It's Great to Think of Getting Back

By Robert W. Jones, A.B.'06

The hands have gone a-spinning round the clock,
Since a campus scrap book fell into my hand;

Ten years ago (commencement was), it is a shock
 To think of all that's happened since—
 It beats the band!
 I know, I know, it is ten years ago;
 It's startling how the time goes flashing by:
 I weigh two fifty now, and you, by Joe!
 To think of running for a car must make you sigh.

Homer lost his hair, and brags of it;
 My own is getting somewhat thin on top;
 You say you tried a dandruff cure a bit?
 Why man, your hair was simply like a mop.
 There's Henry, now—he's winning out;
 Successful politician, someone said;
 Makes speeches while the people simply shout;
 Same old Henry, though—can't swell his head.

"Claybank Johnnie" made a pile of dough;
 He drives a motor car and wears a tall
 silk hat;
 While the rest of us were loafing here
 below,
 He scaled the heights—but let's don't talk of that.
 "Claybank Johnnie" used to hit the line,
 And how that rascal hugged the ball!
 He tore right through; it sure was fine—
 But say, we beat 'em ten to four last fall.

You don't tell me that you were there!
 So was I, in a side-lines box, by Jing!
 I looked around and didn't see you anywhere,
 Though I hunted for you afterwards, like everything.
 I always miss a dozen men I'd like to see,
 Though I did bump into one or two;
 I haven't seen my room-mate since nineteen three—
 Better come out to dine with me—aw, do!

Our class is going to re-assemble soon,
 Decennial year this time, you know;
 We'll get a chance to see 'em all in June
 And be a part of the commencement show.
 It's great to think of getting back again
 To see the columns and to join my class;
 It sends my heart a-thumping back to when I was just a care-free freshman, green as grass.

ATHENAEAN COLUMN

 GEORGE CATTS, vice-president
 G. B. LONG, secretary

 H. K. POINDEXTER, sergt.-at-arms

The Athenaeon Society is closing a successful and profitable year. Our success will stand the test of more than one standard of measurement. If judged from the standpoint of the winning of trophies, then we have accomplished all that could be hoped. The new inter-society debating trophy cup is ours for the year. This the Athenaeans won by defeating the M. S. U. Society, and by forfeiture on the part of the Union Literary men, who failed to debate. Then the regular trophy cup donated by Q E BH has returned to the Athenaeans, who have now won it twice. Of the ten men on inter-collegiate teams this year, two are members of the U. L. Society, three belong to the M. S. U. Society, and five are Athenaeans.

But important as we consider the winning of cups and the placing of men on University teams, we do not account these accomplishments our real achievement, but only the marks of it. Our policy is not merely to develop a few exceptional debaters, but to furnish for as many men as possible good training in debating and public speaking. With this object in view, we increased the limit of our membership from thirty to forty-five, and during the entire year kept near the maximum number. This policy has been amply justified by increased interest and inspiration, and by the marked improvement of all the members. Thus we are coming to the end of the year not merely with the satisfaction of victory in debate, but with the assurance that we are greatly extending our usefulness, and in a very large degree fulfilling our mission as a training school for debaters.

Our plan for having a building of our own has been discussed in other numbers of The Alumnus. To the realization of this ambition we are still directing our best effort. Perhaps, not many of the present members will be in the University when the hall is ready for use;
 but we are planning for Athenaeon future.
 If the hall is built, it must be done largely by those who are willing to make some sacrifice because of what the Athenaeon Society has meant to them. We realize the difficulty of our task; but the increasing interest of our alumni and the zeal of our members give assurance that the vision will soon be a reality.

Banquet to Kemper Seniors

Alumni in the University and the University Ad Club gave a banquet May 17 to the senior class of the Kemper Military Academy of Boonville. The class spent the day in looking over the University. Many of the members of the class will enter the University next fall.
 Major A. M. Hitch, A.B.'97, B.S. in Ed.'07, principal of the academy, and Colonel T.
 A. Johnston, A.B.'72, A.M.'75, superintendent, accompanied the class.

IN STAGE COACH DAYS

By THOMAS B. KING, A.B.'58, A.M.'66

(The author of this eminently readable article, Thomas B. King, is now 77 years of age. He was valedictorian of his class in 1858. His father, Austin A. King, was governor of Missouri, 1848-1852. He married Miss Clara Bingham, daughter of George Bingham, at one time professor of art in the University. Mr. King lives in Stephenville, Texas.)

THOMAS B. KING

In September, 1854, the writer hereof entered the sub-freshman class in the University of Missouri and continued the mixed literary and scientific curriculum of study at that time up to graduation in the class of 1858.

In the fifties, this was the only course taught in the institution; and in the absence of that element of which it is written that it is not good for man to be without, the studies were somewhat dry. For to be honest, looking backward, I believe that with many of the students more interest was taken in the literary societies than in the college course. With many the literary society was the kingdom of heaven to which all other things were but addenda.

At that time there were but two societies, the Union Literary and the Athenaeum. The first time that I heard of the Athenaeum Society was on one September night in 1854, about 12 o'clock. Boarding the stage at Richmond on my way to the University, I found as a fellow traveller, Clay Cockerill, a former student of the University. As soon as he discovered that I was going to attend the institution, he began to portray the merits and glories of this society, and continued to do so somewhat more than intermittingly, until he left the stage some hundred miles below, at Glasgow. Perhaps, it is well that he did leave the stage, for some miles further on, at Rocheport, as I remember, a member of the Union Literary Society boarded the stage. He was equally as enthusiastic for his society as Cockerill was for the Athenaeum.

