NAVAL TRAINING SCHOOL (DIESEL)
UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI
COLUMBIA, MISSOURI

July, 1943

Friends of Missouri:

August 17, 1942, the first group of sailors began their training on the University of Missouri campus. To date, well over 4,000 men of the U. S. Navy have successfully completed the eight week course in the operation and maintenance of diesel engines.

The most significant contribution of Columbia and of the University of Missouri can best be measured by the individual reactions of the men themselves. The fact that, almost without exception, every man stationed here has praised the genuine friendliness and cordiality extended him is ample proof of the fine spirit in which you of the University of Missouri and of Columbia have played your part in preparing these men for the work yet to be done.

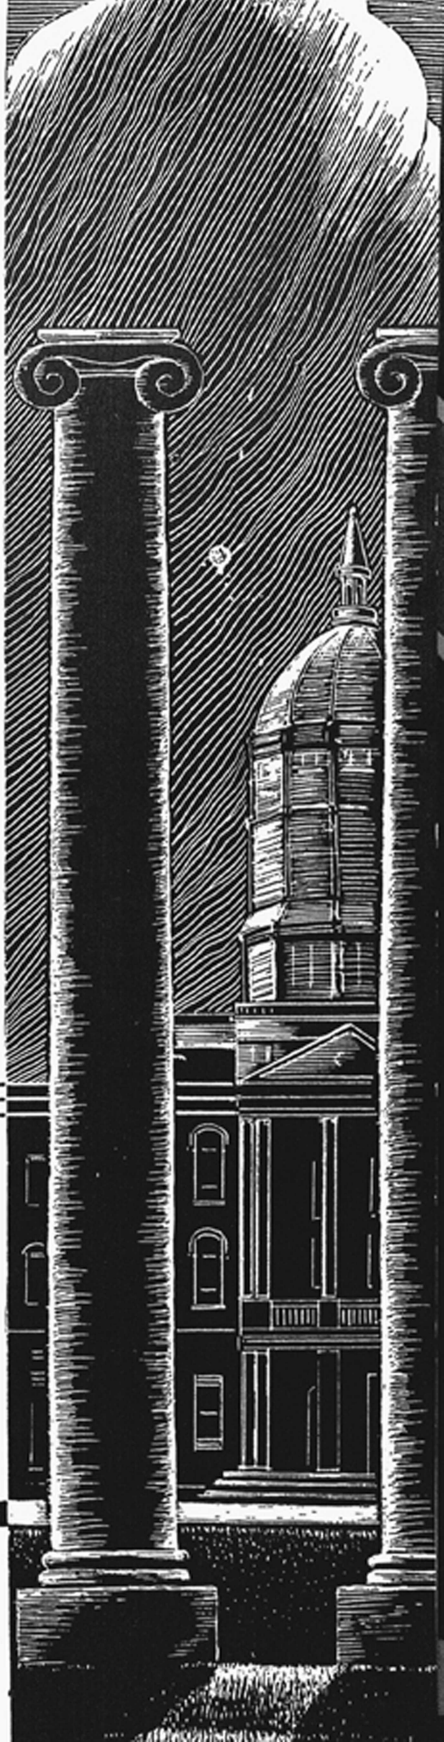

Their thanks go out to you who have gained in the hearts and memories of these men a spot that will endure long after peace has come.

The University and the School of Mines and Metallurgy are among Missouri schools which have made bids to establish a school of technology under a fund of approximately $1,250,000 set aside by the late H. E. Sevier of Chicago to establish such a school in some Missouri city. Applications are to be considered by the trustees, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company, Chicago.

AROUND AND ABOUT:

The ever courteous and hospitable Fred Bernet greets us at the Missouri Athletic Club in St. Louis. . . . Our University men in Service say that whenever it is necessary to arouse fighting spirit that playing "Dixie" produces the desired results. . . . Breakfast at Charlie Heiss' Mayfair with Stan Ginn, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, his wife, the former Rosemary Lucas, and their daughter Nancy. . . . A morning's visit in St. Louis with San Antonio's noted, popular and successful Andy McKenzie. . . . To lunch with Kearney Wornall, President of the Missouri Bankers and vice-president of the City Bank and Trust Company, Kansas City, along with Mayor Sermon of Independence, Judge W. E. Kemp, City Councilor of Kansas City, Julian Wornall and Bobby Aycock. . . .

WELCOME:

The boys who have been here on the campus in the Army and Navy have expressed their sincere hope that facilities will be provided whereby they may finish their university educational careers, in which case they want to come back to the University of Missouri because they like it and because they like Columbia and the courteous and hospitable treatment which they have received—and we want them back and shall welcome their return and the earlier the better.

MISCELLANY:

Lue Lozier of the War Department in Washington, has been made Honorary Vice-President of the SPPRSOH. . . . Zoot suits are nothing new. They were hot stuff and the garb of the college jo as early as 1908. Little flat hats, long coats, baggy trousers coming almost to a pin-point at the ankles . . . just history repeating itself. . . . Thumbing through the fraternity pages of the 1908-11 Savitars reveals that G. I. haircuts are also a repetition of this by-gone era. . . . George B. Dealy, LL.D. '25, Chairman of the Board of Dallas Morning News, the oldest business institution in Texas, continues his interest in and enthusiasm for the University of Missouri. . . . Ralph T. Finley is making an earnest effort to unite the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches. My parents are Presbyterians, so by virtue of that fact I claim to be a cork-legged Presbyterian—that is, I help support the body, but am not a part of it.

