WITH THE EDITOR

Three Admonitions

PRESIDENT WILLIAMS, in his inimitable manner, gave the summer session seniors a kindly bit of advice at their annual breakfast, that may well be passed on to the entire family of University alumni. Three admonitions he gave were:

"(1) Remember the other fellow. He who does not tolerate the different opinions of others, their different customs, their different creeds, fails to meet the obligation that education imposes—has not the broader vision of an educated man.

"(2) Do not set a peg on the University campus, and say 'Here I was educated.' Set a peg on the University campus, or in your memory, which is better, and say, 'Here I was in the process of education . . . Education ends not on the University campus, but out yonder in the cemetery, and many of us believe not even then and there.

"(3) Preserve and develop the saving grace of humor, especially in this day, though in all days . . . Humor, good humor, lengthens life. The ability to smile and the reason therefore gives strength and sustenance. It drives away sorrow, puts courage into fainting hearts, renews man's spirit, and sends him forth into difficulties and dangers and doubts equipped for every encounter . . . Do not be afraid of putting too much fun into life; be afraid, on the contrary, of permitting too much sorrow to remain. The saving grace of humor is both tonic and stimulant, anaesthetic and anodyne. It is a whole medicine chest, which a sick world needs so much today."

A Real Treat

THE ROTARY CONVENTION in Boston furnished opportunity to attend a meeting of the New England Alumni Association on June 26th, at the Sidewalk Cafe of the Hotel Brunswick. Mrs. Florence Whittier Tisdell, Secretary-Treasurer of the New England Club, Mrs. Harlow Shapley, Vice-President, and Claude B. Cross, President, were in charge of arrangements. We had a delightfully interesting luncheon, during which time we were kept busy answering questions on University affairs in general.

In addition to the alumni who reside in and around Boston we visited with many, many alumni from practically every section of the United States who were in attendance as delegates at the Rotary Convention. It was a real treat to see and be with them.

Responsibilities

DISPATCHES in both the local and metropolitan press commend very highly the interesting and enlightening radio address delivered recently by Dean Theo. W. H. Irion, of the School of Education, over KSD, the Post-Dispatch.

A few days ago we were discussing with Dean Irion the responsibilities of alumni to the University. He advanced the following:

"The financial and industrial maladjustments which we have experienced in America have created a critical situation in education. Everywhere additional demands are being made while the financial support of education has gradually declined. The plight of the elementary and rural as well as of the village high school has been pictured by many who are deeply concerned in the education of the future. Few people, however, realize that higher education is experiencing even as great difficulties. In America we are dependent upon higher education for the creation of a continuous intelligent leadership. During the coming decade many new social and economic theories and plans will be tested. Their successful application will depend upon the intelligence, the self-restraint and the balance of those leaders who have had a college or a university education. One can not over-emphasize the importance of the role which higher education must play in our country within the next ten years.

"Every alumnus of the University of Missouri has the distinct responsibility of explaining to the public both the need for a state university in Missouri and also the limitations under which our University is operating at the present time. If ever loyal supporters of the University were needed to make known the legitimate claims of the University, it is today. The responsibility for proclaiming the worth of the University rests upon every alumnus."

Speaking of Eccentricities

... Maybe you have heard of the two professors at the University about whom Jim Taylor and Bob Caldwell of Kansas City tell some interesting tales. One professor was so lazy he nailed his house slippers on the wall so they would be there to receive his "tootsie-wootsies" when he leaned back in his chair. And still another professor used to walk along the campus at a smart stride, occasionally doing a check-step to be sure he was in step with himself.

Let's Open the Coffers

Scholarships and fellowships, over 50,000 of them, valued at $10,000,000, at 42 colleges and universities are listed in a bulletin (No. 15) of the Federal Office of Education at Washington. The lists should be of interest to many thousands of students who need financial assistance to complete their education.

"The team will be made up of students"—Football Prospectus of a southern university.

Says Willis F. Ballinger in Forum, "Appointment bureaus of colleges should not only find jobs for their graduates, but should find husbands for their women graduates."

Fresh From England

"Lord Rothermore hasn't got the guts of a louse."—Alfred Duff Cooper.

"What England needs is a government with guts."—Lady Cynthia Mosley.

Well, American football is still a stranger to England, but some progress seems to be under way there in mastering our football language.

Don't Argue—Use Statistics

Handy statistics to paste in your hat and keep for ready reference:—

Proportion of college graduates to adult population—23 out of 1000.

Proportion of high school graduates to adult population—125 out of 1000.

Chances of a boy or girl going to college—1 in 6.

Ditto, going to high school—1 in 2.

"You ought to advertise your alumni magazine more than you do," says a critic. "Run a picture of some old grad gazing with enthusiasm on a copy of the latest issue."

The trouble with that idea is, there are already too many people in advertising gazing ecstatically at this and that for instance, the marcelled housewife with hands clasped in front of a furnace.

There Should Be No Lapse in Education

The Return of Industry Will Bring About a Keener Competition in Business; High School Graduates Should Make Every Effort to Attend Some College or University

THE gradual return of industry and agriculture to a level which is considered normal in the United States will naturally have its beneficial effects on college enrollment during the coming fall.

A recent survey of the various divisions of the University shows the heads of these respective departments optimistic with regard to a prospective increase in University enrollment as compared to last year. There is belief that the enrollment will be normal or above.

Correspondence with alumni, however, indicates there are many boys and girls who were graduated from high school last spring who are undecided about continuing their college or university education. The period of low business activity from which we have begun to emerge apparently has developed an atmosphere of indecision among these students. Specific reasons for this apparent indecision among many high school graduates are: (1) The cost of attending college or a university; (2) The large numbers of college graduates who are now without jobs; (3) The lack of having been impressed that now more than any other time is the time to continue their education.

Years ago the high school graduate felt himself to be an educated person. Those who went on to college were the sons and the daughters of the wealthy. It was either a mark of social distinction for the daughter, or even the son, and for others only those whose parents were wealthy enough to give them college training in some specific field as medicine, law, engineering, etc., continued their higher education.

As the state governments increased the number of colleges and universities, and with the aid of the federal government and private gifts provided for greater organized educational activity in the rural districts through consolidated schools, thus reaching the backbone of the nation's population, the country became not only "education-minded," but "higher education-minded." Today, the person who resigns his process of education at the close of his high school career usually has one of the reasons noted above to count for it.

As for the cost of attending a state institution where a small registration fee covers practically all of the scholastic expense, the total yearly outlay of money is probably lower than at any time within the past quarter of a century. Board, room, and the necessities of life are exceptionally low in cost at the present time.

Many high school graduates point to the large body of college men and women on the job hunt. In doing this they are overlooking the fact that these are the very men and women who will get the jobs when they are again open. The fact that there are many college graduates now means that competition is keener, and the man or woman without this background of education is greatly handicapped.

Probably the greatest factor contributing to the cause of young men and women discontinuing their educational process at the close of their high school careers is the fact that they haven't been impressed that there should be no lapse of time between high school and college. The work of bringing this fact before the high school graduates rests with those in close touch with the individual. It may be that this should be the duty the college graduate himself, the superintendent, principal and advisor in high school, or the student who is attending some university now.

In many cases it is impossible for a boy or girl to continue college work because of undue family or financial burdens. In the matter of expense, however, it must be realized that many scholarships, loan funds, and gifts are available for the earnest and sincere student. Most of these, of course, are available only to those above the first year class. Anyone who is sincerely interested in completing his university work will find adequate aid at Columbia.

As for the financial earning capacity for the various grades of educated men, the following was presented recently by President Walter Williams: "Recent statistical surveys show that the man with only an elementary school education ordinarily reaches the peak of his earning power at 45, making $1,700 a year, while the boy who attended high school, for even part of the four year course, earns a maximum of $2,000 at 54; and the high school graduate, reaching his peak at 55 earns $2,800 yearly. The college graduate's income increases steadily until at 65 he makes $6,200 a year, as compared with $1,975 of the high school graduate and $1,375 of the man who has never gone beyond the elementary grades."

A Visit With the Deans

"As long as there are children and young people to be brought up, schools will exist and the need for good teachers will be felt," Dean Theo. W. H. Irion, of the School of Education, said in an address recently to a group of students who were preparing to enter the teaching profession.

