No Christmas gift to a former classmate could be more inexpensive or more appreciated than a year's subscription to the Missouriian. Also, add New Year's reminders: Start the year right yourself with a Missouriian subscription.

If you are still proud of Old Mizzou, you will want to know the daily news about the campus, whether you live in Missouri or on the other side of the world. In fact, the farther away you are, the more you need the news of your Alma Mater.

The $500,000 student memorial building is soon to be built, and it will mark a new effort on the part of the University to bind the ties more firmly between alumni and the school. The building is just as much for alumni as for active students, for therein will be kept records, trophies and prizes that mean so much to you "old boys."

The House of Representatives Says—

The following resolution was passed by members of the House of Representatives at Jefferson City the day after their visit to Columbia on the occasion of the dedication of the site of the Memorial Building and the Missouri-Oklahoma Football Game, Homecoming Day, November 12, 1921:

"Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, assembled in Second Extra Session, that we extend our hearty thanks to the University of Missouri, and our fellow member, Mr. James Sidney Rollins, for the kind invitation to the Missouri-Oklahoma football game.

"Those who accepted the invitation saw a great game, and were highly pleased that Missouri won.

"We are not unmindful that our chance for a fine recreation at our great State Educational Institution creates pleasant memories which will long live.

"Be it resolved further that a copy of this Resolution be sent by our Chief Clerk to President J. C. Jones of the University of Missouri.

Respectfully,

M. B. Chandler,

Chief Clerk."

James Sidney Rollins is Boone County's representative in the Missouri Legislature.

The resolution is reprinted in the Alumnus to show the close spirit of affiliation between the University of Missouri and the Missouri Legislature.

Meet An Old Friend---"Daddy" Defoe

For Twenty-nine Years He Has Helped Students Solve Their Difficulties—He's Still the Campus Idol.

When Forrest Donnell, president of the Association of Missouri Alumni, in a speech at the great Homecoming mass-meeting November 11, paid a tribute to "Daddy" Defoe, that staunch friend of every University student for the last twenty-nine years," he was accorded an applause by the students such as is given only to their most loved and respected friends on the faculty, showing the love and honor which they have for "Daddy" Defoe, now completing his twenty-ninth year as a member of the faculty of the University.

Luther Marion Defoe came to the University of Missouri for the first time forty years ago as a student. He was born on a farm in Moniteau County in 1860. His parents came from the sturdiest pioneer families, his father coming to that county from St. Louis County, and his mother from Tennessee. Before he came to Columbia, Doctor Defoe had taught for two years in a country school in Moniteau County, for one year as principal of a village school at Olean, Mo., for one year as principal of the high school at Plattsburg, Mo., and then for a year as teacher of mathematics at Richmond, Mo.

In 1881, he came to the University of Missouri as a student. He specialized here in physics. The University at that time had only about five hundred students, of whom very few were girls, as girls had been admitted only about ten years before. The atmosphere then was more like that of a high school, and in fact, about three hundred of these five hundred students were in the preparatory department, taking what was really high school work. There was no student government, and many legends connected with that time tell of such pranks as tying a cow to the President's front door, though there is no record of whether or not Doctor Defoe took part in these escapades.

For six years, Doctor Defoe stayed here as a student, though for the last two years he was teaching, as a "tutor," or what we would now call a student assistant. Then he went to Harvard University, where he received his A. B. degree, studying mathematics. He then went to Cambridge,

"Daddy" Defoe

England, to do graduate work in applied mathematics.

In 1893, he came back to Columbia as assistant professor of mathematics. In 1902 he was made professor of mechanics and became a member of the faculty of the School of Engineering. He taught during the administrations of President R. H. Jesse and President A. Ross Hill. The only man who is now connected with the University under whom Doctor Defoe had work as a student is Dr. J. C. Jones, now acting president of the University.

For fourteen years, Doctor Defoe has been a member of the discipline committee, of which he is at present the chairman. It is in this work that he has made himself the fast friend of every student and has earned his name, "Daddy" Defoe. Dealing always with the tangles and disputes of students, going over the same troubles year after year, he has never lost patience with them, but has done his best to bring each student to a realization of his obligations to his University. Always Doctor Defoe has been actuated by the highest ideals, and each student going to him for help or remonstrance, has seen in his attitude, not that of the scolding professor, but rather that of a friend, anxious to help and to straighten out any difficulties.

In his school work, in each class, he has been adored by his students, and many a man has gone away from the University strengthened by the inspiration he has received from this professor. Each former student coming back to Columbia, is anxious to look him up and talk to him again. To every student in the School of Engineering he has been the ideal of uprightness and scholarship, giving incentive for the best work both in school and out.

The influence of a man of this sort has meant much to the School of Engineering and to the University of Missouri. What each student has gained from association with a man of high ideals, of the most upright character, who has been not only a teacher of books, but of life and ideals, has reflected back, in the success of its graduates, upon the school, making it a better and a greater University of Missouri.

"How's 'Daddy' Defoe?" That's the question the old students always ask. And "How's his good, sweet, hospitable wife?"

The Homecoming of the Missouri Tigers

Ground Is Broken for Memorial Union Building— Sooners Go Home in Defeat.

"To the days when Alma Mater
"Sheltered us beneath her wing."

President J. C. Jones' Message

To the Alumni and Former Students of the University of Missouri:

In the name of your alma mater, I wish to extend to you a most cordial welcome. I am glad to welcome you back to the University in the name of the largest student body in the history of the institution, every member of which is imbued with that well-known Missouri spirit; in the name of the faculty which has demonstrated its devotion to the University by its loyal service through a period of severe economic pressure; in the name of the Board of Curators, who are making plans for the greater usefulness of the University to the people of this State.

In the name of students, faculty and curators, I welcome you, and in their name I ask your hearty co-operation.

J. C. Jones,
Acting President.

The Tigers Memorial Homecoming November 11 and 12 will long dwell in the memories of those who attended this glorious occasion. Unique in homecomings in many ways, a peculiar distinction was given to the celebration this year. It appealed in many ways to the great throng of loyal sons and daughters of Old Missouri that hurried back to the shelter of her wing for a breath of the atmosphere found only around the columns. And it appealed in a way other than the usual great appeal of the football game, when Coach Jimmy Phelan's Tigers humbled the haughty Sooners 24 to 14.

A memorial was dedicated to the sons of Old Missouri who gave their lives "over there" during the World War. And a strain of reverence was noted throughout the commemoration and reunion that added a leaven of gracious seriousness to the entire convention. Missouri has begun a new career in her life as a leading University. And the occasion of the breaking of the ground for her Memorial on the Homecoming of 1921 was an epoch-marking event. Its significance lent to the annual festival a tug at the heartstrings that could not be denied. And the sons and daughters of Old Missouri living paid homage to those who have passed on that we might live in freedom and peace.

Friday morning, early arrivals found the Tiger-town a veritable carnival of riot and color. And following the footprints of the Tiger, marked everywhere in Old Gold on the sidewalks, the advance of alumni rooters joined the students in the opening the week-end of jollification and commemoration. The streets presented a gala appearance in their colorful decorations, prizes having been offered for the best decorated house and the best decorated store window. And Columbians co-operated fully with the students and faculty of the University in making the alumni feel at home and that the Tiger camp was ready for their entertainment.

All day long Friday the bulging trains lumbered into town to disgorge their cargo of hilarious Tigers. For every man, woman and child that day was a Tiger all the way through! Long before nightfall thousands of visitors thronged the streets and packed the hotels, sororities and fraternity houses, as well as the private houses of Columbia. Never before had so many persons come to the Homecoming except at a time when Kansas and Missouri met on Thanksgiving Day.

The mass meeting held in the auditorium of Jesse Hall at 7:15 Friday evening started the official opening of Homecoming. There, before a packed amphitheater of wildly cheering Tiger rooters, talks were made by Coach Jimmy Phelan, Earl Nelson, an alumnus known better to many as "Hot Air" Nelson, Forrest Donnell, president of the alumni association of Missouri, and Dr. John Pickard, who spoke on the dedication of the Memorial Union Building. With the Missouri Band playing "Dixie," "I'm a Son," and other pep pieces, and closing the meeting with "Old Missouri," an enthusiasm and spirit, already at white heat, was fanned into flame.

The mob broke loose then, and swarmed out onto the campus, where, on the columns, a sign in six-foot flaming letters, blazed the word "TIGERS" with smaller signs used in yells saying "Yea,—Fight 'em." It was a sight never to be forgotten, and great credit should go to the engineers who put the letters up, one on each of the six columns, and fitted up the wiring of this intricate design. The dome of Jesse Hall also was lighted, giving the appearance of a fire within about to destroy the building. After a series of roaring yells led by the cheer leaders of the mounds, the throng with lighted torches marched in picturesque confusion to the athletic field where a gigantic bonfire and barbecue was held. Free eats attracted the enthusiasts, and the barbecue was a unique and successful addition to the evening's performance.

On Saturday morning, Homecoming Day, the parade a half mile in length and composed of more than seventy floats and features wended its historically picturesque way through the town, the intent spectators forming a surging wall on either side of the procession. The column started at College and Hudson avenues, going north to Broadway, and thence down and back to Ninth street, ending at Hitt and Lowry, the site of the Memorial Building. Somewhat grave by reason of the memorial casket to the University's World War dead, which followed the cars of the speakers, and a bit more dignified than parades of previous years because of the majestic appearance of the blue-clad R. O. T. C. cadets, the parade marched past a crowd which expressed its appreciation not in noisy demonstration but in a quiet response of deep attention.

Floats by organizations in the University depicted the early history of the institution, showing its remarkable development in recent years. The students of the School of Journalism distributed copies of their Peerade Xtra during the procession. Major A. M. Hitch, head of the Kemper Military Academy at Boonville, and 300 cadets passed Lowry street, President Jones and the other distinguished members on the program dropped out to prepare for the memorial ceremonies.

It is not necessary to go into a detailed description of the ceremony which marked the breaking of the ground for Missouri's Memorial to her sons. The rites were inspiring. Great men were present, and great speeches were made which touched the hearts of everyone present. And in spite of the biting cold of that bleak November morning, a throng stood for more than two hours listening with reverent respect to the addresses. And as with bared heads they stood, the cadets at attention, and a small cubicle stone was dropped into the little hole marking the beginning of the Tiger Memorial, there was a feeling and sentiment permeating there that made the occasion one of dignified beauty and withal power that left an undying impression with everyone.

Frank B. Rollins, chairman of the Memorial Committee, opened the ceremonies with a short address, following the prayer by the Rev. J. D. Randolph. Other speeches were made by Dr. J. C. Jones, acting president of the University; Maj.-Gen. Peter E. Traub, former commander of the 35th Division; Hiram Lloyd, Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri; Col. John H. Parker, commandant of Jefferson Barracks; Col. J. E. Rieger, commander of the 139th Infantry in the 35th Division; Col. E. M. Stayton, commander of the 110th Engineers in the World War; and Forrest Donnell, president of the Missouri State Alumni Association.

During the entire two hours, the cadet corps of University students stood through the ceremonies. A chilling wind swept across a drab sky, marked here and there with scurrying splotches of gray that threatened to mass and become snow. But through the cold those boys stood with a spirit as loyal as that which carried the men on, whose sacrifice they were honoring.

And then came the Oklahoma game! It was a thrilling exhibition of gridiron sport. From the very start, the Tigers outplayed the hard-hitting footballers from Soonerland. A pass to Hamilton by "Chuck" Lewis resulted in a touchdown in the very first period, and Missouri obtained a lead from which she was never headed. The playing of the Tigers was a feature of the Valley's interesting schedule. Doped to go down in defeat, they came out with a trio of touchdowns and a field goal that was entirely too much for Bennie Owen's gridmen, whose duet of touchdowns counted but 14 points to a total of 24 for the Missouri Tigers. To name that Tiger team would but to eulogize. They all deserve untold credit for the merit shown. "Chuck" Lewis, the inimitable "Chuck", played a wonderful game of ball; so did Capt. "Herb" Blumer at tackle; so did Roscoe Hill, at the other tackle; so did "Herb" Bunker at center, who was forced out with an injured shoulder, and so did others.

