unusually large.

The alumni business meeting was held Wednesday morning: A report of this meeting is given under a separate head. Following this there was a baseball game between the alumni and the Tigers on Rollins Field. A wild pitch in the ninth inning lost the game for the alumni. The score was 3-2. The Phi Beta Kappa luncheon was held at the Columbia Club at 1 o'clock. In the afternoon the University women had their June fete on the campus. Miss Katherine Barnes was crowned queen. Following this the women gave "The Piper" on the campus north of Switzler Hall. The Phi Beta Kappa address was given that night in the University auditorium by Dr. Paul Shorey, professor of Greek at Chicago University. Senior ball was at Rothwell Gymnasium that night. The dance was informal and about 100 couples attended.

After the Commencement exercises the alumni luncheon was held at the Virginia Grill. About 250 attended. O. H. Swearingen. Talks were made by Dr. C. M. Jackson, who gives up his position as dean of the School of Medicine this year; O. H. B. Turner, '88, Raton, N. M.; H. W. Prentis, Jr., of Pittsburgh; Miss Helen Ross of Independence, Mo.; A. R. Thomas of the 1913 law class, and former Governor David R. Francis, president of the Board of Curators.

At night the University Orchestra gave a concert in the University Auditorium. Following this was the reception by President and Mrs. A. Ross Hill at the gymnasium. Most of the visiting alumni stayed over for this. The crowd filled the gymnasium. There was dancing during the evening.

The Commencement Address.

A synopsis of the address given at Commencement by Dr. William Oxley Thompson, president of Ohio State University, on "The College Graduate in a Democracy" follows:

"From a political point of view this present decade has demonstrated that the western man has been characterized by freedom, independence, lack of respect for traditions, and a tremendous moral earnestness based upon his conviction as to righteousness and his love of personal liberty. The eastern man has tended toward an intellectual aristocracy, devotion to established customs, love of the privilege associated with wealth and power and a conservative attitude upon all matters pertaining to political and social progress.

"In the world of education these same general lines have been maintained. The eastern college or university, strongly wedded to traditional forms and types of education has gathered its inspiration from the culture of the past while the western institution, more a university of the people, has caught its inspiration from the vision of its future triumphs and a devotion to the public welfare. The student of history and of economic development has come to appreciate that all special favors are based upon the service of others. It is impossible to rid our minds of the conclusion that people of special privilege enjoy that privilege at the expense of others. A favored class, therefore, means a proletariat at the other end of the line. The struggle of democracy is to rid the proletariat of his burden, to give him a better expression of his own life, and to bring the favored classes to see their obligation toward those enjoying less of favor or opportunity. Democracy, therefore, signifies not simply a condition in which men live but an attitude of mind toward each other which shall determine their service and an appreciation of that service as rendered by one to another. Democracy therefore has to do, not merely with the form of government, but the spirit in which it is administered. It has to do as much with the spirit in which a citizen renders service as in the kind of service rendered.

"The supreme function of education, is to develop men and women who are able not only to understand and appreciate the problems of democracy but who are in a sympathetic mood, ready to lay hold with a determined effort to aid in their solution. The college bred man or woman is the one on whom society, through its organized forces, has put its supreme effort to produce a citizen of this type. Above all other persons he is the one to whom special consideration has been given and upon whom rests the heaviest responsibility for leadership in a society constantly facing the struggle between opposing forces. The college graduate is the favored child of his generation, nurtured in an idealism where character, service, and opportunity are emphasized and where, if anywhere, we may expect to find a citizenship with highest ideals, broadest sympathies and a most genuine service.

"There are a few things that might well be assumed and upon which I put some emphasis this morning as underlying a proper appreciation of the careers to which people may look forward.

"First of all, let it be recognized that you are plunging into a life which shows no lack of energy or efficiency. No one can read American history and feel that the people lack energy. He might question the wisdom with which they have exerted themselves, but he could not deny the fact that there is tremendous energy everywhere on this continent.

"In much the same way our public expenditure of money has been characterized by a reckless disregard of results and oftentimes by a partial failure at least to advance the public interests. The problem of poverty that stares us in the face is a purely local condition. There is money enough, there is wealth enough, there is food enough, but for some reason the American mind has not yet discovered a method of distribution which is effective. Meantime everybody is clamoring for bigness. Every city wants to grow at a rapid rate and exceed the speed limit of every other city. In this buoyant expectation the superficial observer supposes that the bigger the city the more certain its prosperity. As a matter of fact, the bigger the city, the bigger its problems. The art and science of living in our great centers of commerce and industry is yet to be developed. The prevalence of crime and the widespread fear that settles down over the people with every setting of the sun is a silent testimony to the fact that we have not yet learned how to live. After all, it is quite as important that people know how to live as that they know how to fight or even to make money.