"The College of Arts and Science teaches the fundamental subjects required for entrance to the professional schools," Dean Frederick M. Tisdell, of this division of the University said. "A liberal education, first, lies at the base of all highly developed professions."

With the return of dollar wheat and generally improved farming conditions, the College of Agriculture, under the leadership of Dean F. B. Mumford, is anticipating an increase in enrollment and planning to carry even further during the coming school year its program of "service to the commonwealth through the improvement of agricultural knowledge and practice."

"Thorough fundamental as well as practical training is conducive to personal success in our highly competitive modern business system," said Dean F. A. Middlebush, of the School of Business and Public Administration. "Adequate technical knowledge of the complicated factors involved in every modern business enterprise is required."

"One of the principal features of the College of Fine Arts," said Dean James T. Quarles, "is the unusually intimate personal contact with its faculty members, which gives the students an inspiring insight into the creations of the world's finest artists and an appreciation of the world's fine arts."

The School of Journalism is the oldest in the world—the peer in journalism instruction. Its students at the June commencement outnumbered those of any other school. An even larger number is expected in the fall, according to Associate Dean Frank L. Martin:

The relationship of the School of Law with bar associations the world over has been unusually close. Particularly strong, however, is the link between the school and Missouri lawyers who several times a year participate in programs and celebrations at the University. Dean James L. Parks points to a steady increase in this School with much pride.

"Already has the demand increased for engineers capable of planning and directing the huge building and construction program sponsored by the government," said Acting Dean Robert W. Selvidge, of the School of Engineering. "The outlook for engineering is cheerful indeed."

Dean William J. Robbins, of the Graduate School, is confident that his division will continue its steady growth as evidenced by the increases in enrollment even when many students were seriously handicapped financially. The Graduate School provides adequate study for those seeking the higher college degrees. More than 500 students were enrolled in the Graduate School during the Summer Session.

Kristenstad, (Texas) Is Always Prosperous

John B. Christensen, llb, '95, Has Built a Community Unique in Itself, Near Dallas, Texas

By DEE C. BLYTHE, bj, '33

NESTLED in a huge bend of the Brazos River some seventy-five miles southwest of Dallas, Texas, is a community that has known nothing of the depression except hearsay since it was founded five years ago by John B. Christensen, LL.B. '95. The 150 inhabitants of Kristenstad say they have found the Utopia philosophers have long dreamed about, the principal difference being that theirs is a practical Utopia built on the ideal of self-sufficiency.

Kristenstad is scattered over 6000 acres of rich, well-timbered land, and from the soil these modern pioneers wrested virtually all the necessities of life, besides a surplus which finds a ready market in Fort Worth and Dallas. They have built their homes and public buildings from timber, rock and limestone found in abundance on the spot, and they have developed small industries as needed. They even have their own currency, which takes the form of dye-stamped brass tokens, which are legal tender anywhere in the community.

A Few Infant Industries

Agriculture is the chief pursuit of the people of Kristenstad, and, unlike the inhabitants of most communities, they are not anxious for industrialization. They do not want to reenact the age-old tragedy of the city, with its squalor, destitution and unemployment. True, Kristenstad has infant industries, but they are intended only to process products for home consumption or to utilize waste materials. There is a sawmill to turn logs into lumber, small pieces being turned into chairs which have been sold in fourteen states. Bottoms of these chairs are of cowhide provided by the herds of cattle that prosperously dot the hillsides. Still smaller pieces of wood are turned into charcoal which finds a ready market as fuel, poultry feeds, and for medicinal purposes.

There is also a grist mill and a cheese factory, and the inhabitants expect to have a creamery and an ice plant in the near future. When the men are not busy in the fields they find employment in these industries at wages of from $2.00 to $2.50 per day, payable in Kristenstad crisp. As a result of these industries the inhabitants have to buy little more than their clothing from the outside world. When they construct buildings they have to buy only roofing, glass and nails. Other odds and ends that they need are obtainable at the general store. Kristenstad also boasts a post-office, a schoolhouse, and a printing plant.

The self-sustaining program relies chiefly on what the people raise from the soil, on stock-raising, and on dairy farming. Besides the regular truck produce, hay, corn and peanuts are grown. Some cotton is also raised and sold outside the community, as are the wild pecans and herbs that grow in profusion along the river banks. There is plenty of work to go around, and Christensen selects colonists who are willing to work.

Everything in Kristenstad, from building homes to buying cattle, is done co-operatively, and the same is true of marketing. The marketing association handles the transportation and selling, saving the individual time and expense.

A Back-to-the-Soil Move

The success of Kristenstad is directly traceable to the farsightedness and innate Danish shrewdness of John B. Christensen, its founder and guiding spirit, for he has built it according to a long-cherished plan. It is odd that Christensen, trained as a lawyer, should lead a back-to-the soil movement, but he is convinced that therein lies the salvation of the present civilization.

Christensen was born in Kansas City and graduated from Westport High School. He worked his way through the University by working in cafes and as janitor in a church, not to speak of the many odd jobs that helped him eke out a living. But despite his financial handicaps he won a $50 scholarship from the Rollins Aid Fund, and he was valedictorian of his class. C. B. Rollins, Sr., administrator of the fund from which the scholarship was awarded, distinctly remembers Christensen, whom he lended an additional $20 to enable him to finish his senior year. Christensen, by the way, sent his benefactor a bushel of

Kristenstad's Post Office

Built of stone found on the spot, Kristenstad's post office is one of its principal "public" buildings. Because of probable confusion with other towns of similar names, Christenstead and Christianstead could not be used, hence, Kristenstad.

Valedictorian Christensen

As he looked back in 1895 as valedictorian of his law class at the University.

pecans last fall as "payment in kind."

Christensen was the youngest member of his graduating class, being only 21 years old. After taking his degree he practiced law in various parts of the Middle West for several years and was for some time president of the Federal Union Surety Company of Indianapolis. Finally he became a lumber man and road builder in East Texas. While there he conceived his idea of a colony for farmers, but his first attempt to make it a reality failed because the water supply of the East Texas location was found to be unhealthy. Later he made another attempt, this time near Glen Rose, Texas, on the Brazos River. While successful, it was too small, and soon Christensen discovered the large tract of virgin land which has become Kristenstad. The name Kristenstad was derived from the Danish Spelling of Christensen's name. The English equivalent would be Christenstead or Christianstead, but the postal authorities would not let him name it that because of probable confusion with other towns of similar names.

The basic idea of Kristenstad, according to its founder, is "to help folks of small or moderate means establish homes or businesses of their own." It represents no religious or political ideal, no "ism." As Christensen puts it:

No Half-Cooked Theories

"There is no controlling denomination, no craze, no fad, no rattle-brained, half-cooked theories. People of any respectable denomination of religion or any loyal party in politics are welcome. Their opinions and their rights are safeguarded and respected. But we do not tolerate indecency or immorality under the pretense of religion, nor treason, anarchy or sedition under the pretense of political free speech. Neither do we traffic with communism. We want no ism but Americanism."

Prospective colonists are carefully investigated, and if accepted they may buy land at $40 an acre with twenty years to pay. An additional 6 per cent interest is charged. All Christensen hopes to get out of it is the little tract of ground on which he has built a home for his wife and two sons.

Christensen's training in law comes in handy, for he is mayor, comptroller of the currency, legal authority and general overseer. The success with which he manages his community is shown by the fact that, while Kristenstad has no police system, it has never been necessary to call in officers from outside.

Noel B. Kirby Heads Vocational Ag Teachers

At Columbia, June 12, 13 and 14, one hundred and thirty-two vocational agricultural teachers from all parts of Missouri, including many alumni of the University, held their annual meeting at the College of Agriculture. Principal speakers were: Dr. T. F. Warren, of Cornell University; and Asher Hobson, of the University of Wisconsin. Officers elected included: Noel B. Kirby, of Monett, president; J. T. Gibbs, of Washington, vice-president; Dariell M. Young, of Pierce City, secretary; E. E. Schmid, of Hamilton, treasurer; F. C. Wilkins, of Rolla, parliamentarian; C. R. Howell, of Liberal, sergeant-at-arms.