It was a ravenous, revengeful eleven of fighting Bengals that took on the invading Sooners. For a year ago the Oklahomans sent the Tigers down to an ignominious defeat. And such things are not to be without atonement in Tiger-town! Fighting as they had never fought, the charges of Coach Phelan carried the battle to the visitors all the way. And in the stands, the wildly cheering, swaying mobs of rooters went wild with each lunge or pass or kick. Missouri won.

Echoes From Along the Kaw River

Tigertown Is Royally Entertained by Kansas City Alumni.

K. U. dedicated the quarter-million-dollar stadium at Lawrence and elevated "Potsy" Clark, Jayhawk head coach, to an idolized pedestal of hero worship all in the same afternoon. And Missouri's chance for a one-point victory held the Kansas stands breathless until Jimmie Phelan's men lost the ball within 10 yards of the Crimson and Blue goal posts less than one minute before a pistol shot announced that the 1921 Mid-West Conference classic was history.

Over on the Kaw River a two-day homecoming party was staged. Back along the Hinkson the biennial two-day emigration was beginning.

Hundreds went early to the last football mass meeting of the year Tuesday evening, and they went early for too many of them had been turned away from the Oklahoma mass meeting. Coach Phelan opened with a man-to-man frank discussion; the back field was stronger but the line was weaker than in the Missouri-Sooner game and the team as a unit was not the fighting machine it had been when the Tiger homecoming game looked as though it might be a victory for the invaders.

After Dr. J. W. Hudson had predicted a bad day for the Jayhawk on Thursday "for is not that the day we eat birds?" the meeting hit its stride through the darkness to the baseball and a few minutes later tramped out on Rollins Field where freshmen emancipation was celebrated by burning the bright headgear, or rather that part of it which wasn't hidden away for future reminder of the first three months at M. U.

The exodus had already begun Tuesday night. It assumed greater proportions Wednesday when three special trainloads of Tiger followers left the Wabash depot in charge of the Old Reliable Conductor L. E. Hill. Eight coaches were packed on the first special leaving immediately after lunch. Another three hours later and still another that night combined in carrying away the largest football delegation which ever accompanied any Missouri team to a foreign field. Columbia's population decreased nearly 3,000 persons over night.

Perhaps there were old grads at the Union Station in Kansas City when the first special dumped some 800 enthusiastic students and loyal Columbia citizens into the hum-drum murmur of those long corridors leading from the train sheds.

"Ray, Rah! Mizzou, Mizzou!

Ray, Rah! Mizzou, Mizzou!

Ray, Rah! Mizzou, Mizzou!

Rah, Rah! Bully-for-Old-Mizzou

Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah!

Mizzou! Rah-rah-rah-rah!

Missouri! Missouri!

Gr-r-r-r-r-r—

Ti-gers!"

Lusty throats and hoarse vocal cords helped make the air vibrate with "The Varsity". Cheers rang through the mammoth waiting room while several thousand Kansas Cityans and outgoing passengers wondered if another American Legion convention were about to manifest itself.

The team stayed at the Baltimore. The Kansas City Alumni Association of the University of Missouri managed to have Acting-President J. C. Jones and Governor Arthur M. Hyde there as banquet speakers to more than two hundred guests. Sixty M men elected officers and perfected an organization. Kansas City forgot smallpox that night and the situation has improved daily since.

Doctor Jones explained the million-dollar building program of the University and pointed out needs, emphasizing that enrollment would have to be limited or fees increased unless more funds were made available. Endowments for the University were suggested. Governor Hyde favored them in his address and also suggested a special tax for the maintenance of the State University. Charles M. Howell, on behalf of the Kansas City Alumni, urged that Missouri return to the two-term plan instead of continuing the present three-semester, year-round policy under which the University has been conducted since 1918. Mr. Howell believes the former system preferable in that Missouri would then have an athletic season as long as that of other schools in the Valley. Senator Frank M. McDavid and Coach Phelan spoke last. The banquet had lasted four hours.

Officers for the coming year were elected, R. C. Kemper being chosen as president, W. E. Kemp as vice-president and Robert Swofford as secretary-treasurer.

In another room in the same hotel, M men from '88 to '22 gathered and elected leaders: President, Lawson Price, Jefferson City; first Vice-President, Walter Goodson, Macon; second Vice-President, Shannon Douglass, Kansas City and secretary-treasurer, Sam Shirkey, Columbia; Executive Committee: Edward Klein, St. Louis, C. B. VanDyne, Sedalia, Dan Nee, Springfield. One of the most important actions of the meeting was the decision to hold an annual business meeting of the M men immediately preceding the homecoming game at Columbia each year.

The man now in the University met the old timer; and looking around the group one might have recognized Walter Goodson '99, Macon; Holmes Hall '99, Spencer Harris '99, C. D. VanDyne '17, Leslie Wackher '21, Sedalia; J. W. Gibson '96, Gower; George N. English '96, George R. Edwards '13, W. N. Rider '18, Charles W. Faucett '17, G. M. Browning '21, J. Craig Ruby '20, George N. Bond '22, Dave Dexter '11, P. A. Hartung, R. S. Bogie, N. W. Bogie, Shannon Douglass, Billie Bles, Sam B. Strother '08, Dr. E. L. Miller, O. H. Swearingen, R. W. Hodge, Fred Williams, William Collins, Kansas City; William E. Baumgartner '16, Odessa; E. W. Knobel '13, Grant City; M. W. Talbot '13, Albuquerque, N. M.; Paul Shepard '14, Independence; C. B. Rucker '09, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Harry Tidd '13, Hutchinson, Kan.; Warren W. Browne '15, St. Louis; A. J. Stanowski, St. Joseph.

On the main floor lobby former Missouri men were conspicuous during the entire evening. Old-time yells, unfamiliar to present day Tiger followers, were resurrected and hurled at onlookers much to the pleasure of both belligerents. There wasn't a Jayhawk in sight that night.

Next morning shivering holiday crowds gathered wherever the University of Missouri Cadet Band stopped a moment in its parade through two miles of the business district. The parade started near Twelfth and Oak streets with cars streaming Old Gold and Black decorations following the strains of "I'm a Son of Old Mizzou". Hilarious Missouri backers hurried along with pennants hanging from the rear collar of their overcoats. The onlookers were more than tolerant, they were appreciative and when the band played "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" it is doubtful if more than a few were thinking of either Columbia or Lawrence being the excitement of two states that night.

Lawrence, the Jayhawk's nest some forty miles up the Kaw River, began to swell with visitors soon after day dawned. The first train left Kansas City while it was yet dark and soon there was one every hour until 12:30 o'clock. It is safe to say that 12,000 visitors poured into the color-bedecked city and made their way to the Memorial stadium. Most of the city itself went too and if the newly arrived had not eaten, then many of them did not eat until after the game.

Of course there was the homecoming parade. Every college man and woman knows the cleverness and originality which distinguishes such a stunt and it is the tenth man in each instance who would rather see any other kind of a parade. Kansas did well. It was an entertaining and worth-while morning.

The stadium was thrown open at noon. It is yet unfinished but a splendid memorial, two immense concrete stands on either side towering high above the gridiron accommodating 43 rows of seats in each stand. It is doubtful if a more fitting tribute to the bravery of college men who fell in the World War could have been selected. The stadium compels respect, it retains college atmosphere and spirit, and within the two there is an enviable combination but rarely attained.

The stands and temporary bleachers filled rapidly and to capacity. Governor Hyde of Missouri was there. So was Doctor Jones of the University. So was a youngster probably not more than 12 years old but not missing such an opportunity to invade Kansas and flaunt Missouri colors in the faces of thousands of waving Crimson and Blue ribbons. Big Jess Willard was there, but he was apparently neutral.

The whistle sounded. Every Missourian stood nervously taunt. Spurgeon kicked off and the ball shot through the air almost to the Missouri goal posts. "Chuck" Lewis was there and had reached the 30-yard line on the return before he was downed.

It was now that Missourians, who had seen the Tigers in action two weeks before against the Oklahoma Sooners, were waiting to see whether the team they backed had slumped or if it could show the homecoming stamina.

Lincoln failed to gain, Kershaw made a yard, Lewis was forced to punt. Missourians swallowed hard. That little touch of fear could not be downed. The Tigers either lacked the ground-gaining, hard-hitting punch or they were meeting a most worthy foe. A few minutes later when Missouri, recovering the ball 5 yards from the K. U. goal and with four downs to a possible chance at a touchdown after Lewis had made a beautiful 20-yard run only to have his team lose the ball on the next play. The playing switched from one end of the field to the other and then, three yards from the center of the field, Kansas began a series of passes and line plunges which brought them to the go, could not put the ball across the line and was forced to rely upon Lewis' dropkick for the first 3 points of the game, then the struggle became one of whether Missouri could hold Kansas as Kansas had the Tigers.

Missouri couldn't. The Kansas offensive playing was deserved applause from Jayhawker throats. The Tigers fell back each time. When there remained only 18 yards between the crouching Tigers and their defended goal, the Jayhawk passed, Wilson to Kreuger, for a touchdown. Failure to kick goal possibly boomed Missouri spirits. Missourians knew their team could fight. But locating the trouble and remedying it wasn't easily done. There was no doubting either, that with the dope slightly against them, the Kansas team was fighting a praiseworthy battle.

In the second quarter Missouri lost

Missouri goal and left the score for the rest of the first half 13-3, Jayhawk on top of Tiger.

Between halves both university bands entertained the city-full bowl while the Ku Ku Klan of Kansas and the Razzers of Missouri vied with each other for stunt supremacy.

"Jimmie Phelan will tell it to them," whispered each Missourian to himself during the half, confidently and hopefully expecting the Tigers to come back with an offensive that would sweep Kansas off its feet with surprise.

Missouri did come back with a wonderful attack. Lincoln returned the ball from the kickoff to the 30-yard line and Missouri began a 70-yard march toward the opposite end of the gridiron which did not end until Lewis went around right end for

The American Association of Universities

Annual Meeting is Held in Columbia—Forty-five Delegates Attend.

November 3, 4, and 5 the Association of American Universities, a national organization composed of the twenty-four biggest universities in the country, held its annual meeting in Columbia. The representatives to the meeting were the presidents and graduate deans of the various universities. Forty-five delegates, including ten from the University of Missouri were present.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the problems of education, organization, and administration which confront all executive officers of large colleges. Among the subjects discussed were: Time which should be required for the work for different degrees, especially graduate degrees; the organization of the freshman class and the problems connected with their control; the question of the place of the junior college and the credit which should be accorded to junior college graduates; the concerted support which should be given by each university to scholarly publications and periodicals.

Dean F. W. Blackmar, presided at the sessions of the Conference of Graduate Deans and Chancellor Ernest H. Lindley at the several sessions of the Association, both representing the University of Kansas, which held the presidency of the organization. It was decided to hold the next meeting in November, 1922, at Johns Hopkins University, in Baltimore. The University of Nebraska was given the presidency for the coming year.

The delegates were entertained during their stay in Columbia by Acting President and Mrs. J. C. Jones at an informal dinner, by the University at luncheon at the Daniel Boone Tavern, by the Faculty Club at dinner, by the Home Economics Department at a luncheon in the new Home Economics Building and by the Commercial Club with an automobile tour of the town and University.

At its closing session the association passed resolutions thanking Acting President and Mrs. Jones, the Commercial Club, the Home Economics Department, Dean Walter Miller, the Faculty Club, and the University of Missouri for the courtesy and entertainment which was accorded the delegates while they were here.

