Chicago Alumni Mass Meeting Dinner, Friday, October 3

The stage is all set for the big Alumni rally mass meeting dinner to be held in Chicago at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening, Oct. 3, in the Tiger Room of the Sherman Hotel the night before the Missouri-Chicago game. The Chicago Alumni Association is arranging a most interesting and entertaining program for that Alumni mass meeting dinner and nothing will be left undone to put on the biggest alumni party ever staged in Chicago.

Frank B. Thacher, president of the Chicago Alumni Association, has notified every alumnus and former student of the University in the Chicago District to attend the mass meeting dinner and notices are being sent to every alumnus and former student of the University, regarding the mass meeting and the football game. All reservations for the mass meeting banquet and for tickets for the game should be made by sending a check to Frank B. Thacher, 112th and Torrence Ave., Chicago, or, call him by phone at South Chicago 9180. The mass meeting dinner will cost $2.50 a plate. A ticket to the game will cost $1.50 for reserved seats in the Missouri section. All Missouri alumni and former students will want reserved seats. Twenty-five hundred seats in one block on the Missouri side have been reserved for the Missouri bunch. The alumni in and around Chicago and very near there, will doubtless want to apply for tickets in the Missouri section, to Mr. Thacher. Students in the University and the alumni and former students in and around Columbia can apply for tickets direct to C. I. Brewer, Director of Athletics, Columbia, and all reservations made through Mr. Thacher or Mr. Brewer will be in the Missouri section.

"The Chicago Alumni and former students do not have an opportunity to see the Tigers play very often," said Mr. Thacher, "so we are planning a big time for this event. We are going to have a dandy bunch of Mass Meeting Spell Binders at the alumni banquet on Friday evening, Oct. 3. Geo. C. Willson, Jr., attorney of St. Louis and former president of the St. Louis Alumni Association will be the principal alumni speaker. We will have the Mo. band there, Capt. Arthur Bond, of the football team and we will hear all about the prospects for defeating Chicago on the following day and about the progress on the Memorial Union and Stadium Campaigns. The Chicago alumni are actively interested in everything pertaining to the welfare of the University of Mo. and we are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to seeing hundreds of alumni in Chicago for the alumni dinner on the night of Oct. 3 and for the Missouri-Chicago game on Oct. 4.

A special Wabash train will leave Columbia at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Friday, Oct. 3, running straight through to Chicago via Moberly and Hannibal and will arrive in Chicago, Saturday, Oct. 4 at 7 a. m. Returning, the train will leave Chicago at 11:55, almost midnight, Saturday night, Oct. 4, running straight through to Columbia, arriving Sunday morning. The rate for this special train service will be $10.00 for the round trip. The students and those in and near Columbia will go to the Chicago game on this special train and those from central Missouri who want to go to the game on this special train can board it by coming to Columbia, Centralia, Moberly or Hannibal. For information regarding this special train service, address J. S. Buchanan, Wabash Railway, Moberly, Mo.

A rate of $17.00 has been granted for the members of the team, coaches, members of the band and those who have to leave Columbia early for the alumni dinner in Chicago on the evening of Oct. 3. This rate will apply, leaving Columbia Thursday night via the Wabash to Chicago and will be good until Sunday night, Oct. 5.

There will be a rate from St. Louis direct to Chicago and return for the benefit of the alumni and former students of St. Louis and this train service is being handled by Warren W. Browne, president of the St. Louis Alumni Association. All alumni and former students of St. Louis who are going to the Chicago game should communicate directly with Mr. Browne.

Walter H. Holmes, Jr., President of the Kansas City Alumni Association, is making arrangements for the special train service and rates for the Kansas City alumni and former students going to the Chicago game and the Kansas City group are all requested to communicate with Mr. Holmes.

Alumni from all sections of the country have written to the Alumni office indicating that they are going to attend the Missouri-Chicago game and from the enthusiasm apparent among the students on the campus, there doubtless will be several hundred of them to attend the game. Indications are, that the big rally mass meeting sponsored by the Chicago Alumni Association on Friday evening, Oct. 3, will be a wonderful display of Missouri spirit and enthusiasm. With Frank B. Thacher, their president, directing it, the alumni can depend upon a real, big, old-time Missouri party.

The athletic authorities of the University face a real problem this coming fall in the distribution of tickets for the annual football games, especially the one with Kansas (The Homecoming Game) to be played on Rollins Field on Thanksgiving Day, and the one with the University of Chicago at Chicago, October 4. Both of these games will attract many more people than the capacity of the fields. It is the desire of those in charge of the distribution of tickets, however, to work out a plan that will care for the students, alumni, former students and tried friends of the institution with as little friction and disappointment as possible. Early in September detailed announcements with application blanks will be sent to all alumni, and former students of the institution. For these mailing addresses we shall depend upon the alumni association, so each alumnus should see that his mailing address in the office of Bob Hill, Alumni Recorder, 217 Jesse Hill, Columbia, is correct. We are helpless, and cannot protect you if this all-important detail is overlooked. If your address is not correct in the Alumni Recorder's office, send him the correct address at once. We are absolutely dependent upon every alumnus and former student to furnish the Alumni Recorder with correct addresses, changes of addresses, deaths, marriages, births, etc. If you are not receiving mail at least once a month from the University your address is not listed correctly in the Alumni Recorder's office, and it is up to you to send in your correct address at once.

Alumni should, too, promptly after receipt fill in and return the application for seats. We expect these advance applications will take up our entire allotment of seats for the Chicago game, and the entire seating capacity of Rollins Field for the Kansas game.

In accordance with plans now in operation in all Western universities, and recently adopted here, applications from students, and from Memorial Stadium subscribers for tickets to any and all football games, both at home and away, will be filled first. Applications of alumni and former students who are not subscribers will be filled next, and those with no affiliation with the University, last. We feel this is entirely fair, and will best take care of an increasingly difficult situation. We need, however, the help of the alumni so please have your correct address on file, and let us know your wishes promptly. If you have any suggestions for improving our service to you, let us have those too. There is no way under the sun to keep the addresses of alumni and former students up to date without the whole-hearted co-operation of the alumni themselves.

