The Tiger's Tail Wouldn't Twist

HE murky clouds closed in and shut out the last bit of light from the fast sinking sun. The Jayhawks had the ball in their own territory. A touch-down would win them the game. A succession of quick plays and the ball was in the Tiger's own country. The clouds parted and the hazy rays of the sun lit up the field. Thirteen thousand hearts were in as many throats. The time-keeper fingered his watch nervously.

The Tiger line held for downs. A line smash or so. A whistle blew somewhere and someone thought the game ended. The crowd surged out on the field. A penalty for Missouri—half the distance to the goal line, but with the ball in her possession. The ball snapped—forty yards down the field the only surviving Jayhawk barely stopped Al Lincoln. And the 1922 classic ended—Missouri 9, Kansas 7.

From the stands on one side—
Old Missouri, Fair Missouri, dear old Varsity—

And from the other—
Rock Chalk, Jayhawk — K-a-a-y U—oo—oo—

The Jayhawk was defeated. His plumage was bedraggled and soiled by the rain of the afternoon, but he died gamely, for the best team had won. Then from the stands came the staccato—
H'ray! H'Rah! M'zoo, M'zoo,—

President Jones declared a holiday on the morrow, and the gates of Rollins Field poured forth a mob of yellow Mums, Black and Old Gold Ribbons and arm bands, a happy chattering yelling mob, happy, as only a Tiger mob knows how to be happy.

The Homecoming was a success! From the opening on Wednesday evening of the greatest mass meeting on Rollins Field the University has ever witnessed to the final storming of the check room at the Razzler Dance in Rothwell Gymnasium on Friday night Tiger spirit was irrepressible. Bill Roper had come back! The team had come back—and so had the largest crowd of homecomers ever seen in Columbia.

The mass meeting—no one has ever witnessed a greater! Eight thousand persons—eight thousand loyal Missourians crowded the south bleachers and the field. In the center of the gridiron stood the speaker's stand. A loud speaker carried the words of the speakers to the ears of all.

By GERALD F. PERRY

Oak Hunter, '00, Representative Hunter now, if you please, told of his plans and ambitions to organize the M men's association in a larger scope. In '98 Oak played right guard with the Tigers.

Then Burton Thompson, who had returned for the game from New York City, spoke of the days when the Tiger was yet a cub. That was back in 1890.

President Jones spoke of the needs of the University, the importance of the alumni's support in favor of the appropriation. The financial assistance is necessary to keep Missouri from sinking to the rank of a second class institution.

Others: "Hot-Air" Nelson, "Bottles" Burrus, that veteran mass meeting orator, "Satan" Sanderson, George Wilson delivered exhortations that fairly dripped with Missouri spirit.

Gen. E. D. Smith, who has missed but five Missouri-Kansas games since '97, and Ted Hackney of the 1909 Tigers, orated as well.

Then the meeting closed with the annual cap-burning by the Freshmen. At the west end of the grid, a block house protected the material for the bonfire. Husky sophomores guarded it, but when the Freshmen, under the leadership of their football men, came tearing down the field the sophomores went down—and out.

The field was lighted by a system constructed by the students in the School of Engineering. The weather was ideal with no hint of the rain that was to come on the next morning.

Gray, low-hanging clouds greeted the Homecomers Thursday morning. The temperature was above freezing and when the parade started on time three quarters of an hour after schedule a fine rain had begun to fall. But the parade went on and the streets were crowded. In the reviewing stand, built at the intersection of Ninth and Broadway, were all the distinguished visitors at Homecoming,—the Governor of the state, the board of curators, the members of the faculty. The rain continued until the end of the parade and then stopped.

After the parade came the laying of the corner stone for the Memorial Union Building, a monument to the ninety-eight graduates and former students that died in the recent war. The ceremony was short, but impressive. A copper box containing all information concerning Missouri's part in the war was placed in the stone by Col. James E. Rieger of the 35th Division. It was delivered to him by the representatives of the Veterans' Council who performed the laying of the cornerstone and was in the personal charge of Carl C. Gentry, who received the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in action. He represented the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Dr. C. M. Sneed represented the American Legion, John W. Teed, the Disabled Veterans of the World War, and J. Grant Frye, Croix de Guerre, U. S. Naval medal, the Marine Corps club.

Colonel Rieger delivered the memorial address. He said in part:

"Today we are laying the cornerstone in memory of Missouri's heroic sons. May their spirit ever live within this edifice; teaching the young of Missouri that peace has its heroes as well as war; that sacrifice and carrying the cross leads to the crown; and in the end of the journey of life, may we lay down the crosses of burden at the end of the day at the feet of him who sacrificed the most. And with this emblem of heroic life then will be created an invisible memorial whose builder and maker is God."

The stone was put in place by the Veterans' Council; a war mother laid a wreath on the stone; then followed a short ceremony by the officers of the Grand Lodge of Missouri, Order of Free Masons. The Rev. J. D. Randolph, a chaplain in the service, acted as chaplain for the veterans and was appointed

Grand Chaplain pro-tem for the Masonic ceremony.

The Homecomers adjourned for lunch, some to buffet handouts at the Greeks, others for "a ham and" at the lunch counters and cafeterias.

By one o'clock Hitt street, Missouri avenue and Maryland place were thronged with a crowd hungry for Jayhawk meat. When the whistle sounded for the kickoff at two o'clock the stands were filled—and the clouds were dripping moisture again.

Then feather by feather the Tiger clawed the Jayhawk to pieces. Back and forth the battle raged on the field and when the first half had ended the score was 6 to 0 in the Bengal's favor. Then while the warriors rested the band and the Mizzou Razzers performed for the hilarious crowd.

The struggle was then renewed and after several unsuccessful attempts to penetrate the defence of the visitors for another touchdown, Lincoln stepped back to the Kansas 49-yard line and booted a placement kick between the bars.

Then came an exchange of punts and Kansas recovered one deep in Missouri territory. Spurgeon of Kansas caught a twelve-yard pass and bolted seventeen yards to cross Missouri's goal.

The clouds grew darker, the rain began again. Presently the clouds lightened, darkened, and then the sun burst through, as Al Lincoln, in his last minute as a Tiger, swept through Kansas for 40 yards. The final whistle blew. Old Missouri, fair Missouri, Dear Old Varsity.

*Ours are hearts that fondly love thee
Here's a health to thee.*

Mass Meeting and Banquet for Bill Roper.

Every foot of available space, every window that could be reached, the fire escape, was crowded when Bill Roper spoke at the mass meeting called in his honor on the Monday night before the Homecoming game. Even the chandelier in the middle of the auditorium would have had its quota of student had there been any way to reach it.

The meeting opened with a quartette, "Mid the Hills of Old Missouri." A play-by-play account of the first half of the 1909 game with Kansas was shown on the Gridgraph. A reel or so of Tigertown pictures and then Irl W. Brown, student president, introduced E. Sydney Stephens, the chairman for the evening.

When Bill Roper stepped forward to say his bit, it was fully five minutes before the cheers of the audience subsided so that he could begin. The famous Princeton coach displayed no flowery oratory, he told no "funny" story, but delivered a message that inspired confidence in the hearts of his hearers and instilled faith in a team that through the year had met with unfortunate reverses. It was a faith and a spirit that beat Kansas. It was a message that aroused every bit of flagging and weary Tiger spirit—it was a "Bill" Roper speech, and it was a tonic to the Tiger.

The next night two hundred business men met a banquet given in his honor. Here he paid high tribute to the present team:

"The Tiger team of 1909 that beat Kansas was not comparable to this team. It had that indomitable Missouri spirit, but add to that the power and strength of this team—then what?"

At the banquet he told why he had come to Missouri and spoke of Hank Garrity, backfield coach at Missouri, who was one of the best halfbacks ever produced at Princeton.

"My efforts here are all extra. All has been done that can be done," Roper said, "but I also want to help Garrity, one of our men."

President Jones spoke of the value of athletics in binding together the students, alumni and Missourians in good fellowship. Following him, Z. G. Clevenger spoke, he, too, predicting victory for the Tigers.

Chuck Lewis, who came back to help put the team in fighting spirit, spoke, and was then followed by Coach Bill Dunckel, star fullback of '12, '13 and '14, who declared himself to be "a glorified waterboy". P. E. Burton of Joplin, a member of the Board of Curators, spoke next, remarking as he arose to his feet, "Some water boy!" Other speakers were Coach Henry Garrity, former captain Herbert Blumer and Toastmaster Judge H. A. Collier.

Bill Roper did a lot for Missouri spirit when he came back this year. For Missouri spirit of today is the Roper spirit of 1909 and Roper found the same spirit here that he had left when he returned to the east.

The fourth annual Journalism Scoop, which was to have been held December 15, was postponed until January because of the death of Miss Margaret Garner, a senior in the School of Journalism on December 15.

Homecoming As an Old Grad Saw It.

By A. WALL DOUGLAS

I was up betimes on the morning of the fateful day, for the night before I gave the Pullman porter a quarter, and told him that I was to be Queen of the May, and he guessed the rest. My first stop was at Harris', and there I met up with two Kansas boys who were ordering an elaborate breakfast on the strength of their prospective winnings.

"But," I queried, "hasn't Missouri a fighting chance?"

"Nothing doing on that old stuff" they replied, "what odds do you want?"

I told him that all Rock-Chalk Jay Hawks talked that way; and moreover I did not bet on football games, for it was wicked; also too uncertain. I understand that right after the game, that when last seen the confident Kansan was going West, along the railroad ties that led to Kansas City.

My next stop was at the Beta House, where I met Shepherd, the same hearty, modest Shepherd as when he used to pull off those long runs through a broken field. He told me not to be discouraged for it was an even break, and that if it rained we would have the edge on them.

So I took my foot in my hand, after the fashion of Uncle Remus, and went downtown to the stores that had signs on them, "closed all day", and bought galoshes and a cheap umbrella, for I had seen what happened to the parade. As I went out of the store, two Freshmen said in stage whispers, "Look at that sporty old Grad going to the game." And I swelled up at the undeserved compliment.

I was glad enough that I had all old gentlemen fixings when the game commenced. Then I understood what Napoleon thought on the morning of the battle of Waterloo when it was still raining. Likewise what he said. But nobody seemed to mind it, not even the two nice girls in the next seats to mine, whose new hats were being spoiled, as was also mine. But there the analogy ends, for, being girls they had many hats, and I had only one. And mine a covering to my gray hairs, which are fast being numbered, and their's only a finishing touch to their costume. Nor were the two little folks in the seats behind me caring whether it rained or shined, for they were up to their necks in the game, these two, a boy of twelve and a girl of fourteen. Not a yell nor a song that they failed to get in on, from the "Dutchman" to "Old

The First Battle of the Tigers

ELLOW Missourians, Alumni and Students of "Old Miz-zou": Your president has just told you that there are eight thousand souls gathered here on Rollins Field tonight. That is just about seven thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine more than I ever talked before in all my life. While I disclaim ability as a speaker, I confess pride at the privilege of appearing here tonight to give a brief history of the men and the team, and the game which laid the foundations for the things which you are doing today and too, for the Athletic Association of our University which is behind your present activities, all of which finds expression in this wonderful gathering tonight.

The American modification of the game of football (which was reduced to rules at Rugby, England in the year 1830) was introduced in the University in the spring of 1890, thirty-two years ago.

Out of the east had come a man to act as assistant-professor of Physics. He had played as a "sub" on a Harvard team. He found here plenty of brain and brawn; enthusiasm and ambition,—but all chaotic undirected and undisciplined. To that man, more than to any other individual is due the credit, honor and glory for all that you may claim for your track and football teams today. I refer to the late Dr. A. L. McRae, for it was he who inspired and encouraged us to our first efforts at football which, if somewhat unseasonable were none the less fruitful of good results.

In the spring of 1890 Dr. McRae, George Whitsett and I ordered through the old Kirtley bookstore the first Rugby football that ever came into this town. When it arrived and Whitsett and I blew it up (McRae was not present) we wanted it returned to the shipper because we thought it was crooked.

The fever was upon us and no delay was to be brooked, so we began our play in the spring. We had our first lineup and scrimmages on what was then the "back campus,"—where now stands Jessie Hall. At that time there were about six hundred students enrolled. We found difficulty in getting out twenty-two men. Many of the balance of the student body preferred to stand on the side lines of an imaginary (but unchartered) gridiron and hurl derisive comments at our efforts, which they considered huge comedy, if not absolutely ridiculous.