DAILY DERBY:

One of our University boys in North Africa suggests that Clem McCarthy be employed to announce that never-ending neck 'n neck "You're Gonna-Be-Called — You're Not Gonna-Be-Called" derby between Selective Service and the Papas, and that the program be broadcast daily for the entertainment of the men already in the service.

A-1 RECEPTION CENTER:

Major Clinton H. John, Commanding Officer of the Reception Center, Jefferson Barracks, and the members of his staff are most gracious hosts—most courteous and hospitable. When a small army of Missouri newspaper folk were there for two days recently we had a good look at JB, found it to be an A-1 reception center and that a heap of needed improvements have been made under Major John's supervision. There were many, many University boys to greet us. We wish every Missourian could know Jefferson Barracks from first hand knowledge such as we garnered on our visit. Major John had in his office this framed statement made by Robert E. Lee:

"If you fill these positions with proper officers, not the relatives and social friends of the commanders who however agreeable their company, are not always the most useful you might hope to have the finest Army in the world."
I admired it so much that Major John gave it to me and it is now framed and on the wall in our Columbia War Finance Committee office. Robert E. Lee was stationed in St. Louis early in his career and had charge of straightening the river in front of the city.

CLEAR THINKING:

The University men in the service write that in their opinion the best post-war plans are those which contribute the most right now to immediate victory and to their early return home. Our boys expect us to take every precaution against a recurrence of that chaotic condition which followed the last war. They express themselves very much in favor of policing the world from now on in order to prevent a world war every quarter of a century. What's wrong with policing the world, they ask? We have policemen in our home towns and our home states are policed and our nation is policed so there is nothing new or different in the idea and they are strongly in favor of it. We must not forget that the future belongs to the boys in the service. They are substantial men with good minds and they think clearly and they write pretty plainly about what they call muddy-minded planning by starry-eyed adulated theorists with will-o'-the-wisp ideas.

Naval Diesel School Program Closes with September Graduation

The Naval Diesel Training Program will be discontinued at the University with the graduation of the last class now in training on September 6, 1943, Frederick A. Middlebush announced. It is understood that the army will send approximately the same number of trainees to the University prior to the opening of the fall quarter, October 2.

At the time the college training program was set up by the army and navy, the University was approved for both army and navy collegiate groups. This approval was later altered by the Joint Board of the Army, Navy and War Manpower Commission, and the army was given priority at the University.

Because the Diesel Training School is a sub-collegiate program, the navy consented to make its present facilities available to the army for enlargement of the A.S.T.P.

Lt. Marvin S. Lee, commanding officer of the Diesel school, said that since the school was begun on August 15, 1942, and including the men who will be graduated by September 6, the school will have graduated more than 4000 men in twenty-two companies. The normal complement for the school is about a thousand men, comprising four companies of 250 men each. At present there are two companies here. One class will be graduated in the middle of August, the latter immediately prior to the closing of the naval school.

When the school opened, Lt. John G. Grotenrath, U.S.N.R., (Ret.) was commanding officer. He was replaced by Lt.-Comdr. E. W. Whitehead, U.S.N. (ret.). The present commanding officer is Lt. Lee.

Hollis Edwards, Tribune Associate Editor, Dies

Luther Hollis Edwards, associate editor of the Columbia Daily Tribune, died unexpectedly on June 30 in Noyes Hospital. He had been ill since early this winter.

Edwards entered the School of Law of the University but left to enlist during the Spanish-American War. He served as a member of Company I, a group composed of University students, and played the drum with his company's band.

After the war Edwards began his journalistic career, serving forty-one years. He was at one time on the staff of the Kansas City Star and was city editor of a Madison, Wis., paper. He was formerly city editor of the Tribune before his appointment as associate editor.

J. B. Powell Gives $4000 Endowment Fund to M. U.

John B. Powell, American newspaperman and for many years managing editor of the China Weekly Review of Shanghai, has given the School of Journalism of the University a $4000 endowment fund for a Chinese-American essay prize. The fund was accepted by the Board of Curators at its meeting in St. Louis on July 19.

The $100 yearly income from the fund will be awarded annually in cash for the best study of Chinese-American affairs written by a regularly enrolled journalism student of American or Chinese nationality. The prize will be given at the June commencement and the first award will be made in June, 1944, according to Dean Frank L. Mott.

Powell has had the project in mind for many years. He is an alumnus of the School of Journalism, having graduated in 1910, and was later a member of the faculty. He has spent twenty-five years in newspaper work in Shanghai and has been deeply interested in a better understanding between China and this country.

Powell is in the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City, where he has been recovering his health since his return to this country last August on the S.S. Gripsholm. He was interned by the Japanese in December, 1941, and released about six months later.

Two $50 prizes were offered by J. B. Powell from 1920 to 1926 to students of the School of Journalism writing the best editorial essays on problems of the Pacific affecting America. One prize was offered during the fall school term and the other during the winter term.