Albert K. Heckel Is Dean of Men

Albert K. Heckel, former Dean of the College and Adviser, Lafayette College, has been appointed Dean of Men at the University of Missouri, and arrived in Columbia, August 19, to assume his duties.

"I come to Missouri University with an open mind and want to learn and be impressed," is the statement of Dean Heckel.

time on the basis of coming as a disciplinarian and adviser, not as a policeman or detective to delve into the students' life.

At Lafayette daily assemblies were held. At these meetings of the students Doctor Heckel talked to his boys on all subjects, including the religious, ethical, educational and athletic phases of school life. He feels years at the latter, where he is credit with having made as well as taught this subject.

An all-round man at college, Dean Heckel played football for 4 years, three at end and his senior year as halfback. He was president of his class for four years, president of the student body and of the

"I sincerely believe in co-operation with the students in their work and desire to be looked upon as their adviser and helper at all times," Dean Heckel continued. "I believe in discipline, but I do not believe in being a policeman and won't turn in to a detective to pry into the students' affairs.

"I also am a firm believer in tradition and want to be instrumental in upholding all of Missouri's wholesome customs. I have come to Missouri to aid her young men and wish to join the family—I want to become a member of Missouri's loyal family of students."

Dean Heckel comes to the University highly recommended by those with whom he has been associated as an educator for a number of years. He was introduced recently at Ann Arbor to President Stratton D. Brooks, who interviewed him concerning the position. He accepted at that time that the assembly is an institution needed at Missouri and would suggest that such gatherings be held here about three times a week.

An active worker for wholesome athletics, which he feels are a strong asset of any school, the new dean seeks to co-operate at all times with the athletic directors and coaches, and to aid them in every way possible.

Dean Heckel is a graduate of Roanoke College, Roanoke, Va. from which he received his A. B. degree in 1903 and his M. A. in 1906. He has studied at Johns Hopkins, Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania, where he received the degree of Ph. D. in 1913. He has taught history for several years at different schools and colleges, including Northwestern and Lafayette. He has been dean and professor of history for the past nine

UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI
Columbia
Office of the Dean of Men
August 30, 1924

To the Alumni of the University of Missouri

At the request of your secretary I am addressing this word of greeting to you. While I have not had opportunity to meet many of you face to face, yet you are not unknown to me, for in becoming acquainted with your university and the heritage of culture and traditions which you have given to it, I become acquainted with you. The office of dean of men is new but not revolutionary. Many of its administrative functions have in the past been taken care of by various members of your Faculty. It will be one of my purposes to help promote the good things which they have accomplished.

This is not the time or place to attempt a would be impossible to do this plans and purposes will have to take shape as local conditions reveal themselves. But my ideals are not so indefinite. I regard education as the matter of first importance. I believe that all activities in any university must harmonize with right education. But the formal class room work is only a part of the educational process. The four years spent by a student in the business of getting intellectual training are four years of actual life, and all his experiences during this period must make for his mental and moral growth.

I believe in the inherent rightness of the American college man. There are, of course, individual failures. The very few who are vicious may well be dispersed with. The fundamental good in the occasional delinquent should be encouraged until the good becomes dominant. This can best be accomplished, I believe, by a minimum of regulation and a maximum of co-operation based on mutual trust and good feeling. There must be a strong intolerance of that which is unworthy, but an understanding friendliness is the most important factor on any college campus.

The new deanship demands a dedication of my best energies to the service of Missouri men, and a complete devotion to their interests and welfare. I shall be most anxious to discourage if I may have the assurance of your counsel, co-operation and support.

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT K. HECKEL
Dean of Men.

student council, of the athletic association, captain of the baseball team two years, manager of the football team during his junior year and captain when he was a senior. Not content with resting on these laurels, Doctor Heckel found time, he did not say just when, to study and he now wears a Phi Beta Kappa key as a tribute to his scholarship. He has a strong personality which acquaints him with every one with whom he comes in contact, and which will aid him greatly in endearing himself to the University students when he meets them this fall. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

School of Fine Arts Opens

The eighty-third academic year of the University of Missouri opened September 10 and among the unusual features attending this re-opening was the inauguration of the tenth division of the University, namely the School of Fine Arts. This school was established by vote of the Board of Curators at its meeting last December. Since that time much preliminary work has been done, a strong faculty has been secured and the various courses of study in music and in art have been developed and are available for the students entering this fall.

The faculty will include: James T. Quarles, dean of the faculty of the School of Fine Arts and professor of music; John S. Ankeny, professor of the theory and practice of art; Ellsworth Allan MacLeod, professor of piano; William Henry Pommmer, emeritus professor of music; James T. Sleeper, professor of public school music; Ella Victoria Dobbs, associate professor of industrial arts; Herbert Wall, professor of voice; Henry S. Bill, assistant professor of industrial arts; Erna Cavelle, assistant professor of voice; Catherine Elizabeth Bedford, instructor in industrial arts; Carl Rees Gentry, instructor in the theory and practice of art; Harold H. Logan, instructor in piano; Christine Spencer, instructor in the theory and practice of art; I. N. Tello, instructor in violin; George Venable, instructor in orchestra and director of the University Band.

During the summer Lathrop Hall has been reconstructed and made available for the uses of the department of music of the School of Fine Arts. This building is known to many of the old alumni as a men's dormitory with a large dining hall on the first floor. This dining hall has been made over into a small auditorium with good stage and lighting effects. The second floor has been converted into class rooms and instructors' studios. The third floor will contain practice rooms and a large orchestra and band rehearsal room. Good pianos have been obtained and the equipment is complete in every respect for the accomplishment of highly artistic work in this new field of endeavor.

The department of art of the School of Fine Arts will still be housed on the fourth floor of Jesse Hall in quarters it has occupied for a number of years.

The movement for the establishment of Schools of Fine Arts in American Universities is becoming quite general. Many American Universities have long done effective work in all branches of Art and have without doubt, exercised a potent influence in the development of the cultural life of the present generation of America. Many universities that have never had a School of Fine Arts in the past are at the present time planning such organizations. Harvard is now in the midst of an active campaign to raise two million dollars for the further development of art education. The Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester is another effort in this same direction. The University of Missouri with its new School of Fine Arts is thus keeping pace with this phase of educational development.