Nevertheless, the game and the Spirit of it had come to stay. The fall of 1890 saw organizations of teams in the Law, Engineering and Academic schools. Challenges were issued and crude matches played off. Soon McRae, who was our coach, our trainer and our inspiration all in one began to single out his men for an all Varsity team. It is well here to call the roll of that original eleven men. The final lineup was:

By BURTON THOMPSON

Irl W. Brown, student president, introduced Mr. Burton Thompson as the fullback on the original Varsity team, which played Missouri's first intercollegiate match in the fall of 1890. The speech given here was delivered at the mass meeting, November 29.

- W. R. Littell (Captain) Center.
- A. R. Shull, Right Guard.
- W. P. Records, Left Guard.
- Geo. P. Witsell, Right Tackle.
- W. E. Gordon, Left Tackle.
- B. F. Goslin, Right End.
- C. A. Keith, Left End.
- Curtis Hill, Quarterback.
- M. M. Bogie, Half Back.
- L. Showhan, Half Back.
- Burton Thompson, Fullback.

In the capacity of our Manager, Dr. McRae issued a challenge to the Washington University of St. Louis for a match game to be played on Thanksgiving Day. It was promptly accepted. We went at our training with all the zeal of gladiators about to enter an arena where the struggle meant life or death. We had no training table; no regulations except those each man chose to observe; no gymnasium; no baths or showers except at our several homes; but I believe each man faithfully played the game with all fairness and took the grilling without a murmur or a break. In those days we played two halves of three quarters of an hour each. For good measure we were made to string out the second half to a full hour and then jog three times around the goal posts just to top off our wind. With McRae it was "Tackle hard and tackle low! Build up your wind! Get into that scrimmage head first!"

With such preparation we fared forth to meet our first enemy on a football field. Two hundred citizens and students, cheered on by the Cadet Band, appeared at old Sportsman's Park, on November 27, 1890.

By way of precaution Dr. McRae had written and handed to each member of the team copies of twenty rules of etiquette, for our guidance while in the city and amongst strangers. Another memorable incident is that we had had our plain, unpadded canvas football pants and jackets beautifully laundered and pressed. We also wore gold and black caps of some knitted material each with a tassel pendant, which said caps each and every one disappeared beneath the jackets of our adversaries after the very first scrimmage. It appears that they valued same as souvenirs.

Well we lost the toss and they chose to put the sun in our eyes. Our Captain, Littell, kicked off from center. As the ball soared up into the air, their line came tearing down the field paying no more attention to its course than if it had been a titwillow fitting through the ambient blue. We thought they had gone crazy. We could not divine such indifference nor fathom such strategy. When, however, Charlie Reber, one of their halfbacks (then holder of the amateur broad jump record of America) came tearing down the field behind that carefully planned and highly protective interference of the forwards, we began to get our football eyes opened. That Reber laid low several of our men with a straight right arm jab to the face of the man who tackled him, we considered not only rude and ruthless, but altogether an infraction of the rules. That certainly was not the way we had been taught the game.

Loud protests were swiftly brushed aside and we were advised to "get into the game". We did, and with a will, but science will win out over strength every time, and so on that day, ever memorable to that eleven men, when the final whistle blew, the score stood 28 to 0. They had won a victory, but we were not defeated—and that is the spirit that lives and inspires and wins for the Tigers today.

As a result of what we learned in that first and only contest, and I recite it only to show what training and experience is worth, I must tell you of what happened four days later. On our return to Columbia—as battered and bruised a lot of men as ever left a football field, we were challenged by the second eleven who, upon hearing reports of the score, had boasted broadly that they should have been sent to St. Louis instead of ourselves. We accepted their challenge and met them on what was then our athletic field which is where now stands the University Library. This was on a Monday, four days after our Thanksgiving Day defeat. They had previously scored against us in each practice game, but on this occasion the game was called before the end of the second half and the score stood 86 to 0 in our favor.

Tomorrow our team will meet here on Rollins Field its ancient enemy, Kansas. I do not make the prophecy to call forth applause, but I do predict that because we have the will to conquer our men will be victorious in tomorrow's game. Whatever the result may be I want them to know that over them will hover the shade of A. L. McRae and with them on this field will be the hope and pride and longing for victory of every man of that old team of 1890.

The University of 1888 Was Different.

By CHAS. L. MOSLEY, LL. B. '82.

In fall of 1878, the writer with three or four others, left the same country school district for the University. We entrained at Pattonsburg, Mo., for at that time that was the western terminus of the Wabash. My, what changes have come in transportation, education, and social customs!

We matriculated as sub-freshmen, for at that time the course of study covered a period of six years, including the two years of preparatory work. It is a safe bet that the student body of 500 had come largely from the humble country district. Very few came from city or village high schools. Shortly after my exit the first two years were cut out leaving a full four-year course. The students of the University thought that the institution was ruined; but with an increasing number of high schools the blow was not serious. The great majority of the pupils were, in attainment, not exceeding that of the present eighth grade.

We came as pupils of narrow vision and meager knowledge of the ways of the world. Those dear old teachers soon gained our confidence and good will. I sometimes wonder whether the modern pupil has for his teachers the esteem, affection, and veneration that prevailed in those good old days.

The writer shall never forget kind and genial Dr. McAlester, who but yesterday passed away. He saved my life. His kindly ministrations when I was dangerously ill will cling to my last day. In the hovel or mansion he was the same good Dr. McAlester.

Dr. Samuel S. Laws was our philosophical president. He, too, died not long ago in Washington, D. C. Space will forbid mentioning all the teachers, though they would not have numbered more than 25. I can not refrain from speaking of my admiration of that amiable Dr. M. M. Fisher, pleasing and engratiating; a man with a remarkable memory. I remember this statement from his lips: "If every copy of Virgil was destroyed it would be no great loss to literature, for I could reproduce every word from memory."

I must mention the name of Joseph Ficklin, mathematics instructor, stern, and exact to a fault. A man of splendid discipline; you must be able under his instruction to give the reason for the faith in you.

Nor could I forget the face, dress, and mannerism of Dr. McAnally, Jr. No, never. For it was he who reached up and gently removed my sombrero when I had entered his room to enroll in English. After that experience I always removed my hat on entering a church or school. He also presided at the organ for daily convocations. Then it was attending chapel and each student had a special seat with a number large enough to be seen by the balcony monitors. This number must be covered or the student was absent. How much we enjoyed having visitors cover our numbers!

Outdoor student activities were almost negligible. As I remember it, no gym, no football, no tennis, no track meets; just a little of baseball on the side.

There were two flourishing literary societies, the Athenaeum, and Union Literary. There was intense rivalry and competition between the two. Each was always on the alert for the promising new student.

Stephen's Medal Contest was the outstanding event of Commencement Week. On one particular occasion Mr. R. W. Gentry of Sedalia and Miss Ida Hays of Columbia were the chief contestants. The Assembly room was packed, intense interest prevailed; Mr. Gentry, calm, self-possessed, faced the audience with assurance, and presented a masterly production in stentorian tones that found a hearty response. Miss Hays went forward in a proud, dignified manner, presenting, "The Star of Bethlehem." In her presentation there was a sentiment, a pathos, and a sublimity that captured the audience. Able and equal as the contest was two of the judges decided for Mr. Gentry and one tenaciously stood for Miss Hays. He was editor McCullough of the Globe-Democrat, I believe. He backed his judgment with a handsome contribution, and that, increased by student donations, enabled the staunch friends of Miss Hays to procure for her a costly gold watch and chain, worth $125 as I recall.

There was a fine bunch of boys from Kansas City: Kumph, Ridge, Sloan, Bauerlein, Mitchell, Woods, Cowherd, and the Crittendens. Also other outstanding students were: Russell of Charleston, Gray of Carthage, Tapley of Troy, Yeater of Sedalia, Crumbaugh of Columbia, Alexander of Paris, Kennish of Holt, Bresnehen and Bailey of Brookfield. Among the girls able to measure up intellectually with the boys were: Miss Ida Hays, Miss Lyda Reed of Huntsville, Miss Carrie Gamble of Jefferson City, and Miss Octavia Ficklin of Columbia.

I would be unjust not to mention H. L. Otto also of Columbia.

Many of these made good in law, politics, and other lines. In 1880 political feelings ran strong; the Crittendens were made happy in the election of their father as governor. The Republican boys one dark night commandeered the old cannon and fired a vigorous salute in celebration of Garfield's election. Another night some vicious fellows plunged the campus cannon into Lake Saint Mary, just north of the columns. At another time a group of U. B. Club boys persuaded my room-mate, Carl Schroeder, of Augusta, Mo., to join them in a raid on a nearby orchard. The firing of a gun was the signal for the writer to cry out in pain. At this juncture and for fear of detection all ran pell mell for safe quarters. One

News From Alumni Centers— Alumni In Iowa Organize

Iowa Alumni.

I am sure you will be glad to hear that an Alumni Association has been formed in Iowa.

Immediately after receiving your letter, I wrote letters to Misses Sears, Pickerell, and Bickell and Mrs. French, of Des Moines, asking them to meet me on October 28.

Misses Sears and Pickerell met me and were very enthusiastic for such an organization. We made arrangements for a place of registration and sent out cards to all the names we had as follows: "Did you ever attend the University of Missouri? Then you have the 'Show Me' spirit and will 'Show Us' that you are still interested by registering in the lobby of the Coliseum, at Des Moines, November 2 or 3. Arrangements are being made for a 'Get-together' and organization meeting. Inquire concerning it. Bring your M. U. friends

"If it is impossible for you to register, but you are interested in the organization of a Missouri Alumni Association of Iowa, please let me hear from you."

About thirty people registered but the meeting was held at four-thirty p. m. on Friday and it was impossible for many to attend. Only ten were present at the meeting but they were all most enthusiastic. An organization was effected with Mr. C. A. Rockwold, 528 39th St., Des Moines, as president, and Mrs. Mary Percival French, 1902 Woodland, Des Moines, Ia., as secretary-treasurer.

It was agreed to hold the next meeting on Sunday afternoon, December 9, at which time we will have a report of the "Home Coming" from two of the members who plan to attend.

I have had letters from a score of persons who stated their interest although they could not attend.

One letter was from Robert K. Tindall, of Shenandoah and he gave me about ten names of persons in Shenandoah who were former Missouri University students. I wrote to him and suggested that they organize an auxiliary association at Shenandoah and include the nearby towns.

I have written to Mrs. French for a list of those people who registered and those who were present at our meeting.

I will forward the list to you as soon as I receive it.

Chicago Alumni.

CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A., November 23, 1922.—Missouri University yells, songs, speeches, followed by abundant conversation and some dancing featured the annual autumn banquet of the University of Missouri alumni, alumnae and former students in and near Chicago in the City Club tonight (November 23).

President Charles E. Kane, the dignified genial chairman, complimented Comegys, Dodd, Rathel, Barton, Vincent, Witt and others for aid in making the occasion successful; then introduced Mrs. Irene Brown McKnight (class 1890), and J. W. Hudson of the University, the speakers.

AN ANNUAL BANQUET.

The following motion was adopted unanimously, at the semi-annual business meeting of the alumni on Thanksgiving morning when the athletic resolution was adopted. The resolution was presented by Dr. C. J. Blackburn, president of the general Alumni Association—and seconded by Earl F. Nelson, president of the St. Louis Alumni Association:

RESOLVED: That the alumni have an alumni banquet the night before the Homecoming football game at Columbia next November and that the alumni request the student body to have the mass meeting as early as possible on that evening in order to avoid conflict.

A hundred women in the University in 1890, mentioned by Mrs. McKnight, was gladly contrasted with the more than 1,000 now enrolled.

"A new assembly hall is needed at Mizzou," said Prexy Kane, "Large because the tremendous demonstrations which have occurred during addresses given by our speaker of the evening—Professor of Philosophy, Jay W. Hudson. He may know a great deal about the old birds—Xenophon, Caesar, Bill Nye, Eddie Guest and other philosophers—but I'm told he knows something about Missouri University of today."

Rotarion "Jay" Hudson, responding to the introduction, admitted that he had slight acquaintance with some ancient philosophers though he might not know personally those mentioned by Prexy Kane. He recalled his early Chicago experience some 32 years ago, when he was raised in three successive jobs from $3 a week to $7 a week, complimented the Chicago spirit of achievement, named the buildings now going up and contemplated for the campus, and emphasized the necessity of Chicago Missourians backing up the budget proposed by President J. C. Jones, for $5,000,000 for the next biennial period.

