Doctor Jones and His Plans for a Greater University

When the Board of Curators of the University of Missouri accepted the resignation of President A. Ross Hill, they chose quickly and wisely a man to fill his place. Dr. John Carleton Jones was appointed Acting President. Few people were surprised at this choice, and none disappointed.

The task of choosing a president of the University of Missouri is no small responsibility. Realizing this the Board of Curators called upon Doctor Jones, the man with the longest record of service in the University, to direct the policies of the institution until a permanent president is secured. Although he had prepared to retire this fall on the Carnegie Foundation; he heeded the call of Old Missouri, and agreed to continue in service for another year. The University is fortunate in securing his services for he is not only well informed as to the policies of the institution, but has filled the position of acting president before, and is familiar with the duties of that office. He has served through the administrations of Dr. S. S. Laws, President Richard Henry Jesse and Dr. A. Ross Hill, and, as the personal adviser of each of these men, has been instrumental in welding the administrations together and in developing the policies and preserving the traditions of Old Missouri.

Doctor Jones started his career at the University of Missouri in 1882 when he accepted the position of Assistant Professor of Latin. In the same year he was granted a year's leave of absence for graduate work in Johns Hopkins University, and in 1883 he again took up his work in the University of Missouri. He was promoted to the rank of Associate Professor of Latin in 1887, and four years later was made Head Professor of Latin.

In 1895 he was granted a year's leave of absence for investigation and study abroad, and this year was spent in the University of Leipzig and at Rome. Upon his return, he was appointed as the first Dean of the College of Arts and Science, and, with a brief intermission, has held this position ever since. In 1903 he was again granted leave of absence for study abroad. He spent this year at the University of Munich. Shortly after his return, he was appointed Acting President, and held this position until June, 1906. In 1918 the Board of Curators selected him as the first Vice-President of the University of Missouri.

Doctor Jones was born on a farm near Sharpsburg, Kentucky, July 30, 1856, and came to Missouri in 1874.

Having completed his high school education in Frankfort, Kentucky, he entered Westminster College in the fall of 1874 and was graduated from this college in 1879. During his junior and seniors years at Westminster he was Assistant in Greek and Latin, and upon graduation was appointed Professor of Latin. He held this position until 1882 when he came to the University of Missouri.

In 1886 Doctor Jones married Miss Clara Field Thompson of Columbia.

He has three children: Lloyd Edmonstone, Katharine and Marjorie Comingo. He is an elder in the Columbia Presbyterian Church, and is also a member of the Masonic Fraternity, the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, the American Philological Association and the American Archaeological Institute.

Doctor Jones has always been a busy executive, but he has found time to make some contributions to scientific publications. The following are among the publications of which he is author: "Does College Education Pay?" Forum, November, 1898; "The Success of the College Graduate," Proceedings of the Southern Educational Association, 1899; "Some Neglected Evidences of the Sound of C V and S," Classical Review, Vol. VII, February, 1893; "Simul, simulatque und synonyma," Archiv für lateinische Lexicographie und Grammatik, Bnd XIV, 1906; "The Growth of the University of Missouri in Seventeen Years (1891-1908)," Bulletin of the University of Missouri, June, 1908.

While his chief interest has been along educational lines, he has always retained his fondness for farm life and agricultural pursuits. While attending Westminster, he spent his vacations on the farm. Unable to give up his love of outdoor life, he bought and developed a fruit farm near McBaine, Missouri, which he has managed successfully. He is also a golf enthusiast and spends much of his leisure time on the links.

When Doctor Jones first became connected with the University, there were about 450 students enrolled, most of whom were in the preparatory department. At this time there were no accredited high schools and he took an active part in originating and putting through the present scheme for approving schools. He visited and examined a great many of these schools himself. In 1893 the Board abolished the preparatory department in the University because it was no longer needed. He has alite this organization Doctor Jones has planned several alumni rallies. The first of these rallies is to be held in St. Louis on November 4, and plans are being made for the attendance of five or six hundred alumni and former students. The next rally will be held in Kansas City the night before Thanksgiving. Later, similar rallies will be held in St. Joseph, Joplin, Springfield and in other cities.

Closely connected with Doctor Jones' plan of organizing the alumni, is his attempt to awaken the interest of the people of Missouri in their State University. He thinks that the University owes an obligation to young men and women and that it should present to them the value of higher education. He is making a special effort to reach high school graduates and to impress upon them the fact that higher education is absolutely necessary to great success.

