is the very lifeblood of war production—an everyday necessity in our home, business or factory.

There is no shortage of electric power in the areas we serve—but there is a shortage of manpower, fuels and transportation.

To generate electric power manpower in mine and field is required. So is transportation, now heavily burdened from coast to coast.

So, to help our war effort, we say: "Conserve electricity. Don't waste it just because it isn't rationed."

Some Good in Everything

There is always something to be thankful for . . . the plight of the laundries has stopped them from riveting those ruinous metal identification tags on hankies and sox.

At Random

"Rubbing shoulders"—with the internationally famous Bob Wheeler, who is living in Kansas City . . . and to breakfast at Fred Hatton's Muehlbach with the Kansas City Star's "Duke" Shoop of Washington, D. C. . . . We certainly appreciate the autographed copy of John Temple Graves' book, "The Fighting South." Mr. Graves deserves a lot of credit for being a mighty fine columnist.

With Cres Hewitt, newspaper publisher, Shelbyville, chairman of Shelby County War Chest Committee, at his chili supper, celebrating their successful War Chest campaign. Senator Frank Briggs, Macon newspaper publisher, was there. Eddie Potter of the Macon County War Chest . . . and Morris Osborne of Shelby County, speaker of the House of Representatives, were there.

Eight wash tubs full of home-made chili for three hundred persons, and a wagon load of pumpkin pie! And every one present a friend of the University.

With Barney Williams of Mexico at their Armistice Day American Legion dinner and with Wallace Fry and his wife, who were there . . . and A. P. Greene, chairman of the University Board of Visitors . . . Art Bond . . . Frank Hollingsworth . . . and every one present there a friend of the University . . . And with Herb Plunkett, chairman of the Audraire County War Finance Committee, Lee Hawthorne, school superintendent, Clyde Blattner, chairman of the War Chest, and every one there friends of the University . . . J. Harrison Brown and all of the foremen of the A. P.

Greene Fire and Brick Company at their annual dinner—a grand lot of grand men, staunch University friends.

No End of Friends

We have attended hundreds of meetings throughout the State of Missouri on the war bond drives and the War Chest campaign. We have visited every county, and in most of them several times during recent months, and it certainly is a pleasure and a thrill to work with and for the liberal, loyal, courageous and patriotic Missouri citizenry, to rub shoulders with old friends and to make hundreds of new ones. There has never been a time in the history of the University when the University has had as many substantial, forward-looking friends who are ready and willing to do practical things at any time for the welfare and progress of the University.

"Gun-Behind-the-Door" Policy

Talk about disarming as soon as the war is over may undermine our whole structure of post-war peace. Can we afford to reduce our army to an insignificant number and rely on other countries to do the same thing? We fought Wilson's entreaties twenty five years ago, and a disaster resulted.

With our bomber-shrunk world, we can now fly from San Francisco to the heart of India in the same time it took George Washington to go from Mt. Vernon to New York. The whole world has become readily accessible through air transportation.

We cannot endanger our own security by disarming as soon as the war is over. We must maintain enough of a military force to support our convictions that peace must be maintained through an orderly, just, lawful manner, in much the same way that peace is maintained by a police force in any American community.

Servicemen Concordant

One of our boys in the service has written and commented most favorably on our quotes of another boy in the service that we must police the world. He made the statement that in his home town engraved on the jail was the inscription, "Obedience to law is the foundation of society." And if it applies in his home town it can apply to the world. So there is nothing theoretical about another world war.

Law and Order Must Prevail

"Where the law ends, tyranny begins." Without law and order, we cannot hope to prevent another international crisis.

It has been asserted that our boys are not going to be willing to participate in a world-wide police policy after this war, that they are going to want to return to civilian life and maintain the pre-war status quo.

We did just this following World War I. We withdrew from Europe with the assumptions that other nations would be able to keep peace without our help, and that the former belligerents would become "good neighbors." On both counts we learned, and our experience shows we were mistaken.

American boys and girls are willing to do whatever is necessary to prevent recurrence of another war which might end our democratic existence. We feel that after the lesson we learned from World War I, there is necessarily going to be that feeling of cooperation on the parts of all Americans to maintain the peace through international policing.

Thirteen Graduates of Former Years Now See Action as Generals on Battle Fronts

EDITOR'S NOTE: We have endeavored to include all University of Missouri alumni who have achieved the rank of brigadier general or above and as far as our records are concerned, we have included them all. Any omissions are purely unintentional. Additional news of these or any other men whom we may have omitted will be appreciated.

University of Missouri military men are among the highest ranking leaders of the war, as records of two Major Generals and eleven Brigadier Generals will prove.