Curators Select McDavid

Re-elected as president of the Board of Curators of the University at its meeting in July is Senator Frank M. McDavid, of Springfield. Other officers: H. W. Lennox, Rolla, vice-president; R. B. Price, Columbia, treasurer of the University at Columbia; Eugene J. Campbell, Rolla, treasurer of the School of Mines at Rolla.

Curators selected to comprise the executive board of the University at Columbia: Mercer Arnold, Joplin; H. J. Blanton, Paris; George C. Willson, St. Louis. Executive committee of the School of Mines: A. A. Speers, Jefferson City; F. M. McDavid, Springfield; J. K. Walsh, Webster Groves.

R.O.T.C. Student Gets Free Trip to Capital

George R. Parks, of Columbia, senior in the School of Business and Public Administration, will receive a free trip to the nation's capital for being the outstanding R.O.T.C. student this summer in the 7th Corps Area, consisting of eight states. He was first named the outstanding man at Ft. Riley, Kansas. First and second place contestants were selected at each camp in the corps area, the first place winners competing for the trip. Parks represented the artillery.

At Ft. Leavenworth, where infantry students go for the summer, Albert L. Muller, of St. James, a senior in the College of Arts and Science, won the camp contest. Second place went to Thomas Wallace, of St. Joseph, also a senior in the College of Arts and Science. The contests and awards are sponsored by the Civilian Military Education Fund of Washington, D. C.

Name Committee for Walter Williams Library

During the Silver Anniversary of the School of Journalism last May, journalism alumni endowed a library to be placed in the home of the President of the University, to be known as the Walter Williams Library. Nucleus of the library will be 250 of the most noteworthy books in the world's literature, issued during the year. Each year afterwards 150 new books will be added, selected on the same basis as the first 250. As additional volumes are added, the older volumes will be removed to the General Library, or some division thereof.

Announced recently by Associate Dean Frank L. Martin was the Committee on Selection, as follows: Sir Arthur W. Currie, president of the Association of American Universities, president of McGill University; Paul Bellamy, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, managing editor of the Cleveland Plaindealer; Carl H. Milan, president of the American Library Association, Chicago; Cass Canfield, president of the National Association of Book Publishers, Harper Brothers, New York City; Dr. Frederick J. Lazzell, president of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, University of Iowa; H. O. Severance, librarian at the University, to act as secretary; Dean Martin, to act as chairman.

Isador Lubin Is New Labor Statistician

Isador Lubin, labor economist, formerly on the faculty of the University, and also a former student, has been named Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. He also taught at Michigan. His appointment was made in order to place more emphasis on the statistical division of the department, Secretary Perkins said.

Journalists On World Cruise Visit Many Interesting Places

By RICHARD MONTAGUE

THE University's Round-the-World Foreign Correspondence Course officially started in New York on the morning of June 15. Twenty-three persons were gathered in Professor Roscoe B. Ellard's suite at the Pennsylvania Hotel to complete final arrangements for the tour. Professor Ellard is in charge of the 30,000 mile summer study tour of the School of Journalism which will return to Columbia September 15, after circling the globe, being guests of three governments and writing copy for fifteen American newspapers. Mrs. Ellard is official University chaperon.

The group was composed of Mr. Ellard's family—Mrs. Ellard, Harriet and Betty—Mrs. Nedra Flintom, Mrs. J. B. Wornall, Mary Haley, Sewell Clark, Walter Hoyt, Frank Faxon, William Wornall, and Woodridge Wornall, all of Kansas City; Mrs. J. E. Cosgrove and Jesse Cosgrove, Muskogee, Okla.; Dinah Allen, Liberty, Mo.; Juliet Barnes, Harrisburg, Ill.; Marion Brothier, Detroit, Mich.; Eleanor Trachsel, St. Joseph, Mo.; John Ardinger, Lexington, Mo.; Evan McDonald, Oshkosh, Wis.; Richard Montague, Norfolk, Va.; and James Whiton, Neshanic, N. J. All are regular or special students in the School of Journalism.

Professor Ellard's rooms were temporarily the registration headquarters of the group. After all questions had been answered and the final details of embarkation completed, the group was dismissed for the purpose of sight-seeing in New York.

Many of the party had never visited this great city of our states and to them it was almost like being in another country. The traffic, subway system and the business of the big city were all a center of interest. It was a suitable beginning for the World Tour. A big city in the United States was seen and added to the intellectual background of the party.

Shortly after midnight on June 16, the actual journey started. The Europa was slowly towed out into the harbor by the comparatively small tugs, and the waving throng that lined the dock faded into the darkness. The University Tour was en route to Cherbourg, France.

The first contact with foreign land, however, was gained long before then. This magnificent hotel of the ocean, which had just steamed away from the American shores, was in reality a foreign land. It was German. The entire personnel of the ship was German and the characteristics of that nation were embodied therein.

English was spoken, but there was also a great amount of contact with atmosphere, German music, German food, and the German language. And then came a new experience, which was to confront the group often as the globe was encircled. Marks were the basis of barter. The American dollar was always taken, but commodity prices varied daily in relation to the exchange rate.

Living on a ship was another novelty. Or were we on board a ship? It seemed more like a small community. Every convenience was provided. Movies, a swimming pool, a gymnasium and dancing—all the accommodations of the most modern hotel were evident. Yet it was a ship. This was certified on the fourth day out as rough weather was encountered and several of the party suffered their first sensation of sea-sickness.

One day the inner workings of the ship were exposed to us. The captain arranged a trip through the engine rooms for the party. It was an experience never to be forgotten. Could any sight hardly be more awe-inspiring than that of the machinery to provide the utilities of a city molded together in a ship. The utilities for the city were competent and the ship propelled. It was done there by this complicated mass of mechanical works, which had been shaped to perform its duties by some man's mind and by others' hands.

If one expected to find a harbor at Cherbourg similar to the one at New York, he soon realized his mistake.

Cherbourg was surrounded by massive concrete bulwarks jutting forth from the shore. Small entrances into this fortified circle had been provided. The Europa entered, but no dock was approached. Soon a large tender was secured along side and our party boarded. The entrance on French soil was made.

Once on shore, we had to convince the French authorities by opening our suitcases for them to inspect—that we had not come to exploit their country.

A new coin soon became familiar to the party. It was the franc. French coins were not so difficult, however, as we were now better versed in foreign exchange.

Cherbourg was soon left behind and we were on our first foreign train. Two novelties confronted us during this stage of the trip. The section arrangement of the cars was, private, and comfortable. The dining system was confusing. It seemed to be all a matter of constantly changing plates. Not exactly changing plates, but having them jerked from under your nose just as you were about to continue the meal. The dining car was characterized as a place of too little eating and too much plate changing.

The train did not lack in swiftness, however. We were soon in Paris. It was late and we were tired from our trip. Paris could not be resisted—not even by one so tired. A walk down the Champs-Elysees and a glimpse of the French people must be completed before retiring.

Paris—the city beautiful. It was there before us to see. A realization came true. The things we had read of—and couldn't quite picture—were now in our world of realities. A history of people unfolded itself there in Paris. The Louvre, the Madeleine Church, Notre Dame, Malmaison and Versailles were no longer merely references in history books and memoirs. They were places with a personal association.

The Mona Lisa was not viewed, perhaps, with the soul of an artist looking through our eyes, but the thrill and appreciation was there.

A strange tongue was encountered. Our smattering of the language did not seem very effective. One phrase, however,—“Combien”—was known and understood by all. A strange language is no more difficult than a strange city, proved to be the experience of one couple. From the opera to the Cafe de la Paix was only the matter of a cab ride across the street for them.

See American Embassy

A study of the news systems at Paris was undertaken seriously. Professor Ellard arranged through Ambassador Isadore Strauss to have E. Pinckney Tuck, chief of the news division of the American Embassy, conduct a trip through the embassy and for a lecture on “The American Government Abroad” by Theodore Marriner, Counsellor of the Embassy and next in command to Ambassador Strauss.

M. Pierre Comment, chief of the press division of the French Foreign Office, received the group and took them through the historic Quai D'Orsay, so difficult of access to any who have not official business of the French government. The students stood with intense interest in the historic chambers, on the rich old rugs bearing Napoleon's “N”, and among them the magnificent room where the Treaty of Paris in 1856 was signed.