Literary Societies Had "Barkers"

Arriving at Columbia on Saturday about four o'clock in the afternoon, there seemed to be a stir somewhat similar to that made by hack drivers and hotel runners at the railroad depot in St. Louis in the early days of railroading. The sound that predominated the clangor was that of "barkers" presenting the merits of boarding houses and literary societies. As to boarding houses there were many, ranging in prices from $1.25 to $2.50 a week—and in quality from the old fashioned "frying-pan" variety up to that of the "balanced meal."

I found lodgment at the homelike, hash-for-cash establishment of Uncle Jesse Orear. Here I found ensconced Billy Davison of Louisiana, Jesse Ellington of Chariton County, Geo. Catron of LaFayette, Higby N. Umber of Kentucky, and others. All of them with few exceptions were members of the Athenaeum Society. Giving way to early impressions, as most of us do, I became a member of the society.

The two societies differed very much in membership. This difference cropped out in subjects chosen for debate in the respective societies. In the Athenaeum Society, as I call to mind, the subjects of debate as a rule were on the following:

"Resolved, that slavery should be extended wherever the United States flag floats"; "that slavery is a divine institution"; "that Senator Benton should be condemned for refusing to support the resolutions of Mr. Calhoun looking to the seceding of the Southern States in case of further encroachment on slavery."

As a matter of course there were other subjects of debate, but such as named herein show the general trend. As I call to mind I was found on the negative on subjects as above named. This, perhaps, had much to do with my subsequent political convictions. Pretty nearly all of the High Rollers—especially those from Louisiana, Texas and Cottondom generally—belonged to the Athenaeum Society.

The general subjects of debate in the Union Literary Society were such as:

"Resolved, that the pen is mightier than the sword"; and "that the peace and prosperity of the country depend more on the farm than on the school."

The membership of the Union Literary Society was of the staid and sober kind.

A Strong Corps of Teachers

At that time the corps of teachers at the University was headed by James Shannon as president. President Shannon was an eminently strong man, but gave too much of his time, perhaps, to the promotion of slavery as a divine institution—not that this was done in the class-room, but in lectures throughout the state in vacation seasons. His successor, Billy Hudson, was of great mathematical stamina. The professor of ancient languages, Mathews, was of old time courtly gentlemanship. The professor of modern languages, Hainer, was an Hungarian exile. He was as plaintive as was his country at that time. Bolivar S. Head was professor of mathematics and was an exceedingly courteous gentleman. Sterling Price, Jr., was professor of English, and was as painstaking in college life as his great namesake was parental in the Camp. William C. Shields was as genial in the class-room as his Kentucky wife was in her home. Professor Swallow was interested in research work on the deposits of the Silurian ages. All in all this corps of professors, each and all, found lodgment in the hearts of the students of their day.

At that time there were two female colleges at Columbia, the Baptist, perhaps now called Stephens College, and Christian College.

During the years that I attended the University, Christian College was presided over by Professor Wilkes and his successor, Rogers. From time to time the colleges had as lecturers such new path openers to the fords of the Jordan as Moses E. Lard, Uncle Tommie Allen and other baptizers. Perhaps to this may be attributed the fact that in after years the writer hereof was called at times "Dry-Land Campbellite."

I see in a late number of The Alumnus that a big percentage of the students now attending the University are church members, or are next friends to some church. This is well. Had I the money to endow a college chair it would be one to teach the Bible as a spiritual science even as mathematics is taught as a natural science.

Church Membership Small

For the spiritual or church plane is above or within the political or state plane, and the latter derives its life from the former even as one's body derives its life from the spirit within the body. At this distance of time I call to mind but one student, perhaps two, who were church members when I attended the University. These two were Anthony Haynes and Geo. W. Hyde. They had the universal respect of even the High Roller class. Was this non-church membership in any wise significant of what occurred in the coming sixties?

Having been all my life as much attached to places as persons, should I ever revisit the University I would feel a sense of disappointment in not finding the Athenaeum Society assembling in its old hall at the southwest corner of the second story in the University building. Even the many halls of art and temples of fame and buildings of business industries, that now stand on the old campus would not compensate me for the old University building with its stately columns, the modest president's home just eastward and the unpretentious observatory just westward with an open field of grass and trees in front. And perhaps the present great corps of more than two hundred teachers and thousands of students would not fill me with contentment as much as did the corps of teachers and the few hundred students in my day. Still, there is much in, "The king is dead! Long live the king"—with much stress on, "Long live the king"—for it is both wonderful as well as gratifying to see the great strides that Missouri State University has taken. Strides that magnify it to the stature of all that the word "university" implies. May it continue to multiply and fructify as did the universal world in the days of Eden.

Study for Ministry at M. U.

Sixty students in the University of Missouri this year are also studying for the ministry in the Missouri Bible College at Columbia. Only one other state university in this country has so many ministerial students enrolled. In addition to the sixty who are preparing to enter the ministry as their life work, there are about three hundred University students who take some Bible College work.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY AND COMMERCE

By A. W. DOUGLASS

Vice-President of Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis

It has long been an axiom among the educated that traditions are the essentials of every successful university. And like many another axiom, accepted without question because of its moss-incrusted age, it is principally remarkable for not being so. In nothing is it less so than in the state university, the whole impulse of which comes from the democratic instincts of the times, and the absence of those traditions which too often are mere mill stones around the neck of progress. It was natural therefore that the state university should cut the Gordian knot of those endless discussions as to the comparative values of scholarship and practical education by rendering unto Intellect the things that belonged to it, and illustrating likewise the practical side of that view which holds that a man's first duty in life is to learn how to make a living and to take care of himself, else he may be an interesting companion of leisure hours but otherwise a mere cumberer of the ground in a workaday world.