Maj. Gen. Lloyd E. Jones and Maj. Gen. John F. Williams are both former Columbians who attended the University.

Columbia Honors a General

Maj. Gen. Lloyd Jones, student in the University from 1907 to 1911, was guest of honor at a Columbia Chamber of Commerce banquet on October 21.

"The American soldier is the best, most intelligent, most courageous soldier of any in the world, and he is a challenge to the leadership of his officers," General Jones said.

"I feel I owe the soldier a very great debt, for if it hadn't been for his strong legs and stout heart I would not be here tonight, and whatever honor has been mine is his," he continued.

General Jones, who has recently returned from a year's occupation of his "island kingdom" of Amchitka in the Rat Island chain just sixty miles from Kiska, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his participation in the Aleutian campaign.

General Jones entered the army in 1911 as a second lieutenant. From 1938 to 1940 he was head of the R. O. T. C. at the University. He is the son of the late Dr. J. C. Jones, former president of the University.

Mrs. Jones is living in Columbia, South Carolina, and their sons, Lt. Lloyd E. Jones, Jr., and Pvt. John C. Jones, are both stationed with the Army in California. Lt. Jones received his B.A. in June of 1942, and Pvt. Jones left at the beginning of 1943.

The banquet at the Tiger Hotel featured General Jones as main speaker. Dr. J. C. Miller, president of Christian College, addressed the gathering.

Robert E. Lee (Bob) Hill, Director of Alumni Activities for the University, and president of the Missouri War Chest, also spoke to the group.

Williams Heads National Guard

Maj. Gen. John F. Williams, former student from 1908 to 1911, is Chief of the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D. C. General Williams was appointed director of publications at the University in 1930 and was a former Joplin newspaper man.

Tribute to General Powell

Brig. Gen. William D. Powell, B.S. in Ag. '16, died of a cerebral hemorrhage on October 6, according to an announcement from the War Department.

General Powell starred in track events while attending the University and won his "M" in competition against Iowa State College in 1913. He also received the Missouri Valley Championship in pole vaulting that year and participated in broad jumping.

General Powell was in the China-Burma-India theater of operations.

Barkalow in Philippines

Brig. Gen. Russell G. Barkalow, who was formerly stationed at Camp Stotsenburg, Pampagna, Philippine Islands, attended the University in 1919 and 1920.

Bell in Army War College

Brig. Gen. Marcus B. Bell, B.S. in Ag. '16, is in the Army War College in Washington, D. C. Immediately following his graduation, he served on the Mexican border as a sergeant in Company F, Fourth Missouri Infantry—the Columbia company—and was commissioned in the regular army in August, 1917.

His wife, the former Irma Dumas, was a graduate in 1918, and their two daughters, Marjorie Elizabeth and Martha Jane, both attended the University.

Brittingham Overseas

Brig. Gen. James Francis Brittingham, B.S. in C.E. '15, served with the 12th Field Artillery in the Second Division during World War I. He is a nephew of R. H. Jesse, former president of the University. After leaving his post at Colorado Springs, Colo., General Brittingham reported for overseas duty.

Dunckel on Tiger Squad

Another Tiger athlete has been promoted to the rank of brigadier general. William Caldwell Dunckel, B.S. in Ag. '15, was fullback on the Tiger team in 1912, '13, and '14. In 1923 Dunckel was a captain in the Field Artillery and served on the military faculty at the University of Missouri.

Ramey with Cavalry

Brig. Gen. Rufus Stanley Ramey, Commandant of the Cavalry School of Fort Riley, Kansas, received his B.A. in 1915 from the University. He was a student in the School of Law and a member of Phi Delta Phi, national professional legal fraternity.

In World War I General Ramey served with the 78th Field Artillery in France, and with the 15th Cavalry. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Army War College in Washington, D. C., a French Military academy, and the Chemical Warfare School in this country.

His wife is the former Frances Miriam Meriwether, B.A. '17.

Hedrick is Air Judge Advocate

A recent War Department announcement brings news of the appointment of Brig. Gen. Lawrence H. Hedrick as Air Judge Advocate, Army Air Forces. Hedrick received his LL.B. from the University in 1905 and has served as Adjutant General in Great Britain.

General Hedrick graduated cum laude from the University and was a member of Phi Delta Phi, national professional legal fraternity. He was state's attorney in Fall River County, South Dakota, for 44 years. His daughter, Lois Hedrick, received her B.J. in 1941 from the University.