The Associated Press and United Press offices were visited. No longer were these offices and the foreign correspondents apart from our actual experiences. We studied their system and conversed with the correspondents regarding the handling of foreign news, and concerning world problems. We were in touch with the world.

Le Petit Parisien. The world's largest paper in circulation. The office building exemplified the French newspapers. It was a model in its neatness. Madame Paul Dupuy, the owner, supervised our study of her paper and explained the method of French newspaper work. The business and news divisions of the papers are not housed in the same building. Each has its separate location.

Notable of the French papers is the fact that they do not print large papers. They have found the much sought after reader appeal. The entire paper is read from cover to cover and the surplus material, so often found in the American papers, is left out.

It was time to leave Paris. The land of a different people had been lived in for a week. Actual contact with a different people had been added to our experience. France and the French. We could now see and realize the land and the people—their customs, their life.

On to England

The chalk cliffs of Dover. They were our first sight of England. They were real. We could see them rising from the water. And then we were in England.

London. We acquaint ourselves with this city we have seen in our books. It is all there. Westminster Abbey. The books had not been able to make us see it. They could not arouse the reverent feeling in man that actual contact did so keenly.

The guards really change at Buckingham Palace. They are actually alive. We saw them.

St. Paul's Cathedral, The Tower of London, Big Ben and Parliament were now part of our lives. As Commander Richard Southby, member of the House of Commons, entertained us in the Houses of Parliament, English history and English government unfolded itself before us.

Visit London Times

The world's greatest newspaper—the London Times. A huge public spirited business carried on through four generations became a part of our background, as John Walter explained the paper to us.

A trip through its every department as the paper was going to press made clear to us the greatness of this industry. It was fascinating. Newspaper work can get in a man's blood. We had smelled of the ink. And we were merely watching and learning how they do it in other lands than ours.

Sir Wilmott Lewis, who gained the respect and admiration of all during the last Journalism Week at the University, was there to see us. We had listened to him and admired. We now met him and had conversation. He was presented to us by Geoffrey Dawson, the editor-in-chief. The personality of a great newspaper man was close to us. We benefitted.

Into Shakespeare Country

A trip to Stratford-on-Avon made Shakespeare more real. He lived, he ate, he loved and married, and we stood in the places. He studied, he worked and struggled. He gave something to the world—and we saw the first editions of that work. In one case at the Shakespeare home, we saw a copy of the same book we had seen in the library of Professor Ellard in Columbia without appreciating—the 1640 Bishop edition of Ben Jonson's plays, listing “Will Shakespeare” as one of the actors.

Another country and people had been added to our background. A country of tradition and stability.

London was left behind as we boarded the S. S. Carthage and started upon our trip to Shanghai. Southampton was visited and then the place of which we had heard so much—Gibraltar.

No longer will the rock be visualized with the insurance advertisement upon it. The rock is there with a quaint city and a powerful fortress, but no advertisement is to be seen.

After a short stop, the journey was continued with Marseilles as the next port of call. The trip around the world was unfolding history, countries and people. We were learning about them all and adding them to our background. Our lives were being broadened.

Following the visit at Marseilles, the trip continues across the Mediterranean, the Indian Ocean and the Red Sea to Singapore. It is the period of the trip through which intense heat will be encountered. A temperature of 130 degrees will not be unusual. We are in a different part of the world. What is unusual? For us almost everything. Yet it is only the life of other sections of the earth.

After Singapore—China, Japan, Hawaii, and home.

Dan Nee, LL.B. '12 Appointed Collector

President Roosevelt has confirmed the selection of Daniel M. Nee, LL.B. '12, Springfield, as collector of internal revenue for the western district of Missouri.

Dan Nee came to the University in 1906 and made quite a name for himself on the campus, not only in activities, but in athletics. He was president of the freshman class, business manager of the Savitar and a loyal Sigma Chi. He has an unusual record of having played almost every position on both the football and baseball teams, and he was president of the “M” Men's Club.

Mr. Nee has served as president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, state commander of the American Legion, city attorney, and prosecuting attorney of Greene county, at which time he was elected head of the Prosecuting Attorneys' Association. He enlisted in the United States Army in June, 1918 and served with the 20th Company.

He is better known to his classmates as “Big Boy” and was popular as a football official.

As a Student He Argued in Debates; He's Been Arguing Everywhere Since

CLEVELAND NEWTON

By Elly Baack

CLEVELAND A. NEWTON began getting into arguments—of a formal variety—before he graduated from the University of Missouri back in 1902. And he's never stopped. He argued in debates, argued in the Senate, argued in the State Legislature, argued in Congress and he's even argued in the courtroom. And as he has a high percentage of victories to his credit it would appear that when he chose the law as his life work he knew what he was doing.

Although very busy with his studies, when he was at the University, Mr. Newton found time to join Sigma Chi, as well as the law fraternity of Phi Delta Phi. Before entering Missouri University he had attended Drury College, which he entered when he was quite young. His home was in Wright county, in the very heart of the Ozarks, and he was the only boy from that county at Columbia.

While at Missouri he led a debate against the University of Kansas. The proposition was "That the United States Should Subsidize The Merchant Marine." He took the affirmative and won. "I formed that opinion in college and have never changed it," he said. During his senior year at Missouri he won the Stephens medal, which was open to all seniors. Six months later he was in the legislature as a representative from Wright county.

When he was in the University the entire revenue came from collateral inheritance tax. "And," he said, "if no bachelors died—there was no revenue."

But it was not long before Dean Walter Williams, Mr. Newton and several other members of the board were on the appropriations committee. They got $150,000 as an appropriation. Things were beginning to pick up.

At the next year's election Mr. Newton was returned to the legislature.

During Mr. Newton's first term there was a tremendous fight against abolishing football. As you can well imagine he led that fight, too. "The first speech I made before the legislature," he added, "was against the football bill."

Then he came out of the legislature and became assistant United States attorney at Kansas City, serving one year and a half. He resigned, went to St. Louis, and for four years was assistant circuit attorney. He resigned and then began the practice of law with the firm of Nagel and Kirby. In less than a year he was appointed an assistant attorney general at Washington. He then practiced law in St. Louis until 1919, when he was elected to Congress where he served four terms. He voluntarily retired.

He believes in city management—"a sort of trusteeship" of public utilities.

Several years ago he was asked to help work out a street car plan. "And it was then," he explained, "that I came to the conclusion that the city should act as a trustee between the owners of the street cars and the people who ride them."

Fashionably dressed and with a very jovial smile one would never think he came from the hill country.

Ever since his retirement from Congress he has been practicing law. And quite good he is too—if the long list of firm names is any indication.

Medical Vacancies Filled

The resignation of Dr. Edgar Allen as dean of the School of Medicine, who will go to Yale, and the death of Dr. H. H. Charlton recently, left three vacancies to be filled, namely, dean of the School of Medicine, chairman of the anatomy department, assistant professor of anatomy. Dean of the School of Medicine, announced several weeks ago, will be Dr. Dudley Steele Conley, B.L. '99, M.D. (Columbia University) '06, professor of clinical medicine and surgery, professor of surgery and director of surgical services in the University Hospitals.

In July, the Board of Curators approved selections for the other positions, Dr. M. D. Overholser as acting chairman of the department of anatomy; Warren O. Nelson as assistant professor of anatomy to fill the place left by Dr. Charlton.

Honor the First Dean

Honoring the first dean of the College of Agriculture, the first professor of geology, chemistry and agriculture, a bronze tablet was unveiled at the entrance to Swallow Hall during Commencement Week in June. Speakers were: F. B. Mumford, of the College of Agriculture; Dr. Benjamin Hoffman, emeritus professor of Germanic languages, who was one of Dr. Swallow's students; Wilford Cline, of Atlanta, representing the geological club of the University; and E. A. Trowbridge, Jr., representing the agricultural club. Dr. Edwin B. Branson, professor of geology, was in charge of the program. Dr. Swallow received three degrees from the University, was the first state geologist of Missouri. He began his career at the University in 1852, resigned in 1853 to become state geologist, returned in 1870, remained until 1882.