Among the delegates were men of national and international reputation in scientific, educational, and political circles. Dr. C. H. Haskins, of Harvard University, has been American commissioner to negotiate peace, the American member of a commission on Belgian and Danish affairs, and of a special commission on the Saar Valley. He is also president of the American Historical Society.

Dr. Herbert Hawkes is dean of the Graduate School of Columbia University and an authority on mathematics. Dr. A. H. Thorndyke, of Columbia University, is one of the best authorities on English in the country. Dr. Ray L. Wilbur is president of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, in California. He served with Secretary Herbert C. Hoover as chief of the Conservation Division of the United States Food Administration during the war, and delivered a powerful address before our University in 1917 on food conservation for the winning of the war.

Dr. Guy S. Ford, from the University of Minnesota, was a member of the Creel Commission of Public Information in Washington, D. C., during the war. He was director of the civic and educational publications division, which issued such quantities of war literature. Dr. A. O. Leuschner, of California, is an astronomer of note. Dr. H. V. Ames, of the University of Pennsylvania, is an author and editor with a wide reputation. Dr. W. L. Cross, dean of the Graduate School of Yale University, is also editor of the Yale Review.

Dr. James E. Creighton, Dean of the Graduate School of Cornell University, is one of the leading philosophical thinkers of the day and chief editor of the Philosophical Review. Incidentally, he is cousin to former President Hill and was his major professor at Cornell. Another eminent philosopher among the delegates was Dean Alfred H. Lloyd, of the University of Michigan.

Among the delegates, representing the University of Iowa, was Dr. George W. Stewart, acting Dean of the Graduate School, in the absence of Dean Seashore. Dr. Stewart is a brother of our Professor O. M. Stewart and, like his brother, a physicist of note. From the University of Indiana came Dean Carl H. Eigenmann, the foremost ichthyologist of America today. Various classes in the University had the pleasure of hearing him lecture between the sessions of the Association.

Then there were Dean William McPherson, a famous chemist, from the University of Ohio; Dean David A. Robertson, of the University of Chicago, the Secretary of the Association; Dean Arthur H. Daniels, a psychologist, representing the University of Illinois; Professor John H. Latane, a historian, of the Johns Hopkins University; Dean William F. Magie, physicist, of Princeton; Dean Charles S. Slichter, mathematician, from the University of Wisconsin.

The presidents of the Universities comprising the Association are usually in attendance at these meetings. On account of the unavoidable change in the date, made at the last moment, only five presidents were here: Acting President Jones; Chancellor Ernest H. Lindley, University of Kansas; Presidents Ray L. Wilbur, Stanford; President Walter D. Scott, Northwestern; and Chancellor Samuel Avery, Nebraska.

One of the most interesting figures of the convention was Dr. Milton J. Greenman, director of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy in Philadelphia. He came as the guest of the Association and read a very interesting paper on "Concerted Action Toward Full Support of Scholarly Publications."

Are Honored by Masons.

Forrest C. Donnell, of firm of Spencer & Donnell, St. Louis, Mo., A. B. '04, LL. B. '07, President of Alumni Association of the University of Missouri, and Major Jas. W. Skelly, B. S. C. E. 1896, C. E. 1899, Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets, recently were honored by the Masons of the United States by receiving Knight Commander Court of Honor (promotion from thirty-second degree). Jas. S. McIntyre, LL. B. '97, and LL. B. '99, Boatmen's Bank Bldg., received the 33rd degree.

A STAUNCH FRIEND OF M. U.*Frank B. Rollins Presides at the Memorial Exercises.

On Homecoming Day with simple but impressive ceremonies ground was broken for the great Memorial Union. Officers of the Army who commanded our boys in the Great War, representatives of various departments of the government of our State, the Acting President and members of the University Faculty, the President of the Alumni Association and many alumni and former students as well as a great throng of the present study body participated in these ceremonies which marked an epoch in the history of the University of Missouri.

The presiding officer on this occasion was Frank B. Rollins, who belongs to the fourth generation of the Rollins family which has labored for the upbuilding of the University. His great grandfather, A. W. Rollins, founded the Rollins Aid Fund which is still assisting student in the University. His grandfather, J. S. Rollins, as a young man of 26 in 1838 introduced in the General Assembly the bill to select the site for the University. Through a long life Major Rollins' labors for the University were so many, so effective, and so valuable that by formal action in 1873 the Curators conferred upon him the well deserved title of "Pater Universitatis Missouriensis". His father, George Bingham Rollins, was for many years a most efficient member of the Board of Curators.

Frank B. Rollins in addition to four years of college training, is a graduate of the Law Department of this University. He has also a degree from a first-class business college, has had four years' practical experience as a lawyer and is now a wide awake, active, alert business man.

He is keeping up the fine traditions of his family in public service. He has been president of the Commercial Club of Columbia. During the war he was Food Administrator for Boone County. He is now chairman of the charity organization of the City and is a very active member of the City Council. He is profoundly interested in the development of the University and realizes to the fullest extent that this noble memorial will not only stand through the coming years in testimony to the honor we bring to our heroic dead who died that we might live, but it will also testify to the worth of those University men who fought just as bravely and have lived to come back to us. This glorious tower erected here at the center of higher education in our state will forever stand as a memorial to the wonderful Missouri spirit which sent into the war thousands upon thousands of young men from all over this grand old commonwealth.

It was most fitting that Frank Rollins should preside at those exercises on Homecoming Day. For he is chairman of the Executive Committee of Nine which is to carry on this great campaign to a triumphant close and to erect this splendid memorial. Upon Frank Rollins will rest the executive responsibility. From him will come the dynamic power. To him we will all render loyal and earnest support. His "Committee of Nine" consists of three alumni: Frank B. Rollins, Frank S. Conley, E. Sidney Stephens; three faculty men, L. M. Defoe, John Pickard, Walter Miller, and three students, Fred Eldean, Carl Crocker and Mary Houk.

Let all, alumni, former students, students, citizens, friends of the University get behind this committee and help forward the glorious work.

Farmers' Week Is in January.

That the next annual Missouri Week will open in Columbia on Monday night January 16th, 1922 and close on Friday night, January 20th, is the announcement made jointly by the State Board of Agriculture and the University College of Agriculture. The State Corn Show, the Ham and Bacon Show, and all of the annual association meetings and events, will be held as usual during this period.

THE SHANGHAI AD CLUB*J. B. Powell Tells of Advertising Conditions in China.

"Shanghai, China, has one of the most unique advertising clubs in the world in that its membership is international and all discussions in the club must be conducted in both English and Chinese languages," states J. B. Powell, vice-president of the Associated Advertising Clubs for district sixteen, which includes China, Japan and the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Powell was formerly professor of advertising in the School of Journalism here and is now publisher of Millard's Review, an American magazine published in Shanghai, China. He is in this country to urge the passage of needed laws concerning American advertising in the Orient.

The Fourth Estate in its issue of June 25, carries the following from an address made by Powell at the convention of Associated Advertising Clubs of the World held recently in Atlanta, Ga.

"Mr. Powell, who originally was professor of advertising at the University of Missouri, has lived in China for nearly five years. He came to America about three months ago to attend the ad club convention and also to urge upon congress the passage of a 'blue sky' merchandising and advertising law that will serve to prevent the promotion of questionable business schemes in the Orient under the protection of the American flag.

"According to Mr. Powell, a number of promoters of questionable business enterprises in the United States have been driven out of domestic markets and are now finding a new and rich field in preying upon foreigners who have been led to believe that all American business is reputable.

"The American Chamber of Commerce of China, assisted by the Advertising Club of China, has caused to be introduced in congress a bill designed to prevent this sort of procedure in foreign lands under the protection of the American flag. It has already passed the house of representatives by an almost unanimous vote and is now pending in the United States senate.

"Mr. Powell said that if congress passed this measure it will be an important precedent, for heretofore similar legislation designated to prevent fraudulent advertising and promotions has been enacted by the various states."

THE UNION BUILDING

When the alumni came back to Columbia for Homecoming this year, the need of a real college home was felt by everyone. This need was emphasized by the unusually cold weather, and by the sight of clusters of old grads and students pausing in the chilly streets to talk things over hurriedly, from lack of a place to hold a real "get-together".

Of course Tiger cordiality and holiday spirit do not brook a cold wave, for even the disorganization was a big success. But in spite of the fact that all of the student organizations threw open their doors and did their best to welcome the returning alumni, the disadvantages of the situation were apparent.

Had the Union Memorial Building been ready for use, the whole Homecoming week-end would have been more successful. It would have been a center, a headquarters where returning graduates and former students would have found the hospitality of the campus extended to them. It would have been a general gathering place where everyone would have gone to leave wraps and bags, to find a room, or to get seats for the Missouri-Oklahoma game. They would have known that was the one spot where they could expect to find their pals and all of the old bunch sooner or later. As it was, the crowd was scattered here and there over the community, and many old friends missed each other entirely. With a warm, spacious union building in which to gather, the alumni would have felt that they were really getting into the center of college life again.

Students and alumni alike felt that the dedication of the Union Memorial Building on the morning of the big game held a promise of happier and better organized Homecomings in the future.

THE HOMECOMING COMMITTEE

Credit for the unusual success of the Memorial Homecoming should be given to the student body and their administrators and committees. Working with J. Max McCann, student president, the Homecoming Committees carried out their comprehensive and entertaining plans for the celebration with excellent results.

Especial commendation should be given to the decorations committee. These students spent much time and effort in the planning and execution of decorations unique in design and effect. The program committee also developed an interesting, well-organized series of events that made for the exceptional success of the Memorial Homecoming commemoration.

Following is the executive committee and the chairman of the committees that had charge of the event:

W. H. (Bill) Colman, chairman, Catherine (Billie) Ware and John Arnett; Frank Stonner, Parade; Francis H. Misselwitz, Publicity; E. E. Dittbrenner, Decorations; Walter Stradal, Entertainment; Newell Strother, Programs, and Clarence Lockwood, President of Ad Club, who looked after the motion pictures.

A WOMEN'S DEPARTMENT

With this issue of the ALUMNUS you will find space devoted to the interest of University women. Material about the activities of the women of the University and alumnae will be given the important mention which it deserves in every issue of the ALUMNUS hereafter. It is hoped that the alumnae readers of the ALUMNUS will contribute to this department from month to month and make it the mouthpiece of not only the active women students but a constructive department propounding the questions of vital interest to the alumnae of the institution. Out of the total attendance at the University of Missouri this year 3668, of these 961 are women. No little part have the University women played in the rapid advancement of the University and much credit and commendation is due them.

AN EXPLANATION

When Acting President Dr. J. C. Jones inaugurated the work of organizing the sons and daughters of the University of Missouri he had in mind the broadest possible thought in such an organization. It was his idea and it was his plan that is being carried out to include in the organization of the sons and daughters of the University of Missouri, not only the men and women who graduated but every former student or ex-student as you please to term them, even short course students, in fact every man or woman who ever enrolled in the University of Missouri in any division. Ordinarily the members of the association are referred to as alumni which in true sense of the word is wrong but supplies the easiest phraseology in referring to the members of the association.

Those who have received data blanks will remember the information asked for regarding former students who did not graduate. The files in the office of the Alumni Recorder are very meager relative to former students, consequently, we are making an urgent request for University of Missouri men and women to furnish us with detailed information at their command on former students. The plan of the organization as outlined by Acting-President Dr. Jones, is enlisting the sympathetic support of every son and daughter of the University of Missouri.