There are abundant evidences on all sides of the growth of the cultural life of present day Americans. Since 1910, more than $250,000,000 in European art treasures, comprising paintings, sculptures, etchings, prints, decorative panels, tant ones, the attendance at which mounts substantially each year. With this vast store-house of art treasures in our midst, is there not an educational obligation for us to afford to students of the coming generation an opportunity of knowing what art means, of understanding its appeal, thus bringing into their lives the stimulating and elevating effect of its beauties.

It will probably be generally conceded

tapestries, and other types of the Fine Arts have been brought to America. These, added to the already existing collections, make a total value of art treasures in America possibly in excess of half a billion dollars. The larger portion of these works have been purchased by private individuals. Many of them are contained in private galleries; but ultimately, most of them will find their way, largely by gift, into the great museums of the country. Fifty years ago we had no art museums whatever; today we have more than fifty-three important ones, the attendance at which mounts substantially each year. With this vast store-house of art treasures in our midst, is there not an educational obligation for us to afford to students of the coming generation an opportunity of knowing what art means, of understanding its appeal, thus bringing into their lives the stimulating and elevating effect of its beauties.

It will probably be generally conceded that the buildings that we build, the cities that we plan, the parks that we create, the monuments which we erect are at the present day better clothed in the atmosphere of beauty than they were twenty-five years ago. Without doubt the war memorials to the dead of the last great war will be better works of art than those erected to the loved ones who made the supreme sacrifice in the Civil War. We have in recent years evolved a type of skyscraper which avoids the crude, hard, square-cut lines of our buildings of a former generation. Such buildings as the Woolworth Building in New York City show that it is possible to erect buildings which meet the needs of American business, and yet combine with utility beauty of line and proportion. There are few buildings anywhere in the world that equal in majesty of proportion and grandeur the Lincoln memorial in the city of Washington. We Missourians have been unflinching by this pervasive influence of art in our civilization. An eloquent witness of this influence crowns the capitol hill at Jefferson City. Our state capitol building is a work of art worthy of our best appreciation.

America has at least two world famous painters of whom she may justly be proud. Yet James McNeil Whistler, not many years ago, took up his residence in London, because he found there a more appreciative patronage and public. Even more recently J. M. W. Turner, born in England, whose parents, did much the same thing with the result that much of his greatest work was done in England. Yet to-day Sargent has become a national figure, and we have claimed him with pride. The same is true of Whistler, and his canvases are returning to his native shores in increasing numbers.

In the field of music a similar condition exists. There is no country in the world that spends the vast sums on music that we do. We support the greatest Symphony Orchestras; maintain the most brilliant operatic establishments. The greatest of concert artists are to-day giving concerts throughout the length and breadth of our land, attracted by the power of American dollars as well as the native, spontaneous enthusiasm so characteristic of American audiences. The piano, the phonograph, and the radio have taken music into nearly every American home. The result of this has been a phenomenal growth in musical interest on the part of the younger generation of America. In spite of the seeming preponderance of jazz and variety tunes, there is a large body of American students who are interested in the more serious types of music, and who desire to become acquainted with it either as performers or as connoisseurs. It is then not an obligation, therefore, upon the American Universities to supply opportunities for such students to cultivate the musical and artistic sides of their natures? Music and art are alike in that they both need appreciative patrons in order that they may exist at all. They both bring joy and elevation of spirit to those who understand their message. The youth who is led to an understanding of nature and of economics and left blind and deaf to the appeals of literature, of art, of morals, the music, and of religion has been shown but a part of that great environment which is his inheritance as a human being.

There is in addition to this an important duty upon the American University to supply to the student of exceptional gifts in music and in art the opportunity to cultivate his peculiar talents. We spend vast sums for the training of engineers, of lawyers, of doctors, of agriculturalists, and we do well thereby; for each of these contributes to the necessities of modern civilization. Music and the arts are as needful in our modern life as are any of the professions listed above. One of the inalienable rights of men most frequently emphasized is the pursuit of happiness. Happiness depends more upon richness of life and the qualities of the inner man, than it does upon mere material progress. Music and the arts serve more directly to develop this richness of life than do many of man's other activities. As President Elliott states, "Nothing will more perfectly cultivate the human spirit". We have an obligation to improve man's pleasures, to develop in him a taste for all that is noblest and best in art and in music. Such an obligation cannot be fulfilled unless we furnish opportunities for the development of professional musicians and professional artists, in the stimulating atmosphere of our great universities. The musical listener cannot exist independent of the musical performer; and the musical performer cannot exist independent of the musical composer; and the musical composer and the musical performer can neither of them exist without the musical listener. The same circle is complete in the field of art as well. The producing artist and the appreciative connoisseur each need the other.

While all the activities of life need music and art to bring about the richest fullness of life, music and art if cultivated alone are notoriously narrowing in their influence on the human soul. The artist and the musician must be constantly kept in touch with other lines of intellectual activity. For this reason the aspiring musician and the gifted artist can best be developed in the atmosphere of their own modern college life. They both need many things which are offered in other curricula than their specialties. One of the great weaknesses of our educational system in the past, has been that we have driven such gifted artists out of our schools or compelled them to sacrifice their artistic gifts in order to get a decent education.

The School of Fine Arts at the University of Missouri will serve the educational needs of Missouri in both of these fields. It will offer four-year courses in both music and art, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts. In music, instruction will be given in the art of piano playing, of singing, of violin playing, of theory and composition, and in public school music. For entrance in the course in music fifteen units of high school credit will be required. Three of these must be in music and comprise the ability to play on the piano, the two part Invention of Bach, and the easier Sonatas of Haydn and Mozart; or in violin the ability to play the first ten studies by Kayser.

In art, four year courses in Theory, Practice, and History of the Visual Arts with opportunities for specialization in Drawing and Painting, in Decorative and Applied Design, and in Art History and Appreciation will be offered. The University of Missouri and the State of Missouri will thus realize its obligation toward present day civilization in stimulating ideals of beauty in the souls of the students of the coming generation.