Laurance Hyde To Head National Judicial Council

Judge Laurance M. Hyde of the Missouri Supreme Court was recently elected Chairman of the National Conference of Judicial Councils. This office carries with it membership in the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association as the representative of the Conference.

Judge Hyde is president of the General Alumni Association of the University and received his B.A. in '14 and LL.B. in '16.

At the June commencement breakfast Judge Hyde was made an honorary member of Mystical 7. He delivered the commencement address to the summer graduating class on July 24.

University Quarter System Coincides with Army Specialized Training Program

Beginning with the fall term opening October 1, the University of Missouri will begin operation on a quarter system for a twelve-month period. The action for the quarter system and a one-year emergency calendar was approved by the Board of Curators at its July 19 meeting.

The change is necessary because of the large number of students of the Army Specialized Training Program, who will also be students in regular University classes. The army uses the quarter system in outlining study programs for its students.

The School of Law and School of Medicine are already operating upon a quarter plan, and the dates of their calendar will not be changed under the new plan.

Previous to this action, the University was operating on a system of two 18-week semesters, with a divided summer session of two six-week terms.

By special arrangements the School of Education will make it possible for teachers who are graduate students in education to complete a full course of twelve hours next summer in time for their return to school duties. Thus, those teachers or superintendents taking University courses who must be back at their schools by the last week in August rather than September 8, the end of the quarter, will be enabled to do so with full credit.

Under the accelerated wartime schedule, a student may take twelve hours of class work per quarter, and by going both summer and winter, may complete work for a degree in two and a half years.

The school of journalism will maintain its regular intersession between the close of the summer quarter and the opening of the fall quarter. School will begin September 4 and continue until October 2. As in the past, one hour credit per week will be given for intersession work.

A.S.T.P. Trainees Here

Since the A.S.T.P. program has been in effect, a total of 773 trainees have arrived at the University. The men are in the following categories: 591 engineers, 125 foreign language students, and 57 medical students, according to Col. McIntyre, commandant.

The Army trainees are being housed in the College avenue fraternity houses and in the Knights of Columbus hall, and meals are being served in the mess hall at Crowder Hall.

More than 1000 additional trainees have been assigned to the University under the A.S.T.P. program. These men will be housed in the barracks now being used by the Navy.

In addition to the Army Air Corps aviation students stationed here, there will be about 1900 army trainees when the new contingent arrives in September.

Col. A. McIntyre is commanding officer of the Army Student Training Program. Directly under him are the groups of language students who are studying Italian, German and French, the engineers, medical students, and advanced R.O.T.C. men. R.O.T.C. men have been returned to the University to complete work for their degrees.

Trimesters in World War I

During the first World War, the University adopted a plan in conjunction with the Student Army Training Corps, a division similar to the present A.S.T.P. In the fall of 1918, a trimester system was inaugurated, wherein the calendar consisted of three 16-week periods.

Service Flag Hangs in Jesse Hall Corridor

The University service flag, which was dedicated by President Frederick A. Middlebush at commencement on June 11, was put up in the corridor of Jesse Hall, where it will hang permanently.

The star is for persons of the University who have lost their lives in the war, while the V is dedicated to the men and women who are in the service.

Kearney Wornall, vice-president of the City National Bank and Trust Company of Kansas City, was elected 1943-44 president of the Missouri Bankers' Association at its wartime business conference in St. Louis on June 11. Mr. Wornall received his LL.B. in 1915.

Congressman; Jewell Mayes, Past Commissioner of Agriculture and Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture; M. F. Miller, Dean of the College of Agriculture; and John W. Conaway, Professor Emeritus of Agriculture.

Rufi Emphasizes Seriousness of Nation's Teacher Shortage

"The problem of providing public education, difficult under normal conditions, has been made exceedingly more difficult by the war and its impact. Educationally speaking, the most serious effect of the war thus far is the serious shortage of teachers. This shortage was first experienced in the fields of industrial arts, natural sciences and mathematics, but it now effects all fields. Due to this teacher shortage, many of our high schools have already been forced to curtail their offerings. Certain of our schools will not even be able to open their doors for the fall session."

This is a statement made recently by Dr. John Rufi, president of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

Missouri and the nation appear to be faced with this lack of teachers. It has been estimated that one hundred thousand teachers have left the teaching profession since December, 1941. Many of these teachers are in uniform, while others have gone into munitions plants or similar work. Standards of professional preparation are being drastically lowered.

State and local school officials, members of legislatures, boards of education, teacher-education associations and interested citizens are seeking means of mitigating the seriousness of the present situation and of the immediate future.

Dairymen's Convention Features Symposia on Wartime Problems

The thirty-eighth annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association was held during the week of June 21 at the University, with symposia on wartime problems of the dairy industry as the feature of the session.

College, scientific, technical workers, and representatives of all branches of the dairy industry attended the three-day meetings.

Total registration equalled 314, including representatives from thirty-four states and Canada.

Professor A. C. Ragsdale, chairman of the Department of Dairy Husbandry at the University, opened the session, and H. P. Davis, national president of the association, introduced the officers. President Frederick A. Middlebush welcomed the guests. George E. Holm of the Bureau of Dairy Industry of the Department of Agriculture spoke on "Dairy Science and the War Effort."