THE ALUMNI DIRECTORY

The last directory of former students and alumni was published in 1917. This office is in receipt of numerous requests for copies of a corrected directory which we are unable to supply. The blanks that have been sent out for data on former students and alumni were sent with the idea of getting as much information about as many former students and graduates as can be located for use in a new directory. After we once get a complete list of the former students and alumni and publish the corrected directory it is the intention to make the directory a quarterly publication. A corrected directory such as we desire to publish can not be a success without the co-operation of all former students and alumni. Every man and woman should bear in mind the importance of notifying the office of the Alumni Recorder every time a change of address is made.

INFORMATION WANTED

The office of the Alumni Recorder does not have a record of the officers of the classes graduated from the University of Missouri. In most every instance officers were elected for these classes and if the readers of the ALUMNUS will send any information about class officers to the office of the Alumni Recorder they will help in the progress of the record work. There is a great need for communication with the officers of the classes in keeping class spirit and traditions alive.

Information is also wanted with reference to class memorials either in the University buildings or on the Campus such as the planting of a tree. With this information those in charge of the next Homecoming can make arrangements for class meetings around these memorials which will have a tendency toward making the Homecoming more successful and also to bring out the true Homecoming spirit.

THE BAND!!!

How many appreciate this excellent institution within the institution? The Missouri band is famous. It is a most valuable asset to the University of Missouri.

ENROLLMENT

Many questions are asked by alumni who send in data blanks but the most common of these is request for information relative to enrollment in the University. Contrary to the general belief the enrollment in the session of 1921-22 is the largest enrollment in the history of the University. The enrollment in the Fall Term is 4,231, (961 women) distributed as follows:

College of Agriculture, Four-year curricula, 402, *Short winter course 92 .....	492
College of Arts and Science .....	1760
School of Business and Public Administration .....	125

Robt. L. Hill,
Alumni Recorder,
University of Missouri,
Columbia.

Dear Bob:—

I am heartily in accord with your plan to foster "Missouri Spirit" among the alumni. The plan on which President Jones and yourself are working, in regard to perfecting an organization will accomplish a great deal.

It is very difficult to keep alumni information up-to-date and it is only by up-to-date information of the alumni, widely disseminated, and local organizations actively at work for the University and co-operating with the central organization that much can be done to bind the body of alumni closer together.

Throughout the state, the local organizations should be of great value because the future of the University depends upon the approbation of Missouri communities. This support and approval can best be obtained peculiarly fitting and appropriate that the alumni affairs should receive new impetus from President Jones, as his long association with the school and the high esteem in which he has been held by all college generations has given him a place in the hearts of all alumni which few other persons have.

I wish you the best of success in your efforts.

Very truly yours,

James R. Bryant.

Preparing Plans for Women's Building

Fund Is $107,000—The Advisor of Women
Co-operative House.

Missouri Women are to have a building of their own; That could better illustrate the growing strength of the women of Missouri in numbers and in spirit.

The Appropriations Committee of the Legislature in session last winter granted a hearing to a representative body of women including Margaret Hawkins, President of University Women; Floy Joslyn, President of Mortar Board; Mary Chorn, President of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Gath, head of the Department of Physical Education, and Mary Houk, who presented the social and physical needs of the women, showing that they were still using the same amount of space for gymnasium work that they used when there were fifty women in the University and now the enrollment is one thousand.

The plea brought an appropriation of $150,000, which would have been a splendid start, but unfortunately the appropriations were out and the amount stands now at $107,000.

The plans are now in the hands of the architect, and the building will include a swimming pool, two gymnasias, a corrective gymnasium, one lecture room and offices for the teaching staff of the physical educational school.

There were dreams of a reception room where women might entertain, also a banquet room, but perhaps those can be added later.

This opens a new era for women and now University of Missouri will appeal to those women who have before left the state in search of better advantages.

The women of University of Missouri are thankful to the Legislature and to Dr. Jones for their splendid help in this big movement.

The Advisor of Women.

Giving aid and encouragement, and co-operating in every way possible, Miss Eva Johnston, adviser of women at the University of Missouri, has been one of the most important figures in the introduction of new ideas for the betterment of student life at the University. It was while Miss Johnston was acting adviser to women in 1909-10 that student government rules were first adopted. These rules have been in effect every since to the satisfaction of both the faculty and the student body.

Miss Johnston does does hold herself aloof but believes in mingling with students. She makes an effort to know the students personally, believing that this is one of the best ways to understand them and their problems.

Keenly appreciating the fact that the students require amusement, she expends a great deal of her time and energy in creating for them a normal and wholesome social life.

In her position as adviser of women, Miss Johnston is interested in the membership of the University in the American Association of College Women, an organization which devotes its efforts to the betterment of conditions among college women. She is also a member of the advisory board of the Y. M. C. A. and the Student Government Association, as well as an honorary member of the Women's Pan-Hellenic.

Miss Johnston received her first degree from the University in 1895. She received a teaching fellowship in Latin for the years 1905-07. The next two years she taught in the Columbia High School. From 1899 to 1901 she studied in Berlin and Heidelberg, returning to the University of Missouri to become an assistant professor of Latin, a position which she held until 1912.

A year's leave of absence was granted her in 1905. It was a year of absence from teaching, but not an absence from study as she received her Ph. D. degree at Koenigberg that year. In 1909-10 Miss Johnston was given the added responsibility of acting adviser of women, filling the position so well that she was permanently appointed in 1912.

First Co-operative House.

The Council of W. S. G. A., realizing the need for a Women's Co-operative House, bent their efforts toward establishing some such miniature

A lease was taken on the Welsh Academy, an ideal home for forty girls because of its location and spaciousness. The house was remodeled and the classes have gifts of furniture and silverware.

It was opened for occupancy after the Christmas holidays of last year and every room was taken. The girls are given an opportunity to help with the work thus furnishing some employment for those who care to take advantage of it.

It would mean much in the development of a sense of unity and a richer experience would be possible if dormitories could be furnished for all University Women who are now living in at least fifty different houses.

But this first move was a very successful one and can perhaps be duplicated by this year's council.

The Women's Athletic Association.

About ten years ago, because of the lack of interest in women's athletics, a Women's Athletic Association was formed "to promote athletics, to help create a love of sport, and to foster the ideal of good sportsmanship." At the present time, there are six hundred girls enrolled in our department of Physical Education. Of these one hundred and fifty girls are enrolled in each of the different sports which are played according to season during the school year. In addition to this eighty girls are enrolled this year in the interpretative dancing classes. Interpretative dancing is a comparatively new interest brought here three years ago by Miss Helen D. Gath, our Director of Physical Education for Women. This year the Athletic Association has eighty active members. This number is comparatively small because admission to the association is limited to a point system. Any one gaining one hundred points in any of the following activities may upon petition become a member:

A. Teams in any sport such as:
	pts.
Hockey .....	100
Basketball .....	100
Baseball .....	100
Volley Ball .....	100
Tennis .....	100
Archery .....	100
Dancing .....	100
Swimming .....	100
Squad .....	25
Second team .....	15
B. Honors.
Apparatus work .....	50
Advanced apparatus .....	50
Efficiency tests—Class 1 .....	40
Efficiency tests—Class 2 .....	40
Swimming .....	50
C. Hiking.
5 miles .....	10
10 miles .....	20

The final award to a member of the Womens Athletic Association is the "M" sweater, which any member who gains one thousand points and who complies with the other association requirements may gain. This year we have four active "M" women.

For the purpose of organizing associations and promoting athletics in other places an Athletic Conference of American College Women was called in 1917. There have been two national conferences since.

The Central Sectional Conference was held by the Missouri Women's Athletic Association in 1917.

Six Hundred in Y. W. C. A.

At Old M. U. we believe that the girls should be all-around so that it may be seen that the University is not for learning alone nor for play alone. And so we have a Young Women's Christian Association to concern itself with the spiritual welfare of the girls here. It is for all the women in school and anyone may be a member who signs the personal pledge of sympathy with the purpose, regardless of church affiliation. Besides the Cabinet which directs the work the Association employs a General Secretary who is trained to supervise the work.

The Y. W. C. A. co-operates with W. S. G. A. in the Big Sister work; it gives a party every month for the purpose of helping the girls get acquainted; it holds two meetings a month at which time all the members come together for a devotional service. There are also several types of social service work carried on by the Y. W. C. A. of which work in the negro Sunday Schools of the city, meetings at the County Farm, visiting in the hospital and calling on girls are examples. They also encourage individual Bible reading, and hold classes for the study of the Bible. Classes are held in World Fellowship.

This year the Y. W. C. A. has about six hundred members. All of these are on committees and one of the aims this year is to give every member a real part in the work of the Association. The greatest aim in the whole work is to make Christ more real to the University girls. We feel that the work has grown a great deal in the past few years and that there are unlimited possibilities in the future.

Women's Legal Fraternity.

Phi Delta Delta, an honorary women's legal fraternity, will install a chapter at the University next month. The fraternity is known as one of unusual conservation and the grant of chapter to the four women in the Missouri School of Law is to be regarded as highly complimentary.

Plans and Policies of W. S. G. A.

1. To create a deeper feeling of unity among University Women.
2. To revive all University women's parties. Christmas party, December 16.
3. To publish a student hand book for women, containing all information of interest to women concerning the University.
4. To hold mass meetings of value and worth by bringing prominent women to lecture.
5. A vocational conference of three days, with representative women from the professions as speakers and for individual conferences.
6. A well defined plan for advertising the University of Missouri to the women in the high schools of the State.
7. Co-operation in every manner with the men for a bigger and finer University.

Homecoming for Women.

This year at Homecoming an effort was made to get the visiting alumnae together. A banquet was held in their honor on Saturday night after the game. There were sixty-five guests who were welcomed by Miss Eva Johnston, Advisor of Women. Toasts were given by members of the classes of '16 and '21. This spirit of reunion also brought together the Mortar Board Members on Sunday evening at the Daniel Boone Tavern. Plans are already being laid for reunions at the Commencement season.

Mrs. Rosenberry to Lecture.

Mrs. Marvin Rosenberry of Madison, Wisconsin, will lecture to the woman's mass meeting, December 1. Her subject will be "College Women as Good Citizens."

Mrs. Rosenberry was the first woman to receive a Doctor's degree in Political Science from Radcliffe. She is former dean of women of Madison, Wisconsin, and one of America's most prominent women speakers.

A formal dinner will be given in her honor by the Executive Council of W. S. G. A. at the Daniel Boone Tavern. Among the honor guests will be the Dean of Women from Stephens, Christian, William Woods and Lindenwood colleges.

Mrs. Rosenberry's coming marks the initial step in the policy of the administration to bring the best woman speakers available to the University of Missouri.

A House President's Council.

A new feature of this year's W. S. G. A. program has been the House President's Council which consists of the house presidents of every organized house in Columbia. This council has a banquet once a month at which time the business of the organization is discussed. The body is represented on the Executive Council of W. S. G. A. by two of its members. It has made for great unity, strength and co-operation of W. S. G. A., including its rules, plans and policies.

Revival of an Old Custom.

It may be noted with increasing interest on the part of alumnae readers that the custom of giving an All-University Women's party will be revived. It will be given just before the Christmas holidays at Rothwell Gymnasium. All the Christmas trees and decorations used to beautify the "gym" will be given to the County Farm.

The principal event of the party will be the presentation of a silver loving cup, by the Executive Council of W. S. G. A., to that organized house which provides the best, six-minute stunt.

Eight hundred women are expected to attend the party.

Advance Dope On Basketball and Track

New Schedule System Adopted in Valley—Indoor Track Men Getting Ready for Winter Season.

A double "round robin" schedule has been adopted in the Valley this year for the 1922 basketball season. And with the innovation of this style of meeting other teams, a game with every school in the Conference will be played in Columbia, and the Tigers will play every other team one game on the foreign court.

This would seem to be a better system of slating games; but it makes for inconveniences, and now and then teams have to play a series of difficult games in a row, Missouri voted against the "round robin" at the directors' meeting in Kansas City, but the consensus of opinion favored its introduction into the Conference.