1000 Alumni Register At State Fair

University of Missouri Day was celebrated on "big" Thursday of the Missouri State Fair, August 21, at Sedalia by hundreds of alumni and former students of the University. One thousand alumni and former students registered at the alumni booth in the University Building on the fair grounds, during the week. The alumni booth in the University of Missouri Building on the fair grounds, during the week. The alumni booth was comfortably furnished by Jack McLaughlin, of Sedalia. It was the general headquarters and meeting place of alumni and former students at the fair. George Bond, basketball coach, and Virgil Spurling, assistant athletic director, were in charge of the booth and its decoration.

The University of Missouri Day Luncheon was held in Mrs. Kaler's dining hall on Thursday. Over three hundred and fifty alumni attended the luncheon and Mrs. Kaler stated that about seventy-five had to be turned away for lack of accommodations. It was a beastly hot day but the heat did not interfere with the enthusiasm and the luncheon was a decided success.

Mrs. E. F. Yancy, of Sedalia, and Mrs. Bachtell, of Tipton, led the singing from the new University of Missouri song books and there was real singing all through the luncheon with a spontaneous Agricultural Club yell now and then and a lot of friendly rivalry between school representatives. The Gypsy Orchestra Quintet made music all the while and were interested in doing their part to make the luncheon a success for these youngsters said they were coming to the University of Missouri.

Dr. A. J. Campbell, of Sedalia, president of the Pettis County Alumni Association, was the master of ceremonies. He introduced Dean Fred B. Mumford, of the College of Agriculture, as toastmaster. Short talks were made by Coach Bond, Miss Margaret Huston, home demonstration agent at St. Joseph; and Dr. G. W. Robinson, former student in the School of Medicine, of Kansas City. Dean Mumford closed the speaking program by reminding the alumni and former students of their everlasting duty toward their alma mater.

Sam Shirkley had charge of the University of Missouri Building this year and he it said to his credit, it was a most attractive display. The outstanding feature in decoration was an immense panorama of the White Campus of the University. The display consisted of models of the eleven white stone buildings on the White Campus, including the Memorial Tower, made by photographic enlargements. This was the splendid idea of Dean Mumford.

Football Coach, Gwinn Henry, returned to Columbia in August to make preparations for the coming season. Football practice will start September 15.

Twelve or thirteen of last year's letter men will be back and seven or eight of the members of last year's freshman team will be ready for Varsity competition.

The outlook for the Tigers this year is bright, although there are several knotty problems for the coaches to solve. One is the selection of a speedy, heady, natural quarterback.

Those who have any chance at all for making the Tiger team this fall are all very enthusiastic and are ready to work to the limit to make the team. Captain Arthur Bond spent the summer in Columbia working for the Memorial Campaign and after a vacation at home, is ready for the big football season at Missouri. Bond is a fine fellow, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, knows football and knows how to handle his men. He will make a great football captain and a wonderful halfback. Clyde Smith, center, last year's captain, is back. The others who are back are Palermo, Moulder, Richerson, Scott and Tom Etter, Stafford, Walsh, Whiteman, Adams, Fauroth and Walker, among the old men. Freshmen who have returned are: Jackson, Steubert, Thomas, Swofford, Cogliner, Lindenmeyer and Bacchus.

Harry Kipke, assistant football coach, arrived September 10, to be ready for the first practice September 15. Kipke is an all-American halfback. He finished at the University of Michigan last spring and replaces Capt. W. C. (Bill) Duncel. Kipke was an outstanding athlete at Michigan and won nine major letters there playing on championship teams in football and baseball. He was on Walter Camp's all-American team in '22, made the all-Western in '22 and '23 and was captain of the '23 team. He was judged the most accurate punter in America. In three years of football competition, Kipke played in only one game that was lost; that being one in which he was removed early because of injuries. He made all-conference teams in football, baseball and basketball—being, it is thought, the only man in history to accomplish this feat.

He was acting basketball captain this year, and made the all-conference and all-Western guard in 1924.

Kipke comes to Missouri as backfield football coach, assistant basketball coach and head baseball coach; replacing in the last position, C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, who piloted the team last spring. His advent to Missouri is looked upon as one of the most favorable additions in years.

Coch Yost of Michigan has said of Kipke, "he is the brainiest athlete in America today."

The football schedule for Missouri this fall is as follows: Oct. 4, Chicago at Chicago and this first game this season will prove one of the hardest. The team will have but three weeks preparation for the Chicago game. Coach Henry is leaving nothing undone to play real Missouri football at Chicago. Thousands of alumni and former students from all over the country will attend the Chicago game on Oct. 4. Frank B. Thacher, 112th & Torrence Sts.,

Harry Kipke

Chicago, president of the Chicago Alumni Association is arranging a big alumni rally in Chicago the night of Friday, Oct. 3, and is making arrangements for all Missourians to be seated together at the game. Make all reservations for the alumni rally and for seats at the Chicago game by writing to Mr. Thacher.

The Tigers play Mo. Wesleyan at Columbia, Oct. 11; Ames at Ames, Oct. 18; Kansas Aggies at Columbia, Oct. 25; Nebraska at Lincoln, Nov. 1; Okla. at Norman, Nov. 8; Washington at Columbia, Nov. 15, and Kansas at Columbia, Nov. 27, the big Homecoming Thanksgiving game when all loyal alumni and former students return to Columbia for their annual home-coming. The Mo.-Kansas Thanksgiving game is already being referred to as "The Battle of the Century" for the Tigers and the Jay hawks will each try to avenge that 3-3 tie last year at Lawrence.

Preparations are already under way for Homecoming. President Stratton D. Brooks has appointed the following committee in charge of the Homecoming program: Messrs. R. L. Hill (Chairman), L. L. Brewer, A. G. Capps, L. M. Defoe, W. C. Etheridge and F. L. Martin. This committee will work with a similar committee to be appointed by the student president, Bill Shumate.