In 1904 Hedrick played quarterback on the Tiger football team. In 1922 he was distinguished graduate of the Army School of Line and has been an army officer for twenty eight years. During World War I he was a major in the Infantry and then in the Field Artillery.

Lee With Army Intelligence

Brig. Gen. Raymond Eliot Lee, B.S. in C.E. '09, was last year named assistant chief of staff in command of the Army Intelligence unit. He was formerly head of the European Section of the Army Intelligence in Washington, D. C.

General Lee's military career began in 1909, when he took the examination for commission as first lieutenant at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. In World War I, General Lee went to France as a major, served in the famous second division of the A. E. F., and returned to Washington, D. C., to serve in the office of the chief artillery. For his campaigns he received the Distinguished Service Medal. In 1923 he graduated from the Command and General Staff School; in 1927 attended the Army War College, and later became a member of the War Department General Staff. He served four years as military attache in London.

During his last year in the University of Missouri, he served as president of the student body.

MacMorland in Ordnance Department

Brig. Gen. Edward Elliott MacMorland, B.A. '14, M.A. '15, is Deputy Chief of Field Service for the Ordnance Department. He has had duty in China, Africa and England. At present he is stationed in Washington, D. C., with offices in the Pentagon Building.

General MacMorland's wife is the former Lucy Burgess Moore, B.A. and B.S. in Ed. '14.

MAJ. GEN. J. F. WILLIAMS

Robinett Wounded in Africa

Brig. Gen. Paul M. Robinett is serving in the General Branch of the U. S. Cavalry in Washington, D. C. He received his B.S. in Ag. in 1917.

General Robinett was just at the close of the African campaign when he received a leg wound, shell fragments cutting the sciatic nerve. He found his way back from Mateur along the lines of evacuation to a general hospital in Oran and was flown from there to Washington.

"At Walter Reed," writes General Robinett, "I fell into the hands of one of the best surgeons in America, Colonel Spurling." Col. R. Glen Spurling, Army Medical Corps, is a Centralia man who took pre-med work at the University and received his B.A. in '20 and M.A. in '23.

Before General Robinett left Africa, the French awarded him a second Croix de Guerre with Palm and the Legion of Honor.

Rucker With Eighth Service Command

Thirty-four years in the Army have brought to Casper B. Rucker, student in the University from 1905 to 1909, the silver star of a brigadier general.

In 1909 General Rucker enlisted as a private and has advanced through the ranks to become a general officer. General Rucker is Chief of Staff to the commanding general of the Eighth Service Command, a post he has held since 1940.

Early in 1910 he went to the Philippines on the first of three tours of duty there. He was made first lieutenant in 1916 and World War I brought him a promotion to captain. He became a major in 1920, lieutenant colonel in 1935, and colonel in 1940.

General Rucker is a graduate of the Army War College, Infantry School, and the Command and General Staff School in 1926.

At present he is with the Headquarters Eighth Service Command in Dallas, Texas.

Tindall is Attache in Turkey

Brig. Gen. Richard Gentry Tindall, who received his B.A. and B.J. degrees in 1911, is American military attache in Ankara, Turkey.

Until he entered the army in 1916, General Tindall was employed by the old St. Louis Republic in positions of night editor and Sunday editor.

During World War I he was a captain in the Army. He had been stationed at Camp Hood, Texas, just prior to his appointment in Turkey. He is the son of Cordell Tindall, former professor of mathematics at the University of Missouri.

University of Missouri Men Will Return to Columbia for Training

Sixty-four junior class R.O.T.C. students, called to active duty in June, will return to the University within the next two months to train in the Army Specialized Training Unit while awaiting an opening in Officers' Candidate School. It is not yet known the precise course of study they will follow.

Expected here in December, the students will come from a star unit at Grinnell College, Iowa, where they will go in late November from their present post at Camp Callan, Calif. Plans for approximately sixty other members of the same group of juniors are still vague, although several more have gotten their orders to report to a star unit.

The students who are scheduled to return are: Joe Baker, Jr.; Thomas A. Easley, Leon F. Bentley, Henry J. Berbert, Stanley B. Botner, Edwin M. Bramson, J. Minton Brown, Ross E. Burns, Jr., Daniel W. Carlisle, Herbert C. Casteel, Jr., Sam B. Cook, Benjamin F. Bobyns, Jr., Gene M. Drane.

Charles G. Ellington, Jr., John M. Engelage, Leland B. Fair, William L. Fitzgerald, Ross W. Gerding, Arthur Goldford, Clarence Grogan, Francis J. Hassler, Elmer Heath, Jr., Frank J. Hoelscher, Ralph C. Cook, Jr., Edward A. Huscher, Sterling Kahn.