Jay Barton led the yells, Terence Vincent directed the singing. The meeting was then adjourned, after the dance, until April 19, 1923. Following is roster of meeting:

The following telegram was read from Pres. Jones:

"Please present my cordial greetings to the Chicago Alumni and my best wishes for an enthusiastic and profitable meeting. Assure them that their Alma Mater needs their strong support and co-operation in her efforts to secure from the Fifty-Second General Assembly such an appropriation as will permit her to continue the fine service that she is rendering to the people of Missouri and the nation.

"J. C. JONES, President.

Oklahoma Alumni.

The attached letter from Judge F. A. Rittenhouse, LL. B. '08, president of the Missouri Alumni Association of Oklahoma, tells about the Oklahoma alumni banquet at Oklahoma City the night of November 11, following the Missouri-Oklahoma football game at Norman.

"About fifty Missouri alumni were present at the banquet, which was held at the Skirvin Hotel, and all seemed to have a very nice time. The speakers of the evening consisted of Mr. W. F. Wilson of Oklahoma City, F. B. Owen of Oklahoma City and Ad Coppage of Grove, Okla. After the speaking we held an election at which Hal Thurman of Oklahoma City was elected president of the Missouri Alumni Association of Oklahoma; Ad V. Coppage of Grove, Okla., was elected vice-president and W. E. Price of Oklahoma City was elected secretary-treasurer.

Following is a list of those present:

Joe W. Ammerman, Hal Thurman, Mrs. Hal Thurman, F. A. Rittenhouse, Mrs. F. A. Rittenhouse, Mont. F. Highley, J. C. King, R. S. McCable, F. B. Owen, Anna E. Pearson, Arthur Eugene Pearson, Miss Lynce E. Pearson, Wm. Edward Price, Mrs. T. J. Turner, T. J. Turner, James B. Rogers, Chas. Bondurant, F. W. Herndon, Mrs. W. F. Wilson, W. F. Wilson, all of Oklahoma City; G. R. Hornor, Okmulgee; Carrie Barnett, Enid; Berda N. Talley, El Reno; Ad. V. Coppage, Grove; James B. Coppage, Grove; Robt. E. Scofield, Tulsa; Mrs. Robt. F. Scofield, Tulsa.

Several others whose names were not set out were present.

New England Alumni Association.

Claude B. Cross, A. B. '14, Secretary-Treasurer of the Missouri Alumni Association of New England, wrote under date of November 21 to this office. Mr. Cross is in the office of Sherman L. Whipple, Tremont Bldg., Boston. His home address is 6 Newport Rd., Cambridge, Mass. He writes as follows of the alumni meeting in Boston:

On November 17, the Missouri Alumni Association of New England had its first meeting of the year at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston.

Those attending the banquet were Harland Mayes, A. B. '21, of 203 Craigie Hall, Cambridge; Edwin Cave, A. B. '20, 1705 Boylston St., Boston; Nelson C. Tisdell, A. B. '20, 69 Oxford St., Cambridge; Myron M. Henderson, 114 Upland Road, Cambridge; A. A. Tibbe, Jr., 45 W. Hastings, Cambridge; Ben R. Shore, Jr., A. B. '20, 1075 Boylston St., Boston; Claude B. Cross, A. B. '14, 6 Newport Road, Cambridge; Rodney M. Fairfield, A. B. '20, 2 W. Hastings, Cambridge; Arnold Leonard, A. B. '14, 90 Marion Road, Watertown; Prof. Manley O.

Hudson, Harvard Law School; Misses Helen S. Hunter, A. B. '04, A. M. '05, 41 Wren St., W. Roxbury; Helen Richards, 120 Gainsborough St., Boston; and Mrs. Arnold Leonard (June Van Nostrand) A. B. '16, 90 Marion Road, Watertown. The guests were Mrs. Myron M. Henderson and Mrs. Claude B. Cross.

President Arnold Leonard, who was toastmaster of the evening spoke on "Our duty to the University of Missouri". He was followed by Prof. Manley O. Hudson of the Harvard Law School. His subject was "What it means to be a Missourian." After fully establishing his claim to Missouri as a native state, he pointed out why he is so proud of his birth-right, and why he always feels more at home with Missourians. He said that one so frequently hears, particularly in the West, Missouri spoken of as the Middle West, but that this geographical idea is quite erroneous. Instead of beginning at some other place and measuring toward Missouri, he believed it would more nearly show its importance to measure from Missouri.

After Professor Hudson's talk, the meeting developed into a round table discussion, in which most of those present took part. One subject that required little discussion was the result of the approaching game with Kansas and I was instructed to say that the alumni of New England will be behind the "Tigers" at the game. The Tiger's prowess and ferocity of former years was enthusiastically recalled, and there was considerable anticipation of the certain fate of the Jayhawk.

Those present joined in again expressing their loyalty to their Alma Mater and their unflinching confidence in the Tigers.

Will you be good enough to convey our message, and continue to tell us about Missouri successes.

Washington, D. C. Annual Dinner.

What:

The annual dinner of the Washington Alumni.

When:

6 p. m., Wednesday, November 22, 1922.

Where:

University Club, Washington, D. C.

Why:

The annual dinner is held whenever the time seems opportune. Three deans of the University were in Washington and other members of the faculty were here. This combined with the fact that the K. U. game was only one week off made it an ideal time for the Washington alumni to get together and have a real old fashioned "Rally" and Dinner.

Number:

Nine guests and thirty-one alumni.

Guests:

Dean and Mrs. Mumford; Dean and Mrs. McCaustland; Dean Williams and guest, Mr. Brown, Editor and Publisher of New York City (who has a son attending the University); Dr. and Mrs. Trowbridge, now of North Dakota; Prof. C. P. Hutchinson, now of California.

Speakers:

Presiding and Toastmaster, Walt Mandry, Pres. Washington Alumni Association; Dean Mumford, Dean McCaustland and Dean Williams in the order named. Also a word of greeting from Dr. Trowbridge and Prof. Hutchinson. The deans spoke on what was going on in their departments and in the University in general and of hopes for the future. Just a heart to heart talk to the alumni from those who have given so much to our University.

Alumni:

The following alumni were present:

Alexander, Preston C., A. B. '09, LL. B. '11; Bailey, Ilena M., B. S. in Ag. '12; Brandberger, Jacobenna, B. S. '09; Brinkley, M. H., B. S. '03, C. E. '06; Chew, Clara; Davenport, Sara J. (and mother) B. S. '10; Glushak, D. A. (and wife) B. S. in Ag. '18; Gordon, John B., B. S. in Ag. '09; Heidel, Benj. F. (and wife) B. S. in C. E. '06; Hornback, John S., A. B. '16, LL. B. '17; Pritchard, Bertha, B. S. '16, A. M. '17; Richey, F. D., B. S. in Ag. '09; Ross, C. G., A. B. '05; Ross, Mrs. C. G., a former student; Sack, Leo, Jour.; Shapiro, F. E., B. J. '17; Shelledy, F. H., B. S. in Ag. '17; Smith, Earl B., B. S. '03, M. E. '05; Smith, Mrs. Earl B., a former student; Walker, Herbert, B. J. '17; Weston, Mrs. C. H. (Virginia Ross); Woodberry, Mr.; Hawkins, Miss—guest of Miss Bailey.

Dean Williams and Dean McCaustland, who were to attend the New York Dinner on November 23, were asked to give to the New York alumni the best wishes of the Washington alumni. In closing, the Tigers came in for their share and they were instructed to completely annihilate the Jayhawkers on the 30th. After the speaking was over much talk was indulged in by all.

New York Alumni.

A "Beat Kansas" dinner of New York alumni of the University of Missouri was held on Thursday evening before Thanksgiving at the Newspaper Club in New York. Forty-three persons ate the broiled chicken dinner and three groups, who came in for the speeches, brought the total to an even fifty. Thus the dinner equalled the previous record set when the New York alumni were addressed in October by Dean Walter Williams and Miss Mary Houk.

Dean Walter Williams of the School of Journalism and Dean E. J. McCaustland of the School of Engineering brought news from Columbia. Others at the dinner included Dean Bleyer of the University of Wisconsin, and Dean James Melvin Lee of New York University.

Edwin W. Patterson, LL. B. '11, was elected secretary and it was announced that the policy of the association made that tantamount to his elevation to the presidency at the annual election in the spring. Patterson was one of the authors of "The Hundred Dollar Bill," a play presented at the University in 1912. Since 1911 he has taught law in Texas, Colorado and Iowa, and studied at Harvard. At present he is professor of International Law at Columbia University. His wife was formerly Miss Dorothy Thompson of Columbia, Missouri. Russell M. Bandy was chosen by the meeting to express its confidence that the Tigers were going to annihilate the Jayhawks.

Burton Thompson, fullback on the first football team ever organized at the University and Forest S. Lyman, who commutes between New York and Washington on behalf of the Western Union, (to keep things going right at both ends), were congratulated on their good fortune in being able to see the game.

Miss Mary Alice Hudson also was congratulated on the month's vacation she is to spend in Kansas City during the Christmas holiday season.

Homer Crop and Henry H. Kinyon told reminiscences of their journalistic career here and abroad. Monte Crews, the famous Missouri cartoonist; Louis Resnick, the ex-St. Louis and ex-Chicago publicity man; Frank B. Houston, William Mack, Dr. Bert Munday, Earle Pearson and Leon R. Whipple were among the speakers. It was announced that James A. Jackson, an alumnus of 1908, had just been elected vice-president of the National City Bank of New York.

St. Francois County Alumni.

The St. Francois County Alumni Association with 83 members was organized at the Flat River Y. M. C. A. Building, November 18. The following officers were elected: F. S. Voss, president; Roy Coplen, vice-president; and Mrs. W. M. Harlan, secretary-treasurer. They are doing everything in their power to see that the University gets all the money asked for in the budget this year. They intend to hold regular meetings, show the University motion pictures to the high school students of their county, and do everything they can to foster educational measures. Mrs. Harlan writes as follows: "We are certainly hoping that our county may be of some real service to the grand old school."

Pike County Alumni.

The Pike County Alumni Association held their monthly dinner at Louisiana, Mo., on Friday evening, December 8, at Huntington Inn. The following Pike

Edwin W. Patterson.

County alumni were present: Prof. R. R. Rowley, Lawrence Stark, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cowherd, Miss Frances Haley, Miss Edna Jane Haley, Mrs. E. B. Rule, Jr., (Sue Shannon), Andrew Murphy, Berkeley Fielder, Miss Dorothy Bryson, Mrs. W. J. Jacquin, John Haley, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Higginbotham, Mrs. D'Arline Holcomb, Biggs Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Holcomb, Malcolm Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Orson Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wood, Senator Jefferson D. Hostetter, E. R. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Huckstep, K. C. Patton, Wendel Luke, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Duvall, and Miss Harriet Jacquin.

Mr. Carroll Wisdom, recently elected representative to the Missouri Legislature from Pike County, was unable to attend the meeting but sent a most interesting and welcome message to those present at the meeting. Rufus L. Higginbotham, Prosecuting Attorney of Pike County was the first speaker on the program. He outlined the great needs of the University, and pointed out the work that the alumni are doing to help the University of Missouri. Bob Hill was the next speaker and told about the alumni organization work, the appropriations that will be asked for by President Jones and the members of the Board of Curators from the next Legislature, and about University and student activities.

Senator Jefferson D. Hostetter, of the eleventh district, Bowling Green, was the next speaker. Senator Hostetter is the father of Mrs. John Haley, an alumnus of Bowling Green. Senator Hostetter made an unusually fine address. The Pike County Alumni Association is doing splendid work and the officers and members are to be congratulated on their accomplishments. The next meeting will be held in the early part of January at Clarksville. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Duvall, K. O. Patton, and Wendel Luke will have charge of the arrangements for the dinner. President E. R. Keller, County Agent, Bowling Green, appointed an alumnus in every town in Pike County as members of an executive committee to carry out all the plans for the work they have in hand. Miss Harriet Jacquin, the secretary, is to be commended for the interest she is taking in the Pike County Alumni Association work. The Pike County alumni are manifesting an interest in the University and educational measures in general that will make it one of the leading county alumni associations in the State. They plan to show the "Home-Coming" motion pictures at all the high schools in Pike County within the next few weeks. The Pike County alumni are trying to show to the citizens of Pike County that the money expended in appropriations for the University is paying good dividends back to the citizens of the State for the taxes they pay for the support and upkeep of the University.

San Joaquin Valley.