The two symposia featured the dairy problems resulting from war restrictions, and war restrictions in relation to ice cream.

The Borden Awards, the highest distinction for research in dairy technology, were presented to Dr. Lane Ambrose Moore, professor of dairy husbandry at the University of Maryland, and Dr. Bryson Horton Webb, Bureau of Dairying in the U. S. Department of Agriculture at the banquet of the ADSA on June 24. The awards, $1000 in cash and a gold medal, were presented by W. A. Wentworth of New York, representing the Borden Company.

Dr. C. W. Turner of the University Dairy Department won a Borden Award in 1940.

IN THE BENGAL'S LAIR

by BOB DEINDORFER

The Tiger Express is preparing to highball down the Big Six tracks this fall, and even detour into Ohio and Minnesota. The speed and power of the 1943 model is uncertain. Once again the small conjunction "if" looms at us (see Hibbard S. Greene's "The Ifs and Buts of American Conjunctions," Vol. III, pp. 39). For it seems that IF the naval reserves are not called before the first of December, and this is the opinion of many, the Tigers of this season will be strong and fast.

The athletic committee's recent decision to play out the seven contracted games this fall is definite word that football will continue here in Tiger-town—"unless more changes are made." And the schedule includes games with the regular Big Six foes, as well as a little side-dish of Ohio State and Minnesota for flavoring.

"This might be just the year for the 'little three' of the Big Six, Iowa State, Kansas State, and Kansas, to arise in honest revolt. 'Revolt indeed,' scoffs the passer-by. But Iowa State and Kansas, two of the low-ranking clubs over the ya's, possess V-12 units, and many say V-12 units are nice deals to possess indeed. For with the naval students comes a host of athletes.

IF punches us in the nose again. The naval statement on its V-12 charges runs something like this: "If they have the time, aside from their studies and duties, they can participate in collegiate activities." Athletics are included in these "activities."

Some call this the diplomatic way of saying V-12 students cannot play. The army was bold and forceful: "Army men assigned for study in colleges cannot participate in intercollegiate athletic contests."

It may be that the V-12'ers won't have time to play. Right now a few are drilling on college grids over the land. But most of them are carrying close to twenty hours of class work. This demands from two to three hours of study per day. And drills, calisthenics, bed-making, and other sundry duties all take time. The old "early to bed—early to rise" routine is also worked in the programs, cutting available time down even more.

No matter what teams are arraigned against the Tigers this year . . . and no matter what men they'll use . . . they will run into the T—(for tricky) formation practiced by native football teams with complete success the past two seasons. And the boys working this crowd-thrilling offense may be, to some degree, boys who have handled it for one, two or even three years here in Columbia.

Reece Possibly Returning

Such Tiger athletes as Don Reece, unofficially but accurately weighing 240 pounds last year, will return. Reece, if a naval call is not sounded before September, will start the fall-term. So will Ralph Carter, seat-back for three falls here. And Ben Morris, king-pin runner of the annual spring training fracas. Bill Wood, a husky, plunging back from Nevada, is also awaiting a call to naval aviation.

For possible linemen we point (and with pride) to Jack Morton, Bill Ekern, Mel Sheehan, Bill Henderson, Bill Bangert, John Collins, Bill Larkin, Charley Zurhiede, et al. They can all play . . . but they might be gone when whistle-time comes around and about in September.

Aside from the conference contests, Missouri meets Ohio State and Minnesota, both on enemy arenas. This was the year the schedule-makers have been abuilding for . . . the climax of team games . . . and the football budget.

Included on this board, incidentally, is Paul Shepard. Paul is Missouri's Frosty Peters . . . or Pat O'Dea. He's the fellow who dispatched the longest field goal in Tiger history. It was in the 1912 Kansas-Missouri conflict, the game which was then the blue-plate special of the Missouri season. It was a drop-kick traveling forty-three yards, and racked up three points for Missouri—as opposed to twelve for Kansas.

The chief cause for hesitation on the part of the committee on this service game business is that the committee doesn't know who'll be around to play this fall. It would be silly, and premeditated homicide, to send a bunch of seventeen-year-olds against Great Lakes, Iowa Preflight, Ft. Riley, and Rosecrans Field. These squads are chuckful of former college and professional aces . . . and they'll be in perfect trim.

Inasmuch as coach Simpson was not certain (until the last committee meeting) that the gridiron sport would be practiced and played here this fall, he had not cont (no "r" please)—acted students who might play.

But with the board's decision, Simpson began finding students who might be around to sport the Gold and Black spangles on the hundred-yard stretches of the mid-west this fall.

Naval Calls Important

If the naval air corps isn't called up . . . if the other naval reserves aren't called . . . if the army changes plans and allows its members to play. It's a long series of conjunctions, yes, but even if no player-hopes come through Missouri, like the "I go on forever" brook, is going to play ball. The Tiger Special is beginning to gather steam in preparation for its annual fall trip!