Do You Remember

—the 1903 Commencement was washed out by the great rains that inundated Missouri. It was so wet that three orators were unable to get to the exercises.

Do You Remember Way Back When?

"It was about the winter of 1910," says Isadore Barth, prominent Columbia merchant, "when one of the rarest incidents in the history of Columbia occurred."

"Bert Newman, who still lives in Columbia, was chief of the fire department. The department, humble as it was at that time, was called to put out a blaze at the Beta house, then on Missouri Avenue. The department arrived on schedule and all was going well towards extinguishing the blaze until a photographer appeared desirous, of course, of making a picture.

"In all due haste to assist the waiting photographer, Fire Chief Newman called his boys from their various posts of duty, had them pose until the picture was finished."

We understand the house was finished, too.

The Upswing Begins

Graduates of the University who have reported new jobs to the alumni office:

The A. P. Green Fire Brick Co., Mexico, Mo., added the following University graduates of this year's class to its personnel: Sam Carter, of Boonville; Ralph Denton, of Centralia; and Orville Read, of Tucumcari, N. M. Employed there for the summer months are: Jack Swatek, of Columbia; and Sam Cole, of Moulton, Iowa.

Alumni of the University who have been with the A. P. Green Fire Brick company for the past several years include Art Bond, and J. Harrison Brown, B.J. '14. Mrs. Art Bond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Green, and Mr. Green is a member of President Williams Advisory Council.

Coty Anderson, '33, of Springfield, has secured a place with the state highway department. He will be at Cassville, Mo.

W. Jack Young, B.J. '30, of Salem, formerly with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is now with the publications office of the University.

Journalism graduates who have been placed:

Roy Schumacher, of St. Louis, now with the Kirksville Graphic.

John W. Wilds, of Jacksonville, Fla., is with the Associated Press in Jacksonville.

Hugh O. Moffett, of Elizabeth, Ill., is with the Des Moines Register-Tribune.

Maurice Shadle, of St. Louis, also with the Des Moines Register-Tribune.

Elmer Lower, of Kansas City, is now with the Louisville (Ky.) Herald-Post.

Miss Annabel Fair, of Marshall, is with the Eldon, (Mo.) Advertiser.

Charles W. Smith, '33, is with H. K. Poindexter & Sons Merchandise Co., Kansas City. Mr. Poindexter received his A.B. degree from the University in 1915.

Portrays the University

In its effort to portray American universities and colleges completely to those of the East, Brooklyn Central, a semi-monthly publication, issued from October to May by the Central Branch of Brooklyn and Queens, Y. M. C. A., carries a story beautifully illustrated in its issue of April 7, about the University. The story is by Walter Beugge, and is illustrated with a view of the Columns and the East Campus. The story was clipped from the magazine and sent to the alumni office by Morris E. Dry, lawyer of New York City.

C. B. Hutchison Named Chairman of Class of '08 Silver Anniversary

CLAUDE BURTON HUTCHISON, dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of California, Berkeley, has accepted the general chairmanship of the Silver Anniversary reunion of the Class of 1908 to be held at Columbia during Homecoming, November 9, 10, and 11. Dean Hutchison received his degree from the College of Agriculture of the University in 1908, was prominent on the campus during his college career, and since his graduation a quarter of a century ago has identified himself with numerous major activities and developments in the field of agriculture.

Practically every member of the class whose present address is known has been notified of the reunion and urged to return to Columbia this fall. Replies from more than a hundred members of the class indicate the attendance will reach well over the hundred mark.

Dean Hutchison was promoted to his present position from director of the Gianinni Foundation, and is said to be the best posted man on agricultural economic affairs in the world. Besides the degree from the University he holds degrees from Cornell and Harvard. He was formerly on the faculty of the University.

Shortly after he went to California he was chosen by the Rockefeller Educational Board to aid Europe in getting on a better agricultural basis. He was later decorated with the Order of the White Lion by the Czechoslovakian republic, and also by the King of Belgium.

He was born in Chillicothe, Mo., is 48 years old, married Miss Roxie Ruth Prichard, of Princeton, Mo., in 1908, and they have four daughters. He occupied several important faculty positions at the University of California before being promoted to the deanship. In Who's Who in America, Dean Hutchison is listed as being a member of many important agricultural and honor societies.

Several important committees, including the Local Committee on Arrangements, composed of Columbia members of the class, the Attendance Promotion Committee, and committees to handle the program, decoration and banquet will be announced in a forthcoming issue of the ALUMNUS.

A special section for members of the Class of 1908, their families and friends will be reserved in Memorial Stadium until November 1. The remaining seats in this section will be placed on open sale.

Many surprises are being planned, and several memorable souvenirs will be given the class members at the Silver Anniversary Banquet.

A complete list of the class members will be published in the September issue of this magazine.

Roberta K. Darr Heads Chicago Alumni Group

At last the Tigress smugly grins and licks her chops in triumph. The Tiger looks bewildered and amazed. What happened? A time-honored fetish has been broken. Chicago alumni have a woman as their new president, versatile Roberta Kellogg Darr, representative of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

When Jay Barton, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the slate consisting of Roberta Darr for president, W. B. (Barney) McCray for vice-president and Arthur E. Indermark for secretary and treasurer, piccolo-playing President Harper Moulton asked for nominations from the floor. Then he appended his usual wise-cracks, "any parliamentary disposition of the report, not that we're railroading this through." The secretary was instructed to cast a unanimous ballot in favor of the slate.

Committees appointed in the "new deal" acceptance speech; social, North Side: Lee Walker, Paul Cook, E. R. Egger; social, West Side: N. K. Barr, James Carr, W. G. Farris; social, South Side: Katherine Jones Kuhlman, Mrs. Edwin S. McEwen, Mrs. J. C. Baird; general meetings: Joe Elliff, Donald Nelson, Frank Thatcher; memberships: Jay Barton, Myrtle G. Thompson; publicity: Mary L. Leitch, Mrs. Alfred H. Baugher.

Harper Moulton brought three interesting guests, his sister, Mrs. Arthur Gamon, whose husband is consul general at Marseilles, France; his nephew, John Gamon, a new ensign from Annapolis and Donald Locke, one of Dr. Monilaw's camp aides this summer.

The enthusiasm of the campus was brought to the meeting by Kenneth Jorgensen, grid player. After dinner the group visiting the Century of Progress was hospitably greeted by Hunter Gray and Missouri's old time exposition man, Col. Frank Nelson.

INTERESTING PEOPLE

Among Missouri Alumni

MARGARET BASS CHAMBERLAIN, B.L. '83 acting dean of women at the University during the summer session. Mrs. Chamberlain entered the University when she was 12 years old in 1877 after graduating from Stephens College with honors.

In 1912, after the death of her husband, James Chamberlain, F.S. '85, she served as a sorority chaperon at the University of Michigan. Following this she became house mother at an Episcopal school at Sycamore, Ill., and from there she went to Poplar Bluff, Mo., to act as a hospital supervisor. Before returning to Columbia as head of Read Hall Mrs. Chamberlain chaperoned an off-campus house at Smith College for two years.

She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

EDWARD A. SETZLER, A.B. '05, president and general counsel of the P. Setzler & Sons Soda Water Manufacturing Company, Kansas City, Missouri. Served as Judge of the Eighth District Court for eight years, was judge of the South Side Municipal Court of Kansas City and special judge of the circuit court and of the probate court.

After receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University he was graduated from the Kansas City Law School, received his early legal experience in the law offices of Scarritt, Vaughn, Griffith and Jones, Kansas City.

Judge Setzler is considered a leading authority on the legal liability of bottlers in the manufacture and sale of their products, and has represented them for many years in Missouri.

Last year the company which Judge Setzler now heads celebrated its seventieth anniversary. The company was founded in 1862 by his father, Philip Setzler, who died in 1923, leaving the business to his two sons, Judge Setzler and Charles M. Setzler.

As a youth, Edward Setzler's first job was driving a wagon for his father's soda water plant. His hobby is automobile touring.

He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

WARREN HENRY ORR, A.B. '09, LL.B. '11, chief justice of the Illinois Supreme Court. He has served three years, having been elected in June, 1930, is the youngest member of the Illinois Supreme Court and perhaps the youngest chief justice of any Supreme Court in America. He is 46 years old.