Fowler, Scannell, Hennessey and Lewis will probably not be in the line-up this year on account of low grades. Keller, McAnaw, Van Dyne, Wagner, Wertz and Hayes are other letter men who, for one cause or another, will not be back in school but from the ranks of the freshmen there is coming a lot of good material. Pete Jackson of St. Joseph, one of the stars of the 1923 freshman squad, may be Henry's choice for the quarter-back position. He played a remarkable game as quarter-back in high school under Stankowski, a former Tiger captain coaching at St. Joseph.

Harry Lansing is going to assist in coaching again this year and Al Lincoln will have charge of the freshmen. Bunker has resigned as freshman coach to become the assistant coach of Alabama Tech. under Wilbur Hutsell.

The Athletic Department, the student body and the Alumni office are co-operating to have a series of mass meetings this fall that will rehabilitate the old Missouri spirit among the members of the student body to the extent that every phase of a successful football season will be properly cared for.

Dunkel Goes To Fort Sill.

Captain and Mrs. W. C. Dunkel and their son, Billy, left Columbia on August 16, for Fort Sill, Okla., where Captain Dunkel will be stationed. "Bill" Dunkel as he was known to all alumni and students, has made an enviable record as a football player and as a coach at the University. Everybody regretted to see him leave.

Scholz Places Second in 100-Meter.

Jackson V. Scholz, former University star, now with the New York A.C., placed second in the 100-meter race in the Olympic contest in July 7, and won the 200-meter dash at the London Paddock also of America by inches. Scholz and Paddock were so close at the finish that the first announcement credited Paddock with the win but an official announcement corrected this. Scholz's time was 21 and 5/8 seconds, equalling the Olympic record.

Pres. Brooks Addresses Farmers.

The Missouri Farm Bureau Federation held its tenth annual meeting in Columbia, September 3, 4, and 5. Pres. Stratton D. Brooks delivered the opening address with a statement, "I want to speak to you Missouri farmers not about what we mean to you, but rather what you mean to us.

"We are not unmindful of the fact that the farmers of this state pay a considerable share of the taxes, and that it was the farmers who helped us so substantially a year ago in the legislature. We are glad to see the wonderful things the farmer is doing for us.

"Nor are we unappreciative here. I venture to say that more than three-fourths of the research of this University is directed especially to the problem of the farmer. Everywhere science is laboring to increase the efficiency of human life and works."

With civilization becoming better all the time, Dr. Brooks said, "organization is becoming more and more imperative to meet the problems of the complex life. Organization is vital to this, and only the organization that benefits will live. The others will automatically pass on, and if your great organization is to live and prosper, it must serve a distinct purpose and serve it well.

"The University is one of the organizations of the farmer. It must serve a purpose, or else it too would pass on with the other useless things.

"In research, oftentimes things that look useless are valuable. Months are spent propounding some theory that in itself appears foolish, yet which is a vital connection to a valuable theory worked out from such bits of knowledge.

"The University is your organization, supported for a purpose—to help you. Those things that serve to make the University a thing of service will, in the end, make the state better able to take its place in the union of states."

$150,000 Law Building For M. U. Assured.

Plans for the new law building, which will be erected at a cost of $150,000 are now being drawn by Jameison and Spear, University architects of St. Louis. Construction will begin as soon as the plans have been approved in order that the state appropriation may not lapse. It is hoped that construction can be started by September and the building completed in time for the fall semester in 1925, said Leslie K. Cowan, secretary of the University.

The building will be entirely fire-proof, being of brick and stone construction, similar in design to Jay H. Neff Hall.

The interior will be so arranged as to afford the best facilities possible for the school. On the main floor will be classrooms and a practice courtroom. The library will occupy most of the second floor with the reading room in one end and the book stacks in the opposite end.

The librarian's desk will be situated between the reading room and the stacks. The faculty offices will also be on the second floor with openings leading to the stack room. By having all of the classrooms on the ground floor the noise made as students pass to and from classes will not be disturbing to those in the reading room. The new building will comfortably accommodate 250 students.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Tate of St. Louis gave $75,000 toward the erection of a new law building, provided the state would appropriate a like amount. The state appropriation was just recently released by Governor A. M. Hyde. Mr. and Mrs. Tate gave the donation in memory of their son, Lee H. Tate, an alumnus of the University.

The St. Louis Alumni Association, through its president, Warren W. Browne, thoughtfully commended Governor A. M. Hyde for releasing the appropriation for the new law building in the following appreciatory letter:

"It is extremely gratifying to the Missouri Alumni in St. Louis to note that you have released the appropriation for the new law building at Columbia. Knowing the keen interest and the kindly consideration you have always shown in the welfare of the University, we have never had any apprehension regarding the appropriation for this building, but we are all glad to learn that you now see your way clear to allow this to go forward.

May I take this opportunity to express our appreciation for the effort you have put forth in furthering the best interests of the School."

Thomas N. Dysart Is Honored.

Thomas N. Dysart, Vice-president of the William R. Compton Co., and of the American Trust Company of St. Louis, a former student in the University in '99, was nominated for the presidency of the Investment Bankers' Association of America at their annual session at Gloucester, Mass.

Commencement Held Aug. 1.

The first Summer Session Commencement was held on Francis Quadrangle in front of the Columns on the night of August 1. The setting was beautiful and the out-door commencement plan is an admirable one. Unfortunately a typical Missouri thunderstorm made its appearance in the early part of the program and the audience had to go into the Auditorium for the completion of the exercises.

Degrees and certificates were awarded by Dean Isidor Loeb of the school of Business and Public Administration in the absence of President S. D. Brooks, who was called to North Carolina on account of the illness of his daughter. Music was furnished by the University Chorus under the direction of Professor Herbert Wall.

Dr. W. C. Gibbs of the Bible College of Missouri delivered the invocation. Dr. Thomas W. Nadal, president of Drury College, delivered the commencement address, "A Challenge to Education". One hundred and twenty-five were granted degrees.

At the completion of the program Doctor Loeb asked someone in the audience to volunteer to lead in the singing of "Old Missouri". For a few seconds no one responded. With a great number of native Missourians in the audience, a Korean, Soon Ahn, a recipient of the degree of B. S. in Education, advanced to the rostrum to lead the singing. He was applauded roundly.