"A second characteristic of American life has been its abounding initiative. The typical American never declines a challenge. He has an abounding confidence in his ability to do things. He starts out with supreme confidence that things will turn out well in the end. Aside from this he has shown a good deal of originality in his initiative.

"Granted without further debate that much can be said against the quality of American initiative, the point I have in mind is that the graduate of the twentieth century will hardly startle the world by showing unusual initiative. His problem rather will be to direct this initiative in practical, useful, and helpful lines. Education should help its beneficiary to do things in a better way. We sometimes fear that the monotony of our educational process suppresses and destroys the initiative of the rising generation. It must be confessed that excessive training has its dangers. College life itself has made evident its threat against the useful initiative of the graduate. The masterful influence of leisure, commonly known as loafing, has a long category of sins in college life. It may be well, therefore, to sound the note of caution, perhaps of alarm, to the American college graduate of today when he faces an active, busy world. The habit of dawdling away time, too common in many circles, the lack of any appreciation of time as a factor in life, the current notion that an escape from the adverse decision of faculties is sufficient for a gentleman, unite to create an atmosphere in which initiative is discounted. If the American college graduate is to improve American life he must put away the childish things of his school days and act the part of an intelligent, aggressive citizen. He will hardly justify the state's expenditure of money for his education unless this contribution makes decidedly for economic efficiency. The tremendous initiative that has built our railroads and our subways was an important contribution to American life. Many of these pioneers of finance and construction lacked the deliberate preparation of the modern university. The fathers literally hewed their way across the Alleghenies and blazed the pathway over mountains and plains to the Pacific coast.

"A third suggestion is that the American college graduate will need to recognize the genius for organization that has characterized American life. The greatest political problem of the present day is probably centered around the organization of wealth and of industry. No one can question that the organization itself is rather high class. Some would say that it is vicious; others would say that it is maliciously managed; some would say that it is selfish and against the public welfare. Perhaps it is too early in our experience to know just what the truth really is. There are good reasons for believing that the American genius for organization which has developed our financial systems, our railway situation, our forms of government, and last of all what we call the trust, is not altogether malevolent.

"I venture to suggest that it may be well for college graduates to recognize the fact that the creation of wealth is no longer the supreme achievement. The science of production in nearly every realm of human activity has quite outrun our ability to make proper use of it.

"It is doubtful whether any great creator of wealth will ever occupy as permanent a place in the esteem and affection of history as Mr. Gladstone. The services of a Washington or a Lincoln are quite beyond the measurements commonly applied to men of wealth. There is in the American mind today a profound conviction that the college graduate would do well not to surrender ingloriously to the temptation to enter the fields of easier conquest. There is a greater need of men today than of money; of dependable character than of guaranteed deposits.

"Turning aside from these qualities in American life let me suggest some opportunities that lie before us inviting us to undertake the larger realization of our ideals.

PEACE MOVEMENT.

"The educated person should give full consideration to the fundamental importance of the great movement now for world peace among the most advanced nations of the earth. These nations are those who have practically occupied their territory and have brought their people to the highest state of intellectual and moral achievement. Territorial aggrandisement is no longer possible for such nations as England, the United States, Germany and France. These nations have all gone through the pioneer period and are now face to face with the large problems of a permanent civilization of high character. The greatest single effort made by President Taft in his administration was to secure an amicable agreement between certain nations for the settlement by arbitration of all international differences.

"The doctrine that the government is for the people must adjust itself to a new conception of what the interests of the people really are. The unwell-come spectacle of enormous expenditures by the government in the maintenance of standing armies and the development of navies suggests at once that the world's leaders are too willing to recognize conditions fraught with cruelty. The scholar can not contemplate such things with satisfaction or indifference. He regards the organization of society as a means to an end and would eliminate from it the possibility of cruelty and injustice.

"One must always recognize the necessity of making provision for his own maintenance. The opportunity and duty of earning one's daily bread is always imperative. Nevertheless it is fair to assume that every educated person will produce more than he will consume. He will amass something of resources that he can not utilize."

THE ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri was held in the Alumni Room June 4, 1913. Following is a report of the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by President Odon Guitar, Jr. The minutes of the annual meeting for 1912 were read and approved.