During his youth he was a newsboy, clerk on river steamers, manager and captain of his high school baseball team, the team which in 1904 defeated Central High of St. Louis, 2 to 1.

He entered the University at the age of 17, was prominent in University affairs, a member of Mystical Seven, and Delta Tau Delta fraternities, editor-in-chief of the M.S.U. Independent, student newspaper.

After passing both the Missouri and Illinois State Bar examinations, Lawyer Orr located first at Quincy, moved to Hamilton in 1911. Among offices later held were: city attorney of Hamilton, county and probate judge of Hancock County, re-elected, in 1926 nominated by Democrats and Republicans without opposition.

In 1923 Judge Orr was elected president of the Illinois County and Probate Judges' Association. In 1928 after defeat in the Hoover landslide, the strength shown by Judge Orr in his race led to his second nomination in 1930 when he was elected. He has shown "remarkable ability and devotion to duty."

In 1914 he married Dorothy Wallace, of Hamilton, and they now have three boys, Wallace, Warren and William. Wallace was a freshman at the University last September. Warren, Jr., will enter the University this fall.

ATHLETICS

Sports Attract Many Summer Session Students

Competition in athletics adds to the gusto of the sport, nevertheless the absence of strenuous competition does not detract necessarily from the fun and enjoyment. During the summer session at Columbia there are few competitive sports, but Director of Athletics C. L. Brewer opens his entire athletic plant to students, assigns his staff to various sports, and provides a generally well-directed program of recreation to hundreds of men and women.

Tuesday and Thursday nights at Brewer Field House are designated as play nights. Basketball, volleyball, playground ball, aerial dart, and horseshoes are the chief sports. More than a hundred participate in these sports. The Women's Gymnasium is open to women where swimming is the chief sport. In swimming, tennis and golf summer session champions will be selected. Many informal tournaments in the latter two sports are being conducted continuously. Employees of the University, faculty members and children also are privileged to use the swimming pool.

In charge of play nights is Anton J. Stankowski, freshman coach; golf, Charles Fisher, wrestling coach; tennis and swimming, George Edwards, basketball coach.

May Set Opening Games On Two Consecutive Days

Under consideration by Director of Athletics Brewer and his football coaching staff is the plan to play the two opening games of the grid season on two days instead of one afternoon. Games are scheduled with Central College, Fayette; and the Kirksville Teachers. Many fans do not like the idea of sitting on Memorial Stadium seats for five and a half hours through two consecutive games. Others, of course, don't mind. To accommodate the majority, however, Brewer is considering re-scheduling the games for two consecutive days, October 6 and 7.

Twyman Golfers Win

Summer session golfers picked by Richard Twyman won over the picked team of Howard Payne in an 18-hole tourney recently, fifth of a series of the summer recreational program. The score: 30-21. Twyman scored low, a 66, two below par.

FOOTBALLERS TO BE IN FIVE HOMECOMINGS DURING FALL SEASON

Coach Frank Carideo's Tiger football squad this fall probably will take part in more Homecoming games than any Missouri grid team in the history of athletics. Of the nine games scheduled, four will be Homecomings for opposing teams and one will be Missouri's Homecoming, the latter being with Oklahoma, November 11.

Other Homecomings will be: St. Louis University at St. Louis, October 21; Iowa State at Ames, October 28; Washington University at St. Louis, November 18; Kansas at Lawrence, November 30.

The teams: Twyman—H. Lang, A. Lang, S. Lebow, Elsie Tydings, E. W. Crates, J. Kallenback, E. Logan, A. Stankowski, E. A. Hoffman, H. Brightwell, F. Schooler, J. Nichols, A. Phillippe, L. DeBord, J. S. Cason, Jerry Bess, Payne—R. U. Givan, Paul Higday, A. McLachlan, Francis Bowman, B. W. Bradley, J. W. Pierce, G. O. Robinson, E. L. Cox, F. E. Stayton, Paul Erlic, W. Littlejohn, J. Bowler, W. R. Rothmeyer, H. Paris, G. I. Jackson, J. R. Hoag.

Winners were given a dinner by the losers.

Coaches to Meet for Rule Interpretations

To Kansas City on September 9, will go athletic directors and coaches of all Big Six Conference teams to interpret rule changes in football, price reductions, possibly other details of the game and attendance. Most noticeable rule change as far as the spectator is concerned: No play will be allowed within 10 yards of each sideline. Reason: To help the offense. With prices lower than most any major institution in the country, it would hardly be good business for Missouri to further reduce football prices. However, other Big Six schools probably will follow suit and bring their admissions to the Missouri level. Missouri's present price range: $1.50 to $2.50, plus federal tax. The latter price was charged only once during 1932, that being the Kansas game.

Carideos in Mississippi

After a visit with Mrs. Frank Carideo's parents in Columbus, Miss., Missouri's football mentor and his wife

Expect Grid Men to Be in Good Condition

Big Six conference rules prohibit the issuance of any athletic equipment before September 10. This year September 10 falls on Sunday. Whether football practice, not only at Missouri but also in the other five schools will begin on Sunday or Monday probably remains with each coach. The day before all coaches will be in Kansas City holding their own huddle as to rules, etc., etc.

Nevertheless, all Missouri football men, most of whom are working hard at various kinds of manual labor conditioning themselves for the fall, will have arrived in Columbia ready for the opening whistle. Where last fall Carideo was almost a stranger to his men, and they strangers to him because of brief spring practice, such is not the case this year. From the very beginning this fall, the stocky son of Notre Dame will know his men, their best playing positions, and they will understand his fast, tricky, intricate Rambler system.

Best material for this year's team seems to be at the ends, and in the backfield. The outlook is fair for the line.

Will Reserve Section For Class of '08

The Class of 1908 will be seated in a reserved section at the Homecoming game with Oklahoma this year, it has been announced. This section will comprise choice seats in the center of Memorial Stadium. Tickets will be held for this section until November 1, after which they will be placed on general sale. Graduates of this class, members of their families, relatives and friends are entitled to purchase tickets in this section.

Do You Remember

—K. U.'s Jayhawkers used to play two ball games during Commencement Week, as well as hold the dual track meet then. Bluck, one of the football stars, used to hold the shot-put record with a 38-foot toss. The conference record is now 50 feet odd.

will return to Columbia. Soon thereafter he is due at a coaching school at Hot Springs, National Park, Arkansas where with many football notables he will assist. The coaching school lasts only a few days.

B.S. in E.E.'s 40th Year

Brought to mind in June was the fact that this year is the fortieth anniversary of the degree of Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering at the University. The first degree, granted in 1893, went to Marquis H. Lockwood, brother-in-law of President Williams. Lockwood's required practical electrical work was carried on at the University power plant. On the night of January 9, 1892 when the old main building burned Lockwood was in charge of the dynamos. He later became a member of the University faculty, first as assistant in physics, later as instructor in mineralogy and blow-pipe analysis. He was a member of the first summer session faculty in 1894, later went to Trinity College, (Duke University) Durham, N. C. to accept the chair of physics.

In 1900 he received his M.S. degree from the University. Results of much of his research in the electrical field, and particularly in wireless experiments, were published widely.

16 States Represented By Mahan Prize Winners

Interest in the Mahan prize literary contests at the University has upped steadily since their inauguration three years ago. During the past year 371 students submitted 688 entries, as compared to 485 entries by 333 students the first year. The prizes have been made possible by a generous gift of $10,000 by George A. Mahan of Hannibal. The contests encourage the student of superior ability in speaking and in creative writing, discover gifted speakers and writers, offer much needed financial assistance.

Winners of last year's contests came from every section of Missouri and from 15 other states. Among the cities in Missouri represented by the winners, Columbia led with nine. Six came from Kansas, four from St. Louis. In the leading states, Texas had seven winners, Oklahoma, four, and New York, three.

Conducts "Marketing" Class

Otis M. Van Tassel, manager of the J. C. Penney Company store in Columbia, conducted the class in "Marketing" in the School of Business and Public Administration one day in July. Mr. Van Tassel explained the operations, methods and economy of chain store organizations. Throughout the year merchants and business men of Columbia, St. Louis, Kansas City and other cities appear before various University classes.