Roy E. Miller, B. S. Jour. '10, is editor of the Associated Grower, a monthly magazine published by the California Associated Raisin Co. and the California Peach and Fig Growers at Fresno, Calif. He was married in 1920 to Miss Dorothy Juanita Miller. He sent the following story about the University of Missouri alumni meeting at Fresno on November 28. Kansas City Alumni.

The annual banquet of the Missouri Alumni Association was held upon Friday, November 17, in the Francis First room of the Hotel Baltimore. There were about 125 in attendance among others who were former students of the them being a number of visiting teach-University. R. C. Kemper was in charge of the banquet and Jouett Shouse, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, was toastmaster.

The following speakers were on the program: President J. C. Jones, Dean J. H. Coursault, George Combs and Dr. H. J. Waters.

During the evening a number of University yells were given and a great many old Tiger songs were sung.

Most of the speakers urged the Alumni to get behind the University appropriations solidly. It was recommended that a lobbying committee be appointed to take up the matter at Jefferson City in order that the University might get through its budget without reduction. It was also urged on the part of most of the speakers that effort be made to get the high school students of the state to attend their own University rather than going to some eastern school. A number of the speakers recommended that the University be provided with adequate athletic facilities, both in the way of a new gymnasium and a competent coaching staff.

A report of the Kansas City subscriptions to the Missouri Memorial Union Building was made and a vote of thanks was given by the members of the association to the workers for their efforts.

The new officers elected were: Mr. W. E. Kemp, president, Miller, Cammack, Winger & Reader, 1200 Gloyd Bldg.; Mr. Walton H. Holmes, Jr., vice-president, Pioneer Trust Company; Mr. George Charno, secretary-treasurer, Charno Bindery Company.

Mr. Kemp outlined his plans for the coming year and promised to give his best efforts to the association.

The retiring officers of the Association were: R. C. Kemper, president; W. E. Kemp, vice-president; and Robert Swofford, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

On a motion by Mr. James Gibson, it was decided to give a silver cup to the winner of the basketball championship among the Kansas City high schools.

Homecoming As An Old Grad Saw It.

K. U., she ain't what she used to be." The boy had an uncanny prescience in calling the Kansas plays, or else he had been burning the midnight Mazda over Percy Haughton's book, "How to See a Football Game." Over and over again on a Kansas kick formation on a third down, he would yell, "That's a fake, look out for a forward pass." And wasn't he there though. After some of those fierce whirlwind Tiger tackles, when the doctor, and the referee, and the nurse were gathering up the fragments that remained, I would hear, "What makes the Kansas crowd so still," the eager youth did ask. "'Tis just another Jay Hawk play gone wrong," the joyous sister said.

Between halves, I earned the admiration and gratitude of the twain by giving them an imitation of the old Locomotive yell, that no sooner had I learned to love it, a la the dear gazelle old stuff, than the cheer leader sent it to the scrap heap. Likewise, I introduced them to an Illini "Oskee-wow-wow" which thrilled their young souls.

Now all the time I had climbed up to the seventh heaven when that young Lochinvar Lincoln, who came out of the West, (Poet's license for Webster High), and all the rest of the team were giving some 13,001 frenzied spectators an exhibition of what Mizzou spirit is,—the kind that removes mountains, conquers the wilderness, and wins football games when the dope is for them to lose. Why Jimmie Valentine's latest mystery story, and Rudolf Valentino's most enhancing movie were Sunday School stories to the thriller that was being played before us. Lines that held, plunges that went through, kicks that registered—one brief crowded hour of glorious life, and then Kansas made a touchdown, and the bottom dropped out of everything. It seemed as if the whistle never would blow, and I thought of Pope's line, how time "like a wounded snake dragged its length along." But Missouri came back, and we came back from—well, you know where—as Lincoln went down the field for that final 40-yard run.

Then to hear the President serenaded by the band, and to reply in the most impressive speech that the student body ever listened to which ended, "and we will celebrate by having a holiday tomorrow." Also to hear young Charlie Collins, 1903 (not so young after all as he might be) try to steal my thunder by saying that Missouri wins every time that he sees them play. Now entre nous, sub rosa, and all the secret stuff, I am afraid he is just "cagey" enough sometimes not to come up when things don't look just right. Then came to me the vision, which I knew would be realized, for the ending of the day and night. The overflowing hospitality of the Beta boys, the invariable kindness and the consideration which marks the fraternities wherever you find them, for they are all like that. The great Thanksgiving dinner, the songs, the music, the dancing. It's me for the fraternities, also the sororities.

Echoes From the Tiger Camp

Past, Present and Future Dope

M's Are Awarded.

Football's last official word was said last Tuesday afternoon when the University committee on intercollegiate athletics awarded M's to eighteen members of the 1922 grid squad. Sixteen of the men had played their full time and there was no question concerning the award to them.

Two others, however, who completed their football career this fall, playing their third year, had not won their letters according to the technicalities of the committee's rules, because injuries had followed them throughout the season, but the committee was unanimous in making an exception and awarding these two men—Elmer Kershaw and Tony Bundschu—Varsity letters because of the consistent good football which each had played when he was in condition.

Bundschu, fighting his way out from two dislocations of his right shoulder, finished his football days with a spectacular display of offensive and defensive play against Kansas, while Kershaw, after serving in one game and half of another as quarterback, went out with a broken leg, and lost a game fight to play his last game against Kansas.

The other men to receive letters include: Captain Bunker, C. Smith, Palermo, Lewis, Wertz, R. Keller, Van Dyne, Walsh, Hill, Hays, Adams, Scannell, Fowler, Lincoln, Bond and Knight.

Besides Kershaw and Bundschu, Missouri will lose by graduation this year Captain Bunker at tackle, Hill at end and Lincoln and Knight in the backfield. Bunker, playing one of the most brilliant tackle positions in the history of the Missouri Valley Conference against Kansas on Thanksgiving Day, ends his football career in the same way that he has played the game to win all-Valley honors for three successive years. Hill, starring at end, again proved his versatility this year, having gone back to the wing position after a year at tackle, and Lincoln came through with the greatest game of his three years at Missouri against Kansas on Thanksgiving Day, as did Knight.

But sad as the parting of the six stars may be, Missouri prospects for next year are not overclouded by their passing. The line remains intact except for the loss of Bunker and Hill, and a corking good backfield composed of Scannell, Fowler, Bond and Adams remains. Reserves, of course, must be built up, but there are reserves in sight, both among the men who lacked development to make their letters this year while on the Varsity squad, and from the men who are coming up from Bill Duncell's well-coached freshman eleven.

The Basketball Prospects.

With the football season stowed away with a magnificent victory over Kansas, Tiger thoughts are turned to basketball and the big, likely squad that George Bond is drilling daily for the coming drive for the Missouri Valley Conference court championship of 1923.

With the return of Bunker, Hays, Walsh, and Lewis to the basketball squad with the close of the football season. Coach Bond has made his first cut into the ranks of his candidates and there now remain 14 men—and as good a looking outfit as ever battled for places on a Missouri Varsity.

Headed by Captain "Bun" Browning, the squad includes Herb Bunker, Bob Hays, Don Faurot and Kaer Vanice of last year's regulars, Lester and Campbell, both of whom have had some Varsity experience, and a bunch of men from last year's freshman squad who are going to give some of the veterans a mighty battle for places among the five men who will take the floor for the Tigers when the season opens early in January, including Walsh, Wallie Smith, Jerry Lewis, Wheat, Pilley, Thomson and Elstner.

As this is written the Tigers have scheduled only sixteen games—a double round robin with all of the teams in the Valley, meeting each of the other Conference members in a game at Columbia and a game away, but negotiations are under way for a game with the Kansas City Athletic Club five, to be played in Convention Hall at Kansas City. The Kansas City five is composed almost entirely of Missouri graduates, including George Browning, Missouri captain in 1921, George Williams Williams, Fred Williams and several other former Tigers.

The Missouri basketball team will open its season January 5 in a game with Grinnell College at Grinnell, Iowa, and the following night will play Drake University at Des Moines, Iowa.

That Jayhawk Defeat.

Missouri defeated Kansas.

It wasn't Chuck Lewis, Al Lincoln, Herb Bunker, Bill Roper, Hank Garrity, Bill Duncell or anybody else—just Missouri.

Bill Roper said two days before Thanksgiving Day that Missouri was going to win. Herb Bunker advised his friends to mortgage the family cow and bet on Missouri. And those 10,000 Missourians who pledged their loyalty and their faith in Old Missouri on Rollins Field the night before Turkey day knew Missouri would win.

As to credit—there's plenty for everyone, and everyone deserves it.

The outstanding play of the game was Lincoln's 49-yard field goal, which cleared the bar well, and would have been just as good at 60. Next to that, perhaps, was the work of the ends and tackles—particularly Captain Bunker—in getting down and smothering the Jayhawker safety man on punts. And next to that was the veteran ability which one rookie—Forest Fowler—showed in punting and calling signals in the biggest game of his short career. And next—but why go on.

There weren't any stars. Every man played football that day—played to win and won.

And the coaches. They took a muddle over late in the season—Chuck Lewis, Hank Garrity and Bill Duncell did—and they handled the job with a fearlessness, kindness, tact and ability that makes words inadequate to give an account of their accomplishment. They went in, against heavy odds, to win—and they won.

And Bill Roper. He came back to the school which in 1909 he led to glory over Kansas, and added just a breath of confidence to Missouri's belief in that Missouri team. And Bill was right. His presence meant much to Missouri those days before Thanksgiving.

And then, above all, was Missouri spirit. It was with the student body, the coaches, the Tigers and Bill Roper. And Missouri won.

A Grad of '91 Tells of the Law School Then.

EDWARD J. WHITE, Vice-President and General Solicitor Missouri Pacific R. Co., St. Louis.

In the late '80s and early '90s, the law faculty of the University of Missouri made that law school one of the strongest of any of the universities of the West.

Like George Wythe, the proprietor of Jefferson and the founder of the first school of the United States, at the old William and Mary College at Williamsburg, Virginia, Judge Alexander Martin possessed not only the scholarly attainments, based upon a life of research, but the broad, practical experience as a great equity lawyer, which enabled him to illuminate his lectures with concrete illustrations of actual trials that were at once interesting and practical to the law student.

Professor Christopher G. Tiedeman was the antithesis of Judge Martin in that, while he lacked the practical experience as a trial lawyer, he was one of the most careful authors and law lecturers in the United States.

Professor James A. Yantis, an alumnus of the Missouri University Law Department and a student under Judge Philomen Bliss—the first Dean of the law school, former Supreme Judge of the State, and the author of the best treatise on code pleading yet written—had had many years' experience in the actual practice at Fort Smith, Arkansas, and was a general favorite with the law students.

My first term at the law school was in the Fall of '88, and Judge Alexander Martin had just accepted the Deanship of the law school.

My first sight of Judge Martin was in front of the old Gordon house, where a crowd of students had called upon him for a speech. Like Vest at old Georgetown, when he approached the outskirts of the crowd listening to Thomas H.

Benton and inquired of a bystander who the big man was that was speaking, I asked some student who the little, ro-tund man with the florid face and bald head was, and he advised me in a rather contemptuous way that "That's Judge Alexander Martin, the new dean of the law school".

With his wonderful intellect and deep learning, Judge Martin possessed such sympathy for his fellows, and had such abiding faith and charity for the frailties of youth that he became, not only the idol of the student body who sat at his feet, but also the comrade and congenial friend.

After being graduated in the spring of '91, I was entertained at his home in Pattonville, St. Louis County, and, with his true Southern hospitality, this dear gentleman and kind preceptor royally entertained me, as he said, "As a member of the bar".

The association with Judge Martin,

Edward J. White

Professor Tiedeman and Judge Yantis is now but a memory, but it will always remain a most pleasant recollection with the law students of the late '80s and early '90s, and the influence of their work will remain an integral part of the lives of the law students of that period, now scattered throughout the United States, and they will continue to live in the minds and hearts of these "boys of yesterday".

Teachers' Association Held 60th Convention.

By E. M. CARTER, Secretary, Mo. State Teachers' Assn., Columbia, Mo.