Doctor Jones thinks the best way to reach the people of the state and to reach the high school graduates is through an organization of those men and women who have been to the University and who, through personal experience, know the value of higher education. It is for this reason that he is devoting most of his energy to reorganizing the alumni and former students. He points out that the army of thirty or forty thousand alumni and former students should be united in support of the University, and the value of this support can best be expressed in his own words: "I feel that the greatest need of the University is to secure alumni support. If this support can be secured, and I believe it can, the University has a great future."

To All Former Students:—

The campaign for the great Student Memorial is moving on.

Very soon you will be called upon to render assistance in reaching effectively every man and woman who ever walked in the shadow of the Old Columns and stood with bared head and joined in the singing of "Old Missouri".

Will you not immediately write to the Memorial Committee, 114 Academic Hall, Columbia, Missouri, and pledge yourself to take active part in this splendid movement to help build the new University with the Memorial Tower as the crowning glory?

Pledge yourself to do all in your power to bring this matter home to all old students in your locality and in your class.

J. C. JONES,
Acting President.

so been prominent in the Junior College Movement, having been Chairman of the Examining Committee since the beginning of this movement. This movement is unique in Missouri and differs from similar movements in other states in that the standardizing of junior colleges is done by the University of Missouri.

Doctor Jones is making the chief work of his administration as Acting President that of securing the active support of the great body of alumni and former students. His first step in carrying out this plan was to appoint as alumni recorder, Mr. R. L. Hill, who is to devote his entire time to organizing the alumni. To expedparade will have this site as its goal and the multitudes of students, old grads, and citizens will gather here to witness one of the most important events which has ever occurred at Old Missouri. Many distinguished visitors will be present but since this tower is a memorial to our boys who died in the great war the following officers have been invited to be present and to participate in the ceremonies of the occasion. Former Governor David R. Francis is to be numbered among our distinguished visitors which it is hoped will include many who have received honorary degrees at the University: Adjutant General W. P. Raup, Jefferson City, Mo.; General Peter Traub, Fort Thomas, Ky.; General Omar Bundy, Seventh Corps Area, Fort Crook, Nebraska; Colonel John H. Parker, Jefferson Barracks, Missouri; Major John A. Lejuene, Headquarters, Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.; Col. E. M. Stayton, 1500 Grand Ave., Kansas City; Col. J. E. Rieger, Kirksville.

WILL BREAK GROUND NOV. 12

Distinguished Visitors to Witness Memorial Ceremony.

On "Homecoming" day, Saturday, November 12, 1921, at the University, there will be something doing every hour of the day but the most significant action of the morning of that day will be the breaking of the ground and designation of the site of the great memorial tower and the Union Building. The great "Homecoming"

November 12 Is Homecoming at M. U.

By H. FRANCIS MISSEWITZ

Plans for what promises to be the greatest Homecoming of all time are being made here around the Columns of Old Missouri these days. And the whole Tiger camp is getting ready to entertain the visitors here on that day. November 12 will go down in history with almost as significant a memory as the day before it. Because November 12 is Homecoming at Missouri!

One year ago the Oklahoma Sooners arrived here in Columbia and took home with them a Tiger pelt. Bennie Owen's accurate passing gridmen opened up an aerial attack that swept the Tigers before it. And Old Mizzou lost a Valley championship in that single defeat of the year. A commemoration of that battle is going to be held in the Tiger's lair on November 12. Oklahoma, with splendid sportsmanship, again is playing in Columbia that Missouri might have a suitable battle to offer her returning sons. But Oklahoma is going to face a team of eleven ravenous Bengals whose revenge burns strong within them to wipe out that black mark of a year ago. Two well balanced aggregations will meet each other with a grim determination to win. A championship may hinge on that contest. The sons of Old Mizzou who do not witness that exhibition of physical prowess before which the games of ancient Greece would seem as child's play, will miss the greatest athletic demonstration of the century.