It will be a new engineer for the Special this season. Replacing naval lieutenant Don Faurot is Chauncey Simpson, a tried and trusted workman who has assisted Faurot since his college days. Head track coach and backfield coach here at Missouri since 1935, Chauncey was selected as head coach at a recent Board of Curators' parley in St. Louis. Simpson said, when hearing of his appointment, he

Sao Paulo, Brazil
May 12, 1943

Dear Friends and fellow classmates of 1918:

Nothing would be more delightful to me than to be in Columbia for our 25th class reunion in June. However, even if world conditions permitted, it would not be possible, for our third furlough is not due until Jan., 1944. Nevertheless, I shall be there in spirit and gladly send you my warm greetings. May it be a happy and helpful meeting to all present. No doubt I'll be hearing about it through the M.U. ALUMNUS.

Our Alma Mater is dearer to me than ever and I can never repay what I owe her! The years in Columbia were invaluable preparation for the mission field. We have been in Brazil for 24 years now and if we continue to have health accordingly, we hope we may be able to give fifty years for Christ to this great country. Our great uncle, Dr. A. Sydenstricker, gave many more than fifty to China. You may know him as Pearl S. Buck's father.

I wonder what the years have done for each of you and what your contribution to life has been. No doubt many of you have received higher degrees. It was always my secret ambition to some day get a coveted Ph.D. However, on our two furloughs my husband received his Master's and Th.D. respectively, which were more important anyway; and our three boys would have been too much neglected for both parents to study at the same time. Now I have about decided that my Ph.D. may stand for "Phantom Doctorate" or perhaps "Phaeton Driver"! You see in our present pioneer work in Dourados, Mato Grosso near the Paraguay border, where we live very simply, we resort largely to horses and more than ever now "for the duration". Horses and carriages, even carts and walking take the place of erstwhile cars. But I still dream of studying even at 48, now that our boys are grown. Perhaps you'll call me a hopeless optimist.

At present I think it might be wiser to do so at the University of Brazil in Rio, or even in Sao Paulo. Besides, I would like that contact with Brazilian university youth, and it would be a "good neighbor" policy.

There is no time here to tell something of our work. Some of you get my circular letters that tell of it in detail. Should any others be interested, you could send in your names to Box 330, Nashville, Tenn. and ask them to receive them.

Right now my husband and I are "back to civilization" in Sao Paulo for a bit of repair work: he, for an operation, and I, for high blood pressure. Now that we are about over these trifles, we are eager to be back home and expect to be "in harness" again soon.

With every good wish for each of you and may we each one so live as to bring about the world peace we so sorely need—a just, lasting and righteous peace! I still have faith in folks and in the goodness and power of our Heavenly Father, but we must do our part, too.

Sincerely yours,

MYRTLE STOSBERG SYDENSTRICKER

He and six other men who shared the raft with him were blown along by the winds until they reached a sandbank which they later found out to be a British Colony.

Dandel Long reports him in the June 26 issue of the "New Yorker" as saying:

"I relished the idea of my having been out on that raft. I was proud of myself and everybody on the raft for not going over the side and losing his mind. Gosh, the biggest thing I'd done until then was being anchor man in the mile relay at the University of Missouri."

Judge Hyde Addresses One Hundred Graduates

We should be careful to combine knowledge with faith in building the postwar world and in planning international organization, Judge Laurance M. Hyde of the Supreme Court of Missouri declared in addressing graduates and their parents and friends at the University summer session commencement exercises July 24. This is the first time the University has held commencement at the end of a six weeks summer session. Approximately 105 students received their degrees.

Awards granted since the June commencement were announced by President Middlebush. The Rhodes Clay scholarship, established by Green Clay of Mexico in memory of his son, Rhodes Clay, was won by H. C. Griffith.

The Charles Kiepe Scholarship was given to Marion Donald Murray, B.S. in Ag. 1943. Alfred J. Hoffman was awarded the James S. Rollins scholarship in law.

President Frederick A. Middlebush introduced Judge Hyde, who as president of the Alumni Association led the graduates in their pledge of allegiance.

Medical Students in Uniform

Sixty-one medical students of the University who were in the Army Enlisted Reserves were placed on active duty June 15 at Jefferson Barracks.

Temporary headquarters for the medics are at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The men will take their meals at Crowder Hall.

Correspondence Courses Popular Around Globe

Correspondence courses of the University are enabling soldiers in Iceland, Alaska, the Canal Zone, and in other remote parts of the globe to continue an interrupted education or to develop some special interest.

Most popular subject among soldiers taking extension work is agriculture, according to R. L. Davidson, director of the Extension Department.

Civilian enrollment in correspondence courses also has increased, with the greatest interest shown in mathematics and geography.

Men interested in qualifying for officers' training in the army or navy, as well as those wanting defense jobs, have enrolled in mathematics courses. Interest in following military operations probably accounts for the increased popularity of geography.

was glad to have an opportunity to handle it—but felt it would be a tough assignment.

Simpson has served under Faurot since they both came to the University in 1935 fresh from coaching positions at the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College at Kirksville. Punting further than most squad members, and still outrunning nearly all of them, Simpson's backfield mentoring fitted well into the Faurot "scheme of things."

Great Track Coach

Besides his duties as backfield coach, Simpson has acted as head track coach. His tutoring in this sport developed such national running and sprinting and weight figures as John Munki, Sol Schumitzski, Edwin Waldram, Don Walters, Owen Joggerst, Maurice Alexander, Joe Shy, and Elmer Aussieker.