The Missouri Tiger basketballers have a likely outfit for the opening of their winter's sport. George Bond, a Pleasant Hill boy, was recently chosen captain of the team. Bond plays a heady, consistent, hard game of ball all the time, and his working is an asset to his power of leadership. He sets an admirable example for other members of the Tiger team. Bond plays forward. Herbert Bunker, the first guard to make All-Valley of the 1921 Champions, and a man who has made good at football also, will undoubtedly be at his old position. Around him a tight defense is to be built.

"Missouri has a high record to live up to, and that will make this season all the more difficult," said Coach J. Craig Ruby recently. "However, we plan to develop a team that will go far toward winning another pennant for Missouri."

Besides Captain Bond and Bunker, Coach Ruby has a constellation of stars in Arthur (Bunn) Browning, who is playing a mighty good game at forward, "Johnny" Knight, a Tiger football player who made his letter in basketball last year and may be out after the first of December, and a number of promising sophomores from last year's yearlings.

George (Shorty) Williams, lanky Tiger center, will not be in the Missouri lineup this season. He completes his work for a degree at Christmas, and will not be in school after that time.

Other men who will be valuable material for the Tiger mentor to develop are: Vanise, Fautot, Thompson, Hays, Loser, Storms and Van Horn. With these men in the running, the Tiger 1922 season, while not certain, looks only rosy to the boosters at Old Mizzou.

Following is the Missouri schedule for the coming season:

- January 6, Drake at Des Moines.
- January 9, Washington at Columbia.
- January 13, Nebraska at Lincoln.
- January 20, Grinnell at Columbia.
- January 24, Kansas at Lawrence.
- January 28, Ames at Ames.
- January 30, Grinnell at Grinnell.
- February 3, Kansas Aggies at Columbia.
- February 4, Oklahoma at Columbia.
- February 10, Drake at Columbia.
- February 11, Ames at Columbia.
- February 15, Washington at St. Louis.
- February 21, Kansas at Columbia.
- February 24, Nebraska at Columbia.
- March 4, Oklahoma at Norman.
- March 6, Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.

With the opening of the indoor track season next month, interest in the speed and field events is growing apace. And at Missouri, the Tigers, under the capable and sagacious leadership of that wily Tiger, Brutus (Ham) Hamilton, captaining the Bengal tracksters for the 1922 season, seem to have as good a chance in the Valley race as any.

However, the Tiger prospects in this sport are none too bright, according to Coach Robert I. (Bob) Simpson. The Missouri mentor shakes his head doubtfully when he looks over the only available board track here at the Tiger camp—that outside Rothwell Gymnasium which is pieced together each year and made to substitute for the indoor track of former years. It is a difficult proposition to train for the indoor season without an indoor track. Since 1918, when the track was torn out to enlarge the basketball court, the Tigers have had to use the outside board affair. This, in the winter with the prevailing inclemency of the weather, places the Missouri team under an unusual handicap.

George A. Bond, Basketball Captain.

The indoor season will find Missouri lacking the stellar services of such men as Parker, captain of last year, Roney, George Williams, and Clarence (Fuzzy) Williams, an unbeatable pair of tracksters. George Williams was the Valley high jump champion and "Fuzzy" Williams was a 15-point man in the Missouri-Kansas indoor meet last winter, in Kansas City.

In Hamilton, Missouri has America's foremost all-round athlete. "Ham" has the absolute confidence of the 2-mile; Hart and Waddell in the hurdles; Hamilton, Waddell and Yehle in the high jump; Hamilton, Scott and Bunker in the shot put; Hamilton and Sinz in the pole vault, and Hamilton, Knight and Laws in the javelin throw.

"In spite of the fact that we are handicapped in training quarters and that a number of our men are sophomores without previous training on the Varsity team, we of course expect to develop a team that will show up well this season," said Coach Simpson.

An unfortunate circumstance working against an efficient Tiger track

A LETTER FROM E. D. SMITH

Approves Plan of Dr. J. C. Jones—Is in Cincinnati.

E. D. Smith, B. S. in Electrical Engineering '01, Maintenance Engineer of The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio is enthusiastic over the plan of Acting-President Dr. J. C. Jones in bringing about a closer relationship between the former students and alumni of the University. He writes as follows:

"I think, in general, there is not enough contact between the University proper and its Alumni Organizations. There is nothing, in my opinion that means more for the University eventually than a continued close relationship between it and its former students, and I would certainly urge the following up of such a plan as you have indicated to just so great an extent as facilities will permit.

"So far as I know there are only three Missouri University men here in Dayton. Beside myself here are Lieutenant F. W. Niedermeyer, Jr., of McCook Field, and Mr. G. B. Randall, of this Company. There should be quite a number in Cincinnati and I am sure if a meeting were arranged there, we in Dayton, would probably want to go down.

"WHEN will the Alumni directory be out, This is something that will help us all greatly and I would like to urge the importance of keeping in the hands of all Alumni an up-to-date directory."

A Unique Design.

Duane Lyon former student of the University of Missouri who was in service overseas designed the menu cards at the dinner given by the State of Missouri to distinguished guests of the American Legion Convention at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, November 1. The design on parchment with scroll tri-colored, was regarded as one of most unique and distinctive design for an organization of that kind and was reproduced in full and commended very highly in the Kansas City Star of Wednesday, November 2, 1921. Mr. Lyon, the artist, is a member of Lyon-Bealor Studio, 1114 McGee St., Kansas City, Mo. His home was formerly in Columbia, where his father, A. R. Lyon now resides.

Do You Remember Hallsville?

Fire of unknown origin wiped out an entire block of frame store buildings in Hallsville on Nov. 27. Hallsville is the Wabash division point on the branch between Centralia and Columbia.

Coach Craig Ruby, a Stellar Basketball Player and an Outstanding Coach.

his team-mates, his coach and his Tiger supporters and rooters at Old Mizzou. He is a leader all the way, and his work is an example to the other Tigers.

Other good men who will be a valuable lot of material for Coach Simpson to work with are: Burrill, Simons and Evans in the sprints; Kershaw, Mattingly, Ruark, Hill, Musgrave and Schnebley in the 440-yard dash; Maxwell and Zercher in the 880-yard run; Saville, Brasfield, Talbert and Trowbridge in the mile; Poage, Stark, Brooks, Bailey and Murray in team is the present three-term plan of the school year, Coach Simpson believes. The ordinary winter term lets out in April, at the very height of the track season, and Missouri is left without men to compete in the Valley Conference. At present, she has held her own fairly well. But, according to authorities, unless some change is made, track will gradually die out completely. No other school in the Valley has the system being used at Missouri and the athletes remain in school until June, thus competing throughout the track season.

That Washington Game—

News of Alumni Centers

The Game at Washington.

The University of Missouri came into her own in St. Louis the week-end of November 5 and 6. The alumni of the University staged the greatest gathering of its kind on the evening of the 5th, the evening before the game with Washington University. One thousand alumni, students, faculty and administrative officers of the University clamored for entrance to the dining room at the American Annex Hotel. Tables had been provided for but 600, and as a consequence practically 400 persons were disappointed.

There was a delightful dinner. Due to the crowded conditions it was impossible for the University Band to offer any numbers. The Mizzou Razzers, a pep organization of 50 men students of the University, provided the first entertainment of the evening. Costumed in white, trimmed in the Old Gold and Black of their institution, this organization made a lasting impression on the assemblage. The Ag quartet, with several popular vocal numbers, was well received. In the audience were many teachers from every nook and corner of the state who were in attendance in St. Louis at the annual state teachers conclave. E. M. Carter, Secretary, State Teachers Association, helped materialize in getting out the splendid attendance for the banquet.

"This crowd tells me plainer than words that St. Louis alumni are whole heartedly behind the University of Missouri, began Dr. H. H. Shackelford, President of the St. Louis Alumni Association, in opening the evening's program.

"I can recall no similar occasion when the number of alumni present near equalled the assemblage this evening," said Dr. J. C. Jones, acting president of the University, after an ovation of over a minute's duration had greeted him when he rose. The entire audience rose to its feet cheering and with wild acclaim cheered one who had given practically all of his life to the upbuilding of the University of Missouri. Dr. Jones outlined in detail the program of the University for the coming year, including a complete summary of the million-dollar building program that will last over several years until all of the buildings will be completed. He dwelt at considerable length upon the liberal educational policy of the present Governor of Missouri, Arthur M. Hyde. In conclusion Dr. Jones quoted T. T. Crittenden, former Governor of Missouri, "Parsimony in Education is Liberty in Crime."

R. L. (Bob) Hill, alumni recorder of the University of Missouri, was the next speaker. He outlined the work which he expected to carry on during the coming year and the result that he hoped would be obtained, namely a closer co-operation and affiliation between the former students and graduates.

When the chairman called upon the Governor of Missouri, an ovation similar to that tendered Dr. Jones was witnessed. The Governor dealt at considerable length upon the need of a constructive educational program for the rural communities, citing statistics to show the uneven taxation program in many of the counties. "Missouri must pull herself out of the mud in education as well as in other things," he said. "I am working hard upon the road program, and upon other works of importance, but all of these are secondary to the educational program of the present administration. The people of Missouri deserve the best. A state may have great roads, a state may have great schools. It may have great cities and great financial institutions, but a state is only great that has great people. The State University is the dynamo from which can be generated constructiveness in education throughout the state. I want the University of Missouri to rank first among the state universities."

Director Z. G. Clevenger of the athletic department, and M. James Phelan, football coach, were called upon and each responded with two-minute chats in which they expressed their belief that the Missouri eleven would win on the morrow.

The huge gathering of the St. Louis alumni was made possible by the consistent and united efforts of its officers and boosters. The ardent workers, Dr. H. H. Shackelford, president, and E. M. Staube, editor of "The Columns", deserve universal commendation for their efforts. "The Columns" is an unusual and outstanding asset to the St. Louis Alumni Association. The St. Louis Club at the University also contributed greatly to the success of the occasion through the work of its officers and other members. The officers are: Walter Stradal, president; Ruth Hayman, vice-president, Cornelia Compton, secretary; Bennie Loeb, treasurer.

St. Louis has never seen such a parade as was programmed for Saturday morning. Sixty cars bedecked in the Old Gold and Black, and carrying many pennants, each car loaded to capacity with Missouri students, followed the University band and the Mizzou Razzers through the busiest downtown section of St. Louis. From every window and available resting place, clerks and shoppers, business men and visitors in the city, applauded gayly as the parade swept by to the martial tune of "I'm a Son". From one end of the parade to the other one could hear resounding the "Yea Missouri, Yea Tigers, Yea Yea, Missouri Tigers". There was a riot of color and spirit and St. Louis will not soon forget the visit of the University of Missouri students to that city. The traffic policemen along the route were forced to hold up-town traffic for 15 minutes while the parade proceeded down Broadway and up Olive. In the meantime the busy shopping crowd lined the streets at all corners and along the walks greeting the Tigers with salvos of applause. It was the best parade of the kind ever staged in St. Louis.

To E. P. Schwarn, who was in charge of the parade goes the major portion of the credit for the greatest University of Missouri parade that has ever been held in St. Louis.

Last but not least, for we have described the events of the epoch-making St. Louis visit in the order in which they occurred: Missouri people were early in their seats at the football game Saturday afternoon between Missouri University and Washington University. The concrete stands had been reserved for the Old Gold and Black and as the band and Razzers came on the field a mighty roar signified that the Missourians were alert and ready to do battle with their friendly enemies, the Pickers of Washington University.

When the Tigers took the field, resplendent in their huge sheepskin coats and underneath the striped traditional jerseys of "Old Mizzou" the entire delegation rose en masse and cheered for several minutes.