Two amendments to the constitution came up for final action, and were adopted. Article 2, section 1, was amended to read as follows:

"All persons who have been granted diplomas by the University may become regular members of the Association upon payment of dues, and continue in membership as long as they pay their dues."

Article 2, section 2, as the amendment was proposed at the last annual meeting, was to read as follows:

"All former students who are members of a local alumni association may become associate members of this association upon payment of dues, unless otherwise provided. They shall have all rights and privileges of regular members so long as they pay their dues."

Following some discussion of this amendment, Mr. Hiram Phillips moved that the amendment be amended by striking out the words "who are members of a local alumni association." Mr. O. H. Swearingen moved that there be added a clause providing that such members be always referred to as "ex-students of the class of (whatever class they were members of)." The amendment was passed in this amended form, to read as follows:

"All former students may become associate members of this association upon payment of dues, unless other provided. They shall have all rights and privileges of regular members as long as they pay their dues. They shall at all times be referred to as "ex-students" of their respective classes."

The report of the executive committee was read and approved, as was also the report of the treasurer. A vote of thanks was given the officers. (The reports are attached to this account of the meeting.)

Mr. Hiram Phillips moved that resolutions be adopted thanking the students and faculty for the many entertainments of Stunt Week. (A copy of these resolutions is attached hereto.)

A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions expressing the regret of the Association at the departure of alumni in the faculty of Alma Mater. (A copy of these resolutions is attached hereto.)

A motion was passed authorizing the executive committee to select a commencement orator for the 1914 commencement.

Adjournment.

Annual Report of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association:

To the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri:

Your Executive Committee begs leave to submit the following report for the year just ended:

MEMBERSHIP.—The total number of living alumni is now 4022. Including the class of 1913 the total will be about 4400. A count of the name-cards on file in the Alumni Room shows a total of 5013, as follows:

Living graduates	4022
Honorary alumni	147
Duplicate cards (married women)...	401
Dead	643

Of these 4022 living alumni, the present addressed of 404 have been lost. This leaves the net number of alumni with whom it is possible to communicate, 3618. Adding the 1913 class of these, the total will be about 4000.

The committee recommends that all reasonable effort be put forth continuously to restore the present addresses of these alumni who are now marked "lost" in the files.

LOCAL ASSOCIATIONS.—The greatly increased interest in alumni matters which has manifested itself this year is witnessed by the larger activities of local groups. For several years annual banquets have been held in St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, and New York. These were repeated this year, and a Missouri banquet was held in Los Angeles for the first time. In Oklahoma, a state-wide banquet was held. Missourians in Portland, Ore., have associated themselves together and have frequent luncheons. Another new local association has been formed in Washington, D. C., and there has been much talk of several other new local associations. It is reasonably certain more action will be taken toward the organization of locals when the new alumni directory is distributed.

THE MISSOURI ALUMNUS.—The alumni directory, which has been in the hands of the printers more than two months, will be distributed soon. It will contain each graduate's name three times—in an alphabetical list, in a class list, and in a geographical list. This arrangement should make a book which will be of service to many alumni.

The chief work of the general association the last year, however, has been the establishment of our monthly magazine, The Missouri Alumnus. The urgent need for such a publication has been recognized for many years. The enthusiasm with which The Alumnus has been received is evidenced by many letters from alumni which have been printed in its columns, and by many more which have been filed away unprinted because of lack of space.

The Alumnus has been subscribed for this year by 1325 alumni. Referring back to the total number of available names and addresses, 3618, it will be seen that considerably more than one-third have subscribed! About 200 have written to endorse the idea of a monthly publication and to add regrets that they could not subscribe this first year. In several instances the magazine goes into a home where there is more than one Missouri graduate. In several schools, law offices, engineering offices, and the like, more than one graduate is reading a single magazine. Considering these facts, it is estimated that one graduate out of every two has read the magazine this first year.

The distribution of The Alumnus covers forty-five states, all of our island possessions, and several foreign countries.

As to the financial condition of our publication, it is sufficient here to say it has been a success. It was started without a cent of funds, and will finish the year leaving a few dollars in the treasury. A detailed financial statement appears in the treasurer's report. A thousand dollars was spent in establishing the present subscription list. This is a first-year expenditure which will not have to be made again so long as the publication is continuous. The present list of 1325 subscribers should easily be maintained several years from among the present alumni, and the additional subscriptions from each outgoing senior class should give a steady increase in the number of subscribers.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri, June 3, 1913:

Whereas, the attending alumni have greatly appreciated and enjoyed the new and attractive features of Commencement Week, and,

Whereas, they are unanimous in believing that the making of Commencement Week a gala occasion will inevitably tend to create a closer bond of interest between the alumni and the University and between the undergraduates and the alumni;

Be it Resolved, That, in extending hearty thanks to the entire student body and to the president and faculty for the splendid entertainment provided this year, the Alumni express their earnest hope that the same general plan may be continued in years to come.