This year's track team, winners of both the indoor and outdoor conference diadems, and heavy point-winners in the Illinois Tech Relays, Chicago Relays, Drake Relays, West Coast Relays, and Los Angeles Relays, is the best track squad Missouri has ever sprung. Competing against national track figures like Hal Davis, Herb Matter, Bob Wright, et al., the Missourians spun a victory web about all challengers.

Simpson himself was a University athlete for two years. During his junior year he injured his leg in a Kansas City track meet and was out for the year. Despite the fact that he participated in only one meet, the conference fathers knocked one year from his varsity eligibility. So he went to Kirksville, during Faurot's first coaching year there, and lettered and starred in football, basketball, and track. He was hired as a member of the coaching staff upon graduation.

Simpson is well acquainted with Faurot's wrinkle of the T-formation and definitely plans to use this offensive pattern. His summer drills may begin around the first of August, conducted on a three-a-week scale. Regular daily fall practices start the first of September.

The conference ruling just installed allows any student, or any person, regularly enrolled in the University and carrying an average load of subjects to participate in varsity athletics. This means freshmen, transfers, and service men—if the service okays it.

Quite a few of Missouri's own service men plan to participate in intercollegiate athletics at other schools.

It was early in July. Two Purdue engineers, both decked out in their yellow corduroys with "Civil Engineer" black-inked over the left leg, were riding a Main Street bus to downtown Lafayette. The keener-eyed member of the slide-rule duet ejected a few words which went something like this:

"Believe we'll have a derved good football team this year with the Missouri and Illinois players here for V-12."

"Football . . . football . . . what's that? Is it anything like basketball," inquired his partner. Needless to say, this fellow was one of those dyed-in-the-wool Indiana basketball fans, a rollicking partisan of the hardwood sport—but nothing else.

But then there really has been little else to follow at the Boilermaker kingdom. Since the departure of Cecil Isbell and his great right arm, Purdue has been in the midst of a football Dark Age. Back in the 1937-38 era Isbell threw them far and wide for Purdue. His aerial slats were magnificent in Big Ten circles, despite the fact that a steel chain stretched from his upper right arm to his shoulder so he could not stretch his arm too far.

And this same Isbell, after a successful fling at money-football for Green Bay, has been signed as a backfield coach at Purdue. He will tutor the Boilermaker ball packers this year, same including some force representing Missouri University.

Purdue Back on Big Scale?

It's been a 24-carat fraud for the past three seasons . . . sure, but if the twelve Missouri Tigers and six Illinois University boys have time to play this fall, a real team will trod the turf of Ross-Ade stadium.

And the Tiger football players even carted their own press agents to Purdue with them—as well as a ticket seller for the games. Champ Clark and Chris Fehr, both former Missourian sports writers, and A. C. Stotler, a member of the athletic business office here for two moons, are all stationed at Purdue for their devil-dog training.

The stadium is partially sunk in the hilly lands around and about West Lafayette. Its press coop is a white wooded building. The seating capacity is less than our stadium population here, only holding about 20,000 rooters when they all play it close to the vest. But the one big similarity is the set of colors flying atop the stadiums. For over Ross-Ade field flies the old gold and black of Purdue U., the same even to a shade of Missouri's own school colors.

Because the United States Marine Corps played gardner last month and transplanted the Tigers and Illini to Purdue the stadium should soon be infested with big tough guys. Right now it looks as though only one native Purdue student will make the first team.

The drills began a week ago under the head coaching of Elmer Burnham. He's a happy man now . . . a smiling mentor who has more material than he's ever had in his life. If the boys just work their classes off all right, he'll be happy all fall—and so will all Purdue boosters.

The Marines have had their definite word that they can play, if the class work is coming all right. Eighteen good college ball players should tramp round Ross-Ade stadium this fall. Leo Milla, Keith Parker, Bernie Pepper, Joe Morrow, Jimmy Darr, Tom Hughes, Nelson Klaus, Ed Gerker, Stan Schultz, Ted Smiley, John Moore, and Mike Popovich are the Tiger footballers training there.

And Alex Agase, Illinois' all-American guard, heads a healthy pack of gridders from the Champaign stronghold. Captain-elect Don Genis, a tobacco-chewing senior tackle, 245-pound Mike Kasap, Frank Baumann, Tony Butkovitch, and Jack Butts are the Illini there. Butkovitch and Agase have been anything but reticent in talks of their abilities. But modest or cocky, the two have played powerful ball for Illinois.

Also Track and Baseballers

Besides contributing so heavily to the Purdue football forces, a large number of track and baseball men are there from Missouri. Earl Conklin, Chris Fehr, Champ Clark, Larry Gammeter, Bob Young, Jim Darr, Jack Exler, Clark White, Keith Parker, and Nelson Klaus all participate in one of the spring sports.

So the gloom upon the Wabash river in Lafayette won't be so heavy this fall. For the past three years the muddy little stream bouncing through the Indiana village has seen sad autumn Saturdays with the student body singing low over the current Purdue game.

But, thanks to the Marine Corps, Illinois, and Missouri, there should be a smile in the face of the moon shining o'er the historic river when this football season buckles into view.

And it's entirely logical that the following scene will take place down here in Columbia on a Sunday morn:

First student: "Let's see how the boys made out yesterday?"