The state university was consequently among the first to perceive that the Ancient and Honorable Business of Agriculture was the most complex and the most vitally fundamental business in all the world; also, that it sorely needed to be lifted out of that rut of empiricism and rule of thumb practice in which it has languished for unnumbered centuries. And in so doing the university must have had the vision of the seer as to the far reaching importance of its task. It is a truism now, and a matter of general conviction, that upon the solution of our agricultural problems, and a profitable, interesting and pleasant life upon the farm hangs the fate of modern civilization. The great congested cities furnish most of our social, economic and political problems and ills, despite their claim to being centers of sweetness and light. Their merits as leaders of thought and progress are too often obscured by the crime and degeneracy which they breed. The lure of their pleasure and opportunity has overtopped the charm of country life which too often has been flat, stale and unprofitable.

The obvious answer was to restore and bring out the real purpose and worth of life upon the farm, so that it might be a thing of interest and attractiveness. It was this task to which the state university set itself through its agricultural college, very patiently, very determinedly, and most of all with a knowledge of the audience which it addressed. It was and is and apparently always will be the one great force of accomplishment in this direction, though nowadays it has innumerable followers and imitators and all the world is endeavoring to show the farmer how to run his business.

The success of this campaign of teaching lies at the root of commercial life and success. And never was this more strikingly illustrated than at present. In all the cross currents of the caution and conservatism caused by the nightmare of the European War, the endless discussions of the railroad problem, the ceaseless babblings about our political troubles, and the trials of the manufacturer, one fact stands clear cut and prominent above all the welter of conflicting opinion: that the hope of the whole nation for better times, for alleviation of the distressed, and work for the unemployed, hangs upon the issue of the coming harvest, and that all other matters are of small account beside this. Even now as in the days of the Giant Antaeus must our strength come from Mother Earth. The primal essentials of every civilization that is worthy to endure must be sufficient food and clothing for its people and these agriculture alone can supply.

The soundness and enduring strength of every country is largely in proportion to the stress which it places upon this industry. Today in our own land New England has the obsession for manufacturing that goes along with an increasing number of abandoned farms. Not only, therefore, have her social and political ills increased out of due proportion, but her economic outlook is one of constant care and apprehension under such conditions. Artificial surroundings destroy perspectives and obscure clear vision.

While in the South and West today there prevails an undiminished optimism in commercial life, despite the seriousness of the present economic situation, contact with nature is after all a better and a saner mental tonic than many theories and much philosophic speculation. But the connection of the state university with commercial life does not end with its vital and far reaching propaganda of agricultural advancement, for after all material accomplishments are but the outcome of constructive ideas. Once upon a time a university was an institution of learning, and it was nothing more. And of some universities this sad fact is still true. But the state university has at once taken all knowledge and all accomplishment for its province, so both directly and indirectly does it impinge upon commercial life, and in nothing more so than in the constructive result of its teachings to its undergraduates.

The real products of a state are not corn, and wine and oil, and zinc ore and disseminated lead, but men and women who make the state worth while. And the development and progress of the state depend almost entirely upon the mental bias of its people, for resources will remain undeveloped, mines undug, and fertile fields but partly cultivated unless the spirit of the people incline that way. States that illustrate both phases of this fact lie around us. The lasting essentials of commercial life and progress are a democratic, intelligent, progressive people; and more than football heroes, or prize milch cows or Bachelors of Art, or even Ph. D's, are they peculiarly the product of a state university.

ATHLETICS

BASEBALL SEASON NEARS CLOSE

By Robert W. Jones, A.B.'06

Only four more games remain on the 1915 baseball schedule: Kansas, in Columbia, May 21-22; and Kansas Aggies, in Columbia, May 25-26. Complete scores for the season will appear in The Alumnus for June.

Lost and Won at Ames

The first conference games of the season were played against the Iowa Aggies. At Ames, April 30, Missouri lost 3-2, with Taylor pitching. Ames got 11 hits and 2 errors, Missouri 5 hits and 0 errors.

On May 1 the Tigers again played an errorless game. Capp managed to scatter the 7 hits that were made off his delivery so that Missouri won 1-0. Missouri got 4 hits. Ames spoiled an otherwise perfectly fielded game by 1 error.

Lost and Won at Manhattan

On May 11, at Manhattan, Kan., the Tigers battered the Kansas Aggie pitchers, Hodgson and Harvey, for 10 hits and 9 runs, and won 9-3. "Dingle" Davis got a homer with two men on. The Aggies got 5 hits and made 6 errors against 5 blunders for Missouri.

The next day, May 12, the Kansas Aggies turned the tables, winning 12-3 with great ease. Some costly errors by the Tigers were followed by a ferocious batting rally that swept the game out of reach in the sixth.

Kansas Won Both at Lawrence

At Lawrence, Kan., May 13-14, the Jayhawkers won both games. The first game went to the tenth inning, tied 5-5, after the Missourians had put over 3 runs by a sensational batting rally in the last half of the ninth. The score: Missouri, 5 runs, 11 hits, 4 errors; Kansas, 6 runs, 12 hits, 6 errors.

The second game was lost 7-2 because the Tigers bunched their 5 errors and scattered their 6 hits. Kansas got 4 of their runs in the first two innings. They made 7 hits and no errors.

Ames Won Also

May 17, in Columbia, before the home folks, Ames hammered Capp out of the box, winning 13-0. Ames got 7 hits; and these, coupled with 11 errors by Missouri, were the wheels of the Ames car of victory. Ames got 9 runs past Capp in the first two innings. He was replaced by Morgan, but it was too late. The other Ames game, scheduled for May 18, was cancelled because of rain.