The contest was a royal battle as all who were present will attest. Suffice it is that Missouri won. Perhaps they did not play the brand of football that enabled them to whip into submission, Oklahoma, one week later, but nevertheless they won by the narrow margin of 7 points. Significant it is that a St. Louis boy should play the leading role in the victory. Elmer Kershaw carried the Missouri colors to the front late in the fourth quarter when he grabbed a pass on his own five-yard line, which Tommy Thompson, the Washington quarterback had allowed to dribble off the end of his fingers. Kershaw's catch was no freak of fortune. It was the result of being awake to the situation, alert and waiting for the unexpected. It was this same trait in his playing that spelled an eleventh hour defeat for Washington at Columbia last year and the same characteristic which beat Drake the week before the 1921 fracas at Columbia. Three games in two years we find ourselves checking up to the alertness of a red-headed, former St. Louis high school boy.

The cross country run that was held while the game was going on resulted in a victory for Grinnell, Missouri taking second and Washington third and last.

Wednesday evening, November 23, Kansas City entertained the Governor of Missouri and Dr. J. C. Jones of the University, the Board of Curators, Faculty and other administrative officers, at a huge alumni banquet previous to the Missouri-Kansas football game at Lawrence on the following day. There, an effort was made to eclipse the performance of the St. Louis alumni. Later in the year visits are to be made by Governor Hyde and Dr. Jones to Springfield, Joplin and other centers of Missouri alumni spirit. This is all included in the comprehensive program of Governor Hyde and officials of the University of Missouri in an effort to close ally the alumni of the University with activities in the school and its program of construction.

The Chicago Alumni.

Chicago alumni went themselves one better and made their fall banquet in the City Club, November 15, more than a banquet—a veritable Homecoming Day with all the stunts and attractions which one is likely to find in Columbia, except, be it said, for the game itself.

That old inter-department rivalry which supposedly dies after a few years in the "cruel, cruel world" was found to be merely dormant in the minds of the engineers, lawyers, journalists, medics and others. In the departmental stunts that followed the banquet, all the old spirit cropped out and the engineers again threatened to set fire to the "law barn".

Scarcely had the guests been seated at the banquet tables when a dirty-faced newsboy burst through the door yelling "Extra! Extra!" and distributed copies of the "Chicago Missourian", a miniature newspaper which had been especially prepared by the Journalists' Club of the alumni association.

In make up the paper resembled a combination of the several Chicago dailies. The stories were highly imaginative happenings and scandal concerning those present and well-known members of the University faculty. No one was slighted, whether as a student he had frequented most the rock quarry along the Hinkson or the old Columbia Theater.

The women of the association, under the direction of Miss Mary L. Leitch, A. B. '11, put on a tableau of five acts showing the development (?) of the University co-ed from the demure, sedate, long-skirted girl of Eugene Field's time in 1870, through the bustle age, on down (or up) to the present day, roll-your-own, hot-shot flapper. This was a Fashion Review. Jesse Raithel, Mrs. Rooker, Bess Phillips Kennedy, Virginia Savage and Clara Schmidt took part in the stunt.

The engineers, led by Saint Patrick and escorts in costume, came marching in singing that old battle song, "St. Pat, he was an engineer, he was ———". A two-man mule executed maneuvers at the command of the engineers which were well calculated to cause the lawyers to forget their dignity and invite a free for all. Yes, just like the good old days.

Dr. Sarah R. Kelman, A. B. '15, gave a monologue illustrating the trials and tribulations with which a doctor is beset with every day in his office.

Weightstill Woods, A. B. '11, representing the lawyers, made a talk telling of the more humorous side of a lawyer's life, proving that all that is legal is not necessarily serious—even lawyers.

Lee Walker, chairman of the Memorial Campaign Committee, reported on the progress of the organization in raising their portion of the fund and made an appeal to the sub-chairman of the various schools to close their campaigns as soon as possible.

About sixty alumni and former students attended the affair. The association will again meet next April.

The Chicago Missourian is a replica of the Peerade Xtra and was published by the M. U. Journalists of Chicago. It is full of pep and punch and shows that the old Tiger spirit stays with 'em after they do get in the "cruel, cruel world". Copies of the Missourian may be obtained by writing Lee Comegys, Addressograph

Co., 901 West Van Buren, Chicago,—and enclosing ten cents for each copy wanted.

Pittsburgh Alumni Association.

Harold C. Medley, Secretary of the Pittsburgh Alumni Association, writes as follows: "For a long time the University of Missouri has held the anomalous position of having the most enthusiastic student spirit and at the same time the most indifferent alumni of any school in the country. The Pittsburgh Association is not exception. For the past two years interest has been growing less and less until at the present it is almost dead. President Jones is to be congratulated for inaugurating the plan to bring about a closer affiliation between the former students and alumni and the University of Missouri and in the cause of bringing the school back to a place of first importance in the hearts of its graduates. We, of Pittsburgh who have the interest of the school ever uppermost in our minds hail the plan of organizing the former students and alumni as our only salvation. We expect a visit from the Alumni Recorder and promise to exert all our power to bring out every member to the meeting and to help reawaken that Missouri spirit that stands with heads bared and sings "Old Missouri" whether in victory or in defeat. As secretary of this association I offer my services in any way that I can be of use to the University of Missouri in the organization of former students and alumni. I send the following as a list of members and officers of the Pittsburgh Alumni Association of the University of Missouri."

GRADUATE OF 1878 VISITS

Mrs. J. H. Davis Renews Acquaintance With University.

Mrs. J. H. Davis and daughter, Miss Frances E. Davis, of St. Louis, were visitors at the University last August. Mrs. Davis was formerly Miss Elizabeth MacDowell Field, a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She was one of two girls who were graduated from the School of Arts and Science of the University in 1878. The other girl was Mary Gentry.

Mrs. Davis says she was about the sixth graduate of the University. Mr. Davis, who is now dead, was one of the first graduates of the School of Engineering. He was graduated with James Bates in 1878, the two being the only members of the class.

Mrs. Davis and her daughter came to visit the University with the intention of taking pictures of the campus. The buildings are all new to them. Miss Davis is a teacher in a mountain school in Kentucky.

WILL PRACTICE LAW IN ENID

Crowe Brothers Received Degrees in April and June.

News has been received in Columbia that the new law firm of "Crowe and Crowe" was opened in Enid, Okla., August 1. W. E. and V. P. Crowe, brothers, the members of the new firm, will be remembered as students in the University the last three years. W. E. Crowe received his degree from the School of Law in April. V. P. Crowe obtained his degree from the same school at the end of the spring term. Both are also graduates of Central College at Fayette, and were members of the interstate debating teams the three years they were in the University. They are members of the Athenaeon Debating society, Delta Sigma Rho, Phi Alpha Delta and Acacia fraternities here.

The Crowe brothers become successors to a Yale graduate, who practiced in Enid.

There are twelve instructors in the Romance Language Department, according to Professor W. J. Burner, chairman of the department. More than 1,000 students are enrolled in this department this term. Fifteen advanced courses are now being presented, as compared with only two five years ago.

Prof. J. W. Hudson, of the Department of Philosophy, brought out early last summer his latest book, "The Truths We Live By," a work on general philosophical problems and some of the fundamental questions of religion. Professor Hudson attended the Illinois State Teachers' Convention in October at Freeport, and delivered a speech on problems of education in philosophy. Next summer he will go to France with his wife to visit the latter's relatives.

Prof. G. H. Sabine is teaching a course this term that was formerly given under Prof. Shepard, in the Department of Political Economy. The course is History of Political Theory, and the fact of its being taught by Prof. Sabine is significant of the growing closeness of the relations of these two departments.

Dr. John Pickard, of the department of art and archeology, is chairman of the State Capitol Commission of Missouri, for the purpose of decorating the new capitol building. Contracts have just been let, reports Dr. Pickard, for the production of eight paintings designed to represent the resources of Missouri. They will be placed in the new Museum of Resources, now in construction, in a room just across the hall in the capitol from the newly decorated hall for patriotic displays. The commission also contemplates soon letting the contract for a sculptured frieze, to be placed under the portico of the capitol. The Governor's reception room in the capitol will also be decorated in the near future. The commission is very actively at work at present, on these various decorative projects.

Dr. Max F. Meyer has recently brought out a new text book "The Psychology of the Other One," which is now being used in his classes.

Dr. John Ankeney is spending his vacation this term.

The Art Department held a masque revel Friday, November 18, in the studio. About sixty couples attended. Being held in the art department there were of course many striking and original costumes. It was decided to have such a celebration annually.

Dr. W. H. Pyle has recently brought out a new textbook on psychology, the "Psychology of Learning," published by Warwick and York, Baltimore.

Dr. W. H. Pyle and his assistant, Emmett Shott, an advanced student in psychology, went to Central High School in Kansas City, November 1, to conduct some psychological experiments on dull and bright students. The authorities at the school had already divided the students into two classes, the exceptionally bright and the exceptionally dull ones. Ignorant of this division, Dr. Pyle selected, by means of various psychological tests, every student who was either bright or dull, without an error.

Dr. H. J. Baker, of Detroit, will take Dr. Pyle's classes next summer, as he did last summer, during Dr. Pyle's absence. Dr. Baker is engaged in psychological examination of the school children of Detroit.

Sam T. Bratton, department of geology and geography, is in the University of Chicago this term, working on his doctor's degree. He will resume his work after Christmas.

Dr. Helen M. Strong, lately from the University of Chicago, is teaching in the department of geology and geography this year. Dr. Strong received her doctor's degree from the University of Chicago and spent a year in Washington engaged in research work in the department of agriculture.

James S. Williams, formerly a student in the University, is now an instructor in geology.

Members of the department of geology and geography and advanced students in the department, took a travelling field trip to California and back last summer, gathering fossils as they went. Nine men made up the party, Dr. E. B. Branson and Dr. M. G. Mehl being the only two members of the faculty present.

Sam T. Bratton's book on the "Geography of Missouri" has recently come from the press.

Dean Walter Williams of the School of Journalism, president of the Press Congress of the World, received a new honorary degree recently, that of LL.D., which, as Riley H. Allen, editor of the Honolulu Star Bulletin, expressed it, means "doctor of leis."

Dean Williams was guest of honor at an informal meeting of the Honolulu Press Club at the Moana Hotel in that city, and delivered an address upon training for journalism, dwelling chiefly upon methods employed at the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri, which he founded.

Mrs. John T. Warren, president of the Press Club, presented Dean Williams with a huge blue pencil as a symbol of the profession of journalism. After the program, Allen spoke briefly regarding the work that had been done by Dean Williams and the graduates of the School of Journalism, and then dubbed him "doctor of leis," decorating him with a handsome yellow wreath.

Dr. J. D. Eliff will attend the annual meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools beginning November 29, at Birmingham, Ala. Mr. Eliff is going as a fraternal delegate of the North Central Association. The standards for secondary schools are set by these two associations.

V. R. Gardner and H. A. Cardinell, professors of horticulture, and Dr. Leonard Hasemann, entomologist, all of the University, will attend the sixty-fourth annual meeting of the Missouri State Horticultural Society in Hannibal Dec. 1-3. Mr. Gardner is vice-president of the society.

Prof. W. C. Etheridge was chairman of a committee in the American Society of Agronomy recently to prepare a standard course in field crops. The committee's report was very favorably received, and the outline suggested will probably be adopted.

The resignation of E. A. Spencer as manager of the University Co-Operative Store has been accepted by the board of directors of the store. Mr. Spencer, who has been manager of the store for over a year, will devote more time to his work in the University after the first of January. Charles E. Barkshire, assistant cashier of the Columbia Savings Bank, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Spencer and will assume his duties on the first of December. Mr. Barkshire was manager of this store in 1914.

C. A. Helm will be one of the grain judges in the International Grain and Hay Show, in Chicago, November 25 to December 4.