James R. Kaye, James P. Kiley, Carl Klamm, Anson H. Klauber, Jr., Richard Landtiser, Robert W. Letzig, Garland A. Judy, Guy A. Magruder, Stanley E. Mallin, Nevin L. McCartney, John H. Moore, Thomas W. Moore, Fred L. Nelson, Carlyle K. Odor, William J. O'Herin, Donald J. Peterson, William H. Pfander, Harry J. Portilla, and Merlin H. Prost.

Kenneth H. Reid, Raymond C. Rendlen, Jr., Anthony J. Rizzo, Jr., Edward S. Rodekohr, Murray B. Root, Wayne Rowland, William O. Russell, Eldon E. Slaughter, Clayton E. Smith, Robert C. Smith, Leslie J. Swope, Donald B. Thiel, Seymour Topping, Donald M. Vlazny, Robert M. Witzer, James L. Whitfield, Thomas E. Whitson, Virgil H. Williams, and Polard C. Wreath, Jr.

DEAN WALTER WILLIAMS

Liberty Ship Named for Former Dean of J School

Walter Williams, late dean of the University of Missouri School of Journalism and organizer of the World Press Congress, will have a Liberty Ship named in his honor, the United States Maritime Commission recently announced.

The vessel is one of eleven now under construction at Richmond, Calif.

Walter Williams was founder of the School of Journalism, its dean from 1908 to 1931, and president of the University from 1931 to 1934. He was president of the World Press Congress from 1915 to 1926. He died July 29, 1935.

Board of Curators Elect Tom K. Smith President

Tom K. Smith of St. Louis, president of the Boatmen's National Bank, was elected president of the University Board of Curators at the reorganization meeting in October. David Hopkins of St. Joseph was named vice-president.

Members who remained on the executive board which handles the monthly business of the University at Columbia were James A. Potter of Jefferson City; J. H. Wolpers of Poplar Bluff, and Roscoe Anderson of St. Louis.

Those elected to the executive committee which handles the Rolla School of Mines and Metallurgy are Harold J. Moore of Brookfield; Cowgill Blair of Joplin; and Frank Mann of Springfield.

Journalism Week Appears In Book Form This Year Because of War Conditions

Editor of "Journalism in Wartime," the University of Missouri's Thirty-Fourth Annual Journalism Week in Print, is Dean Frank Luther Mott of the School of Journalism.

The symposium of articles by thirty leaders in various journalistic fields was published under the auspices of the American Council on Public Affairs of Washington. The idea of the book was conceived in an effort to compensate for the cancellation of the 1943 Journalism Week because of transportation difficulties.

Dean Mott said in the introduction that in spite of the fact that Journalism Week had to be cancelled, "the faculty was impressed with the need, in these difficult and confusing weeks, for the discussion of journalistic problems by men of authority in the profession. It was therefore determined to invite such men to contribute to a symposium which should be published in book form."

As a nucleus for the book Dean Mott asked the heads of three great newsgathering services, Associated Press, United Press, and International News Service, to contribute articles. All three complied. United Press, instead of sending one article by its key man, submitted four articles by four key men. Each one of these proved to be a graduate of the School of Journalism here.

They are Lyle C. Wilson, Washington manager of the U.P., who graduated in 1922; Joe Alex Morris, U.P. foreign editor, a graduate of 1926; John R. Morris, Far Eastern manager, who received his degree in 1922; and W. W. Copeland, South American news manager, who graduated in 1930.

Harry Ferguson, assistant general news manager of the United Press, wrote to Dean Mott concerning U.P.'s contribution as follows: "I think it is a genuine tribute to the University of Missouri—and to Walter Williams and Frank L. Martin, under whom these men received their training—that the United Press should entrust four key news positions to graduates of the School of Journalism." Ferguson himself is a School of Journalism graduate, having received his degree in 1925.

Other School of Journalism graduates who are represented in the book are Ralph H. Turner, business manager of NEA service, B.J. '16; Douglas B. Cornell, former president of the White House Correspondents' Association in 1942-43 and now with AP's Washington Bureau, B.J. '28; Earle Pearson, general manager of the Advertising Federation of America and receiver of the Journalism School's honor medal in 1936, '11; and John B. Powell, former managing editor of the China Weekly Review, B.J. '10.

The price of the book is $3.00, Dean Mott announces, and copies are on sale now.

St. Louis Firm Elects Five University of Missouri Alums

Incorporation of the Doane Agricultural Service of St. Louis, largest farm management and rural appraisal organization in the United States, has been announced in St. Louis and four of the five persons who were elected as officers are graduates of the University of Missouri.