The Missouri State Teachers' Association held its 60th Annual Session in Kansas City, November 15-18, with the largest attendance and enrollment in its history. The total enrollment will run more than 16,700. The program, prepared by the president of the Association, State Superintendent Baker, was an excellent one and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Among the leading speakers were Dr. J. J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.; William M. Lewis, Chief Education Service, Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington, D. C.; Miss Julia Wade Abbot, Specialist in Kindergarten Education, Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.; Hon. Frank B. Willis, United States Senator from Ohio; Dr. J. L. McBrien, Professor of Rural Education, Indiana State Normal School, Terre Haute, Indiana; Hon. Herbert S. Hadley, Dean of Law School, University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado; Dr. J. C. Jones, President University of Missouri, Columbia; President Clyde M. Hill, State Teachers' College, Springfield; Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, Missouri Tuberculosis Association, St. Louis; C. H. Williams, Director of University Extension, Columbia; and others.

The resolutions adopted urged more adequate support of the State Teachers' Colleges and the University of Missouri, especially the graduate work in education and extension facilities; endorsed a state board of education for the selection of the state superintendent of schools; recommended equal pay for equal services in teaching without regard to the grade in which the work is done; re-endorsed the county unit; recommended a retirement fund for teachers and better health laws; commended the present state department of education for progressive attainment and pledged support to the incoming administration.

The officers for the coming year are as follows: President, Clyde M. Hill, President Southwest Missouri State Teachers' College, Springfield; 1st vice-president, John J. Maddox, Superintendent of Instruction, Board of Education, St. Louis; 2nd vice-president, Eugene Fair, Professor of Political Science, State Teachers' College, Kirksville; 3rd vice-president, Russell A. Sharp, Teacher Northeast High School, Kansas City; secretary-treasurer, E. M. Carter, Secretary Reading Circle Board, Business Manager The School and Community, Columbia; Thomas J. Walker, Editor of The School and Community and Assistant Secretary, Columbia. The visiting teachers attended the Kansas City Alumni Association of University of Missouri, November 17. The next meeting will be held in St. Louis, November 7-10, 1923.

Missouri Spirit on the Western Coast.

By W. M. REGAN, B. S. Ag. '12

Division of Animal Husbandry, University of California, Davis, Calif.

Missouri Spirit—Many and diverse are your manifestations. Implanted in our veins with the first view of the Six Columns you grow and develop throughout the four years we spend in their shadows and continue as potent factor in our existence, shaping our actions and destinies thereafter. You are visibly and tangibly expressed in student activities, athletics, debating, and judging teams and those stunts that are so typical of the University of Missouri. You were seen as a guiding force governing the action of Missouri students and alumni in the great war. Again your manifested by little groups of alumni that gather here and there in various parts of the world to do homage to you.

In the shadows of the eternal snows of Mount Hood and Mount Tacoma your influence manifested itself on November 7, 1922, at Portland, Ore. Fourteen graduates of the Missouri College of Agriculture, each one of whom is playing an important part in the agricultural development of the Pacific Slope gathered in an informal way about the banquet table. They were P. M. Brandt, 1910, head of the Dairy Department, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore.; E. V. Ellington, 1910, Head of Dairy Department, Washington State College, Pullman, Wash.; Don G. Maeruder, 1911, Extension Specialist in Dairying, Washington State College; Max Morehouse, 1911, Manager Thousand Springs Farm, Wendell, Ida.; W. M. Regan, 1912, Head of Dairy Production, University of California, Davis, Calif.; R. S. Besse, 1913, Marketing Specialist, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore.; F. B. Astroth, Fieldman or American Jersey Cattle Club, St. Paul, Minn.; C. W. Hickman, 1913, Head of Animal Husbandry Dept., University of Idaho, Moscow, Ida.; Paul V. Mans, 1914, Director of Agricultural Extension, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis; Geo. B. Coine, A. M. 1914, Head of Dairy Department, Utah Agricultural College, Logan, Utah; E. H. Hughes, A. M. 1916, Dept. Animal Husbandry, University of California, Davis, Calif.; O. E. McConnell, 1918, County Agent, Gooding, Ida.; F. W. Atkeson, 1918, Head of Dairy Department, University of Idaho, Moscow, Ida.; L. W. Wing, 1915, Manager Elkhorn Ayrshire Farm, Watsonville, Calif.

An outsider "listening in" on the conversation could have well imagined himself at a gathering of Alabama and the Forty Thieves. McConnell had stolen 3 chickens from Dean Mumford's chicken house. Without any explanation as to the origin of the birds Mac had taken them to the Hughe's home where they furnished the Sunday dinner for the "bunch". The next day the Good Dean on meeting Hughes asked if three stray birds had been seen in the vicinity of the horse barn. One Hallowe'en P. M. Brandt and others stole all the silver ware from the University dining hall. For a week the U. D. Clubbers ate with their fingers. Regan & Hale stole a black hen from Dr. Manley's hen coop. Hale took her to Kansas City and led the 1909 shirt tail parade through the streets of Kansas City with the black hen serving as a jayhawk.

The above mentioned outsider would have probably been amazed if he had read the account of the Pacific International Live Stock Show in the Portland papers the next day. This account made mention of the fact that the California stock judging team that won the students' judging contest, having the first, second and fourth high man, was coached by E. H. Hughes. Also at the meeting of the Western Dairy Instructor's Association the officers elected for the coming year, President, W. M. Regan; Vice-President, F. W. Atkeson; Secretary, E. V. Ellington. And that Howard Hackedorn had been chosen president of the Western Branch of the Society of Animal Production.

Missouri Spirit—many and diverse are your manifestations.

Subscription to the Alumnus is $3 a year. Changes of address should be received by the Missouri Alumnus before the fifteenth of the month to insure prompt delivery of the magazine for that month.

Checks, drafts and money orders should be made payable to the Missouri Alumnus and all business correspondence should be so addressed. Address all news items to the Managing editor of the Missouri Alumnus, 114 Jesse Hall, Columbia, Mo.

"THE HOPE OF TOMORROW"

H. W. (Easy) Anderson, now of New York City, suggests that we devote an issue of the ALUMNUS to the "Hope of Tomorrow", carrying photographs of the sons and daughters of the alumni of the University. This would make a most interesting issue and we will be only too glad to devote an issue of the ALUMNUS to the sons and daughters of alumni, provided the alumni will pay for the cuts and half-tones of their children. We can order the half-tone cuts, which will cost about $3 for each picture. Send the photographs of your children in right away and as soon as we get a sufficient number of them we will go to work on that issue. Let us have photographs not later than February 1.

There should be attached to each photograph a slip of paper on which is written the name of the child in full, date and place of birth, and name and address of parents; and whether or not one or both parents attended the University. Send any attractive phrase that you wish to have published, and what you expect of your children when they enter the University.

A University Booster.

John F. Case, Editor, Missouri Ruralist, member of the University Board of Visitors, and President of the State Board of Agriculture, wrote the following editorial about the University which will be of interest to alumni. Certainly the alumni appreciate the splendid support being given the University by the press of Missouri.

President J. C. Jones has announced that the University of Missouri will present a total budget calling for almost 5 million dollars for the biennial period. That seems like a large sum; it is a large sum, but is none too large for so great a state as Missouri and so important an institution as the university. Nor does it yet reach the appropriations granted similar institutions in our sister states. Missouri has rendered magnificent service with half the funds available in Iowa, Illinois, and other states but it can not go on indefinitely. There is a limit to unselfish service and to sacrifice.

Not long ago I visited the university of another state and on my return I wrote President Jones asserting that fine as is the equipment and able the faculty I did not believe there was any comparison with Missouri. In reply Doctor Jones said, "I am glad that you have so high an opinion of our faculty and that it does not suffer through comparison. This is all the more remarkable when you consider that the men and women of that institution average $1,000 a year more salary than do those in the University of Missouri. We feel though, that this can not continue and that unless we receive adequate support and are enabled to meet the offers that continually are being made we can not continue and that unless we receive adequate support and are enabled to meet the offers that continually are being made we can not continue to forge ahead.

I personally know several persons employed by the College of Agriculture who have stayed on, refusing offers up to $1,000 a year more than Doctor Jones was able to pay. They did so because of a fine spirit of loyalty and a genuine desire for service, but it is unfair and unjust to ask them to continue indefinitely. I believe the next legislature will see the wisdom and justice of placing Missouri University on a par with the educational institutions of other states so that no employee need apologize when he's asked, "What does your job pay?"

Cross Country Letters.

Six cross country men were awarded C. C. emblems last week by the committee on intercollegiate athletics in recognition of their work during the past season which included victories over Washington and Nebraska and third place in the Missouri Valley Conference meet St. Louis. The men who received the emblems are: Stark, Trowbridge, Nisbet, Brooks, Case and Pit-tenger.

Wanted: Copies of the words and music of "I'm a Son of Old Missouri", "What's the Matter With Old Missouri", "Down at the Athens of Old Missouri". Please send these copies of words and music to Bob Hill, Alumni Recorder. They will be returned promptly. We are holding up the publication of the University of Missouri song book trying to find the words and music of these songs.

Farmers' Week days have been announced as January 15-19.

Portland Alumni Report a Splendid Meeting

"We had a very excellent meeting at Portland. There were thirteen Missouri graduates who sat down to the table; no doubt you have heard all about this meeting from Bill Regan, who is now in California. He was delegated to write the whole story up for you, and if you have not heard from him already, send him a wire, collect, at Davis, with my compliments, and tell him to come through. In addition to the thirteen men, whose names will be present by Regan, I ran onto E. G. Scott, and H. E. McNatt the following day. McNatt was not in town at the time of the feed, but Scott was. Scott is a club agent up in Yakima, Wash., and was down to the show with a bunch of bulls and the kids who were supposed to have fitted them. This kept him closely tied up and nobody knew he was around, anyway he was always a sort of a retiring fellow and it was very typical of him that he should come around a day or two after something had happened to want to know why he wasn't in on it. McNatt did not arrive in town until the morning after we had our little dinner. McNatt is now dairyman at the Western Washington Experiment Station, at Puyallup. I think both of them are doing well."

P. M. BRANDY, B. S. Ag. '10, A. M. '16. Professor of Dairy Husbandry, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis.

poor fellow lost his hat, and the writer finally got in after stumbling over a skunk with tell tale results that lasted for many days. Clothing was none too plentiful with many of us; and there was present a mute reminder of the prank, much to our chagrin and mortification.

In closing I must say the Columns are dear to the heart of every student of those days. Last winter at Farmers' Week I pointed to the two east columns between which I at one time hurriedly ascended, and on landing on the cement floor rent my trousers.

I can not forget the old chalybeate well near the town entrance to the campus, nor old Hinkson Creek.

As a parting salute I shall mention the fact that Stubblefield and Swinton walked all the way to the University from the Ozarks.

MISSOURI GEOLOGIST

Silas P. Borden spent two or three days in Columbia at Homecoming time. Borden is a consulting geologist with offices in the Ardis Building at Shreveport, La. He is chiefly engaged in production work but finds some time to spend investigating the Tertiary formations of the Gulf Region. While a student at the University, Borden took courses in engineering and in geology. A brother-in-law, William Hudson, is now taking advanced courses in Geology in the University.

Herbert E. Munsen is expected in Columbia to spend the holidays. Munsen graduated from the University in 1920. After spending two years in geological work in Venezuela, he returned to the United States and entered the University of Pittsburgh for advanced work in Geology. He will return to the University of Pittsburgh after Christmas.

Allen L. Owens was a Homecoming visitor in Columbia at Thanksgiving time and came in to visit members of the Department. He is now in charge of the geological work of the Carter Oil Company, Eastern Division. Owen has to cover the South Atlantic States for the Carter Company.

Virgil Cole and Roger Williams were initiated into Sigma Gamma Epsilon, geological fraternity, this fall. Both are graduate students in Geology.

Mason King will finish his work for an A. M. degree in geography at the end of the present semester. His thesis subject is "The Geography of the Pacific Northwest." The field work for his thesis required two summers.

A new course, Life of the Geologic Periods, will be given next term by Mr. Mehl. It will consist chiefly of lectures dealing with the evolution of life as illustrated by the geological occurrence of fossils. Two hours credit will be given for the course.

The Chamberlin Geology Club was represented in the Homecoming parade by a float on which was depicted the hardships of geologists in making detailed geological maps. A convict using a sledge-hammer on a pile of rocks and wearing a sign, "He Knows His Rocks" suggested a new way to geological knowledge to the Homecoming visitors.

Marion R. Mann will finish his work for an A. B. degree at Christmas. Mann has taken most of his work in the Department of Geology and expects to go into commercial geological work.

A picture of the Grand Canyon of Arizona has been hung in the hall of the Geology Building by Mr. Branson, who is making an effort to put pictures that illustrate geological phenomena in places where they will attract the attention of the students. Other new illustrative material in the form of lantern slides has been ordered and made available for use by Mr. Bratton.