By ELEANOR NIEHUS, B.J. '30

Hold Annual Dinners

On the same day, July 6, men students of the University summer session gathered at a dinner at the Tiger Hotel, while women students held their dinner at the Daniel Boone Tavern. Unusually interesting speakers were secured for both events. To the men spoke genial, humorous, eloquent Judge Merrill E. Otis, of the western district federal court, of Kansas City, and to the women spoke Dr. Fredericka Blankner, traveller, lecturer, authority on Italy, six times interviewer of Mussolini. Said Judge Otis: "In bandit-ridden China one is almost as safe at night as he is upon the streets of any great city in the United States. Here is a challenge that must be sternly met." Reforms suggested: "Make the state's judges appointive officers, whose terms are for good behavior; restore the jury system to what it was at common law, when the judge charged the jury as to law and advised it as to facts."

Dr. Blankner gave interesting personal glimpses of Mussolini. Said she: "He is pictured through the press as arrogant, aristocratic, overbearing. This is a wrong impression. As a matter of fact, he is cordial, considerate, congenial, possesses those rare Italian qualities,—courage, action tenacity."

W. W. Carpenter professor of education, presided.

Students in Dramatics

Summer session students interested in dramatics gave eight plays recently under the direction of Donovan Rhynsburger, drama instructor in the University. The plays: "Boccaccio's Untold Tale," by Henry Kemp; "The Neighbors," and "The Dreamy Kid," by Eugene O'Neill; "The Clod," by

Permanent Class Head

HERSHELL S. THOMAS

Principal of the Maryville schools, was elected president of the summer session graduating class. He served as general chairman and toastmaster of the first annual Summer Session Grads' Breakfast at which more than a hundred students and faculty members attended.

Lewis Beach: "The Duchess Says Her Prayers," by Mary Cass Canfield; "The Cajun," and "The Boro," by Anton Chekhov, and "Sparkin," by E. P. Conkle.

They Took a Jaunt

Here are Russell O. Fudge, of Wichita Falls, Tex., and John E. Marston, of Kansas City, just a moment before their departure down the Missouri River in their special equipped skiff. They traveled 700 miles on the river, completing their journey at Chattanooga, Atlanta and Muscle Shoals by automobile. Both received their degrees from the School of Journalism in June. They visited several newspaper offices on their trip.

Many Senior Activities

Summer session seniors held their annual class day exercises during the convocation period on Thursday, July 27. Dean Theo. W. H. Irion was the principal speaker. Two weeks before seniors held their first annual Summer Session Grads' Breakfast attended by about 100 persons. Speakers at the breakfast were President Williams, Dean Irion, Bob Hill and T. J. Walker. Toastmaster was Hershell S. Thomas, of Maryville, who later was elected president of the permanent class organization.

The seniors hope to establish as precedent the annual breakfast, class day at which the director of the summer session is the chief speaker, and the commencement program at which the president of the University delivers the principal address.

Seniors this year also delegated to themselves the practice of furnishing the alumni office with material concerning each member of the class, also to arrange for each member of the class to subscribe to the ALUMNUS, official graduate magazine.

Grads' First Breakfast

First Summer Session Grads' Breakfast, designed to bring about a more cordial relationship among summer session seniors and candidates for graduate degrees, drew more than a hundred students and faculty members on July 13, at the Tiger Hotel.

Presiding was Hershell S. Thomas, principal of the schools at Maryville, Mo. He was later elected president. Talks were given by President Williams, who told the students to "remember the other fellow, and think not of your ambitions only;" Dean Theo. W. H. Irion, director of the Summer Session; T. J. Walker, of the Missouri State Teachers Association; and Bob Hill, director of alumni activities.

Elected as permanent class officers besides Thomas as president were: Mrs. Leota Hoberrecht, of Boonville, first vice-president; G. V. Bradshaw, of Dexter, second vice-president; William C. Gooch, of Hannibal, secretary.

Songs were led by Mrs. Hoberrecht, accompanied by Miss Louise Burns. Committee in charge of the breakfast included: Thomas, Bradshaw, William C. Bicknell of Roswell, N. M.; and Edward F. Thelen, of Kansas City. A quartet composed of J. D. Butler, R. T. Monagan, J. B. Fuller and John L. Riddick gave several numbers.

Dartmouth, Harvard Honor Stewart, Shapley

Prominent in news of the nation late in June were the names of two graduates of the University. One was an astronomer of international fame, another a noted economist. Conferred upon them were degrees from two of the country's oldest, most famous universities. To Harlow Shapley, A. B. '10, A.M. '11, LL.B. '27, went the degree of Doctor of Science from Harvard for being "an astronomer of renown, whose spirit, searching for the centre of the universe and the nature of the ultra-galactic nebulae, chafes at observing only from this paltry planet." The Boston Herald added editorially: "He possesses the added talent of being able to transmute his knowledge in lively, readable language that the layman can understand." He formerly lived at Jasper, Mo. Mrs. Shapley was formerly Martha Betz, of Kansas City, A.B. '10, A.M. '11.

To Walter W. Stewart, of New York City, went the Doctor of Laws degree from Dartmouth. An expert in international finance, he too has been honored by his alma mater with an honorary degree. He received his A.B. in 1909, is now chairman of the board of Case, Pomeroy & Co., New York City, has held many important financial posts, both at home and abroad.

Summer Session Grads Represent 14 States

Of the 252 candidates for degrees at the summer session commencement August 4, 214 are residents of Missouri, and 38 represent 14 other states. As usual during the summer term the Graduate School will confer the largest number of degrees, 121, applying for degrees from this particular division. The number of candidates for other degrees follows: Bachelor of Arts, 22; Bachelor of Science in Agriculture, 9; Bachelor of Science in Rural Public Welfare, 1; Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, 6; Bachelor of Science in Public Administration, 2; Bachelor of Science in Education, 7; Bachelor of Fine Arts, 4; Bachelor of Journalism, 10.

Increases over last year's summer session are noted in agriculture, public administration, education, fine arts.

Offer 3 Scholarships

With an annual stipend of $50 each students of the School of Journalism are offering three scholarships which have been accepted by the Curators. Donors were: Theta Sigma Phi and Sigma Delta Chi.

LITTLE BRIEFS

THE Medical Library has received two rare old books from Dr. William Washington Ashley, M.D. '75, of Newhall, Calif. Titles: A Treatise of the Hypochondriack Passions, printed in London in 1711 in three dialogues; Artificial Embellishments of Arts Best Directors, How to Preserve Beauty or Procure It, printed at Oxford in 1665. Dr. Ashley was from Warrensburg. All of his eight living children have college degrees, three from the University of Colorado, one from Harvard Medical School, three from Stanford University; one from Annapolis, one from the Engineering School, Oakland, Calif. Dr. Ashley and his daughter visited the University during Commencement three years ago.

SCIENTISTS in Chicago recently heard Dr. Herman Schlundt, professor of physical chemistry at the University, tell of the radium content of the travertine deposits of Mammoth Hot Springs, Yellowstone National Park. Dr. Schlundt has made extensive study in this field. Also before another division of scientists, Dr. Harry Pelle Hartkemeier, assistant professor of accounting and statistics of the University, told of the elasticity of supply for agricultural products. Special emphasis was placed on potatoes and corn. The meeting was the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

UNLESS you wish to study medicine to the exclusion of many other pleasures, do not enter the School of Medicine," Dr. Edgar Allen, dean of the School of Medicine, advises. "If you are seriously minded and have a leaning toward the 'natural sciences' or ability in scientific activities, we shall be glad to have you at the University."

MARSHALL F. BRYANT, professor of voice, was chosen by Oberlin College as the outstanding former student to sing the solo baritone part in the "Elijah," oratorio presented during the centennial celebration. Claude R. Newcomb, instructor in voice at the University in the fall and winter, is in charge of the choral work of Oscar Seagle Colony, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

ENGLISH and history are favorites with summer session students.

ALUMNI MEETINGS

Chicago Alumni Plan Memorial Day

A special program of music and interesting talks is being planned by Chicago alumni as features of the Missouri Day celebration at "A Century of Progress" on August 10. Governor Guy Brasfield Park, either Senator Clark or Senator Patterson, and Gen. John J. Pershing, if he is in the States, will appear on the program. Three hundred members of various bands and state troops will present a parade in the morning.