TRACK TEAM WINS THREE MEETS

The Tiger track team has won all the dual meets of the 1915 season, defeating Kansas, Ames, and the Kansas Aggies. The two remaining meets of importance are the Missouri Valley meet, in Columbia, May 28-29, and the Western Conference meet, at Urbana, Ill., June 5.

Tigers 68, Kansas 41

Taking eight first places, eight seconds, and one tie for a first in a standard thirteen-event dual meet with Kansas, the Tigers won with a 27-point margin on McCook field, at Lawrence, May 15, with a final score of 68-41. Bob Simpson, of Bosworth, took firsts in the 100-yard dash, 220 and 120-yard hurdles, and a second in the broad jump, thereby piling up an individual record of 18 points. The great surprise of the meet was the defeat of Simpson by Packer, the star cyclone hurdler, in the 120-yard high obstacle race. Packer beat Simpson to the tape by a yard. The race could not have been prettier. The day was cloudy and the air benumbing, but the time was fast, 15 2-5 seconds.

Tigers 70, Kansas Aggies 39

Taking firsts in seven events, Missouri University defeated the Kansas State Agricultural college 70 to 39 in a dual track meet the morning of May 1. But for kicking over one hurdle, Bob Simpson, Tiger runner, would have hung up a new record for the Missouri valley conference in the 220-yard low hurdles. He ran the race in 24 4-5 seconds, but this record was disallowed because of the overturned hurdle. The valley record is 25 seconds, made by Guy Kirksey of Missouri.

Simpson did break a state record in the broad jump, going 23 feet 1 inch. By taking first in the broad jump, high and low hurdles and second in the 100-yard dash, Simpson made an individual score of 18 points.

Powell, Missouri, tied the valley pole vault record of 12 feet and Helroyd of Kansas Aggies tied the valley record in the 100-yard dash, running it in 10 flat.

Penn Games See Tigers

Robert Simpson, burly Tiger hurdler, ran the high sticks in 15 2-5 seconds in the preliminaries at the Penn games, April 24, the fastest time for that event. In the final he got second. He was matched against such men as Ward of Chicago, Kelly of Southern California, Hammitt of Penn State, and Sheddon of Yale, the best the country offers. If an Olympic team were picked tomorrow Simpson would have to be on it for the 120-yard high hurdles.

The world's college record for the mile relay was lowered, when Pennsylvania University's quartette stepped the distance in 3 minutes 18 seconds flat, 1-5 of a second lower than the world's collegiate record held by the Irish-American Athletic Club which made the old mark in 1911.

Harvard was second; and Missouri, third. The Tiger relay runners were Murphy, Eaton, Wyatt, and Niedorp.

Floyd, Tiger pole vaulter, tied with thirteen others for third place in his event at 11 feet 9 inches. Three men tied for first at 12 feet 9 inches.

The competition at the Penn Relay Games is the best that can be raked together from coast to coast. Drew, the California sprinter, won the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat, running with a sprained ankle bound with adhesive tape. Princeton lowered the two mile relay record. Phillips, of Idaho, made a new record for the javelin throw, hurling the spear 177 feet 4 3-4 inches. More than 15,000 people saw the great meet.

Wear Heads Basketball Team

John A. ("Strings") Wear of Kansas City was elected on April 27 to lead the Tiger basketball team in 1916. After the award of the varsity M to six men on this year's basketball team, there developed a dead-lock when it came to electing the captain. Three meetings were held before the dead-lock could be broken. Half the men voted for Wear and half for Harley Hyde of Columbia.

2,000 Saw High School Meet

A crowd of 2,000 persons saw the Twelfth Annual High School Day track and field meet the afternoon of May 1. Despite ideal weather conditions and a fast track, no records were broken. Gold, silver, and bronze medals went to the individuals who won in each event, and the winning schools and victorious relay teams were presented silver trophy cups. In Class A, Kemper Military Academy, Boonville, won with 30 1-2 points. Other point winners in this class were: Kansas City Westport, 25 2-3; Kansas City Manual, 18 1-6; Kansas City Northeast, 17 2-3; St. Joseph Central, 15; Parkville, 13; Kansas City Central, 8; St. Louis Manual, 8; Joplin, 7; Wentworth Military Academy, 5; Columbia High, 4. In Class B, Charleston won with 20 5-6 points. Other point winners in this class were: Mount Vernon, 18 1-5; Sikeston, 18; Chillicothe, 16 8-15; Webster Groves, 15 1-15; Windsor, 10; Clinton, 8 1-3; Kirkwood, 8; Carrollton, 7; Maitland, 3 1-2; Tarkio, 3; Eldorado Springs, 1 1-5; Wellston, 1 1-5; New Hampton, 1. First place in each event counted five; second place, three; third place, two; fourth place, one. There were 400 high school athletes competing, and in a number of the races as many as four preliminaries had to be held in each class.

Girl Broke Jumping Record

Miss Irene Chancellor of Howard-Payne female college of Fayette, Mo., set a new broad jump record for college women when she leaped 15 feet 1 inch in a dual meet between Howard-Payne and Stephens College of Columbia, held May 17, in Fayette. The old record of 14 feet 6 1/2 inches was held by Vassar College. The meet was the first held between colleges of the Missouri Junior College Union. Howard-Payne took first in each of the eleven events and also won the dual tennis match. The score of the track meet was: Howard-Payne, 66—Stephens, 26.