Dr. W. C. Etheridge was a judge in the crops exhibits at the Tri-State Fair, representing Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, held at Memphis October 15.

Prof. L. J. Stadler has recently submitted a paper for publication as a Missouri Research Bulletin which is an important contribution to the technique of Field Crops experimentation.

Prof. R. T. Kirkpatrick is in charge of the Smith-Hughes vocational school work, as a specialist in field crops. He is also engaged in work connected with boys' and girls' clubs.

Dean F. B. Mumford attended the meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges at New Orleans September 7, and was chairman of the section on agriculture. Prof. M. F. Miller was chairman of the soils committee and Prof. W. C. Etheridge of the field crops committee.

Prof. E. A. Trowbridge was a judge of Shorthorn cattle, and several breeds of sheep and hogs at the Louisiana State Fair, in New Orleans the week of November 5.

Prof. S. D. Gromer will speak at Farmer's Week in Manhattan, Kansas, in the near future.

R. R. Hudelson, formerly an instructor in the University is now back for four months, teaching in the short course. He is farming in Canada.

S. T. Simpson, formerly with the Agricultural Extension Service, is now teaching in the short course.

Prof. William H. Eyster has recently published a work on breeding corn, in the Journal of Genetics.

Professors W. J. Robbins, W. H. Eyster, and E. C. Hopkins will attend the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Toronto during the Christmas holidays. Abstracts of work done in the biology department will be read at this meeting.

B. B. Branstetter is working on a paper on corn root rot, which will be presented at the meeting in Toronto.

Prof. W. C. Curtis has a book in press on the biology of human life.

Dean Isidor Loeb of the School of Business and Public Administration addressed the Municipal Development Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce on Nov.

23. His subject was, "What Changes Shall Be Made in the New State Constitution for Missouri." He summarized the changes necessary to make our educational and taxation systems efficient by saying that they should be given great simplicity and more responsibility. Doctor Loeb's thorough knowledge of the needs of Missouri's new constitution makes his services in great demand over the state for addresses on the subject. "The real problem of formulating a new constitution will be the task of putting into the document those things which will give the legislature power to enact the laws the people want," is the statement with which Dr. Loeb emphasizes his talks.

Dean E. J. McCaustland of the Engineering School has made the plans for the sewage disposal plant and for the extension of the sewer system for the city of Columbia. Bids for the work were received up to December 5.

ECHOES FROM THE KAW RIVER

a touchdown. He failed to kick goal and the score stood Kansas 13, Missouri 9.

The remainder of the quarter was a seesaw affair with no apparent advantage to either team.

A bad pass to Lewis on the second play of the last quarter resulted in a safety and the 15-9 score which was not changed during the rest of the final quarter.

It was while the huge scoreboard clock showed less than four minutes of the game left to play that Missouri came through with the greatest thrill of the day, and an unsuccessful one. Taking possession of the ball on her own 15-yard line, the Tigers began a march across the entire field, a march against time and one that, with a touchdown and a kick afterward would mean a 16-15 victory over the Jayhawk. Three minutes later found the ball on Kansas' 12-yard line after a Missouri pass was grounded. The Tiger lost the ball within two lengths of the goal and within one minute of the end of the game.

Shadows had crept over the newly-sodded gridiron drawing the final curtain on the 1921 football season. "Chuck" Lewis was playing his last football game. So was Captain Blumer, the Valley's greatest tackle this year. Next year will not find Ted Packwood, quarterback, Verne Hardin, end, or Brutus Hamilton, end. It is likely that Hill, tackle, Simpson, center, Kershaw, halfback, and one or two other Tigers will complete their studies this year and, although eligible for another football season, will not be among the Varsity.

On McCook field Missourians stood by the thousand and sang as their defeated team left the field. Kansas sang, too, and not a visitor but was impressed by the clean sportsmanship of both sides.

The stadium emptied itself rapidly. Streets were thronged along the fourteen blocks to the business section. Special trains of unusual length were rapidly loaded. Nightfall found a solid stream of more than 2,000 motor cars moving toward Kansas City separated by 50-foot distance between machines. "Rock Chalk Jayhawk" roared through the Union Station corridors where "The Varsity" held sway 24 hours before.

The football game ended in defeat but none would have known it who heard Tiger yells on incoming trains to Kansas City. Centralians rudely awakened at 3 a. m. for three nights by returning rooters wondered what would have happened had the Tiger been victorious.

"Missouri Journalism delegation at Washington arms conference accept defeat by Kansas in principle but desire to register several vital reservations for consideration next Thanksgiving," telegraphed J. B. Powell from the nation's capital.

The tale is told for 1921 but for a real thriller, see the 1922 Alumnus account of the "vital reservations" considered.

HOMECOMING OF THE TIGERS

And the rooters, staid old grads and freshman, to a man went wild. Then came the loyal standing in the cold and singing of "Old Missouri" while the two battle-scarred teams jogged off the field to Rothwell. Gov. Arthur M. Hyde was an enthusiastic witness of the encounter.

That night a shirt-tail parade of the old-timer type was held in which the vim and vigor of the frenzied throngs was given an enthusiastic opportunity to spout. There was a hot time in the old town that night! With a dance given by the "Mizzou Razzers" without charge, the most glorious Homecoming in history came to a close. Its complete enjoyment was undeniable. And it again proved to the alumni and former students that their Alma Mater still holds a charm which will always bring them closer and into better harmony with the institution and a memory so fond of the "days when Alma Mater sheltered us beneath her wing."

"Fuzzy" Williams Now a Teacher.

C. H. ("Fuzzy") Williams is now in Mount Vernon, where he is an instructor in vocational agriculture.

TALBOT IS NEW SECRETARY

A Community Worker in Denver—Is a Successful Organizer.

F. H. Talbot, the new secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., is a man peculiarly fitted for his duties in Columbia through his experience in Denver in community recreational work.

Talbot was born in London, Ontario, and later moved to Chicago, where he finished his high school education. He received an A. B. degree from Fargo College, Fargo, N. D., and took graduate work in summer terms in the University of Chicago and Columbia University. During his six years of college and university work, Talbot also studied music.

He was ordained as a Congregational minister in 1913 and preached for nine years, his last pastorate being the Community Church in Billings, Mont.

After being discharged from army service he went into community service work in Denver, Colo., where he promoted city wide recreational programs. One of his most noteworthy achievements during his three years in Denver was the promotion of Music Week, which was so successfully directed by him that letters of congratulations were received from President Harding and Mary Garden commending the undertaking. His work in Denver included Americanization programs among the large foreign element of the city.

During the short time that Talbot has been in Columbia he has perfected an organization and outlined a program that will make the Y. M. C. A. an institution worth while on the University Campus.

WEDDINGS

The engagement of Miss Ruth Prather and Mr. William Pledsoe Midyette was announced on November 16, 1921, at a tea given at the family residence, 1014 University avenue. ## BIRTHS

Terence Stewart Vincent arrived via Stork Special, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Terence Vincent, 5601 Blackstone avenue, Chicago, on September 10, 1921. Mr. Vincent was a student in the School of Journalism in 1913-14-15. Mrs. Vincent was Annie Austin, a graduate of Central High School (Kansas City) in 1914, and met Mr. Vincent on the University campus in 1914-15, summer sessions. They were married in Clinton, Mo., on January 29, 1916. Their first son, Austin Cuthbert, was born on April 16, 1920, and on the 19th of April at the annual banquet of the Chicago Missouri Alumni Association, was dubbed "Tiger" Vincent. Mr. Vincent reports that the "Tiger" is making good, in accord with the athletic reference in his name, and probably will play football on the Tiger team of 1938. On January 1, 1922, Mr. Vincent will be associated with George S. Galloway, 746 Monadnock Block, Chicago, in the Vinoway Artists Bureau, managing Mina Hager, Elizabeth Stokes and Edith Allan, artists of concert fame.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Koester have announced the arrival of a daughter whom they have named Geraldine Ruth, (Gerry) for short. Mr. Koester graduated from the School of Engineering in 1920 and is now employed by the Electric Light and Power Co., Webster Groves, Missouri.

Geo. Clark Willson, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clark Willson, Jr., of 16 Thornby Pl., was born on October 17th, 1921.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wieman, DeSota, Mo., a son, Harry Kramer, Oct. 11, 1921. Mrs. Wieman was formerly Myrtle Kramer, who graduated from the University in '19.

Martha Sampson Bryant made her appearance on November 20, 1921, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. R. Bryant, Chicago, Ill. Her mother was Elizabeth Pierrman Sampson, Louisville, Ky. They were married September 29, 1920. "Jimmy" A. B. '13, can still get through a door.

Announcement has been received of the arrival of A. C. "Tex" Bayless, Jr., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bayless, Houston, Tex., Nov. 21, 1921.

"WHEN I WAS A GIRL—"*Mrs. Wilson Returns to M. U. After 39 Years.

Before the days of freshman caps and sophomore tryanny; before the Tiger began eating the Jayhawk on Rollins Field; even before the engineers became the guardians of the Columns on Francis Quadrangle, Miss Anna Mae Murphy was graduated from the University of Missouri. Miss Murphy is Mrs. Wilson now, and after thirty-nine years has returned to take up work in the College of Agriculture.

Mrs. Wilson was graduated in 1882 and received the degree of Principles of Pedagogy. She has recently been elected superintendent of the high school at Edgar Springs, and took work in the University this summer to meet the requirement in agriculture demanded by the State-Board of Education under the Smith-Hughes Act.

"When I was a girl," Mrs. Wilson said, "women did not study entomology or agriculture. But things have changed since then.

"I am happy to get back and feel as young as any of these fluffy-haired girls I see on the campus. But all the old familiar buildings are gone. Let me see. There was no Academic Hall. The main building, where most of the classes were held, and where we had assembly every morning, was the old one that burned in 1887. Its columns are the ones that stand on the quadrangle now. Then there was the Medic Hall, a frame building, Science Hall, and the President's house. And how we applauded when Major Rollins or Colonel Switzler came into assembly meetings!

"Dr. Samuel Sparr Laws was president. He would pray every morning at assembly, make the announcements, and then the choir would sing."

When Mrs. Wilson was first a student here, there were approximately seven hundred in attendance and forty-eight members of the faculty. Now the enrollment exceeds five thousand, and the faculty has some 225 members.

"Mrs. Carr was lady principal and all the out-of-town girls boarded in her home," Mrs. Wilson said.

"The girls wore uniforms—black cashmere dresses with white collars. In the summer we wore black sailor hats with 'M. S. U.' in gold on the streamers. In winter we wore stiff black hats with narrow brims and pom poms in front.

"All the girls had to take calisthenics, and the boys who didn't work took military tactics. An officer was detailed from the regular army to instruct the boys. A lot of the boys worked their way through school by doing chores on the agricultural farm. As well as I remember, they received ten cents an hour.

"It was in the fall of '81 that all of us organized and sent twenty-five dollars for a bouquet for President Garfield's coffin.

"Things have changed since then, but I'm happy to get back, for I love this old University. I prize my invitation to the Alumni banquet each year more than anything else in my mail."

Mrs. Wilson has three children, Mrs. Ernest Boyd of Stapleton, Neb.; a seventeen-year-old daughter, Roma; and an eleven-year-old son, Don. Miss Roma Wilson will enter the University in the spring term of next year. Mrs. Wilson's home is in Polo, Mo.

A Tale by Big Bill Hollenback

The following story finds its way to Old Missouri along with a letter from a homesick graduate of the University who is now on the staff of the Country Gentleman in Philadelphia. John Crosser clipped it from the sport section of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. His touching wail runs:

"Yes, yes, I saw Penn beat Franklin and Marshall on Saturday but take it from a marooned Missourian, Penn is like an empty hooch barrel!—no kick and less enthusiasm. If your freshmen want to appreciate Missouri, let them come East to school after they have been there."