Alumni activities for the day will consist of an old-fashioned picnic on Northerly Island at 6 o'clock. Complete information about this event may be obtained at the information booth in the Missouri Building. Each person or party will bring lunches, and the only assessment will be the regular admission to the grounds.

Arrangements are in charge of Roberta K. Darr, new president of the Chicago alumni.

22 Attend Party of St. Louis Alumnae

St. Louis alumnae held their annual spring party on Saturday, June 3, at the home of Mrs. J. T. Garrett, 6225 Westminster Place. Twenty-two University alumnae attended. Approximately 75 graduates of the University have now been listed with the St. Louis Alumnae Association, and the new officers are desirous of contacting all women degree holders and former students. Meetings are being held regularly.

Mrs. O. J. Rotty, 6738 Bradley, is president; Mrs. J. O. Royse, 6366 Alamo, vice-president; Mrs. Erwin Ocker, 4217 Lafayette, secretary; Miss Leila Dritt, 5370 Pershing, treasurer; Mrs. J. L. McKay, 573 South Clay, Kirkwood, chairman of the Scholarship Loan Committee; Mrs. Louise Stark, 5883 Julian, and Miss Katherine Keiser, 134 Linden Ave., Clayton, members.

Lake Party at Dallas

Closing the season's alumni activities in Dallas, more than 60 gathered at Lake Backman on Saturday evening, May 20. Arrangements were in charge of Dr. John S. Ankeney, president of the Dallas association, and Mrs. Harry Guy. Prominent alumni who attended were: Dr. and Mrs. Ankeney; City Manager John N. Edy and Mrs. Edy and their son and daughter-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carrington and family; Mr. and Mrs. F. K. McGinnis; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith and family; Mr. and Mrs. Leake McCauley, Sloane McCauley; and Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Deaton.

St. Louis Journalists Hold Annual Picnic

Sticking to their tradition of several years, alumni of the School of Journalism who are in St. Louis held their annual picnic on Sunday, June 18. Horseshoes, a treasure hunt, baseball game between the news and advertising men featured the day's activities. The group met at the Forest Park Pavillion, journeyed 40 miles south of St. Louis for the event. Among those from Columbia who attended were: Dean and Mrs. Frank L. Martin, and their daughter, Mrs. Ralph P. Swoford, Jr., Albrook Field, Canal Zone.

Scheduled Meetings

August 17, at Sedalia. University of Missouri Day at the Missouri State Fair. Luncheon at 12 noon, at Mrs. Kaler's Dining Hall on the fair grounds for alumni. See details on this page.

August 10, at Chicago. Missouri Day at the Century of Progress Exposition. A party has been arranged by Chicago alumni, complete details of which will be found on this page. Arrangements are in charge of Roberta K. Darr.

Regular Meetings

St. Joseph—Monthly, of the Buchanan County Alumni Association, Edwin W. Wilkinson, St. Joseph, President.

Kansas City—Weekly at the University Club, Lynn Webb, 2000 Fidelity Bank Bldg., president.

Washington, D. C.—Every Wednesday, at 12:30 Oct. 1 to June 30, University Club, 15th and Eye St., N. W., Milo H. Brinkley, 3035 Que St., N. W., president.

New York City—Weekly, on Mondays, at the Planters' Restaurant, 124 Greenwich St., Manhattan. Rudie Hapke, president.

Los Angeles—Monthly, third Friday of each month at the Dewise Mallard Cafe, 2228 West 7th St. T. P. Howard, 310 Klinker Bldg., Los Angeles, president.

Alumni to Meet Aug 17 at State Fair

Every year at the Missouri State Fair one day of the week is set aside, recognized as University of Missouri Day. This year it will be on Thursday, August 17, and added emphasis to stimulate interest and attendance at the University functions on that day comes with the designation also of this day as Governor's Day and Sedalia Day. A splendid campaign is now being conducted by Sedalia alumni headed by Dr. A. J. Campbell, president, and Miss Lydia Montgomery, secretary, to fill Mrs. Kaler's Dining Hall on the fair grounds for the annual luncheon at noon on University Day.

On the program will appear President Williams, who also has been asked to preside; Dean F. B. Mumford, of the College of Agriculture; W. A. Cochel, of Kansas City, president of the general alumni association; and Coach Frank Carideo.

Reservations should be sent immediately to Dr. Campbell, Sedalia.

OVERTON ROBNETT was formerly Mary McCammon, former student).

MR. and MRS. WARREN FUQUA, of Monroe City, Mo., have moved to the D. W. B. Kurtz farm across the road from L. A. Weaver's home on R.F.D. No. 7, Columbia. Mr. Fuqua received the degree of B.S. in Ag. in 1914, and Mrs. Fuqua, formerly Margaret Dorsey, is a former student. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stockton Dorsey, of Columbia.

H. A. DOTY, of Columbia, member of the firm of FREDENDALL'S, is recovering from a recent major operation. Mr. Doty is a good friend of the University, and a staunch supporter of the ALUMNUS magazine.

DR. BEN DYSART, A.B. '20, of Pasadena, Calif., visited his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Dysart in Columbia recently. Dr. W. P. Dysart, Sr. received his M.D. degree from the University in 1887. Another son, William P., Jr. received his B.S. in Ag. degree in 1916, and Winifred P. Dysart, a sister of William P., Jr., and Ben, now Mrs. Stanley Brown, of Kansas City, received her A.B. degree in 1920.

DEATHS

LUM HALL FREY, LL.B. '02, a native Missourian, died on June 13, in Santa Monica, Calif. He was a nephew of John C. Hall, president of the St. Louis Building and Loan Association. Mr. Frey had been ill during the past year.

He was born in Sedalia in 1881, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Frey, the former for many years being general manager of the Santa Fe Railway System. He attended the public schools of Sedalia.

He leaves his widow, Martha Cregan Frey; a sister, Mrs. Leo Powers, Rochester, N. Y.; and two brothers, John C. Frey, New York City, and J. J. Frey, Jr., St. Louis.

He was a member of Sigma Nu and Theta Nu Epsilon fraternities, was for many years an officer of the First National Bank, St. Louis, and was active in Liberty Loan, Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army and Red Cross work during the World War. Burial was held in Santa Monica.

ALLEN LEE WITHERS, former student, died on May 25, while traveling from Chicago to Santa Barbara, Calif. No doctor was available at the time and he died before medical aid could be secured. He was connected with the Marshall-Field-Glare-Ward & Co., Chicago. He attended the University from 1900 to 1903. He was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

MR. JOHN D. BOHLING, seventy-five years of age, widely known attorney-at-law, died suddenly at his home in Sedalia, Mo., June 5. He formerly attended the University of Missouri and was admitted to the bar in 1882.

WINTON G. SMITH, 21 years old, of Kansas City, former student, was killed in an airplane crash on July 5, near Denton, Kan. A companion, Howard Stuart, of Denton, was injured fatally. The two youths were taking off in the plane and had reached an altitude of about 200 feet when the left wing crumpled. Flames enveloped the plane when it struck the earth. Stuart leaped from the ship and fell free, but died later in a St. Joseph, Mo. hospital. Smith left the University in 1930 to study aviation at Kansas City. He was a former student at Country Day School, Kansas City, and The Principia, St. Louis. He was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

HARRY H. HORNER, superintendent of the Birmingham Water Works Co., of Birmingham, Ala., former student, committed suicide one day in June, according to word received from A. F. Porzelius, B.S. in E.E. '09. Mr. Horner was a member of Sigma Chi and Theta Nu Epsilon fraternities.

J. HERBERT SMITH, A.B. '09, LL.B. '11, Kansas City banker, lawyer, and manufacturer, died on July 4, at St. Luke's Hospital, Kansas City, after an operation for necrosis of the bladder. He worked his way through the University, and was said to make more money than any other student on the campus. Among his projects was a dance hall. After graduation he engaged in the manufacture of vending machines, later entering the banking profession. At St. Luke's Hospital shortly before his death he remembered that as a lawyer he had framed the constitution and by-laws of the hospital. Burial was in Mt. Moriah cemetery. He is survived by his widow.