Twelve Minute Talk—$125

Eight minutes in his main speech and four minutes rebuttal proved enough for Charles Wright of Mexico, Mo., to win the $125 cash scholarship offered by the University of Missouri to the best debater in the Missouri High School Debating League. Wright's speech was made the night of May 1 in the final dual debate of the league series, in which McMillan High School, Mexico, argued the affirmative of the minimum wage question against Chillicothe High School.

Westminster Debaters Won

Westminster College defeated the University at Fulton April 30. The victors argued against increasing the army and navy of the United States. Missouri was represented by A. B. Armstrong, Columbia; Bernard Hurwitz, Kansas City; J. C. Vogel, St. Louis. Westminster got a unanimous decision.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF

No More Pre-Engineers

Beginning next semester, there will be no more pre-engineers in the University. The School of Engineering no longer will require two years' work in the College of Arts and Science for entrance. Next fall high school graduates may enter the professional school without preparatory work.

The degree of B.S. in Engineering will be given at the completion of four years' work, although the requirement for a professional degree is still 150 credit hours or five years of college work. These changes are according to the official statement made by President A. Ross Hill.

Another new feature is the fact that the library, hospital and incidental fee has been raised to $12, since the Legislature did not appropriate sufficient funds for the hospital. This makes the incidental fee the same as that of the University of Illinois, but still one of the lowest in the country.

Under the new engineering requirements, economics is substituted for history and no biological science is required, because of the amount of physical science necessary in the professional school.

The official announcement is as follows: For Degrees: The requirements for graduation from the School of Engineering with the degree of C.E., Chem.E., E.E. or M.E. remain the same as they are for this season.

A new degree has been established for the future, that of B.S. in Engineering, in keeping with the best practice in progressive schools of engineering. This degree may be granted at the end of the fourth year in any engineering curriculum. As intensive specialization will be confined to the fifth year it is hoped that all the strong students will remain for that year and earn a professional degree.

No change has been made in the amount of academic work required of engineering students but the courses specified have been slightly changed to meet their needs.

For Entrance: Students will, for the present at least, be enrolled in the School of Engineering from the time of entrance from the high schools. There will therefore be no "pre-engineers" in the University.

Relation to the School of Mines: It will not be necessary for high school graduates to go to Rolla in order to be enrolled at once as engineering students, if that is desirable from their point of view; nor will it be necessary for them to enter the School of Mines in order to secure a bachelor's degree in engineering from the University of Missouri at the end of four years, if they cannot arrange to take the fifth year and secure a professional degree.

Relation to Missouri Colleges: Students from other standard colleges will be able as heretofore to enter the School of Engineering after two years of college preparation and take up the special engineering curricula without loss of time.

Try Out in Stephens Contest

The preliminaries for the Stephens' Oratorical Contest were held May 17. Fifteen students tried out for seven places in the contest. The successful contestants were: from the Athenaeon Society—C. A. Chase, Allison Reppy, C. R. Longwell and H. K. Poindexter; from the Union Literary Society—Paul Arthur; from the M. S. U. Debating Society—M. H. Thornton; unattached—D. E. Hudson. The final contest will be held on May 31, at 3 o'clock p. m., during Commencement Week. Rush H. Limbaugh of Sedgewickville, Mo., won the Stephens Medal last year.

Miss Myra Harris May Queen

Miss Myra Harris, the choice of the University women for May Queen, was crowned at the annual May fete before the Columns May 14. Missouri colors were carried out in the main color scheme of the decorations and in the costumes of those in the procession from Academic Hall to the throne. The seniors furnished the note of black in their caps and gowns; and the queen's sixteen attendants, the old gold, in saffron Greek robes. The queen herself wore a classical Greek robe of white. The girls marched by classes, led by the class marshals, and preceded by the queen's heralds and little flower girls. After the coronation of the May Queen, a spring pageant was given before the throne of symbolic and folk dances.

Miss Harris, the queen, is working for her second degree from the University, having received her A.B. last year. Her home is in Bowling Green, Mo. Miss Harris was crowned queen by Miss Lucy Simmons, the president of the Women's Self Government Association of the University. The queen's attendants were: Vera Holcomb, Leora Davis, Dorothea Verson, Maybelle Price, Fay Barson, Lavinia Peters, Margaret Moss, Margaret Carrington, Jessie Cline, Rosalie Tumaty, Olive Proctor, Marguerite McGowan, Mary Elliff, Adeline Jesse, Frances Meriweather and Evelyn Strotzman.

Farmers Have Longest Parade

It was all there. It began with the longest procession ever given by any University division, consisting of fifty floats and pedestrians innumerable—almost. And the firing of a cannon opened the real stunt itself.

Yes, it was the Farmers' Fair, that annual institution at M. U., held this year April 23.

The parade was just at noon. For an hour and a half, steam calliopes, six-foot policemen, masculine chorus girls, negro minstrels, gypsy fortune tellers, cowboys and "barkers" of all kinds for the fair, passed through the crowded streets.

Educational floats, picturesque chariots, flower-decorated chariots and exhibits from the live stock on the University Farm, alternated with the Ben Hur jitney (an ox cart), the tin lizard, and the float depicting three ways to get through college. One of the largest floats was that of the Rulers of the World, representing King Corn and Queen Wheat, surrounded by all the benefits of prosperity and peace.

The "M" float contained an "M" man from each department of athletics, all of them farmers, and carried large signboards showing how well the College of Agriculture is represented among "M" men of the University this year. The portable saw mill displayed work of the forestry department, grinding as it passed along. The home economics float, the veterinary hospital float and farm management floats were followed by Darwin's dream. One of the most attractive floats was that called Peaches and Cream, a large bowl full of pretty girls.