HIRAM PHILLIPS, '80,

LEE WALKER, '10,
H. W. PRENTIS, JR., '03,
Committee on Resolutions.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri June 3, 1913.

It is with deepest interest that we, the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri, follow the graduates of the University as they take places of usefulness in public life. Whenever one of them wins distinction or shows himself serviceable to humanity the entire Association is honored and feels proud of him. With ever increasing frequency, graduates of the University are called back to take their places in the ranks of the faculty of the institution to help to do its work and in this way render distinguished service to the State. It is, however, to be regretted that often very efficient men cannot be retained but are called to other fields of labor.

We learn with deep regret that at the close of this scholastic year we lose from the faculty of the University men who have endeared themselves to the hearts of the alumni by their courtesy and efficient service as teachers, and who, by reason of their scholarship and achievements here, have been recognized and called to other universities. In bidding farewell to Dean C. M. Jackson, Dean E. W. Hinton, W. H. Chandler, Carter Alexander, we wish to give assurance of our high esteem of them as men and of our appreciation of their valuable services to the University of Missouri during their connection with it. And as they enter upon their duties in their new fields of labor, they carry with them the best wishes of the alumni of the University of Missouri, who feel that success will ever crown their efforts and that they will be a credit to themselves as well as to us wherever their lot may be cast.

A GLIMPSE OF THE 70's

Dr. J. B. Cole of Columbia told of the old days at the University of Missouri at the Christmas dinner given at the Y. M. C. A. for the "stay in Columbia" students. Said Doctor Cole:

"I left Savannah, Mo., the fall of 1877 with John T. Bedford, now of King City, Mo., bound for Fayette to attend Central College. Before leaving Savannah, George Wren and George Clowson, who were then students in the University, so impressed Mr. Bedford with the advantages of the University, over Central College, that Mr. Bedford proposed that we go to Columbia instead of Fayette. I told him in St. Joseph to buy his ticket and I would buy mine to the same place. A. Beattie, a banker of St. Joseph, advised us to board with William Beattie who lived one mile north of Columbia. On arriving in Columbia we found Mr. Beattie had all the roomers he could accommodate. We took Christmas dinner with Mr. Beattie. We took board at the U. B. Club, as it was then called, and in a few days our college life began in earnest. I had classes under Doctors McAnnally, Norwood, Lowery, Cauthorn, Tracey, Swallow, Ficklin, Ripley and last but not least when it came to hard study, Doctor Mero-witz, who taught German.

"When I look back over the events that happened during that one short year and compare the pranks of the 450 students, about 50 of them beautiful girls—I should say young ladies, for with few exceptions the students at that time were more mature than at present—who were then in attendance, with the 2500 of the present, I want to compliment the students of today on their good behavior. There were very few nights passed that some mischievous students did not dump in St. Mary's lake—this lake was to the right and just north of the old Columns—something ranging from a buggy to a cannon. On one occasion a man. They once took an old carriage from a blacksmith shop and dumped it in this lake.

"The carriage belonged to the widow of one of Boone County's old physicians. At services, which were then compulsory, Doctor Laws, who was then president, took for a text the story of David's opinion, to Jonathan, of the rich man who took the poor man's only lamb. He asked the boys under cover of that night to take the carriage back to the shop and the request was complied with.

"On the morning of April 1, 1878, the students went out for a holiday, which, on account of Doctor Laws taking a hand, caused much excitement and came near causing many expulsions. I attended all my classes that day. Doctor Norwood remarked to his class of about fifteen that morning that they looked very respectable since the occasion had eliminated the sardines. The class room at other times was very much crowded.

"The professor who most impressed me was Doctor McAnnally. He taught English, was the organist and also organist at the Methodist church. I sang tenor in his choir with the Garnett brothers, who were well known then and well remembered in Columbia to the present day. Doctor McAnnally seldom ever heard a class without telling some story or getting off some joke. On one occasion he rebuked Hagan of Texas for casting glances at Miss Helen Ripley. He said when he was about the age of small Folk of Mississippi and had the experience of Sexton of Boone County, he thought girls were angels, excepting the wings, but he had long since found that he was mistaken. Doctor McAnnally was a bachelor.