D. Howard Doane, founder of the business, is a member of the Board of Visitors of the University and was graduated in 1919. Two of the officers have served on the University staff. Doane was elected chairman of the board.

True D. Morse, formerly agricultural economist at the University and graduate in B.S. in Ag. in '24, was elected president. Rex R. Bailey, B.S. in Ag. '22, was elected vice-president and is in charge of the company's Quincy, Illinois, office. A. Davis Elkins, B.A. '18, was elected secretary.

Allen L. Oliver Appointed Board of Visitors Member

Allen L. Oliver of Cape Girardeau was appointed a member of the Board of Visitors of the University in November. Oliver succeeds Frank C. Mann of Springfield, who resigned when he was recently appointed to the Board of Curators of the University.

Oliver served as president of the General Alumni Association from 1940 to 1942. He was also vice-president of the Missouri State Bar Association from 1938 to 1942 and president of the Law Foundation of the University from 1941 to 1942.

He received his B.A. in 1908 and his LL.B. in 1909 from the University.

The Board of Visitors held its annual meeting in Columbia November 8. The Board visited the School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla on November 9.

Members of the Board are A. P. Green, Mexico; Howard Doane, St. Louis; Frank Ridgeway, Shelbina; Allen Oliver, Cape Girardeau; and W. A. Cochel, Kansas City.

Activities of Defoe Hall Men Carry Them All Around World

"Alumni" of Defoe Hall, the University's pre-war dormitory for men, have been scattered literally to the four corners in the brief interim since the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor. A great majority of the former students have entered the armed forces, others are doing war work, and still others are finishing their college courses.

At least two Defoe men have given their lives in the nation's war, several more are in battle areas, and a great many are still in training camps of the various branches of the armed services.

Here follows a far-from-complete listing of the former residents of the dormitory and information about them insofar as it was obtainable at the present. (Additional news of these and other Defoe men will be printed readily if sent to the Alumnus Office).

President Middlebush Stresses Greater Effort in War Time

Though the University of Missouri is cooperating to the fullest possible extent in the war effort, it has not overlooked the problems of civilian students who will need training for their parts in the postwar world, President Frederick A. Middlebush stated as he welcomed the new students of the fall quarter.

Speaking at a convocation in the University auditorium, President Middlebush continued, "We have not forgotten for one moment the needs of the civilian student, man or woman. We hope that every entering freshman will complete his college course and receive his degree if possible."

Training Forces Here

In listing the contributions of the University to the war effort, President Middlebush mentioned the training of more than five thousand men in the Naval Diesel Training School which closed on September 10, the Army Air Force, Army Specialist Training Program students, and the medical students now on campus. "Many of these men," President Middlebush added, "even in the brief period they were able to spend here, become so interested in the University and the opportunities they find here that they intend to return and work for degrees after the war."

Secret Research

Secret research programs in science being carried on under the supervision of the Army and the many faculty members now in the service or engaged in essential civilian war work, are also ways in which the University helps in the war effort.

One of the greatest satisfactions of university and college administrators all over the nation, President Middlebush continued, is the fine spirit of cooperation which has developed between civilian students on college campuses and students in uniform. The real welcome of the University and the people of Columbia to students in the armed services has helped to develop such a spirit at the University of Missouri.

Students' Responsibility Great

Dr. Middlebush pointed out in conclusion that all students attending University classes this year must feel their responsibilities to the nation and their opportunities for training that will help them in building a better world after the war.

"You should be satisfied with nothing less than the results which can come only from putting forth your best efforts. This is your duty as a free American citizen. We stand ready to help you in every way we can. You alone can determine how effectively you make use of the opportunities that are yours."

Board of Curators Investigate Change in School of Medicine

A fact-finding survey of broad scope to determine a definite policy for the University in regard to the extent of the school's participation in medical education was approved by the Board of Curators at a recent meeting, President Frederick A. Middlebush announced.

In discussing the problem of the curriculum in the School of Medicine here the Board noted the necessity of formulating such a policy and studying the conditions under which the program should be carried on if it is to be expanded.

Before determining this policy, in view of the many complex problems involved and the conflicting solution proposed, the president said that a survey, including all possible solutions of the Medical School program, should be made. This survey, it was pointed out, should cover among other points, the following:

The best plan of organization for the most effective program of medical training.

The future of the two-year-medical school.

The possibility of continuing the two-year course in formal combination with certain existing four-year schools.

The necessity of having the entire four-year program at the same site, because of recent changes in the methods of instruction of medical students.

The need for doctors in the rural areas of Missouri.