Edison has asked on one of his famous sets of questions: "What event of 1921 will be remembered fifty years from now?" And not a man present at the classic on Rollins Field this Homecoming Day will hesitate one second to reply: "The Missouri-Oklahoma football game at Columbia!" There isn't a doubt of it! And a battle of its wonderful significance will be well worth traveling across the globe to see. It isn't merely a football game—it's that old spirit of Missouri again showing its peerless qualities. Lewis, the inimitable "Chuck," is again in Tiger uniform. He will be out to fight the greatest fight of his world-famous career. Any one who saw him go swirling, twisting, dashing, stiff-arming and finally staggering through the entire Oklahoma team last year for an 85-yard run to a touchdown will know the reason his name is one to conjure with. And Allan Lincoln, Brutus Hamilton, Roscoe Hill, Herb Bunker, Herb Blumer, Tiger leader—one could name the entire Tiger eleven and not mention a man but who is known the nation over for splendid fighting ability on the gridiron. They will all be there fighting for Old Gold and Black and a victory that means so much to every loyal son and daughter of Missouri.

But we're going to have something other than a real football game here November 12. The interesting and educational program includes one of the greatest events in the history of our University. It is planned to have the dedication of our Missouri Memorial Union building on that Homecoming Day. Dr. J. C. Jones, president of the University, is doing everything in his power to get the biggest men of the day here to dedicate that wonderful structure built by men and women whose spirit of loyalty is reflected from that of the sons who so gladly gave their lives that we might yet breathe the air of freedom. And invitations have been sent to General John J. Pershing, a native son of Missouri; General Enoch H. Crowder, another of our own sons; Marshall Foch, the great French warrior; and to General Diaz, General Haig, General Beatty, all great men of the day. An effort is being made to get these men here to commemorate the memory of these sons. It will be the greatest undertaking since the founding of the University. Other great men on the program are: General Peter Traub, who so gloriously commanded the 35th Division overseas after General Wright was promoted; Colonel John H. Parker; General Omar Bundy, whose heroic work in leading the 2nd Division at Chateau Thierry and breaking the German advance has made his name famous; Colonel Rieger of Hannibal; Colonel English of Kansas City; and Colonel E. M. Stayton, of Kansas City. You will want to be among these famous men and Missourians November 12, at the dedication.

And then, there is to be the glorious time at the big Mass Meeting before the battle, Friday evening. Here a live program will be followed by the enjoyment at a gigantic bonfire and barbecue on the baseball field. Get with the students once more in a real old good time. They all want to learn to know you; and we hope you feel the same way about them.

Columbia merchants are doing all in their power to co-operate with us in dressing up the old town for this gala occasion. And the village is agog with excitement over the impending event of a century. For Missouri also will commemorate her hundredth anniversary here at Columbia on November 12. The growth of the University will be shown in the greatest Homecoming Parade since the inception of this commendable celebration. Floats by schools will show the increase in size of the University, and events in its history will be shown in graphic visualization.

But not alone for the greatness of the occasion is an appeal being made to get you back here, alumnus. Not only for the football game or the dedication of our Memorial Union, but because we want you back. Every man and woman in the University today wants YOU back here. We want to learn to know the alumni. Too long have the men and women gone out from the portals of our Alma Mater and never once looked back. But the columns, staid old towers of tradition and sentiment, bend their very figures in a beckoning appeal for your return. Come back to see what Old Missouri is doing and what she has done. Learn again to wander about the old quad and tell to other "old grads" the tales so dear to your college days. Learn again the tugging at the heartstrings that comes when you hear the songs on the lips of students: "I'm a Son," and "Around the Columns of Old Missouri," and the joy you find when suddenly your own voice is raised in old familiar strain. It's wonderful.

After the game Saturday night, when the Tigers have pushed back the Sooners for a victory, there will be a hilarious dance and street carnival following the shirt tail parade all over town. The spirit of this thing will be typical of the Tiger at play. And the occasion will be memorable in its pleasure.

What are you going to do November 12?

M. U. MAY DEBATE WITH EASTDebating Trips to Pacific and Atlantic Coasts Being Planned.

"As far as plans for this year are concerned, Missouri will be given an opportunity to meet upon the debate platform some of the best schools of this country."

Such is the opinion of Arnold Perstein, debating coach of the University, after the first meeting of the Debating Board, held recently.

More debates than have ever been held in one year at this institution are already tentatively authorized by the board. One triangular match between the universities of Missouri, Washington and Wisconsin has been definitely decided upon and another similar contest with the universities of Kansas and Oklahoma is under consideration.

"As a climax to the year's schedule," said Mr. Perstein, "a debating trip to the Pacific or Atlantic coast is being planned as a reward to the three best debaters in the University."