"In those days one of the noted occasions was the contest for the Stephens medal. There were four contestants: Frank Rollins, Curtwright, Marshall and Fred Kumpf. Doctor Laws was chairman of the occasion. The medal was awarded to Kumpf who, although an infidel, won on an oration from a Bible subject: "Let There Be Light." Doctor Laws said at the close that he had heard many contests of the kind, but that this was the best he had ever heard.

"In those days many noted people came to Columbia. I heard Henry Watterson deliver at chapel exercise, a fifteen-minute speech and I remember it was remarked by many to be one of the best ever delivered on these occasions. I heard Susan B. Anthony talk one Sunday afternoon in the court house; Major James S. Rollins was chairman. I cannot remember anything she said but I was so favorably impressed that I have been in favor of woman suffrage ever since. The upper class students in those days had the choosing of a commencement orator and they selected Robert Ingersoll. The faculty objected; a student meeting was called, the meeting was addressed by Fred Kumpf who appealed to them to stand on their rights. It was said that this impromptu speech was on the line of Patrick Henry's appeal to the colonists in the days of King George. The students lost.

AROUND THE COLUMNS

M. U. May be Baseball Champion.

A review of the baseball season shows that the season was fairly successful for the Tigers. Missouri won a majority of the games played. The first game with Westminster was won 6-1. Ames came next for two games and Missouri won both, the first 3-0, the second 13-12.

The Chinese ball team from Hawaii found little trouble defeating the Tigers 2-0. Next the Warrensburg Normals were played and Missouri won 8-6. Two games that were to have been played with Kansas Aggies on the two days following the Warrensburg game were called off on account of rain. The team then went to Lawrence and Kansas defeated the Tigers in two games. The scores were 2-0 and 6-4.

April 29 and 30 Missouri won from Kansas Aggies 2-1 and 4-3. High School Day Missouri lost a poor game to Drury, 12-3. Oklahoma came next and Missouri won two games from them easily 5-3 and 2-1.

The Tigers went to Ames next and lost the first game 7-0. The second game was a tie 7-7 and went for thirteen innings before it was called on account of darkness.

Missouri lost the first of the two games played with Kansas here, May 23, the score being 2-1. Missouri won the last game of the season by defeating Kansas in a twelve inning game the following day. The score was 3-2.

Kansas claimed the Valley championship but the conference probably will forfeit to the Tigers three of the games which Kansas and Missouri played, because Bishop, pitcher for Kansas, is a freshman. If these games are forfeited, Missouri will get the championship.

Tigers Win Kansas Meet.

Displaying unexpected strength in distance events and making a clean sweep in the field numbers Missouri defeated Kansas at Lawrence, May 17, in their annual dual meet by a score of 62 to 47.

Kansas started strong in the dashes but the Tigers picked up steadily and overcame the lead. Missouri upset the expectations by taking the two-mile, half-mile and 220-yard dash. The Tigers got both places in the shot and discus throw and first in all other field events.

Dean Williams Around World.

A year's trip around the world has been voted to Walter Williams, dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri, by the board of trustees of the Kahn Fellowship Fund, of which President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, New York, is chairman.

The Kahn Fellowship was established in 1911 by Alfred Kahn of Paris, France, for the foreign travel of American teachers for "the study and comparison of national manners and customs and of the political, social, religious and economic institutions of foreign countries." Two appointments are made each year.

Mr. Williams will sail from Montreal June 17. He probably will visit Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Switzerland, Turkey, Egypt, India, China, Japan and possibly Brazil and the Argentine Republic.

To Photograph the Stars.

A camera with four powerful lenses has been attached to the telescope in the dome of Laws Observatory at the University. Fluctuations of the variable stars, formerly determined by eye observation, will now be recorded with the highest degree of accuracy on photographic plates.

A machine run by clock-work will keep the camera and telescope constantly in view of the object. The effect of the earth's rotation is thus overcome and the star kept in range of view while the exposure is being made. An electric motor will move the dome and an interval clock will measure the exposure time. Every convenience for night work and observation has been provided. Photographs will be made of comets or of other bodies with the new equipment which is many times more accurate than the old method.

Prof. R. H. Baker, head of the Astronomy Department, will remain in Columbia during the summer to complete the installation of the new equipment and to make observations.