At the fair grounds, a stock show, a floral show and educational exhibits of various kinds were as crowded as were the "Zone," "the Yellow Dog Saloon," the "Follies of 1915," and the booths of the fortune tellers, the peanut, balloon, candy and popcorn venders.

Nothing to make a typical county fair complete was omitted. And many things were added, as the educational from the College of Agriculture, also the feature modelled after that of the world's fair now on, the attractions of the "Zone," of course!

It Was Made in Missouri

They all went home laden down with baskets of useful and interesting souvenirs after a banquet of toothsome good things and hearty after dinner talks—did the visiting editors and all who attended the "Made-in-Missouri" banquet which closed Journalism Week at the University of Missouri, May 3 to 7.

Each article on the menu at the banquet, every souvenir, and most of the speeches were made-in-Missouri. Rothwell Gymnasium was decorated with products of Missouri, from the enormous turkey in the center of the room to the old fashioned gourds with which the guests were served with Missouri cider. Guests were seated on only one side of the long tables to leave room for the heaped-up baskets of souvenir gifts from Missouri manufacturers and producers which they were to take home with them.

Both long and short distance after dinner speeches were made. Speaker Champ Clark of the House of Representatives made his second Journalism Week speech. Three talks were heard over the long-distance telephone from St. Louis and Kansas City. Dean Walter Williams of the School of Journalism acted as toastmaster. A flashlight picture was made at the beginning of the banquet, developed, engraved and printed with the names of those present and distributed to the guests as they left the gymnasium.

This Made-in-Missouri banquet closed the programs of Journalism Week which was also called a Made-in-Missouri Week.

During the week, a Missouri Writers' Guild was organized for the first time in the state. A special car brought a delegation from the St. Louis Ad Club to attend Advertising Day. An organization of the Associated Ad Clubs of Missouri was formed. The women's press association, the country editors, the past presidents of the Missouri press association, representatives from various class and trade papers, as well as those from the great metropolitan papers attended and took part in the programs. This is the sixth annual Journalism Week of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri.

Law Alumni to Hold Banquet

The annual dinner of the School of Law of the University will be held on Wednesday evening, June 2, at 6:30 P. M. at the Virginia Tea Room. This is the law school's part of Commencement Week and it is the occasion for the gathering of the alumni, students and friends of the school. This year Dean Eldon R. James will be toastmaster and the program will consist of short addresses by Hon. John I. Williamson, former president of the Kansas City Bar Association; Hon. John S. Farrington, a graduate of the school and now judge of the Springfield Court of Appeals; Hon. Frank P. Divilbiss of Richmond, Mo., a graduate of the school and circuit judge. A member of the graduating class will also speak. All alumni and friends of the school are invited. Tickets will be on sale until noon, June 2, at $1.25 each.

FROM PEOPLE YOU KNOW

"You say, just write us about yourself as you would write an old friend. As I consider you among the very best of my old friends, I'll do as you say.

"Yesterday in Tampa, Florida, I stepped out of the hotel and was slapped on the back by the large hand of Dan McFarland. His card reads, 118 East Twenty-Eighth street, New York. He is the same old Dan you saw on the campus ten years ago. It was good to see him again. Jerry Galbraith of Henderson, Tenn., has a healthy son; so has J. F. Hogan of Mobile, Ala. Hogan says the Tigers are going to beat Kansas in 1936, and that J. F. Junior, is going to be on the winning team.

"I suppose I have been in every town of ten thousand or more south of the Ohio in the last ten years, and have seen most of the country. I've had it in mind lots of times to tell the boys to come South, because it's the newest country in the United States. There are more opportunities for young men here than in any other section of the country. There are more in every line, whether a man be a doctor, a lawyer or a farmer. There are specially good opportunities for farmers.

"There are thousands upon thousands of acres of good rich land to be had cheap in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. Florida is perhaps the newest country in the South. It has the richest land and the best climate. Watch the weather reports this summer, and compare the temperatures of St. Louis, Kansas City, and Chicago with those of Pensacola, Jacksonville and Tampa. Hogan and I have just made an eight hundred and fifty mile trip through Florida in an auto—the best way to see the country. New roads are being built, new towns are springing up all over the state. The lumber business and the turpentine business are small factors now. The people are turning their attention to farming. Settlers are buying up the land and improving it. People from the north, from the central states, and even from the west are coming in and buying up the lands. Schools and colleges have been backward, and they are still so compared with ours in Missouri. The result of this is that there are few well-trained men in business and in the professions. Therefore, I say, tell the boys to come South when they graduate, and 'grow up with the country' as one of my Yankee friends put it. There are not so many men here who are willing to hold your job and who are capable of doing it. I forgot to say that all of our trip through Florida, except about two hundred miles, was over well-built hard roads. Of that 200 miles, 100 was across the north end of the Everglades, where all we could see for miles and miles was saw-grass, scrub palmettos, and an occasional palm tree. We rode through miles of orange groves and pineapple fields, all the way from Miami to Tampa. I wish that you had all been with us."—O. L. Steele, A.B.'03, LL.B.'06, Van Antwerp Building, Mobile, Ala.

"I have been practicing law in Arkansas for five years and have been acclimated; however, I have plenty of Missouri blood circulating in my veins. . . . Nothing would give me more pleasure than a visit to the good old U. of M."—Glenn H. Dale, '05-'06, attorney and counselor, De Queen, Ark.

"While in Philadelphia, I had the pleasure of seeing the Tiger track team at the Pennsylvania Relay Games. The members of the team performed in true 'show-me' style; and we rooters were certainly proud of them. . . . The rooters' section was occupied by Crosby Kemper, A.B.'14, who is attending the University of Pennsylvania; Josephine D. Sutton, A.B., B.S. in Ed.'13, who is working for her doctor's degree at Bryn Mawr; and yours truly."—H. L. Shrader, B.S. in Agr.'14, 22 Jackson place, Indianapolis, Ind.