It is at present Mr. Perstein's intention to take the debaters East and negotiations are now under way for debates with the universities of Cornell, Princeton, Harvard and Yale. This trip would mean much to Missouri, and the University as a means of publicity. Arrangements will be made in which Missouri is to choose the question while the opposing universities will be given the choice of sides. This will necessitate that the Missouri debaters be prepared on both sides. A rule such as is practiced in athletics, making freshmen ineligible for membership on the debating teams, was passed by the board. Several proposals for stimulating student interest in inter-collegiate debate and for increasing attendance at the debates were discussed.

"All that remains to be done to win for Missouri a national reputation in debate," said Mr. Perstein, "is to secure the unanimous support of the student body."

The members of the Debating Board for this year are: Chairman, Prof. H. C. Brown; secretary, Arnold Perstein; Prof. J. W. Hudson; Prof. R. J. Kerper; John Caskey, representative of Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary debating fraternity; Albert Leonard of the M. S. U. Debating Society and Joe Reid, of the Athenaeum Debating Society.

Harry Mann Accepts New Position.

Harry Mann, a graduate of the School of Journalism, has accepted a position on the Jefferson City Capitol News, according to a letter received by friends here. Mr. Mann recently resigned from the staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch where he had been working since his graduation last spring.

JUDGE JOHN D. LAWSON DIESWas Third Dean of the School of Law at the University.

Judge John D. Lawson, former dean of the School of Law of the University, died Friday, October 28, at the Hyde Park Hotel in Chicago, where he and Mrs. Lawson had been living with his brother, Will Lawson, since they left Columbia September 1. Funeral services were held in Columbia Sunday, October 30, at the Calvary Episcopal Church.

Judge Lawson had been in poor health for several years. He was forced to give up his work as Dean of the School of Law and teacher in that school on account of trouble with his throat, and also because of heart trouble.

Judge Lawson was 69 years old. He was born in Hamilton, Canada, March 29, 1852. He received the degree of LL. B. from Osgoode Hall of the University of Toronto in 1875. He also held the honorary degree of LL. D., which was conferred upon him by the University of Missouri. He came to the University of Missouri in 1891 as a professor of contracts and international law. In 1903, he succeeded Judge Alexander Martin as Dean of the School of Law, being the third dean of that school. He served as dean until 1912, when he was obliged to resign on account of his failing health.

AD CLUB HAS BIG PROGRAMWill Advertise University in Every Legitimate Way.

By Victor Keene

The University Ad Club will carry out one of the most ambitious programs in its history this year if the plans already outlined by its president, Clarence D. Lockwood, materialize.

Foremost among its aspirations is ofcourse advertising in every legitimate method possible the University of Missouri. City county clubs have been organized for those students who live in Missouri, state clubs, for the students who live in states having a large representation in the University, and sectional clubs for students from groups of states who numbers in the University are too small to justify state organization. For the first time in the history of the University a St. Louis Club has been organized, with Walter J. Stradal as president. A Rocky Mountain Club, a Dixie Club, and a New England Club include most of the students who do not belong to individual state clubs. All of these clubs are represented in the Ad Club and are co-operating to further the interests of the University in their particular localities.

For the Homecoming parade the Ad Club is considering the plan of having each county club prepare a float depicting some phase in the history of the University. The state and sectional clubs will probably be represented by floats typical of their locality. An effort will be made by each club member to get as many alumni and former students from his county to attend the Homecoming this year as possible and furthermore an effort will be made by the clubs to co-operate in the entertainment of the old grads when they do return.

Perhaps one of the biggest features to advertise the University among the high school students will be the moving picture planned by the Ad Club for this year. The picture as planned will contain a narrative thread throughout following the University life of a student from the day he leaves home until the day he is graduated. The film will be circulated as widely as possible.

Another idea which the president of the Ad Club hopes to carry out is the placing of a copy of the Savitar, the University year book, in every first class high school in Missouri. This cannot be done without some financial aid from the University.

At its opening meeting, the club was addressed by Acting President J. C. Jones who offered a number of helpful suggestions which will be formulated in the policy of the club for the year. Doctor Jones pledged his hearty and undivided support of every activity attempted by the Ad Club for the advancement of the University.