Second student: "Here's the story. We beat Kansas State, 16-0."

First student: "Don't be simple. Let me see the story on the gold-black boys at Purdue. That's where our football team's playing this year."

While the Tiger athletes are being allocated to different camps in the nation, several are acting recipient to all-star and professional football offers.

"Sorta like to see old Steub again," remarked Wroscow Jefferson Davis last month. And he did want to see Bob Steuber, a boy he roomed with and played football with for three years at Missouri. Davis was then lolling in his home town of Coffeyville, Kan., not then uniformed in the R. O. T. C. motif.

A fairy godmother must have heard this request between the two best friends. It was a wire dispatched from the Chicago Tribune's All-Star committee which assured Davis of one more visit before both boys are split by these exigencies of war.

Steuber and Davis Picked

For Rapid Robert Steuber and lanky Davis were the Two Tiger delegates to the August all-star football congress, annual affair conducted in Chicago by the Tribune and Arch Ward. Ward is a better-than-fair promoter and originated the all-star-professional clashes.

Mexico Firm Adds Gold Star To Maritime "M" Pennant

The A. P. Green Fire and Brick Company of Mexico, Mo., has been selected to receive a gold star to be added to its Maritime commission "M" pennant. The award is in recognition of the continued high production achievement which earned the Green company and its employees the first Maritime "M" pennant and Victory Fleet flag in the state of Missouri and the entire fire clay industry last November.

Mr. A. P. Green, company president, is an honorary member of the Alumni Association. J. Harrison Brown, general manager, received his B.J. in 1914. His son, Jim, is in the Navy. Capt. Roland L. Brandy, former accountant for the Mexico concern, is now overseas with the U. S. Army.

Lt. Ernie Hueter Receives Medal for Rescue Work

First Lieutenant Ernest B. Hueter, B.J. '42, attached to the Engineer Amphibian Regiment has been awarded the Soldier's Medal for courageous act in directing the rescue of 25 men and preventing loss of life and property when a landing boat caught fire.

Lt. Hueter led the rescue work after he had been in an open boat for 18 hours and had had no sleep for 30 hours.

Before his commission in 1941, Lt. Hueter was a reporter on the Kansas City Star. At the University of Missouri, he was active on campus and known particularly for editing the SHOWME.

Only once before have the two teammates and friends been apart on a football installment. That would be this past New Year's day. Steuber worked for the Western all-stars in the annual Shrine game at San Francisco. He was away from Davis . . . yes, but Don Reece and Mike Fitzgerald were members of the star-spangled western cast. And Don Faurot was co-coach.

On the other hand, Davis was well away from Steub on Jan. 1, 1943. Jefferson served as a member of the Northern all-stars in the North-South fracas, staged annually in Montgomery, Ala. It is remembered that the spirit of the South became embittered when announcements seeped down that a fellow named Jeff Davis would play for the North.

And the game to be staged right in the stamping grounds of the old politico, Jeff Davis. Southern honor had been spited . . . but Northern diplomacy won out when Lynn Waldorf, head coach of the blustering upper-state team, stated he picked Davis first—and Missouri is a borderline state anyway, so there!

Both boys did well in the holiday affairs. Steuber hooked up with a powerful bunch of ball packers and showed them all how to split the line . . . and run the ends. Davis played more than half the game at center for the North—and his ball-handling and line-backing halted many a Southern offensive.

Davis and Steuber will always be remembered in Tiger sports confabs. They both have earned three letters in football. Steuber was selected in all-American back last fall. And Davis merited all-conference selections.

Davis Hidden Two Years

Davis' light was hidden under the proverbial bushel basket as another Bengal center, Darold Jenkins, was quite some linesman—and in spades.

Jenkins started most of the 1940 games. As a result of his brilliant play that year, he was voted captain of the '41 squad. But Jefferson Davis started three ball games in 1941. Jenkins had a pair of weak knees, and they were injured the first part of the year.

All observers remarked that Davis could make any ball team in the land in 1941—excepting Missouri, where Jenkins held sway. For Darold Jenkins was a hard man to beat out, his brilliant play earning him first team all-national selections on sixteen different elevens.

Big, handsome Jeff was injured himself last year. He didn't see any action in three games. And this was the main reason he did not receive the All-American posts accorded him in the pre-season football pulps.

Steuber did come through. His play over the season caused four all-American teams to give him their first team berth . . . and a raft of others to spot him second team. Bob's All-American competition came from a flat-footed half from Georgia . . . think his name was Sinkwich, or some such name. He'll play for the Chicago Bears this fall.

Bob Waldorf, Kenny Haas, Paul Christman, Harry Ice, Darold Jenkins, and Bob Jeffries. This is a list of Missourians previously invited to join the Chicago all-star squad. Miss Virginia Baker, a student of the Chicago all-star games, once cooed, "Why, it is beyond the power of my comprehension. Missouri boys, Missouri boys, Missouri boys. They all participate on the all-star teams. The all-star committee likes to have them in their salubrious about August every year."

Then she put down Funk & Wagnalls or Webster, the light novelist with which she was negotiating for that record run of six-bit words.

Of the six Missouri boys, Waldorf was the top Tiger in the matter of competitive play during the game.