The Rev. Walter M. Haushalter, pastor of the First Christian Church of Columbia, delivered the Baccalaureate Address on July 27. His subject was "Putting the God-Content into Human Life".

Doubtless the Summer Session Commencement will be made a permanent part of the school program. Prof. J. D. Eliff is to be commended for the best summer session ever held at the University of Missouri and for his foresight in arranging a most entertaining program and offering interesting work for the summer session students.

President Brooks Refuses Offer.

Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, has refused the offer of the presidency of the University of Oklahoma made to him by the board of regents there at a meeting held in June. The regents voted unanimously at their June meeting to ask President Brooks to accept the presidency of the University of Oklahoma at the close of the next school year.

"Dr. Brooks declared his affection for Oklahoma University was like that of a parent for his child," said Judge A. A. McDonald, president of the board of regents, "since most of the school was built during Brooks' ten years there. He explained that his life is now bound up in the University of Missouri and that in justice to the regents of the Missouri institution he could not consider a return to Oklahoma."

Under President Brooks' administration, beginning in 1912, the University of Oklahoma quadrupled its enrollment and more than doubled its buildings and equipment. He resigned in 1922.

Dr. Walters Gets Appointment.

Dr. Francis M. Walters, Jr., for the last two years Associate at the U. S. Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., has been appointed acting director of the newly established Bureau of Metallurgical Research at Carnegie Institute of Technology, according to an announcement from Pres. Thos. S. Baker. Dr. Walters is to take charge of the new department immediately.

According to the announcement, the organizing of the bureau is a further step in the plan to expand the scientific facilities of the Institute of Technology. The express object of the new department, it is reported, is to apply to metallurgical questions the recent discoveries in the field of physics and chemistry.

As acting director of the Bureau, Dr. Walters will also have the title of Professor of Experimental Physics. He was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1911 with B. S. degree and received from the same university his master's degree in 1913 and his doctor's degree in 1920. He was principal of the Norris, Mo., High School in 1908-1909, and principal of the Farmington, Mo., High School in 1911-1912. Later he taught at the University of Missouri, the University of Montana, St. John's University, Shanghai, and in St. Joseph, Mo., Central High School.

He first joined the staff of the Bureau of Standards in 1918, leaving after three years to accept the appointment as Professor of Physics at St. John's University in Shanghai. He returned to the Bureau of Standards as Associate Physicist in 1922.

No More "Shacks" To Be Built.

The city council of Columbia, passed an ordinance on September 1, that will prevent the building of any kind of business "shack" within an area abounding the University on the east by Williams Street, the north by Bass and Locust Streets, the west by Fifth Street and the south by the city limits. Joe Simpich, a member of the student body, appealed to the city council to pass this ordinance in order to protect the beauty of the campus and the appearance of the town near the University.

In the last few years a number of "shacks" have been erected near the University and there has been a very strong complaint from citizens of the town who are interested in the beauty of Columbia and in protecting the appearance of the town, with the hope that the city council would prohibit the construction of any more buildings of this nature.

Railey Praises Song Book.

Thomas T. Railey, of St. Louis, who wrote so many of the University of Missouri songs, praises the new University of Missouri Song Book. "Congratulations upon the appearance and construction of the new song book," he writes.

If you haven't sent your check for $2.50 for a copy of the book, order, now. The book is attractive and well worth having.

R. O. T. C. Wins Three Cups.

The R. O. T. C. unit of the University of Missouri, in competition with students from similar universities and colleges won three of the five cups offered in the R. O. T. C. encampment at Fort Snelling, Minn. which closed July 23. Missouri ranked first in the big contests, winning the cup offered for the best unit, the cup offered for the advanced course, and the cup offered for the pistol. The Missourians were recognized by officers of the encampment as being the best drilled cadets, and ranked high in orderliness. Major O. S. Wood was in charge.

Brutus Hamilton To Teach History

Brutus K. Hamilton, former football and track star of the University has accepted a position as instructor in history in Westminster College at Fulton. He will also act as assistant football coach and head track coach.

Mr. Hamilton was graduated from the University in '22 with the A. B. degree, having done his major work in history and political science and his minor work in English. Last year he taught in Kansas. He is an athlete of world-wide reputation, having won the American College Championship in the pentathlon events in '22 and finishing second in that event in the Olympic games at Antwerp in '20. He was a member of the University football team in '21, winning his "M" at left end. He was also a member of the track team for these three years and was captain in '22. He was again a member of the American Olympic team that was competing at Paris last summer.

Batsell Gets Paris Appointment.

Walter R. Batsell, A. B. '23, A. M. '24, who last Christmas won the George Louis Beer prize of the American Historical Association with his master's thesis on the Mandatory System, has just been appointed chief of the Information Section on International Relations at the American Library at Paris, France, and left for Paris on July 12. He won this appointment over a number of doctors of philosophy and men much further along academically than he. This new office has been created by the Carnegie Foundation, the Library Association, and other organizations. Its purpose is to furnish information to American organizations on international affairs and movements, in the form of pamphlets and outlines.

New Hospital Is Finished.

The new $250,000 University hospital which is an addition to the Parker Memorial Hospital will be completed by the time school opens this fall. The new hospital is complete in every detail and is a remarkable building, embodying the latest features in modern hospital equipment. The new building is just south of Parker Memorial Hospital with the main entrance on Sixth Street. Alumni and former students will find an inspection of this building interesting on their return to the campus.

Alumni Association Scholarships.

The Bartlesville, Okla. Alumni Association has paved the way for every other county and city alumni association of the University of Missouri for doing real constructive work. Wilson Metcalf, a graduate of the Bartlesville High School, has enrolled in the University this fall, the recipient of a scholarship amounting to two hundred dollars and tuition from the Bartlesville Alumni Association. This scholarship is to be an annual award. The interest in the award of this scholarship in Bartlesville was of such proportion that twelve students of the Bartlesville High School are enrolled in the University this fall.