Last, but not least in the heart of the alumni, the Ad Club hopes this year to be able to mark in a fitting manner the various gifts left by departing classes to their alma mater. For example take the grand old birch tree planted by the class of 1894 just west of the present site of the president's home. It bears no mark to remind the present generation of students of the class of whom it is a memento. Near this sturdy birch stands a shapely maple the gift of the class of 1902. How many freshmen, or upper classmen either, that pass beneath its wide-spread boughs know to whose generosity they are indebted for its grateful shade. And the weeping mulberry given by the class of 1904, and the oak of the class of 1905, and many others that might be mentioned, who, but Professor Defoe and perhaps a few other faculty members can point them out and identify them with the class that planted them. Many of the trees given by past classes are not standing, but it is the purpose of the Ad Club this year to mark each one if sufficient funds are available.

Representatives of the Ad Club will probably be sent to the different high schools in the state during the Christmas holidays to place before the students the advantages of a university education and the particular advantage of an education gained at the University of Missouri.

With the support of the student body, the faculty, and the alumni the Ad Club should this year accomplish great things.

TO DISPROVE BRYAN'S CLAIM

Relation of Science to Religion Is Professor's Subject.

The idea of reconciliation between Christianity as Jesus taught it, and modern science is the aim of the Bible College of the University. To this end, Walter C. Gibbs, professor of Bible in the University, is teaching a Bible class each Sunday morning at the Columbia Theater. The attendance has been more than two hundred and it is believed that half as many again will come in time.

The aim of the class, according to Professor Gibbs, is to disprove William Jennings Bryan's claim that one cannot be a good Christian and a student of science at the same time. It is to give a bigger, broader and better understanding of the Bible which will enable students to meet their problems.

Classes in "Fundamental Moral and Religious Training" will be taught by Mr. Gibbs and Dean Edwards to the Christian College girls. The classes will meet each Wednesday and Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The total enrollment for both the classes is thirty-nine.

MARRIED FOR FIFTY YEARS

E. W. Stephens and Wife Have Lived Together Half a Century.

Fifty years together, in the same town, the same house, the same rooms. Fifty years together, in joy and sorrow, in sunshine and shadow, in pleasure and pain. Such has been the privilege of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stephens of Columbia.

On September 26, 1871, fifty years ago, Laura Woodson Moss became the bride of Edwin W. Stephens. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Stephens' father, Col. James H. Moss, then a prominent lawyer in Columbia. It was performed by the Rev. H. M. Richardson, who was pastor of the Baptist Church in Columbia then. The Reverend Richardson is no longer living, nor are any of the attendants except three bridesmaids. These are: Mrs. W. R. Baker of Helena, Mont., Mrs. St. John Boyle of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. John H. Overall of Baltimore, Md.

At the time Laura Moss was the belle of Columbia and very beautiful she looked in her white satin wedding dress, so graceful in its lines, and her long white veil shading her lovely face and covering her pretty blond hair. Her husband was dark and handsome, and devoted to his young bride.

On September 26, in the same house in which the ceremony was performed and in which they have lived ever since, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Truly theirs is a golden harvest of a full and bountiful life. They stood in the same room, before the same window that they did so many years ago, and received congratulations from their friends as they did on their wedding day.

Over a thousand invitations to the reception were sent to their friends in and outside of Columbia. These were engraved in gold on white note paper. At the top is a monogram combined of their initial letters, M. and S. The invitation read: "Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Stephens requests the pleasure and honor of your presence at the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, Monday, September 26, eight till ten."

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens were both born in Columbia in 1848. Mrs. Stephens' father was James H. Moss and her maternal grandfather was Judge Warren Woodson. Both of these men were prominent in Boone County and Missouri at the time and their names are indelibly linked with Columbia's early history. Mr. Stephens' father was also a pioneer resident of Columbia and lived in the old Stephens home which still stands on East Broadway. Mrs. Stephens is a graduate of Christian College and Mr. Stephens of the University of Missouri.

E. W. Stephens is head of the Stephens Publishing Co., established in Columbia in 1878. From 1871 to 1906 he was editor of the Columbia Missouri Herald. For years he was presiding officer of the National Editorial Association. He is also a leading Baptist in state and national church affairs.

The house in which Mr. and Mrs. Stephens live stands as it did sixty years ago when Colonel Moss built it. It is a stately colonial house set in a large yard and flanked by trees and shrubbery. Inside, it is essentially a family home, with portraits on the wall of the ancestors who gave distinction to the family, with the great cases of books which have lent culture to the family, and with exquisite furnishings and tapestries that reflect the refinement of the family.