The story was written by Cullen Cain, Public Ledger sport editor, after he had talked to a former Missouri coach.

Yep, I warmed up to Big "Bill" Hollenback. You see, he had, once upon a time coached the Missouri University team and had sent it against Kansas in the annual game. I asked him about those old days out West, and his eye lighted and his words came fast. They had been happy days for the former Penn star.

"Talk about football rivalries here in the East," said Hollenback, "they are mere strivings of children for the pinkest ribbon or the prettiest doll. Those Missouri-Kansas followers did not know the Civil War was over. For them the annual Thanksgiving game was just a continuance of the struggle between the sections. It was the Bushwhacker versus the Jayhawker when those State universities clashed on the field.

"I remember one year when I took the Missouri team over to Pertle Springs, a little watering place close to Kansas City, to rest over-night for the next day's game in the Missouri town with the Kansas name. My team was outweighed by the Kansas team twenty-nine pounds to the man, and on the season's dope to date I had about as much chance against the Jayhawkers as Delaware had against Penn recently.

"Well, I moped around the hotel lobby that evening and I was pretty low in mind. And then I saw a slender old gentleman with a most striking face strolling about the lobby. He had a beak for a nose and his eye was keen and cold, and he had a slit for a mouth and a chunk of granite for a jaw. Every one bowed low to this shred of a man and seemed anxious to win a word from him. I asked about

M. U. Journalists in Orient Are Authorities on Pacific Question

More and more the fame of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri is growing through the splendid work of its graduates in the Orient. Many men from this school have gone to Japan, China and the Philippines, and each of them has made good and demonstrated the efficiency of the training which they received while under the direction of Dean Walter Williams and other members of the faculty of the School of Journalism.

Last spring while in Columbia for Journalism Week, B. W. Fleisher, owner and editor of the Japan Advertiser (a newspaper published in Tokio) and one of the biggest newspaper men of the Far East, commented in an address on the success of the graduates of the School of Journalism who have gone to the Orient.

"Many of the men who have graduated from the School of Journalism," he said, "will become authorities on questions of the Pacific, and it is my conviction that in the years to come the people of the Far East and the West will look to them for leadership in the solution of the problems of the Pacific.

"Every one who has come to Japan from this School of Journalism has made good. My experience has been that men from the great Middle West make good where at times men with even wider experience from New York fall down."

The majority of the men who have gone from here to do newspaper work in the Far East have worked on the staff of the Japan Advertiser in Tokio, which is considered by many persons to be the best newspaper published in English in the Orient. Among those who have worked there, but who are now engaged in other work, are: Alphonso Johnson, now manager of the Columbia Evening Missourian; Frank L. Martin, Professor of Journalism in the University of Missouri; Frank H. King, now London Correspondent for the Associated Press; Ralph Turner, now Washington Correspondent for the United Press; and Oscar Riley, at present secretary to the Japanese Consul-General in New York.

There are now ten graduates of the School of Journalism on the staff of the Japan Advertiser. Glenn Babb who worked on the Advertiser before the war and returned to Japan in 1920 after serving in the army, is now news editor. He is also acting correspondent in Japan for the Philadelphia Public Ledger Syndicate, a service which is now sending more cable news from the Orient than any other, with the possible exception of the Associated Press. Mr. Babb's dispatches recently on the Japanese naval program and on the attitude of the Japanese on the Arms Limitation Conference have attracted much favorable comment in this country and have been published in newspapers all over the United States.

Duke N. Parry, who has been in Japan less than two years, is doing reportorial work on the Advertiser, and is also correspondent for the International News Service. It was said that his recent dispatch on the death of Premier Hara was more than an hour ahead of any of the other correspondents in Japan.

Others who are doing reportorial work on this paper are: Morris Harris, James McClain, Ben G. Kline, who acts as Yokohama Correspondent, John Marris and Reinhart Egger. John Morris attended the recent World Press Congress in Honolulu as executive secretary of the Congress, and after the sessions were over, went to Japan to take up his work there. Vaughn Bryant, formerly University Publisher, is the Advertiser's business manager.

H. H. Kinyon, who was University Publisher before Mr. Bryant, is now managing editor of the Trans-Pacific, a monthly publication devoted to the business interests of the Pacific countries. This magazine is published by B. W. Fleisher in Tokio in connection with the Japan Advertiser. Frank Hedges, who has recently gone to Peking, China, as correspondent for the Trans-Pacific and the Advertiser, has also won much favorable comment on his brilliant dispatches to the Public Ledger Syndicate on the situation in China.

him and they said he was 'Bill' Stone, Missouri born and bred, and twice Governor and now United States Senator.

"Watching him there, rocking forward from his heels to his toes and looking like some fierce old bird of prey, I suddenly became possessed with an idea. If I could get him to talk to the team just before the game, maybe he could stir State pride in my kids so deeply that it would overwhelm the beef of a better football team.

"Well, I went up to him, introduced myself and told him what I was up against, and asked him if he would talk to the team. Would he? Say, he stiffened all over and his eye shot flame, and he said he would be right there.

"I have heard 'em talk to a team; heard Mike Murphy whiplash 'em when he was in his prime, but never anything like Senator 'Bill' Stone rousing his Missouri bushwhackers that day to violence, incendiarism and death. 'I have known those Jayhawkers all my life,' he concluded, 'and I knew their daddies before them. We licked them during the war and you've got to lick them today. I never took off my hat to a Jayhawker in my life. I am an old man, but by heavens above! if a boy of you from ol' Missouri gives up ground out there today I will myself go out there and drag him off the field.'

"You can imagine what he did to that team of Missouri boys when he had me, an old hand from Pennsylvania, all worked up so that I sent a hundred out to bet at even money on my team when the prevailing odds were three to one against us. The game? My men played like demons. We had 'em beaten, 5 to 0, up to the last few minutes of play, when they tied the score.

"There is pretty keen rivalry between Haverford and Swarthmore and between Penn and Cornell. Penn State and Pitt look forward to their game with considerable interest as do Harvard and Yale. But I tell you, it is only rivalry. The State universities of Kansas and Missouri, those border states of the Civil War days, had a feud, and that Thanksgiving Day game was the one remaining chance each year to readjust the dispute of the sixties.

"And the townspeople of Columbia, the State University town, were worse than the players, especially the old fellows. One day, just before we left for the Kansas game, an old-timer with a wisp of a mustache like a black smear across his lip asked me if I were the Missouri coach. I told him I was. And then he said, speaking from the depths of him: 'If you beat them Jayhawkers on Thanksgivin' you can come back here and cut my ear off.'

"What about the Kansas University yell?" I asked of Hollenback. Always to me it had seemed to be the most thrilling and compelling call I had ever heard on any football field. "Greatest yell of 'em all," declared Hollenback with emphasis. And then he chanted it:

"Rock-k-k-k-chalk-k-k-k-k-Jayhawk
-k-k-k-k-k,

K-U-u-u-u-u-u-u-u-u * * *

"Honestly, I counted that yell as at least half of the strength of the Kansas team," said Hollenback. "Greatest gridiron call, and the most eerie, I ever heard, and I believe I have heard all of them."

Enrollment Is Increasing.

The enrollment of the Missouri Bible College this year is 125. This number is a substantial increase over the enrollment for last fall term. Every year more University students are entering the Bible College classes. The number of students who are taking the regular work in the Bible College is also increasing. Foreign students are particularly interested.

M. U. GRADUATES IN ORIENT

In Shanghai, China, J. B. Powell, who is a graduate of the School of Journalism, is now owner and editor of the Weekly Review of the Far East, formerly known as Millard's Review. He was at one time a teacher in the School of Journalism. Miss Margaret Powell works with him, writing on woman's interests in that country. Don D. Patterson is business manager of the magazine.

Carl Crow is conducting his own advertising agency in Shanghai. He was for a time news editor of the Japan Advertiser. W. Gibbons Lacy was until recently working with him, but he has been forced to come home on account of an injury to one of his eyes.

Hollington K. Tong, in Peking, is editor of the Peking News and Peking representative of the Weekly Review or the Far East. Hin Wong, who passed through Columbia recently on his way from the World Press Congress to the Arms Limitation Conference in Washington, is the representative in Canton for Reuter's Service, for the Associated Press and for the Weekly Review of the Far East. He is active in South China in all kinds of public and educational work and was recently elected one of the vice-presidents of the World Congress.

In the Philippines, Roy C. Bennett is the representative in Manila of the Trans-Pacific and city editor of the Manila Bulletin. Miss Ruth Taylor, who was graduated from the school about a year ago, is teaching English in the College of Agriculture of the University of the Philippines at Los Banos, Luzon.

PRACTICAL SOCIAL SERVICE

Field Work in Rural Sociology Now Offered.

For the first time in the history of the University, a definite attempt is being made to train students in rural social service, along lines which will fit them for work in rural communities, including organization work and welfare activities of all kinds. This is being done this year in the School of Business and Public Administration, by the offering of courses in rural sociology and rural organization, with other related courses connected with the same work.

The work offered has special reference to community organization, and field work along this line is available in Columbia and rural communities near the University. Through the co-operation of the local chapter of the Red Cross and the Charity Organization Society, students are given opportunities to take part in the planning of special community events and in the carrying out of particular welfare programs.

The man who has been brought here to take charge of these activities, and to supervise the planning of the work, is Prof. E. L. Morgan, who is now a member of the faculties of the College of Arts and Science, the School of Business and Public Administration and the College of Agriculture. Professor Morgan has had much experience in community organization work, especially in rural organization, and is well fitted to take the initiative in such a program.

Before coming to the University of Missouri, Professor Morgan was for seven years in charge of the department of rural organization of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. For two years following that, he was national director of the Rural Service of the American Red Cross, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

For many years Professor Morgan lived on a farm in Illinois, so that he is well acquainted with the needs and opportunities for service in a rural community. He received his A. B. degree from McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill. His graduate work was taken at the University of Wisconsin, where he majored in agricultural economics.

The rural service work here is as yet in the first stages of development. The only two courses now offered are Rural Sociology and Rural Organization but plans are being made for greater expansion and for the development of a definite curriculum.

The object of the courses offered is to lead up to special training in particular lines of work, such as Y. W. C. A. or Y. M. C. A. work, rural ministry, rural teaching or county superintendents of public welfare.

"The thing we want to do eventually," said Professor Morgan, "is to develop here at the University of Missouri a strong training center in rural service. It is our plan to expand the number of courses being given which look toward the training of students for various kinds of work in the small towns and the open country, into a well organized department of rural organization for the benefit of the students."

300 VOCATIONAL STUDENTS

Largest Number University Has Received From Government.

According to J. H. Jeans, supervisor of the Federal Board of Vocational Rehabilitation, the greatest number of men that have ever been in training in Missouri University are now here.

About 300 are now in actual training. Sixty-four of these are men who have never been here before. Fifteen belonging here are at present out of training.

YOUR STORE STILL DESIRES TO SERVE YOU

Remember how convenient the Co-op was, in the days of old, when you wanted a blue book or a pencil on your way to class? Remember, too, how the student clerks were always anxious to supply your needs during the book rush after registration? Well, they still desire to help you out, at your call.

That Christmasy feeling is already in the air. Make a present of a "Missouri" pennant to the old grad for his den, or a warm "M" blanket for his car, and note his appreciation. Or perhaps he would like a Column pin or some "Missouri" jewelry. We have these appropriate presents at a price that fits your purse.

Send Us Your Mail Orders

Perhaps you cannot shop over our counters, yet Uncle Sam will be your agent. Drop us a post card and your order will be filled the day it arrives. If you have a book you are unable to obtain elsewhere the Co-op will get it for you promptly, if it's in print.

Drop in to see us whenever you come back—the Co-op is still your store.