"I want to urge strongly upon the city and county alumni associations that each of them give an annual scholarship, such as has been done by the Bartlesville Alumni Association," said Frank B. Rollins, president of the General Alumni Association, after greeting Mr. Metcalf and welcoming him to the University of Missouri. "I think this is one of the finest things that our Alumni Associations do and I do hope that the other city and county organizations will do the same thing and make arrangements to award these scholarships annually."

"I like the University of Missouri," said Wilson Metcalf upon his arrival at the University, "and I am going to do my best to establish a good record while here to show my appreciation to the Bartlesville Alumni Association for giving me this scholarship of two hundred dollars and tuition. I needed this scholarship badly and when I become an Alumnus of the University of Missouri, I am going to interest myself in giving scholarships for I know what they mean."

The Song Book An Alumni Enterprise.

The University of Missouri song book just received from the publishers is indeed a creditable publication and one which is meeting with the approval of critics of musical publications. Hundreds of alumni and former students all over the country have sent in their checks for $2.50, ordering the book. The Missouri song book is an enterprise of the alumni association and as such should have the support of every alumnus and former student. Orders for the book should run into the thousands.

The Arts And Science Course.

A father and mother, who are alumni of the University of Missouri, accompanied by their son and daughter, visited the Alumni office during the latter part of August while they were in Columbia making preparations for their two children to enter the University this fall. The children were asked what division of the University they were going to enter. In reply the father, speaking for the children, stated that the boy thought now that he wanted to be an engineer and the girl thought now that she wanted to be a teacher of Home Economics.

"But they are not absolutely positive," said the father, "consequently mother and I are insisting that these youngsters take a general course in Arts and Science and at least complete the work for the A. B. degree before they decide just what they want to study. Our University experience prompts us to say without hesitation, that every boy and girl who goes to the University should by all means, take an A. B. degree as a foundation for his or her future work."

For a belief to be current among alumni and former students, that a general course in Arts and Science is the best foundation that can be laid for super-structure in higher educational training is very significant. If students can possibly afford the time, they should by all means take a general course, as suggested, before specializing. It will give them an opportunity to make a more intelligent choice, than is possible at the age of 17 or 18, when they enter the University and to construct a solid foundation upon which to base the work in which they desire to specialize.

"We have told our children that our experience has taught us that a student gets out of college, about what he puts into it," said these alumni parents. "The chance comes only once and the main object of the students should be a conscious self-development for the good of others and that is only brought about by a generous contribution of the students themselves to the things that count." It is a fact, that when children are given advice of parents who have had such a University experience and the only thing that could be better would be, for the children to adhere to the advice.

Song Book Is Widely Distributed.

The first complete University of Missouri Song Book has just arrived from the printers and is being distributed widely to alumni and former students all over the world. The book contains the words and music of all University songs, of songs from each of the student plays in years gone by and a representative song from each of the fraternities and sororities on the campus.

The book sells for $2.50. This is a most reasonable charge considering the time and work put in on the book. The University of Missouri Song Book is most reasonably priced compared to the prices of other school song books. All orders for the book should be accompanied by a check for $2.50 and sent to the office of the Alumni Recorder, 217 Jesse Hall, Columbia, Mo.

University of Missouri Day.

University of Missouri Day, celebrated each year at the Missouri State Fair, is proving to be one of the most important on the yearly program. At this time hundreds of alumni and former students are in Sedalia attending the state fair and no finer opportunity could be afforded to get them together to remind them of their allegiance to their alma mater. Dean F. B. Mumford of the Missouri College of Agriculture, in his address to the alumni at their annual University of Missouri Day luncheon, particularly stressed the importance of constructive and worthwhile work on the part of the alumni and former students. University of Missouri Day has grown from a very small affair to immense proportions. Over one thousand alumni and former students registered at the alumni headquarters at the State Fair this year and there were over one hundred university representatives contributing to the success of the affair as exhibitors, superintendents and assistants and it was simply impossible to take care of the great number who wanted to attend the University of Missouri Day Luncheon.

"Shacks" And The Campus.

Alumni and former students of the University are thankful to the members of the city council of Columbia for passing an ordinance prohibiting the building of any more "shacks" near the University. There is no question but that the city council of Columbia is justified to the fullest extent in taking measures of precaution in this regard and, for the benefit of the town as a whole, Columbia, should immediately adopt a building code which will protect the exceptional beauty of the town. It does not pay for the city council to delay in a matter of such great importance. It is to be regretted that such a code of restriction has not already been adopted by the city of Columbia. The students and townspeople who have so ardently fought for an ordinance prohibiting further building of "shacks" near the University, should not retard their efforts until a building code of proper proportions has been adopted for the protection of the beauty of the city of Columbia and for the protection of the property owners. At the present time not even a building permit is required in Columbia.

President Stratton D. Brooks has declined the offer of the presidency of the University of Okla. for which we are all extremely thankful. We want him to stay at Missouri. He is a good president.

Memorial Campaign Is First One Of Importance At M. U.

Memorial pledges to the amount of approximately $300,000 are needed to complete the campaign for $800,000 for the Memorial Union and Stadium. Perhaps the alumni do not yet realize that in the history of the University the Memorial Campaign is the first concerted effort on the part of the alumni and former students to do something in a concrete way for the University. But that is a statement of fact.

It is high time for the Memorial campaign to be completed; but the work cannot be finished until each alumnus and former student has subscribed. Those who have the campaign in charge have been convinced that if an alumnus or former student can be made to understand the magnitude and scope of these enterprises, he will contribute voluntarily to the Memorial fund of his means and of his ability in soliciting subscriptions from those who have not pledged. In adopting this broad view the directors of the campaign have undertaken the task of acquainting our large body of alumni and former students with facts and conditions showing the need of a Memorial Union and Stadium on the campus at the present time. This has been through the publication of the attractive book, "The Memorial Union and Stadium" and the many smaller pamphlets and circulars, all of which were sent to every alumnus and former student of the University. A monthly news letter has also been sent to them giving the details of the progress of the campaign.

Those of our former students who visit the University often are fully aware of the importance of these Memorial projects, but it has been difficult to convey to many others not familiar with the growth of the University and the changed conditions in the University community, their great need.