Equally charming to their friends today, as ever, are Mr. and Mrs. Stephens. The years have brought them, not to old age but to a mellowness, distinctive and remarkable. Mrs. Stephens is not so slender and her yellow hair has changed to gray, but her face has the same sweet expression and her eyes the same eager look of the bride of fifty years ago. Mr. Stephens, too, is more portly, and his hair is no longer black. But, erect and alert, he is still manager of one of the greatest business concerns in Columbia. And his benignant face and kindly eyes bespeak his life of generous deeds and thoughtfulness for others.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens are the parents of four children: Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City; James L. Stephens of St. Louis; E. Sidney Stephens of Columbia; and Mrs. Ashley Gray of St. Louis. They also have three grandchildren. Laura Moss Stephens, Ashley Gray, Jr., and Laura Moss Gray.

The Missouri Alumnus

Established 1912.

HELP THE ALUMNI RECORDER

The plan of Dr. J. C. Jones, Acting President of the University of Missouri, in bringing about a closer relationship between the thousands of former students and graduates of the University of Missouri through an organization of all these men and women is meeting with very popular favor throughout this and other states. Letters of commendation regarding the plan have been received from many former students in foreign lands. It is estimated that there are between thirty and forty thousand former students and alumni of the University of Missouri. The record of these men and women to date is very meager and it is going to take a long time to secure an accurate mailing list of this great number. Every former student must realize that it is his or her duty to keep the office of the Alumni Recorder notified of their present address and of any change of address in the future. The organization of all these former students and alumni will be just as strong as the individual members make it. It is, therefore, essential that the members give the organization every co-operation at their command. Information about former students and alumni of the older classes is in great demand for publication in the Alumnus. Inquiry among older former students and alumni indicates that information about men and women of the older classes is woefully lacking.

The plan of organization includes not only graduates of the University, but all former students and short course students who did not graduate.

All information which has to do with the organization of former students should be sent to Bob Hill, Alumni Recorder, 114 Academic Hall.

He is making a strenuous effort at this time to get the alumni and former students in Missouri organized by county units with a permanent organization in each of the 114 counties. This is an immense task but he finds that the alumni and former students of the institution are enthusiastic over the work of the organization and willing to give it all the time and attention that it needs. The organization of the men and women in other states, cities and countries is being looked after properly. It is realized that in order to have something to do all the time in constructive work and it will be the duty of the Alumni Recorder to see that something to accomplish is given to the various county, city and state organizations.

Article Praises Ellwood.

"Perhaps no writer makes education and sociology more closely allied than does Ellwood," writes J. T. Williams of Drury College, Springfield, Mo., in the current issue of Education, a monthly magazine devoted to the science, art, philosophy and literature of education.

The articles on Charles A. Ellwood, professor of sociology in the University of Missouri is the fourth in the series on education in recent sociology. Each article is devoted to the contributions to education of a prominent sociologist.

Mr. Williams continues: "According to Ellwood the human social process itself is essentially an educative process. It is a process of learning and of achievement by groups, and its results are transmitted only as they are taught a younger generation by an elder. Like the sociologists already studied, Ellwood urges quickened faith in the power of education."

GRADUATE SETS NEW RECORD

R. S. Cole Tries More Cases than Others in Similar Positions.

Judge Raymond S. Cole, of Pawnee, Okla., son of Dr. J. B. Cole of Columbia, has just achieved the record of trying more really big cases in the same length of time than any man who ever occupied a like judicial position in Oklahoma, if not in the United States. Judge Cole, a 1906 graduate of the University of Missouri, is one of the four jurists for the twenty-first judicial district of Oklahoma comprising Tulsa and Pawnee counties.

Judge Cole went on the district bench a little more than two years ago and up till the last two months he heard all of the criminal cases and part of the civil cases tried in Pawnee and Tulsa counties. During the last four months he has tried six cases of almost national reputation and recently began the seventh when Ben

CENTRAL BANK

Wadell, suspended chief of police of Sand Springs, faced a grand jury accusation in connection with the recent race riot.

Judge Cole began setting a mark for other judges to shoot at in April of this year when Eddie Shouquette, first of the alleged Sperry bank robbers, went to trial. Frank Freeling, alleged leader of the Sperry gang, came next followed closely by Al Christman, a purported member. Calvin O. Brady, who was an undercover man for the police department, caused a long trial in connection with stolen automobiles. Brady had hardly been convicted when the case of the murder of John Devereux came up and Goldie Gordon and Mrs. Jesse James were tried and acquitted. This was followed by the Chief of Police Gustafson, and the trial of Chief of Police Wadell which began recently.