Among graduates of the department who spent Thanksgiving in Columbia was Parke K. Bryan, who graduated in 1921. Bryan has about decided to return to school at the beginning of the winter term and take some more courses in geology.

In a recent letter to "Dick" Rutledge, T. C. Cash tells of geological field work in Texas. Cash is in the employ of the Humble Oil and Refining Company. His address is Box 143, Big Springs, Texas.

At the last program of the Chamberlin Geology Club, held on Thursday, Dec. 7th, George Humphrey spoke on the "Geology and Amusements of Southeastern Missouri." In his talk he told some of the amusing experiences of the members of last spring's field party. His talk was followed by a discussion of Meteorites by Edwin Mathias. The third number on the program was a very interesting demonstration of the so-called water-witching and an explanation of the various steps in the history of the "science" by Dr. Tarr.

The main address at a previous meeting of the club was given by Dr. Frank Leverett of the U. S. G. S. Dr. Leverett was in this region investigating the extent and characteristics of the Kansan glacial drift, and he gave the students an interesting insight into some of the glacial problems of Missouri.

The field trips of the Department for next summer will be in northeastern Missouri. A splendid geological section of this region is exposed in Lincoln County along the "Capau-Gris Fault." The work will consist of areal mapping, description of formations, and collection of fossils. Mr. Branson will be in charge of the spring trip. Only a limited number of advanced students will be permitted to register for the course.

Most of the members of the Department will spend the Christmas holidays in Columbia. Mr. Branson and Mr. Mehl will try to make up for the time lost from their research work in practicing for The Witching Hour, a play which was produced by the Dramatic Arts Club. Each had a prominent part in the play.

Miss Strong will not be in Columbia, however. She will go to Ann Arbor, Mich., where she will read a paper before the Association of American Geographers. The subject of her paper will be "The Geography of Cleveland."

Dr. and Mrs. Tarr will depart shortly after the final examinations for Stillwater, Oklahoma, where they will spend Christmas with Mrs. Tarr's parents.

A demonstration set which shows the various steps in the formation of soils from different kinds of rocks has been received by the Department from the U. S. National Museum. It will be used in the first course in Agricultural Geology.

Professor Josiah Bridge, of Rolla drove to Columbia about the middle of November to consult Mr. Branson about Devonian rocks discovered near Rolla. He visited various places near Columbia and collected fossils for the Rolla School of Mines.

Mr. W. F. Pond, geologist of the Missouri Bureau of Geology and Mines, drove to Columbia from Rolla the last week of November to confer with Mr. Branson on details of the publication of the volume on the Devonian of Missouri.

Miss Lillie M. Franklin, A. M. '22, writes an interesting letter from Jacksonville, Florida, in which she says the weather in Florida is quite balmy and that to date no heat has been needed in the homes. She has gone shark fishing and caught one four feet long, has seen the alligators, the orange groves and the ostriches, the palm trees and Poinsettias (bushes eight or ten feet high) and has felt a million mosquitos. Miss Franklin reports that the Superintendent of the Jacksonville school favors the bringing of teachers from northern states to Florida. Miss Franklin will spend next summer doing graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Miss Ida E. Graham, B. S. '20, writes from the State Normal School at Jacksonville, Alabama, that "if ever there was a Missourian a long way from home and anxious to get back—I am that one, and this is the week (Nov. 30) I feel confident the good old Tiger will trim the Jay Hawk." They did that, Miss Graham. Miss Graham finds Alabama delightful in many ways and is enjoying her work very much. She is teaching Education and Psychology and feels like a real missionary. She says, "I am proud of the fact that this opportunity is mine to carry the training and ideals of good old M. U. to a group of people who appreciate them." Miss Graham appreciates the ALUMNUS as she says that she sometimes wonders of the good people of the University can quite know how much the keeping in touch means to those who are a long way off.

The correct addresses of several graduates of the Department of Geology are not in the Departmental files. Will you not, Mr. Graduate, please send in your present address. The members of the Department will be glad to hear from you. Other graduates are just as glad to see your name on this page of the ALUMNUS as you are to see their name here. Please don't forget to send in your correct address right away. Let's make it before Christmas.

Fifteen men tried out for the Varsity debating team at the University Auditorium, November 14. The following were chosen: Gerald Snider, Nathan Ladinsky, Elmer E. Hall, Clifford P. McKinney, Adolphus N. Lages, Benton Lee, J. Grant Frye, and Fred Eldean.

In addition to the Varsity squad, a team was selected for the first extension debate, which will be held at Sedalia on November 24. The members chosen for this team were: Elmer E. Hall and Clifford P. McKinney, with Adolphus N. Lages as alternate. An invitation to debate Williamette University at Salem, Ore., has been received.

"The material for this year's Varsity team is promising," said Coach Kriewaldt, "and their morale is such that a successful debating season may be expected."

Stock Judging Team at Chicago.

The University Live Stock Judging team received 12th place at the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago. There were twenty teams entered from all over the United States. Professor L. A. Weaver is coach of the team. The members of the team are as follows: Harold Hanser, St. Louis, Mo.; R. E. Uhland, Breckenridge, Mo.; E. L. Knipmeyer, Alma, Mo.; E. C. Elting, Carthage, Mo.; Owen McCannon, Springfield, Mo.; and H. M. Hunt, Lockwood, Mo. In individual placings, Uhland placed 12th in all events; McCannon placed 6th in horse judging; the team took sixth place on cattle, seventh on horses, sixteenth on hogs, and seventeenth on sheep.

Poultry Team Is Fourth.

The poultry judging team from Missouri took fourth place in the poultry judging contest held for vocational students in connection with the American Royal Live Stock Show at Kansas City. There were nine teams in the contest. Ames won first, Oklahoma second and Nebraska third. The contest was held under the direction of Prof. H. L. Kempster of the University. The men who represented Missouri in this contest were: Samuel Spurgeon, William Rogers and William Linenweber.

This for Radio Fans.

The Kansas City Star has invited President J. C. Jones to use their broadcasting radio station in sending out material about the University of Missouri and education in general. The deans of the different divisions of the University will take advantage of this splendid offer. Alumni who have receiving stations will be interested in picking up these talks from time to time. Write the Kansas City Star for program. The Star broadcasted the game.

Missouri Is Fifth.

Missouri won fifth place in the student judging contest, held in connection with the American Royal Live Stock Show at Kansas City, with the score of 2,582 of a possible 3,000 points. Seven colleges participated in the contest.

Kansas State Agricultural College won first, Texas A. & M. second, Iowa State College third, Nebraska fourth, Oklahoma A. & M. sixth, and Arkansas seventh. The superintendent of the student contest was W. L. Nelson.

Ministers' Week.

The second annual Ministers' Week was held in Columbia December 4-8. There was an increased attendance and the week was successful from every standpoint. Ministers' Week is one of the University's assets and is going to develop into an institution similar to that of Farmers' Week and Journalism Week. The program this year was in charge of Dr. W. C. Gibbs, acting dean of the Bible College.

White, president of Shanghai College. Following letter will be of interest to alumni. She had not seen Mr. Eubank for two years prior to the wedding. Mrs. Eubank made the trip to China with her father-in-law. Her letter follows:

"Well, you see, I'm a lady of my word. Even the joys and thrills of being newly-married have not made me forget my promise to write you and send you a clipping. On my way over, when my steamer stopped in Yokohama, I was more than pleased and very much surprised to see John Morris, A. T. O. He is with the Japan Advertiser, and also Jimmy McClain and Ed Smith, both former members of the Dana Press Club, met me and took me to Tokyo to spend the day. They had seen in a paper from home that I was coming out and so proceeded to meet every steamer 'til they found me. I gave them all the latest University news and we spent a very interesting day.

"You know I sailed from Vancouver on the 'Empress of Australia.' It was a beautiful ship with perfectly gorgeous appointments, but that alone won't take you to China. The engine was n. g. and the fourth day out the ship came within an inch of blowing up—the whole thing trembled and shook. We had to return to Vancouver. Because I ate at an officers' table, they used their influence and got me transferred to the 'Empress of Asia' so I arrived in China one week late—and even though I missed my wedding the first time, I was very much present the second time.

"The first time I go to Shanghai I'll send you a check for a subscription to the ALUMNUS—I can't send a money order from here. Must stop—but first let me say that China is wonderful.

"HELEN WILKINS EUBANK,

Mrs. Clark's father, C. D. Terrence, attended the University. Their data blanks were written just as they received the news of the Thanksgiving game. You can imagine the expressions they wrote on the blanks. They have just announced the birth of a son.

Newton Tennis Gottschall, B. S. in Ed. '20, A. B. '21, announces the birth of a daughter, Ruth Louise, on Oct. 18 at his home at 5 Prims Hendrick Street, Medan, Sumatra, Neth, East Indies. Mr. Gottschall is with the American Methodist School at Medan. He met his wife on the steamer as he went over to Sumatra. She was a nurse assigned to a hospital in Manila.

Mr. and Mrs. Nat T. Buckley announce the birth of a daughter, Ruth Neva, Nov. 26, at their home at Hayti, Missouri. Mrs. Buckley was Miss Bertha Husted, B. S. '22. Mr. Buckley received the degree of B. S. in '22.

Dr. E. H. Downey, husband of Elsa C. Katzmaier Downey former student in University of Missouri 1906-1910, died last summer while in surf bathing at Avalon, N. J., where they had a house for the summer. Dr. Downey taught Economics at the University of Missouri in 1909-10. Mrs. Downey and her two children, Fritz and Jane, are living at 5601 Rockhill Rd., Kansas City, Mo. Dr. Downey was compensation actuary for the Insurance Department of Pennsylvania when he died. He received degree of A. B. and A. M. from University of Iowa and Ph. D. from Wisconsin.

Judge John W. Halliburton, an attorney, widely known in the State and a Confederate veteran, died Oct. 11 at his home in Carthage. Judge Halliburton was the father of Major Wesley Halliburton, B. S. in '00, and of Miss Sarah F. Halliburton, B. J. '18.

Judge Halliburton was seventy-six years old and had been an attorney for more than fifty years. He was well known in Democratic circles in Missouri and served as city attorney of Carthage years ago.

He was born at Milan, Mo., and served with Shelby's brigade in the Civil War. Later he was active in the Missouri National Guard and for many years was a member of the Board of Managers of the Confederate Home in Higginsville, Mo.

Andrew Walker McAlester, A. B. '64, M. D. '66, A. M. '67, LL. D. '97, Emeritus Professor of Surgery in the University of Missouri, for twenty-nine years Dean of the School of Medicine of the University, died in Columbia Thursday evening, November 2, at the age of eighty-one years. Dr. McAlester held the position of Professor of Surgery and Dean of the School of Medicine in the University from '80 to '09, when he retired as emeritus professor. He was eminent in his profession and as a citizen of the state. He gave long, self-sacrificing and distinguished service to the University.

The funeral of Dr. McAlester took place in the University Auditorium Saturday morning, Nov. 4.

Dr. McAlester, with his son, Dr. A. W. McAlester, Jr., LL. B. '97, M. D. '05 A. B. '08, of Kansas City, was on his way to Boston when he became ill, it is believed of over-exertion. Dr. McAlester had just been made Honorary Fellow of the American College of Surgeons held in Boston which Dr. McAlester was going to attend. He is survived by his wife and three sons: Dr. A. W. McAlester, Jr., Berry McAlester of Columbia, former student, and Jim McAlester of Mississippi. The McAlester family is one of very few that had three living representatives of three generations in the University including Dr. A. W. McAlester, Sr., Dr. A. W. McAlester, Jr., and a son of Dr. A. W. McAlester, Jr., a student in the University now.

The citizens of Boone County held an Honorary Memorial meeting for Dr. McAlester at which time resolutions of respect were passed by the Boone County Medical Society, The State Medical Society, The University Faculty, the Alumni Association of the University, and the citizens of Boone County.

Dr. George S. Turner died at McAlester, Oklahoma on October 25. Dr. Turner was born and reared in Boone County. He was a graduate of the Medical Department of the University of Missouri. He made his home in McAlester for about thirty years. He is survived by three brothers.