"Since leaving Columbia I have been most of the time teaching in the high schools of this state. I have taught mathematics in the Nampa High School for the last three years, spending the vacations on my ranch near Jerome, Ida., where I expect to be permanently located after next year."—E. W. Rice, Nampa, Ida.

"I am delighted to report that we have kept up our record in debating. This year Southwestern has won four debates: two with Kansas colleges and two with Iowa and Oklahoma schools. This brings our record to nineteen decisions out of twenty-two contests, and covers a period from 1905 to 1915. Since I am the coach, I am receiving congratulations. Mrs. McCulloch and I enjoy The Alumnus as much as ever. There is never a dull number; it is a graduate magazine that is 'different.'"—Albert J. McCulloch, B.L., B.P.'94, M.L.'95, Southwestern College, Winfield, Kansas.

"Every alumnus and alumna of our Alma Mater should read The Alumnus. . . . I shall attend the entire exercises of our next Commencement."—W. H. Lynch, A.B.'68, A.M.'72, visitor Springfield Normal, Springfield, Mo.

"I have resigned my position as electrical engineer with the Public Service Commission, State of New York, to accept a position with the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn., builders of submarine boats."—D. F. Huddle, Jr., B.S. in E.E.'05, 6 Fort Street, Groton, Conn.

"I am strong for The Alumnus. Sunshiningly yours."—"J. P." Roessel, '06-'09 sales manager Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company, 211 North Twenty-Eighth Street, Birmingham, Ala.

"I am now employed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in the Office of Markets, and letters will reach me at Washington, D. C., care of that office. They will be forwarded to me, wherever I happen to be."—J. P. Klein, B.S. in Agr.'12, Office of Markets, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"Please change my address from Greenville, S. C., to Little Rock, Ark. . . . I am very anxious not to miss a single copy of our paper. The department is taking up some new work in this state along dairy lines, and I have been transferred to take charge of the work."—R. H. Mason, B.S. in Agr.'08, U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry, Old State House, Little Rock, Ark.

"The Alumnus management is to be congratulated on the successful manner in which it is carrying out the purpose of such an organization publication. There is probably nothing that could be more effective in keeping a widely scattered body of alumni interested and in touch with the progress of the University of Missouri. I appreciate the magazine very much and wish for it continued success."—J. P. Bennett, A.B.'11, A.M.'13, Biological Building, Madison, Wis.

"The Alumnus is a most welcome visitor, welcomed both by myself and by Mrs. Kinyon, who is a former Stephens College student. We would feel like taking you to task if by any chance you failed to get our copy to the right address at just the right time. It serves as the chief link between the present and the 'good old college days.' It is impossible to speak or write these days without coming round to mention of our great loss, the loss of Colonel Nelson. Even unto the least of us on The Star that loss seems heavy. But things are so splendidly organized and the management so thoroughly and efficiently familiar with Mr. Nelson's plans and policies that we are expecting The Star to proceed just as it has been doing through many years."—Henry H. Kinyon, A.B., B.S. in J.'12, The Kansas City Star, Kansas City, Mo.

"It is needless for me to attempt to state the good things I get from 'our little magazine,' as an adequate description would be impossible."—Frank H. Frauens, Jr., M.E.'14, Box 151, Palmyra Mo.

"I wish you continued prosperity. It gives me great pleasure to read in The Alumnus of the success so many of my friends are making in the various walks of life."—James F. Conran, B.L.'97, LL.B.'00, President St. Louis Branch American Federation of Catholic Societies, Merchants Laclede Building, St. Louis, Mo.

"I am glad I subscribed."—Esther Marshall, A.B., B.S. in Ed.'08, 924 Park, Kansas City, Mo.

"The Alumnus is a connecting link between the University and its old grads that I would not like to see severed."—Charles T. Butler, LL.B., A.M.'08, Beaumont, Tex.

"I certainly enjoy The Alumnus every issue. . . . I am with my Alma Mater first, last and all the time for she is a grand old school in a grand and glorious state."—H. W. Houf, M.D.'08, Box 828, Corpus Christi, Tex.

"The Alumnus means a lot to the fellow who can't get back to the campus as often as he would like to. This Western country is full of Missouri men. Every now and then a new one drops into Billings, and of course we pump him for all he will stand. Here in town there are six or more of us and we manage to see much of each other. We have no organization, but expect to form one before another year passes. An old grad, Frank T. Woods, LL.B.'97, ex-mayor and prominent sheep man, is a candidate for mayor of Billings."—J. N. Eddy, B.S.in C.E.'05, C.E.'09, assistant city engineer, Billings, Mont.

"The Alumnae brings an otherwise much-scattered family of Missourians together once in a while and is much appreciated here. The Cornell colony sends greetings to all alumni."—C. B. Savage, B.S.in Agr.'13, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

"I spent the year 1913-14 getting a J.D. degree from the University of Chicago; hence, I have been practicing law here only since last June. I am getting my share of practice though the town does not afford a great deal of litigation. . . . Judge H. N. Pittman, LL.B.'91, is located here; so there are at least one team of "mules" in the little town of Berryville."—Rue C. Gibson, LL.B.'13, Berryville, Ark.

"Please change my address from Ames, Ia., to Edina, Mo. . . . Reading The Alumnae is next to being with the fellows of school days; I don't want to miss a copy. . . . I am just taking up my work as county agent of Knox County. There are several Missouri alumni here."—F. E. Longmire, B.S.in Agr.'12, Edina, Mo.