The financial commitments involved in the maintenance of a standard four-year medical curriculum.

After considerable discussion of the whole problem, with particular emphasis upon the view that the graduation of more doctors would in itself not supply additional practitioners to the rural areas of Missouri, the plan of procedure outlined by the president was approved. This was done with the understanding that the study place special emphasis on the means, if any, through which graduates of the Medical School may be induced to practice in the rural areas of the state. The realization of a need for more doctors in such areas was one factor which prompted the Board to discuss fully this entire problem now.

Dr. Middlebush emphasized that the Board is entering on this factual survey with no pre-conceived ideas of findings that may finally be reached. "We first want to have all the facts before we attempt to draw any sort of conclusions," he said.

To indicate the comprehensive nature of the survey, the president pointed out that the effects of the government's post war programs of public health and education and their relation to the University will be considered.

A beginning has already been made on the survey, Dr. Middlebush said. In October when University officials were in Chicago presenting plans for a proposed Institute of Technology, they spent considerable time inspecting the medical center of the University of Illinois.

Officials plan to visit medical training facilities at various universities throughout the country. Foundations which have made surveys covering phases of the problem of medical education and curricula will also be considered as to their findings.

The problem of how extensive the curriculum should be in the School of Medicine here is not a new one. It goes back to 1910, when the school was organized on its present two-year basis. In 1930 the Board authorized a four-year course in medicine but after one year of operation the plan was forced to be dropped. Clinical facilities of Columbia and nearby towns were used.

Former Football Captain, Physician Dies in Kansas City

Dr. E. Lee Miller, nationally known surgeon and one of the founders of St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City, died on October 6.

Dr. Miller captained the University's football team in 1907 and 1908, the only man to captain the Tiger team for four years. He played right tackle for three years. He received a B.A. from the University in 1908 and attended Harvard University.

At Missouri he was president of the Y.M.C.A., and in 1933 was elected an honorary member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity. Dr. Miller was class orator for the class of 1908.

In 1934 Dr. Miller served as president of the Missouri State Medical Association.

Mrs. Miller, the former Faith Pearse, graduated with a B.S. in Ed. from the University in 1909. Their three sons were likewise graduates of the University: William Stonwall Miller, B.A. '38; Dr. Richard C. Miller, B.A. '37; and John Pearse Miller, B.A. in B.A. '37. William and John, like their father, played on the University football squad.

C. E. McBride, Kansas City Star sports writer, paid tribute to Dr. Miller in his column with "Surgery lost a master and football a friend in the passing of Dr. Lee Miller."

First Managing Editor of "The Missouri Alumnus" Dies in Long Beach Office

Harry E. Ridings, managing editor of the first Missouri Alumnus in 1912-13, died at his office in Long Beach, California, in October.

Ridings was graduated from the School of Journalism in 1912 and later worked on the St. Louis Star-Times, the Kansas City Star, and the Japan Advertiser in Tokyo. He was a personal friend of J. B. Powell, well-known Far East newspaper correspondent.

J. Willard Ridings, his brother, was graduated from the School of Journalism in 1926 and worked as an instructor in the school for a year. He is now head of the journalism department of Texas Christian University in Ft. Worth, Tex.

Riding's wife, Mrs. Ora Lee Ridings, also attended the University. His son, Harry E. Ridings, Jr., is in the Army Air Force in North Dakota.

Pike's Peak to FUJIYAMA

IT takes a block-buster only a few seconds to fall from a high-flying U. S. bomber to its bull's-eye on Berlin or Naples or Tokio. But it took almost 25 years to get the plane up there to drop the bomb. For where some of our planes are flying today—on top of practically anything that flies—the air is so thin that a plane engine would lose about four-fifths of its rated sea-level horsepower if it weren't equipped with a turbosupercharger.

It was back in the days of World War I that the Army Air Corps first asked General Electric engineers to tackle the problem of feeding plane engines air under pressure to cure the loss of power at high altitudes. The result was the turbosupercharger—a device that scoops in 60-below-zero air and crams it down the engine's windpipe to provide the same amount of oxygen it would normally get at sea level. And since the turbosupercharger takes its power from the engine's own red-hot exhaust gases, it almost makes the plane lift itself by its own bootstraps.

The first success came in 1918, on Pike's Peak, where a supercharged Liberty engine, rated at 350 horsepower, actually delivered 356 horsepower at 14,000 feet. That was just the beginning. For 20-odd years G-E engineers worked to improve the device. When the present war broke out, it was ready—a potent, all-American weapon which the Axis, for all its years of war preparation, could not match. Today all of America's big bombers are equipped with turbosuperchargers. And all of these turbosuperchargers are built either by General Electric or in the plants of two other manufacturers from G-E designs.