Christman Played Little

Pitching Paul Christman only saw twenty seconds' worth of service. Because of the odd training technique employed by the blond passing star, Coach Carl Snavely thought him a loafer. This was an incorrect supposition. The slow easy way of playing was just Christman . . . it was the same modus operandi with which Christman blossomed into All-American proportions.

Last year found Bob Jeffries starting for the collegiate aces. He was the first Missourian to start a Chicago all-star game. But he was removed early in the first quarter and didn't see much service.

Ice was passed by in 1942. It might have been because of his size. It doesn't seem impossible that the coaching staff, scanning the squad in drills, passed little Harry by. They could well have mistaken the midget back-field operative for a water boy . . . or a manager. But the will-o'-the-wisp speedster would have performed well if given a chance.

For this same Harry Ice directed Missouri straight into a conference flag and then to the Sugar Bowl in 1941. Once in the Bowl, it was all Ice again, the fleet little Bengal back scampering 125 yards up the wet New Orleans turf for the standout performance of the day.

When Davis learned of his appointment to the classic, he publicly stated, "Why, with ol' Steub running the ball it's seem just like blocking for him back in Memorial Stadium." And we can all shed a tear that Jeff won't be opening enemy holes for Bob here this season. However, a call to a uniform and active duty broke up the planned Damon and Pythias meeting. Jeff received his call and will not attend the affair. As if looking over Roaring Robert Steuber, another Missouri player was picked to join the squad by Chicago's Tribune.

Lister Joins All-Stars

Jack Lister, red-headed end for the past three seasons, won the nod as Steub's companion when Jeff had to quit and give up his invite. Jack, a big, rough end who was out half of last season with a broken arm, should add to the Tiger honor this season.

So it's up to Steuber and Lister now. Given a chance, both will display the spirt and drive and fight which won for them—and, consequently, Missouri—Big Six buntings and victories over the football grids of the nation.

We'll all watch Steuber and Lister, or read of their doings, in the August 25 game. And all Missouri eyes will then turn back to Columbia where a band of Missouri varsity players open up for the fall term—World War style, Columbia, Mo., nineteen-hundred-and-forty-three Anno Domini.

Croy Writes "Country Cured"

"Country Cured," a new autobiography written by Homer Croy of Maryville, will be off the press soon. Mr. Croy, who was a former student in the School of Journalism at the University in 1903-1905, says he started out determined to write an "entirely honest and completely truthful autobiography," but he decided nobody ever really did that!

Nevertheless, Croy tells us that the episodes in the book that take place at Missouri U. "are alone worth the price of the book." His book begins a long time ago on the Maryville farm and goes right straight through to last Saturday night!

Mr. Croy is the author of ten best sellers, including "Mr. Meek Marches On," "West of the Water Tower," and "They Had to See Paris." He is just "puttin' up" in New York because he has to keep the ice box full, but Mr. Croy never actually left Maryville. He still gives that as his home address.

Croy, "the grown-up country boy," is having a mural painted on the inside wall of his barn on the Maryville farm. The mural depicts the settling of the Croy family in Missouri.

But Coca-Cola got there first. Yes siree, Coca-Cola has been a globe-trotter since way back when. It has been sold in more than 100 foreign lands.

Supposing

ALL YOUR FRIENDS CALLED ON YOU AT THE SAME TIME!

HAVING TOO MANY GUESTS at one time raises some vexing problems. What if all your friends called on you at the same time? There'd be chairs and beds for some of them all right but the rest wouldn't find things very comfortable—and neither would you. Meal times, too—what with rationing—would bring another big headache. All in all, it would be an embarrassing situation for you.

Well, something like that is happening to us on the Missouri Pacific Lines. For years we have been inviting people to come ride with us, telling them with pride about our fast, on-time service and about the comforts and conveniences of train travel. Then, all of a sudden, the Japs made their sneak attack on Pearl Harbor—and, bingo, we were in the war.

Since then our trains have been getting more and more crowded — mostly by soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen, traveling on government orders or going to and from their homes on furloughs. On top of that the war caused a lot of extra travel by business people, war plant workers, families of service men and others. And now the rubber shortage and gasoline rationing are causing those people who used to do their traveling over the highways to climb aboard trains.

So today, there aren't always enough berths or seats to go around and, to be honest about it, traveling has lost some of its old-time charm.

Most people are mighty nice about it though. They know that we can't get any more passenger cars because the government has ruled that the steel and other things needed to build them with ought to go into war needs.

Most people understand, too, that because our railroad is hauling so many special troop trains and extra war freights, delays are sometimes inevitable.

Most of our patrons know that our food supplies are rationed, that our diners are crowded and that our meal car service is not at all like it used to be or what we want it to be.

And a great many people, realizing the problems we're confronted with, have decided that unless they have urgent business to attend to, or some emergency trip to make, this is a good time not to travel at all.

We railroaders are eager for everyone to know that we're doing everything we can to maintain prewar standards and we're mighty grateful for the patient, understanding attitude of most of today's travelers, and for their helpful cooperation.

★ Meanwhile, we're doing everything we can to speed Victory and we're looking forward to the time when things will get back to normal, when we can always be sure of giving everybody the kind of service that made our railroad famed as "A Service Institution." ☆