M. U. Buys Indian Relics.

About one thousand Indian relics, consisting of stone pottery, idols, axes, pipes and arrowheads, have been added to the sociological museum of the University. These were purchased from Charles E. Johnson of Montgomery City, Mo. Most of the arrowheads were collected from Missouri, which stands second to Ohio in richness of such relics. Many of them came from Callaway and Montgomery counties.

Bequest to Aid Students.

Through a bequest, made available by the death of Miss Marie Carter Gregory in Paris, France, May 9, the University of Missouri will receive the income from funds variously estimated at from $200,000 to $400,000, from the estate of Charles R. Gregory of St. Louis, who died in March, 1909. The income will be used, to assist students in acquiring enough money to go through school.

Mr. Gregory was a St. Louis dry goods merchant, and was one of the firm known as H. T. Simon, Gregory & Company. He made special bequests to different persons and institutions amounting to $300,000. The balance of his estate was to go to the University. His sister, Miss Marie Carter Gregory was to receive the income from the entire estate during her lifetime.

The property designated for the University consists of real estate loans, bonds, stocks and real estate in St. Louis. J. G. Babb, secretary of the University, said the lowest estimate of its value was $200,000 and probably would be considerably larger.

Mr. Gregory was never a student in the University here.

To Get Plans for New Library.

Plans for the new library building for the University of Missouri will be obtained by H. O. Severance, University librarian, who will visit Eastern libraries this summer.

Mr. Severance will leave the last of June to attend the meeting of the American Library Association at the Hotel Kaaterkill near Albany, N. Y. He will visit the Library of Congress at Washington, and the libraries at Johns Hopkins University, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton University, Columbia University and the State Library School at Albany.

Miss Shaw Savitar Queen.

Miss Anne Shaw was elected Savitar Queen at the student election April 25. Rex. B. Magee was chosen editor of the 1914 Savitar and William Dunckle the business manager. G. C. Willson was elected student president.

It is now possible for students to get both the A.B. degree and a professional degree in engineering in six years. This has been made possible by the increase in credit given in the College of Arts and Science for work done in the School of Engineering. This credit has been only nine hours. Beginning with the session of 1913-14 it will be twenty hours. The added engineering courses for which academic credit will be given are in manual arts, mechanical drawing and surveying.

COMMUNICATIONSCalifornia Alumni Meet.

The Alumnus:

No doubt other alumni will be pleased to know what the alumni in Southern California are doing. Through the efforts of Miss Charlotte Corder and Miss Gloria Carr, both of the class of 1906, and the assistance of The Alumnus it was possible for the alumni and former students to attend a banquet April 19 at the Hotel Hollenbeck, Los Angeles. Twenty-two were present.

The toastmaster, Colonel W. A. Lentz, '68, the oldest "son" present, gave an interesting talk on the infancy of Alma Mater and the conditions when he attended the University in 1865 after having returned from the campaigns with General Price. Those were the days when there were no women students in the University, but every University student had at least half a dozen "cousins" in the girls' colleges in Columbia. Mr. Leintz said one of those "cousins" at Stephens College is now Mrs. Leintz.

Others who talked were Frank Jackson, former track star and now connected with the schools at Huntington Beach, Cal.; Dr. John S. Miller, '79, Los Angeles; Dr. Charles C. Browning, '83, Pasadena; W. H. Truitt of Pomona, and Harry Pierce of Los Angeles.

A committee was appointed to arrange for another meeting in May to plan a permanent association of all the alumni and former students in Southern California.

At the banquet The Alumnus was praised for making it possible to locate so many Missouri graduates. After singing "Old Missouri," all departed feeling less like strangers in a strange land.

The Missouri Alumnus is the most welcome visitor with the engineers from Missouri who are in the Flood City. There are four Missouri men in Johnstown and ten or twelve in Pittsburgh that I know of.

I am glad to hear of the engineers celebrating St. Patrick's Day in such a fitting manner.

I have just received an announcement of the marriage of John M. Gardner, B.S. in C.E.'08, and Miss Ruth Carlotta Phelps of Olmstead Falls, Ohio.

Gives Interesting News.

The Alumnus:

The Alumnus is filled with news that is very interesting to us who each year find ourselves more deeply indebted to our Alma Mater.

With pride I note the progress of Old Missouri and the success of her many sons and daughters in the many fields of activity. To be known as a worthy son of the University of Missouri compels one to greater efforts every day, in order to keep step with the great body of her alumni, who are ever marching on to greater achievements.

Missouri University alumni are becoming prominent in the industrial and political life of St. Louis, and they are proving themselves energetic, capable and honorable, and they are all proud of the University.