In the Devereux case Judge Cole surprised the lawyers by having his voluminous instructions complete within thirty minutes after they had finished their evidence. This was done by taking down every legal citation the lawyers read during the trial and reviewing all these at night when there was not a night session of the court. He keeps up on all legal points as the trial progresses and writes his instructions at night during the trials so that they are ready to submit to the opposing counsel when the trial ends.

TEAM TAKES FOURTH PLACE

Stock Judging Group of University Places in Cattle Congress.

The cattle judging team representing the University of Missouri at the Dairy Cattle Congress held in Waterloo, Ia., September 26, placed fourth in the judging contest with eight teams competing. Missouri ranked fourth in Holstein cattle, fourth in Guernseys, fourth in Jerseys and sixth in Ayrshires. Paul Keller of the University won seventh place, and Allen Wer and E. C. Elting also of the University tied for thirteenth place in the contest with twenty-four men competing. The contest was won by the University of Iowa.

The University of Missouri is the only college that has been represented in every contest at the National Dairy Show since its beginning in 1905. Until 1919 the Missouri team had never ranked below fifth place and men from the University have won more scholarships at the National Dairy Show than have the representatives of any other school.

C. H. WILLIAMS APPOINTED

Extension Director on National Education Committee.

Charles H. Williams, director of the University Extension Division, received

C. H. Williams

ed a letter recently telling him of his appointment by Miss Charl Williams, president of the National Education Association, on the committee of foreign relations of the association.

A. O. Thomas, state superintendent of the schools of Maine, is chairman of the committee. The work of this group will be to invite teachers of England, Italy, France and other countries to form a world association of teachers and to make recommendations on this matter to the next meeting of the National Education Association, to be held some time in July of 1922 in Boston. It is probable, according to Mr. Williams, that one or more members of this committee will be chosen to go to Europe in connection with the work.

It is largely because of Mr. Williams' work as chairman of the committee which re-organized the state teachers' association two years ago that he received this appointment, in the opinion of many. The constitution which was finally adopted by the Missouri State Teachers' Association was drawn up by Mr. Williams, Prof. J. E. Wrench and Prof. J. D. Elliff.

It is probable that Mr. Williams is the only Missourian that holds a position on any committee of the national association.

DEAN WILLIAMS AGAIN HEADS PRESS CONGRESS

THE PALMS

TIGERS LOSE BUT ONE GAME SO FAR

Missouri Defeats Drake 6-0.

The Missouri Tigers clearly outplayed the Drake Bulldogs Saturday, October 29, defeating them by the score of 6-0. The superiority of the Old Gold and Black can best be explained by the fact that the Drake team approached no closer than Missouri's 32-yard line. Long and well directed passes to the ends and halfbacks made them dangerous contenders at times, but the failure of any of these to dent deep into Missouri's territory kept them from being serious opponents. The Tigers were able to make eight first downs, and practically all of these came from scrimmage. The field being extremely muddy, it was sometimes difficult for the players to keep their feet. There were few fumbles, however, both teams making but two each. Missouri made about 40 yards by means of a forward pass, and Drake made about 66. The actual yardage from scrimmage by the Tigers was 214 yards to 95 for the Des Moines squad.

Tigers Lose to Kansas Aggies.

In the game between Missouri and the Kansas Aggies, October 22, the Aggies won from the Tigers in the fourth quarter when a forward pass netted them 55 yards, placing the ball within a foot of the Missouri goal line. Stark went over and Sebring kicked goal. The final score was: Missouri 5, Kansas Aggies 7.

At the end of the first quarter the score was 0-0. Neither team scored in the second quarter, but the time keeper's whistle was all that saved the Aggies for the Tigers had driven almost the entire length of the field to their four-yard line when the half ended. The Tiger offensive was headed by the powerful Lincoln, who tore great holes in the Aggie line. It was difficult for the Wildcats to hang on to Lewis and Lincoln. Packwood and Kershaw also plunged effectively. Burton and Stark were the stars of the Aggie backfield.

Missouri's scoring started in the third quarter when Chuck Lewis dropped a pretty kick between the goal posts from the 20-yard line. The Tigers scored again in this quarter when an Aggie man fell back to kick out of danger and fumbled. Hamilton downed him for a safety. The score at the end of the third quarter was: Missouri 5, Aggies 0.