IN PITTSBURGH

By F. A. Burg, B.S.in M.E.'14

The University of Missouri Alumni Association of Pittsburgh celebrated University Day on April 19, with a nine course dinner at the club house of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. The guest of honor was President A. Ross Hill. His talk on "The University" was very interesting and greatly appreciated by all the alumni present. His remarks about the events of the past few months greatly strengthened the prevalent idea that the University of Missouri is indeed fortunate in having such a man at its head. Dr. Hill's report on advances being made in courses, buildings and equipment showed that the institution is progressing more rapidly than many had supposed.

Other talks of the evening were: "The Effects of the Inoculation of Pittsburgh Protoplasm with Missouri Microbes," by Dr. C. C. Guthrie, M.D.'01, of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh; "The Joys and Sorrows of a Missouri Engineer as Seen from the Trenches," by Kris Kraft, B.S.in E.E.'14, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; and "The Cosine of the Square Root of the Reconstruction Period," by Norman C. Riggs, B.S., M.S.'95, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. The president of the association, H. W. Prentiss, Jr., A.B.'03, acted as toastmaster, and was very prodigal with his stories of colored preachers in the introduction of the speakers.

The programs were in old gold and black, with the University seal on the first page. Pictures of new and old University buildings and scenes were shown. The centerpiece on the banquet table was a reproduction in pastry of the Columns.

The University Day dinner is always the last meeting of the year and heretofore has been the only one at which ladies have been present. But this time the women made such a good showing that all the men agreed to invite them again.

IN S. CALIFORNIA

By W. A. Lientz, A.B.'68, A.M.'71

The Southern California Alumni Association held its University Day meeting April 17. Officers for the next year were elected. We had a most delightful time.

The officers elected were: President, W. A. Lientz, Los Angeles; vice-president, Charlotte Corder, Santa Monica; secretary and treasurer, Frank S. Balthis, Glendale.

We took in several new members, among them Dr. W. S. Woods, '61. R. G. Humber, '58, was present; and when he and Dr. Woods talked of the "good old days," we kids of the late sixties and seventies felt very, very young. Both of these men were contemporary with the late Stephen B. Elkins, '60, and Senator Thomas B. Catron, '60, of New Mexico.

“I Came to the University of Missouri Because---”

IT is because of the recommendation of some graduate or former student of the University that most new students come to Columbia. Personal influence is the deciding factor in the choice of a College or University.

IT'S easy for a Missouri Alumnus, to tell some young friend about his Alma Mater. There are so many things in which Missouri excels that just to tell of the University is enough to win a new student.

Commencement Horse Show, May 31-June 1

The Second Annual Commencement Horse Show will be held during Commencement Week, evening of May 31st and afternoon and evening of June 1st on Rollins Field at Columbia.

Last year's Commencement Horse Show drew some of the best stables and best horses in the Central West as exhibitors. The Horse Show is under the management of the Agricultural Club of the University which has chosen for advisory council eighteen Boone county horsemen and farmers and Columbia business men. For the coming show, the premium list has been enlarged and prizes have been increased. Arrangements have been made to hold the show at night and a St. Louis firm has a contract to light the field satisfactorily.

Attractions have been added, among them a daily exhibition of the famous High School mare, Bell Beach, classes for riding teams consisting of a lady and a gentleman properly mounted, local classes, etc.

The entries are more numerous this year than last and more stables will be represented. Greater interest is manifested than was seen before the show last year. Everything indicates a better show, with more horses, bigger crowds and greater interest generally. Be on Rollins field May 31 and June 1.

scissors and shears are built for one purpose—to give long, faithful service. Here are a few reasons for the top-notch quality in Keen Kutter scissors and shears. A patented lock-nut and screw absolutely prevent any play at either point or joint. The blade can't wobble, can't work loose.

Keen Kutter scissors and shears are perfectly adjusted. The blades meet evenly from point to joint. You won't have to use extra pressure of your fingers. This means quicker, cleaner, better cutting.

The unqualified guarantee that stands back of all Keen Kutter tools applies to Keen Kutter scissors and shears, too. The makers have authorized us to give back the money for any Keen Kutter piece that doesn't prove satisfactory. Come around and let us show you some Keen Kutter shears. You'll see their worth at once.

Little Visits to the Home of Barth

of which this is number eight, inviting you back to Columbia

By A GRAD

———I dropped into Barth's yesterday while I was down town; and of course we talked of Commencement and the Missouri Valley Track Meet, May 29. Mr. Barth spoke of several old grads whom he had not seen for years.

———"By George" (Barth doesn't often cuss like that), he said, "I should like to see some of those old boys again!"

———I told him I would tell the boys. Here I am as good as my word:

The members of the Victor Barth Clothing Company invite all alumni and former students of the University of Missouri to lean on their show cases, to smoke any brand of cigars they may bring along, that new friendships may be made and old renewed. Come during Commencement and Stunt Week, May 28 to June 3.

An Investment in Christian Leadership

Ten or twelve Missouri students will go to the Western Student Conference of the Y. M. C. A. at Lake Geneva, Wis., in June. These men, with 900 other Christian students, will meet with the acknowledged leaders of student work for ten days. The Missouri men who go will be trained Christian leaders next year in their schools and communities.

To provide means for these students to go to Lake Geneva, a Loan Fund is being started. Worthy students who cannot afford the trip are lent $20 or $25, payable two years after they leave school.

R. H. Gray,
Treasurer,
Y. M. C. A.,

An investment in this fund means that several men, in succeeding years, will have the advantage of Lake Geneva training. Send a check today as your part in this Lake Geneva Loan Fund.