Roscoe (Puny) Bluck, famous tackle on Bill Roper's 1909 team, died suddenly at Stamps, Arkansas, Thursday, Nov. 30—Homecoming Day. A telegram to Bluck was returned undelivered. This telegram was notifying him about Roper being in Columbia and asking Bluck to come back or to send a telegram to be read at the Roper banquet, which was held in Columbia on the night of the 28th. Bluck's death reported the day following the Missouri-Kansas game added a touch of sadness to an otherwise glorious Homecoming. One of the men with whom he shared the Bluck won his nickname, "Puny" from his unusual physique. He was five feet eight inches tall, weighed 220 pounds and was a good track man. "Bluck was one of the greatest football men I have ever seen," said Bill Roper. "He could have made any team in the country." Details of his death have not been reported.

President J. C. Jones has announced that the period from May 20 to 26, 1923, inclusive, will be Journalism Week at the University of Missouri. This will celebrate the completion of the fifteenth year of the School of Journalism, the oldest school of journalism in the world.

This is an urgent appeal to the alumni of the University of Missouri to feel free to send this office criticisms and suggestions about the work. Cut loose, and do not have any hesitancy in making yourself a part of the alumni organization work. This office solicits your co-operation.

WHAT THE OLD GRAD IS DOING

Following is a letter from Forest S. Lyman, B. S. '00, E. E. '03, 195 Broadway, New York City. He is manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co. Forest saw the Homecoming game and this is his comment on it:

"Let me say right now I had one grand Homecoming. I'll have a lot of pleasant things to think about this coming year. Life to me since 1895 has been marked by mile posts set one Thanksgiving Day apart. For a long time these mile posts were mostly draped in crepe but for the last twelve years they have taken on a livelier hue and ceased to look so much like tombstones.

"I've seen all the big games in the East this year with the exception of the Yale-Harvard game and I have seen none in which the team showed more fight than Missouri did Thursday, not excepting the great game Princeton put up against Yale. I do not believe there is a man in the East who is a better punter than Fowler and I saw no game played in which the ends got down the field any better on punts than Hill and Walsh did. I knew that after Missouri called the first two plays that, barring accidents, the game was ours. The result was a just reward to a team that had worked under handicaps all year and to the effort of the coaches who had handled the team the last few weeks of the season, and to Bill Roper. Why wouldn't those Tigers fight with the miracle man of football sitting on the bench?

"I don't know any better way to end this letter than by singing the Doxology—
"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Robert W. (Bob) Jones, A. B. '06, I.L.B. '13, is professor of Journalism, University of Washington, Seattle. Under date of Nov. 10 he wrote the following interesting letter to Dean J. P. McBaine of the Law School:

"Your letter of October 31, containing the news of the splendidly generous gift of Mr. and Mrs. Tate, of St. Louis, to the University for the purpose of erecting an adequate law building, is good news. It will be a pleasure to all graduates and former students, I believe, to know that Lee is to be remembered with a lasting monument. As a classmate of his, and one who was well acquainted with him as a student, I am sure I voice the feeling of everyone who knew him when I say that no name chosen for a law building could have the value, to a graduate of the Missouri law school, that will attach to that of one of our own number whom we knew and loved.

"The Missouri University law library has few counterparts in value. In fact, I believe it would be impossible to duplicate the Missouri library when I think of the rare editions collected for it by Judge John D. Lawson. That this valuable library is to be placed in a fireproof building at last is good news.

"I haven't attended a commencement reunion at the University for some years, but I get a letter now and again from Jim Summers, of Kansas City, who was on the Savitar staff with me in 1905, and I see them once in a while. I read a most interesting communication from Merrill Otis in the ALUMNUS some months ago, and it made me homesick for the campus. And then I realize that the University I am homesick for has marched on into the pages of history as irrevocably as my irresponsible youth, and here I am, somewhat baldheaded, a university professor in another state university, a couple of thousand miles away, and with two boys of my own, who, in a few years, will be ready to enter the freshman class. At least, I hope they will enter the freshman class at Missouri, but you never can tell.

"I remember when I was a high school student my mother, who was a widow, moved to Columbia to send me to school, was talking to a neighbor, a chatty old lady who had come over to 'get acquainted' in the manner of Missouri small town folks. I was raking the leaves in the yard and I heard their conversation.

"Well, Mrs. Jones,' the old lady said. 'Have you moved to Columbia to educate your boy?'

"Yes,' said my mother, 'that is why we came to Columbia.'

'The old lady watched me raking leaves for an appreciable time, as she rocked to and fro on the porch, and then she said.

"Well, Mrs. Jones, do you think he will take an education?'

"I used to think of that remark of hers at odd times, and somehow or other the old lady's remark was worth a good deal to me, for it helped me realize the burden of proof was on me.

"As I remember it, however, I never did acquire the habit of study as a freshman, for those were the good old days when you were absent as often or as little as seemed proper, in your own wisdom, and if you 'passed the course' in the final exam, you were safe, and could be sure you wouldn't be told good-bye.

'Now, I leave it to you, if I haven't outdone Otis in assuming the middle-age tone of remote reminiscence well calculated to make the recent graduate feel that I must, indeed, be a veritable octogenarian to remember so far back as that?

"It's all hokum. I'm as big a kid as ever I was. Honest.

"I remember when Judge Lawson called the roll and two of us answered 'Here' for an absent brother, and the Judge, in doubt, called the name again, and each of us, fearful that the other, too, would answer, kept silent. And one time when I was expelled for two weeks. I recall that quite clearly. And the round of responsibility involved in student politics and student publications, and debates and debating societies—wonder is that we ever got time to study at all. In fact, some of us didn't—that is, not very much. And typewriting notes was an endless task that ground out your very heart at times.

"How many things there were to belong to! And a meeting or a conference every night. And, in between times, the bread and butter job of making a living.

"It is a pleasure to know that the law school is to get a fine building. The state should put enough money into it to make it adequate for years to come as a home for the best law school in the United States.

ROZAR W. JONES,"

Under date of December 1 Bob Jones wrote as follows:

"The '9-7' news from Columbia reached us shortly after our Thanksgiving dinner. We had Henry Elliott, Jr., and his family with us. Henry was graduated in law in 1910 and is a successful lawyer here. His wife was Juliet Thomas, daughter of Rev. Millard Thomas, formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church in Columbia. They have a son, Thomas, who is one of the biggest five-year-olds I ever saw.

"Next day, Earl MacMillen, of the 1916 team, was with us and we had a long talk about Tiger football. Mac is consulting engineer here, and is also connected with the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

"Tubby Graves is assistant coach of football here, and is basketball and baseball coach in addition. Our team tied Oregon 3-3 in a great game on Thanksgiving day. You know Tubby and I are cousins. His brother, Toby, is a rancher in Idaho. It was Toby who kicked the field goal in the 10-7 game at Lawrence in 1914. Tubby is still a real athlete—weighs 225. The fact is, I think Graves is a mighty good coach. When he was at Texas A. & M. he coached a team that was not scored on and that's batting a thousand per cent. He has also coached at Montana and Alabama besides playing pro baseball in the Southern League.

"I received notice recently of the Q E B H memorial volume. I ordered one. As I look back on campus days in Columbia I think I got more inspiration and more valuable association from Q E B H than from any other organization, the Asterisks alone excepted. Of the members of that latter organization: Harry Lyon, former editor of the Broadway Magazine, is dead; Homer Croy has written three novels, an authoritative book on moving pictures, and has articles in the Saturday Evening Post and the big magazines often; Charles G. Ross, former professor of Journalism at Missouri, and author of the first text on news writing, is now Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; L. R. Whipple is professor of Journalism at New York University; Dan MacFarland is in the advertising business in New York; Jim (J. E.) Craig is on a New York paper; and I am here in Seattle.

"Week before last Dr. B. C. Anderson of the National City Bank, New York, former professor of economics at Harvard, was the guest of honor and principal speaker at a dinner given by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. Mac Anderson is a member of the 1906 class to which I belong. He looked me up and we spent an afternoon driving over Seattle and talking over old times. Mac has a national reputation as an economist, has written three books, and is away out in the deep water in his specialty where I am clear off my feet. However, I know enough economics to appreciate Mac's work and his views. The bank that retains him as advisor is one of the largest in the world. He was here on a mission for the bank, and Seattle papers commented most favorably upon the speeches he made while here."

Dr. Sarah R. Kelman, A. B. '15, 1329 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn., writes as follows:

"Received the news letter a few days ago and enjoyed it very much. Was quite sorry to hear of the death of Dr. McAlester. All the other news is quite wonderful. Every time I get the ALUMNUS or news letter I feel homesick, and every bit of news from Columbia is like a letter from home. Can you imagine my delight when I read in the local papers that Dr. Ellwood was to deliver a series of lectures under the auspices of the Yale Divinity School. He delivered his first lecture at 3 p. m. today and I was there bright and early. After the lecture, I shook hands with Dr. Ellwood and was quite delighted to find that he remembered me. Incidentally, I am using Dr. Ellwood's presence as a starting point in rounding up Missourians with the idea of starting an alumni association. I communicated with Mrs. Chester Longwell this evening. We will put a notice in the Yale Review in a day or so. If you can send me a list of Missourians at present at Yale and in and around New Haven, I will communicate with them at once. We are hoping to have a healthy organization to celebrate founder's day.

"In your list of missing alumni is the name of Susan Willard Brown. Miss Brown took her M. D. at Rush Medical College March, 1921. She had her internship at the Cincinnati General Hospital, Cincinnati, O. The first of October I received a letter from her from Shanghai, China, dated Aug. 30, a week after she reached Shanghai. She is connected with the Margaret Williamson Hospital, West Gate, Shanghai. She is there under the Methodist Board. Another of your lost battalions is Dr. T. J. Helat. His address up to recently, and as far as I know still is, 415 E. Broadway, Waukesha, Wis. If he is there no longer, mail addressed there will surely be forwarded as it is a hospital."

"Enclosed you will find check for $5.00 to apply toward subscription the current year, the remaining $2.00, deducting subscriptions, to be applied toward paying for the movie camera. I feel that double the quota asked of me will only help advertise our Alma Mater, as it must come from the old loyal supporters if sufficient is known elsewhere than among our own former students and graduates. By pictures the high school student can be impressed with the activities as they actually exist at the University and it should be our desire to see our University as nearly at the top of the list as possible.

"Please send me the list of all graduates from this county. I may not be able to call them together for organization myself but I can be of assistance in getting some one else to do it, it will be helping in a small measure to repay what the University and its teaching body did for me.

With best wishes for the Alma Mater and all that it stands for, I am, Sincerely yours,
E. M. FINDLEY, A. B. '14, Graham, Mo.

"We are back on the job again, but the world carried a roseate hue. Homecoming and its proper ending was, as Bill Shakespeare said, "A consummation devoutly to be wished."

I expect to see the world until next Thanksgiving through pink glasses. May I not compliment you on the wonderful success of your campaign in getting so many of the alumni back to Columbia for the game. The thirty cents which Bill and I have put into this business is worth a little bit more than that now and possibly by next year we may be able to earn enough to defray our expenses to McCook Field to witness a repetition of last Thursday's success. WARREN W. BROWNE, 411 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo. (Wm. G. (Bill) Simrall, Browne's partner, also attended the game. Same old fat, jovial Bill.—Ed.)

Charles B. Davis, A. B. '02, LL.B. '05, was elected judge of the Circuit Court, St. Louis, Mo. Nov. 7. He was a member of Phi Delta Phi and Phi Beta Kappa. He was a graduate manager of athletics from '04 to '05. In '05, he married Miss Elizabeth Jackson, B. S. '05 and a graduate of the Cook County Training School for nurses. They have three daughters now. "Judge Davis received the highest vote of any of the eighteen candidates, having been elected by a majority of over fifteen thousand," writes F. W. Huff, Federal Reserve Bank Bldg., St. Louis. "Judge Davis was supported generally by members of the bar regardless of political affiliations."

"Just a line of chatter which you may be able to use in your fine work of keeping up with former Missouri men.

"I am all over the state in my field service work for the Association and I run into former students every now and then, all still enthusiastic about everything pertaining to the University, particularly to the Kansas game.

"Saw Hurley at Camden last week. This ex-journalism product is the head of a big printing and publishing firm that is enjoying the oil boom at the Smackover field. He and I commiserated each other at our inability to attend the big game.

"Othmar Kahman, ex-'18, Sigma Phi Epsilon, is with the Arkansas Bank and Trust Co. of Newport, and asked to be remembered to you.

"Thursday night I was the first one of the local bunch to get the returns of the game and I had the pleasure of passing the good news along to six other alumni. Considering K. U.'s fight against the Army, it puts our Tigers pretty high nationally, seems to me. However, I suppose Walter Camp will feel very condescending and philanthropic if he gives Lincoln honorable mention for the third team.