The turbosupercharger is just one of many engineering near-miracles developed in industrial laboratories in time to put on a uniform and begin fighting for America. We have them because of the happy combination of ingenuity and perseverance which has always characterized American industry. It is a combination that will have a lot to do with winning the war, and with building the better world hereafter. For then the men who are

IN THE BENGAL'S LAIR

As a conference opener, the Missouri Tigers dumped the K-State Wildcats from Manhattan 47-14 to chalk up the first Tiger victory of the season. A crowd of 4500 cheered the Bengals on to victory in the Memorial Stadium at Columbia. Except for a few minutes in the first quarter and a brief time in the third, the Tigers used second and third string men throughout the game.

Dellastatious, 161-pound back from Washington, D. C., scored twice in the first half on 25 and 14 yard runs. Jack Morton converted, running his season's scoring to 14 points. Freshman Bussell plunged through center for the second score, but Morton's try for conversion fell flat.

Bussell intercepted a Wildcat pass and placed the Tigers in scoring position as the quarter ended. Dellastatious sprinted over in the second, and Morton's try for the extra point was good. Quarterback Ihm scored again, and another kick placed the Missouri team in the lead 27-0.

Bull Reece scored early in the third, but the kick by Morton was low. Green then took a lateral from Ihms on the 45 yard line and weaved his way down the field to score again. With another kick good, the Bengals led 40-0.

Arbeitman passed to Faris on the 23-yard line and Faris carried the ball over for the final M. U. score of the game, 47. Two minutes after K-State's second score, the game ended.

Tromp Nebraska 54-20

Producing an offense which the Cornhuskers couldn't stop, and setting up a defense the Nebraska team couldn't penetrate, the Bengals romped over Nebraska at the rate of about a point a minute. The 54-20 score on October 30 gave Missouri a firmer grip on the Big Six championship which the Tigers are defending.

The 74-points which the two teams scored not only represented an all-time scoring high for the Missouri-Nebraska classic, but the 54 points for the Tigers proved a new high for either team in a long series. Nebraska had once scored 52 against Missouri. Likewise, 54 points equalled the highest total ever scored against Nebraska by any team.

Not since Gwinn Henry's team spelled defeat for three consecutive years over the Cornhuskers a decade and a half ago have the Tigers seen such a victory. Chauncey Simpson as Tiger mentor followed in Don Faurot's footsteps of the past two years.

Missouri's might was evidenced from the first. In the opening minutes of play the Tigers scored, and they intercepted the first two Nebraska forward passes to launch touchdown campaigns—all in the first quarter!

Reece Scores Early

Before the game was six minutes old, Reece scored from the two-foot line after he and Collins had advanced the ball, and Jack Morton added the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Dellastatious scored again and Morton added the point when the game

He's "Doc" Bunker Now

He'll still be "Coach" to his football charges, but academically speaking, Herbert Bunker, assistant football coach at the University, may now answer to the title of "Doctor."

Marking the third time he has taken part as a student in Missouri's graduation ceremonies, Bunker took time out from football practice in the late summer and marched in the academic procession to receive the degree of doctor of education.

Dr. Herbert Bunker joined the University coaching staff in 1937. For nine years he had been athletic director and head coach of all sports at Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo.

When he was a student at the University of Missouri way back in the early twenties, he played tackle on the football team and won letters in basketball, baseball and track.

It was Dr. Bunker who proved that a student could win the prized Phi Beta Kappa award and letters in four sports. He is the only one in the school to establish such an enviable record.

was 11 minutes old. The next touchdown came after Collins intercepted a Cornhusker pass and a Reece-to-Bussell pass clicked for a sprint to the scoring line. Kekeris added the 21st point.

Twice in the beginning of the second period the Cornhuskers flashed an attack, but both times Missouri bottled up their gains. West broke away for a 39-yard run and a first down on the eighth. Three line drives and he scored. Ihm converted for 28th.

Then the Cornhuskers cracked the Tiger reserves and scored 6. But Watzig intercepted a Nebraska pass on the Missouri 30 and ran 70 yards for a touchdown in the last second of the first half, leaving the score 34-6.

The first team began the second half and marched from the kickoff to a touchdown in three minutes, with Reece scoring and Ekern making the extra point.

The ball was booted out of bounds on the Missouri 20, and the Tigers marched 80 yards for another quick touchdown. Collins drove through the line to score, and Morton converted as the third quarter ended.