The fourth quarter began favorably for the Tigers with Lincoln, Lewis and Packwood showing good form. Lewis tried for a drop kick but the ball went under the goal posts. A little later in the game the Aggies completed the fatal pass and brought a disappointing defeat to the Missouri Tigers.

Tigers Defeat Ames, 17-14.

Tigertown is still quivering from the tremors that visited the 5,000 fans out on Rollins Field October 15, when the Tigers whipped Ames by a 17-14 score. The old adage that "opportunity knocks but once," is shattered, for the Tigers and the Cyclones rejected at least a dozen opportunities to score, and these, coupled with the scintillating bits of football that appeared from time to time, served to keep the frenzy-stricken fans in a state of mental intoxication.

The Tigers fans saw a Missouri team with their backs to the wall after they had executed a perfect Humpty-Dumpty crash in the first quarter with the resultant Ames touchdown. Managing to hold their own for another fourth of the contest, the Missourians entered the second half with new vigor and pushed the valiant Ames contingent away from the goal line and twice crossed the last chalk mark for a touchdown. A field goal by Lewis brought the Tiger total to 17.

But in the last canto of the epic the Iowans began to parade toward their goal seldom being equaled on Rollins Field. After counting one touchdown four straight passes netted them 65 yards, yet with the ball in the shadow of their own goal posts the Tigers held the fort, blocked two attempts at field goal, halted several attempts at line plunging and by a display of that indefinable something called "determination" staved off an eleventh-hour defeat.

The Missouri eleven did not win from just a fair team that day. They won from one of the hardest-scrapping aggregations ever to appear on Rollins Field. The Ames line was a stone wall. It was almost impossible to penetrate that wedge of beef and strength that Maurice Kent sent into the field. Not until game "Polly" Wallace and Lingenfelter, two bulwarks of the visiting forward wall had been forced out of the lineup did the Ames line begin to bend and then to no appreciable extent. Wallace was everything that advance notices had reputed him to be. He was at the bottom of every line play and directed the charges of his colleagues. The veteran Hawkeye put up a stellar exhibition and the crowd paid eloquent tribute to him as he limped from the field, his tear-stained face, tanned and scarred from many battles of the gridiron, hidden in a teammate's shoulder to hide the sorrow that was written there.

Great is Wallace and great are the teammates that battled with him in the Ames line, but opposing them they found Tigers who were just as unwilling to give ground and whose performances stamped them as among the best in the Valley. Captain Blumer, Bunker and Hill were perhaps the most prominent in maintaining the Tiger stronghold, and of these the greatest was Hill.

This lanky Tiger, playing this year as a regular tackle, distinguished himself beyond the fondest dreams of his tutors. It was Hill who continually broke through the Ames defense and crashed runner and ball to earth. The same gentleman blocked an Ames kick, far down in the Ames territory in the fourth quarter, and then recovered it himself, but a few yards from the coveted goal. Nor was this the only one he blocked or the only loose ball that he recovered. A kick by Lewis was fumbled by Currie, and Hill bounding over the turf was first to reach it and tuck it to his jersey well over the goal line for a touchdown. It was a great day for Hill, while the work of Blumer and Hardin and Bunker, as well as of the Old Gold and Black athletes, was not far behind.

Fortunately the Tigers emerged from the victory practically unscratched.

Missouri Wins From St. Louis.

Despite the 32-0 victory of the Missouri eleven in the game with St. Louis University October 8, the showing of the Tigers was disappointing, according to Coach Jimmy Phelan. "The Tiger backfield was slow in starting," he said, "and did not have power enough at top speed to break a pane of glass. Repeatedly the opposition's end would smear a play without being touched by a Missouri back.

"Our lines," he continued, "lacked an offensive charge and from end to end the line did not meet the mediocre defense, which was made up of men who were not in condition and did not possess the power necessary to cope with Valley teams of strength. The St. Louis team was woefully weak and with the regulars playing three quarters we scored 17 points less than last year's team."

A Yard To Go!

The pigskin lies within a yard of the enemy's goal line. The thousands of wild-eyed Tiger fans sit spellbound with the tenseness of the moment. The rasping sound of the quarterback's voice drifts across the field, and suddenly an Old Gold and Black warrior—perhaps it's "Chuck"—catapults himself over the buckling line—for a touchdown!