"Our regular Saturday alumni luncheons are pleasant occasions now. We generally have about ten, and, as locals in country papers put it, 'a pleasant time is enjoyed by all.'

"Regards from Mrs. Banks and myself to all our Columbia friends, some of whom may remember me better as 'Tennessee Shad.'

"G. HARTSILL BANKS, B. S. in Ag. '14, Secretary, Arkansas Cotton Growers' Association, Little Rock, Ark."

C. M. Saville, B. S. in Eng. '22, is an Industrial and Sales Engineer, 506 Kirby Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio. He was a member of the track team in 1921 and cross country team in 1920.

L. W. Wing, Jr., B. S. in Ag. '15, A. M. '17, sends this address, Elkhorn Farm, Route 2, Box 82, Watsonville, California.

He writes:

"Pardon the delay in my sending in the check for the camera fund but am sending it now. This is certainly a fine move and I consider it a privilege to contribute my portion to the same.

Show season as a rule finds me busy. We have not made any fairs this year with cattle from the farm except the local county fair. Next year we plan to make the circuit again. Am confident that we could have cleaned up this year if we had been out.

I judged the dairy cattle at the Fresno District Fair. P. M. Brandt judged the Jerseys and Guernseys at the California State Fair.

"As you probably know, Billie Reagen is now at Davis, California, with the Agricultural School of the University of California. Bill and I are going to drive up to Portland, Oregon, next week to take in the Pacific International Livestock Show. At this show there should be at least fifteen or twenty Missouri alumni and am now planning to try and have a dinner or something and organize so that we can have a reunion each year of all Missourians that attend the show. Will let you know what we do while at the show.

"Sure wish I could have been back for the Missouri-Kansas game, but no chance. Had to take in the California-Stanford game instead."

Talk about alumni spirit and a willingness to help the University of Missouri! Just read the following letter from C. C. Keller, B. S. Ag. '21, County Agent of Pulaski County, Richland, Missouri. His is a one-man organization in every sense of the word but he is doing the work that we want the alumni to do:

"In reply to your letter of recent date concerning the matter of organizing an alumni association in Pulaski County. I have made three attempts to do this. I have sent out circular letters to all of the names that have been sent to me. I find that all of these people have moved from the county. I too am very much interested in seeing an alumni association in every county in the state. I will do my part by calling myself an organization as I am the only one here to organize. You can call Pulaski County one hundred per cent strong. I am back of everything for the good of the University. While my organization may be the smallest one in the state, it is just as loyal as any one in the state. I am still brim full of that old Missouri spirit which stands for Democracy, Industry, Idealism, Enthusiasm, Loyalty and Service. No task is too great for me to undertake for the good of the University.

"You can feel assured that I am ever looking out for the interests of our grand old University, the greatest school in the world. I feel more grateful each day for what the University has done for me. I stand one hundred per cent strong for "Old Mizzou."

Feel free to call upon me for anything that I can do to serve. I stand ever ready, willing, and anxious to do more than my share."

Albert Upp Brandt, B. S. in E. E. '09, is electrical engineer of the San Francisco Division, Pacific Gas and Electric Co., San Francisco. He has been with this company 23 years. The front page of the October issue of the Pacific Service Employee's Association's publication, the News, is devoted to a story of Mr. Brandt's accomplishments. Engineering alumni will be interested to know that this is the biggest public service corporation on the coast and that the Employees Association has a membership of over 4,000. It is said that this corporation's plan of encouraging friendly relations between its employees and itself is a model. The News has the following to say about Mr. Brandt:

"Mr. Brandt's outstanding quality is leadership. He is an executive who really has the ability to 'organize, deputize and supervise.' It has often been said that if you really desire to know a man, get the frank opinion of those under him. Taking his measure on that basis, he has no peer. He possesses a wonderful ability to draw out and develop the best there is in a man. He is appreciated by his men because of his sense of fairness and sound judgment which is coupled with a remarkable fund of human understanding. His men know that they are working with him as a part of our great organization, and after all, to know that one is taking part in something worth while is the real incentive."

"Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 22.—Your letter of the 19th received last evening after they had led the lamb to the slaughter. It sure did hurt to see Old Mizzou taken to such a cleaning but the Tigers did as well as could be expected considering everything. It is my personal opinion and I am not alone in it that Nebraska has the best team in the country today. The only regret we have here is that they haven't a better schedule. Considering the number of regulars out of the game for the Tigers, I would say that they did well. There is one thing that they will have to say about them and that is that they were in there fighting all the time.

"You can bet your last dollar and give all kinds of odds that it sure did seem good to see the Old Gold and Black on the first three cross country runners to cross the line and then to take fifth and seventh also helped.

"I met most of the fellows the evening before the game and it seemed like old times to talk with them again. B. L. MONTGOMERY, B. S. in Ag. '13.

V. S. (Bud) Surber, B. S. in E. E. '11, and his brother Johnny, also an alumnus, are general contractors, Federal Oil and Gas Bldg., 109 Union street, Akron, Ohio. They are hankering to come to Columbia for Homecoming.

"Enclosed find check for $1 to apply on motion picture camera. I am an internal revenue agent (Corporation Income Tax examiner). Communications from you should be sent to 414 Customs House Building. Herebefore they have been going to the Collector's office, with which I have no connection. Here is hoping that the Tigers win from Kansas. T. A. FICKLIN."

Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett has announced the appointment of Harry C. Willson of Nevada to the position of special assistant attorney-general in charge of the corporation franchise tax work. Willson is to succeed J. Henry Caruthers, who has recently been appointed assistant attorney-general. Willson is an alumnus of the University of Missouri and of the University of Michigan. He was entered in the University in 1910 and the fall terms of '11-'12 and '15.

"I am enclosing a check for $1 for the motion picture camera fund. This is a good work. We would like to have the pictures of the University at the next meeting of the Pike County Alumni. We have a fine bunch over here and we have started off on high. Yours very truly, E. R. KELLER, B. S. Ag. '20, County Extension Agent, Bowling Green, Mo."

"Attached check for $4, three for ALUMNUS and one for movie machine. Should have attended to this earlier but have been exceedingly busy and away a great deal. That Nebraska score reminds me of olden times when our victories were mostly moral ones. However, believe Huskers are a fine team and I am hoping they romp over Syracuse Saturday. Sorry Mrs. Smith and I can't be with you for the Jayhawk feast. Maybe next year. H. K. SMITH, B. S. '06, 642 E. End Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania."

Edwin Wilhite Patterson, A. B. '09, LL.B. '11, Professor of Law at Kent Hall, Columbia University, New York City, writes as follows:

"I am mighty sorry that I shall not be able to attend the Homecoming. When they say,

'All in on the new yell,' won't you please cut loose with a few extra pounds of air pressure for my contribution. Vaughn Bryant is now in Kansas City—3419 Coleman Road will get him. He is living on Valentine Road—haven't the number here.

"Many thanks for your kind words at St. Louis. I talked to Robert E. (Bobbie) Ball the other night; he is living at 9 W. 47th street, New York City. Bobby is an artist.

"Did you know that Ernest Horn, B. S. in Ed. '07, A. M. '08, who is professor of Education at the University of Iowa, was awarded a prize amounting to about $2,000 last spring for collaborating on a program for the ethical training of children in the grades? The competition was nation-wide.

"Another thing: I noticed in one of your summer weekly letters that you had Claude Lathrop Cole, L.L.B. '11, B. S. in Ed. '14, A. M. '16, listed among those whose addresses were unknown. Poor Cole was a classmate of mine in Law. He died about four years ago at Cottonwood Falls, Kansas. I talked to a man who had a letter from his widow informing him of Cole's death.

"Did you know Arnold Leonard, A. B. '14, and June Leonard (nee June Van Ostrand) have a baby, born a year ago in September? They are living at Watertown, Mass. I think."

Mr. Patterson was married in '15 to Miss Dorothy Madison Thomson, B. S. in Ed. '12, A. B. '14. They have twins, one boy and one girl. Mrs. Thomson's father, Clifford Rhodes Thomson received the degree of L.L.B. in '83 from the University. Mrs. Patterson was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, L. S. V., and was on the Pan-Hellenic Council. Before her marriage, she taught English in the Independence, Missouri, High School. Edwin Patterson was a member of the Quadrangle Club, Asterisks, Athenaeum Debating Society, Order of the Coif, Q. E. B. H., Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Phi.

Hugh Shuck writes as follows:

"Your letter of September 14 chased me around until finally I tackled it and downed it in Moscow where I was studying time tables (one of Russia's best jokes) and a calendar, trying to dope out a play which would land me somewhere near the fifty-yard line on Rollins Field Thanksgiving Day. So I tucked away some roubles and have been trying to get them off to you all the way from Moscow to here. 'Here' being somewhere in the Atlantic.

"So this morning I fortified myself with a man-sized hunk of what was called 'Baked Missouri Ham' on the score card (last evening I ate the same as 'jambon a la Bordeaux'), drifted up to the lounge where I found an attendant ready to break his arm mixing me a gin ricky (Here's how!) and I'm all fixed to send you this pile of waste paper.

"I got through at 3,800,000 to the dollar and I find that I am about two bits or one ream short, so I'll drop in and pay up when I get to Mizou. Here are two 1922 bills—one marked 1,000 and other 25. You must add four ciphers to these to get their real value as they were printed under 'Nep'—the 'new economic policy'—which established a new rouble worth 10,000 old ones. So these two are worth 10,000,000 and 250,000 respectively. I find another 1922 note for 100,000 as well. Then there is one for 100,000, 1921, and a 10,000 note dated 1918 and one dated 1919. The former is a Kerinsky note as you will discover by reading the inscriptions, and the other a Bolo (Bolshevik) note. This last is quite interesting. In the first place notice the workmanship. They have a plant in Petrograd which does some wonderful work. It is an established fact that at this plant they make almost perfect English and French notes and some say American as well. And notice that on the edges the motto 'Workers of the World Unite' is written in six languages and is in the center under the crest of Russhy. To my mind this first series of Bolshevik notes is the most interesting. Then I am enclosing two postage stamps, one of 10 and the other of 15 kopeks. These passed as legal tender until the October revolutions. In all I believe you will find ten millions, four hundred and sixty thousand rubles and twenty-five kopeks. (10,460,000.25k.) This at 3,800,000 to the dollar amounts to $2.75. But if you will save them until they regain their pre-war value you may use the money as follows:

| My subscription to the ALUMNUS for 76,666 yrs, 8 months..... | $ 230,000 |

Our state legislators are 'pikers' right if they even hesitate to grant the $5,000,000 Pres. Jones so modestly requests for the next biennial period. We had a fervent hunch that the Jayhawk's feathers would droop sadly Thanksgiving eve, and that the Tigers would be looking for more bird-meat. Clean, wholesome football is drawing unheard-of crowds this year; we are sure that in Missouri's cleanness rests her unconquerable strength. Yours for success, TERENCE VINCENT, B. J. '16.

Even if I cannot be there in person I most certainly will be in mind and spirit. I am praying that 'Old Missouri' will add another Jayhawk scalp to her list Thanksgiving Day. My only regret is that I shall be deprived of the privilege of witnessing the scene. I know the atmosphere will be full of that Old Mizzou pep. "I am in receipt of your letter concerning the Turkey Day program to be given in Tiger Town, and it certainly makes me home-sick to read about all the interesting affairs to be held on the old campus. Although I have been away from Columbia for over five years now, I have been unable to get back and see any of the football games. Never-the-less my fighting spirit is always for the Tigers and I watch the football scores from the old school very closely. My fighting spirit is still with me and I certainly would like to be in the game again. In fact, I have tried my hand at a little professional football that is so well developed around this section of the country. Item No. 2. In regard to a reservation of one seat in the "M" section for the football game. I feel if I was back for the game that it would be very difficult for me to ever watch the Tigers from the bleachers. There would have to be some strict regulations to keep me from the side lines in an Missouri-Kansas game. Hoping that the old

Some Things Worth Knowing

The Boone National Savings and Loan Association is twenty-six years old.

It pays more than seven and one-half percent interest on monthly payments.

All of its money is loaned on first mortgage real estate security in Columbia.

One Hundred and Five families are paying for their homes thru this association.

It has paid its shareholders $53, 394.78 in profits.

It is a strictly mutual association, officers, directors and stockholders share exactly alike in all profits.

The "Boone National Savings and Loan Way" is the best way to meet all the essentials of saving. It is systematic. It trains the individual. It is character building by "being definite." It is the sure way of building an estate.