The state-wide, nation-wide, world-wide campaign plans as outlined in this issue of the monthly Memorial News Letter have been adopted with enthusiasm and endorsed by alumni everywhere. Of course this plan means hard and incessant work on the part of those alumni who share the belief that alumni support is a contributing factor in the desire to show appreciation of training at the hands of the University of Missouri.

Steady progress is being made on the plans for this big campaign in spite of the magnitude of the task. This requires patience, tact, common sense, energy, charity, hope and faith that alumni and former students of the University of Missouri have that broad point of view which their education, to be of lasting value, must have given them.

You who have not subscribed to the Memorial projects should do so at once. You have subscriptions blanks. Fill one out for a Life Membership of $100 and send it to Room 217, Jesse Hall, Columbia, Mo., at once and help this work tremendously. If you mail your subscription now you will do a great service, and the chairman of the Memorial Campaign in your city will not have to solicit you when the big campaign is on November 3-15. Help your city chairman! Help the University!! Now!!!

Stone And Marble Works Destroyed.

The Peoria (Ill.) Stone and Marble Works, of which John G. Welch, A. B. '03, A. M. '04, is secretary and treasurer, was destroyed by fire on June 15. It is one of the largest of its kind in the country and installed much of the beautiful stone and marble in the Missouri Capitol. The loss is estimated at $350,000, with insurance amounting to $140,000. Mr. Welch is president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association in Peoria. Mrs. Welch was formerly Miss Nelle R. Farley, and attended the University.

Capitol Dedication Is Oct. 6.

Minnesota Dean Addresses Students.

M. E. Haggerty, Dean of the School of Education, University of Minn., addressed the summer session students on numerous occasions during his visit to the University of Missouri in July.

Every One Urged To Buy Song Book.

"No one who ever attended the University of Missouri can afford not to own a copy of the University of Missouri Song Book," said F. B. Rollins, president of the Alumni Association in commenting on the song book. "For years and years alumni and former students of the University of Missouri have been clamoring for a book containing all the songs, both words and music, which have had so much to do with the history and traditions of the school and the fine spirit of the student body. Now that the book has been published it behooves every alumnus and former student of the University to purchase a copy. The cost is but $2.50 and considering the time, work and expense of compiling this material and the attractiveness of the book, it is priced decidedly reasonably. Every University of Missouri song is in the book, all the yells, a song for each sorority and fraternity and the songs from all the student plays.

"As president of the Alumni Association I want to urge every alumnus and former student of the University to purchase a copy of this book."

Robt. Miller Says Song Book Is O. K.

"The song book is OK, well selected, edited and printed in a very attractive form," writes Robert Miller, 1916 Main Street, Dallas, Texas. "No one can even glance through it without being transported back to the days when he or she sang those songs or yelled those yells. Its memories create all over again the same atmosphere with which its readers (or singers) were formerly so intimately associated, serving to drive home the truth of 'Your College Life Is a Dream Life.'"

New Landmark Is Found

One of the little known landmarks around the University was discovered in one of the stone pillars at the Eighth Street entrance to the West Campus. It is the corner stone of the original main building of the University which had been removed after the fire of 1892 when the building was destroyed.

The inscription on the stone reads, "Corner Stone in Main Building of University. Laid July 4, 1840. Removed after Fire of January 9, 1892. Placed Here September 21, 1915."

The stone now reposes next the ground at the southeast corner of the west pillar of the two comprising the north entrance to the University grounds. It is doubtful if a dozen students each year have ever noticed or been told of the presence of this old stone, which has witnessed thousands of students who have been graduated during its eighty-four years on the campus. Its position is inconspicuous and, therefore, it could tell more of the history of the University of Missouri than a history could tell.

Lying next to the ground, it would never be observed except accidentally by someone closely examining the posts. Even when the location is known, the stone is not easily found.

New Traffic Laws Are Made.

Alumni and former students are hereby cautioned to observe the new automobile traffic regulations in Columbia when they return this fall. There are boulevard stops on most of the business streets leading onto Broadway and left-hand half or full turns on Broadway are prohibited between the Methodist church and Sixth Street. You might say that this is a little "high hat-tish." It is, really, a long step from the stepping stone to the Traffic Cop.

Miss Ella Moore Is Supervisor.

Research work done by graduate students at the University of Missouri was praised by Doctor Brooks. He said there was ample opportunity for everyone at the University, and invited graduates of the colleges to complete their studies at the University.

Former Professor Is Honored.

Professor Hugh A. Smith, A. B. '97, M. A. '98, formerly an instructor in the University, has been awarded the Cross of Legion of Honor for his services to France as an educator, both in that country and in America.

In 1921-22 Professor Smith conducted a series of lectures at the Sorbonne on Franco-American relations, which were very favorably received. The Robert M. Graham Post No. 280, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has made arrangements for a life-size portrait of Robert M. (Peaches) Graham to be painted from a photograph and to present this portrait to the University of Missouri for the Memorial Union Building.

The portrait will be painted by Charles G. Brethauer, a St. Louis artist, who recently completed a portrait of Roy Stone for the Roy Stone Post 1003, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Jefferson City. This portrait now hangs in the Hall of Representatives in the Capitol Building there.

"Peaches" Graham in whose memory the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was named was graduated from the University with the degree of B. S. in Agr. 1915. He was a member of the football team and a most loyal and lovable student. He was killed in France in the fall of 1918.

After the third lightless night, the business men took matters into their own hands. "If the city won't pay for the lights, we will," they told the city council.

Where was Lima when the lights went out?

MAZDA, the Mark of a Research Service. It is the mark which assures the user of the lamp that the manufacturer had advantage of the most recent findings of the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company. Invention moves from the ideal to the real. So the researches of men trained to investigate and experiment make impressive contributions to human progress.

As part of an economy program, Lima, Ohio, tried turning out the street lights. The trial lasted three nights.

One newspaper summarized the result as "the probability of a crime wave, increase in the number of traffic accidents, and the loss to Lima business houses of a gigantic sum during the holiday season."