When Ihm tried to punt from his one-yard line, his effort was blocked, and Nebraska scored. Benny Arbeitman broke away on the kickoff return and ran 40 yards to score, and Missouri's margin was 54-13. With only two seconds of the game remaining, Nebraska's air attack added an extra seven to the score and the game ended 54-20.

Tigers Down Cyclones

It took more than the Cyclones to stop the Missouri Tigers when they met the Iowa State team at Ames on November 6. Homecoming for the Iowans was spoiled . . . by the 25-7 victory for Missouri and by the weatherman, who spilled rain all afternoon and made a muddy turf and slippery ball.

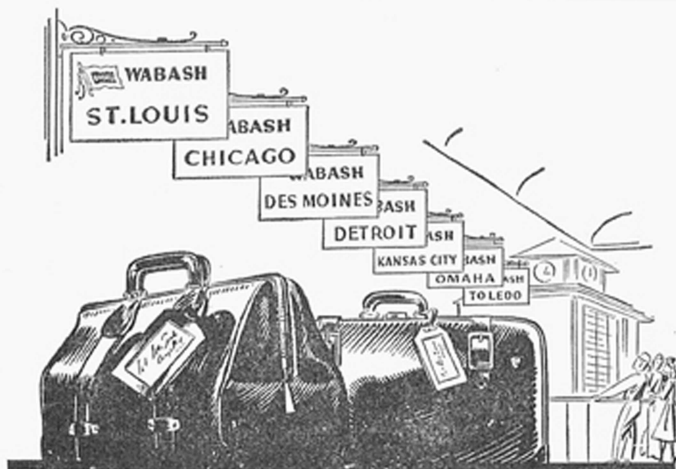

The Tigers set the stage for the conference title which they will defend November 13 against the Oklahoma Sooners.

Dellastatious in the backfield demonstrated his ability three times in the first half. Reece failed to convert after the first touchdown, and the score was Missouri 6, Iowa State 0.

An Iowa State fumble placed Collins near pay dirt and Ekern carried the ball over for another 6 points. Reece made his kick good and the quarter ended 13-0.

Late in the second quarter, after a

Debate Handbook Features American War-Peace Aims

Dr. Bower Aly, professor of speech at the University and editor of the Debate Handbook, has announced the seventeenth edition entitled "American War and Peace Aims."

The 1943-1944 edition includes an article by Vernon Nash, graduate of the School of Journalism in 1914. The article is entitled "Federal World Government: A Better Alternative." Nash recently resigned as executive secretary of the National Peace Conference of New York, an overall body which acts as a council board for numerous national groups interested in foreign and American policy. He is now lecturing on international affairs throughout the country.

Dr. Aly's book also includes a speech made in the University on May 28 by Edwin L. James, managing editor of the New York Times. James spoke at the School of Journalism at the University on Medalist Day. His talk appears under the title "One American Peace Plan."

Dr. Aly has been editing the National University Extension Association publication for ten years. Six thousand copies of the handbook were published in September.

Reece-to-Morton pass, Dellastatious scored again.

A determined march down the field began the second half as Reece pounded across the goal line for Missouri's final score. The Cyclones then took to an aerial attack and chalked up seven on their side.

Attendance was given as 2500, most of whom were huddled under multi-colored umbrellas all during the game.

As this issue goes to press, the Tigers are preparing for the title clash between Missouri's eleven and the Sooners from Oklahoma. The teams seem well matched, and predictions are as often for a Tiger victory as for a Sooner championship.

BENGALS ON OTHER FIELDS

LT. JOHN COOPER is back at Lincoln, Neb., Air Base after completing OCS at Miami. He is in charge of a physical training and recreational program for about 18,000 men.

DEAN BROWN, half mile runner in '38, was reported missing in action in North Africa in April.

ENS. GERRY DAVIS, a football squad man in '39, has received a citation and air service medal posthumously for meritorious achievement as a fighter pilot on the Enterprise off Santa Cruz Islands. His unit downed 21 Jap planes in the action.

PFC. LOWELL PICKETT has returned to Missouri as a special engineering student.

LT. SCHOCKEY NEEDY is special service officer at Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

ENS. HERBIE A. GREGG is taking additional P-T boat training at Melville, R. I. He ran into a Missouri delegation at the Milshipmen's school and chatted with RALPH CARTER and MAURICE ALEXANDER. Gregg is engaged to a New York girl.

GEORGE EVANS is in Pullman, Wash.

LT. ART DREYER is both a navigator and bombardier and gives an APO, New York.

EARL STARK is with the Navy V-12 Unit, Fayette, Mo.

Lt. (j.g.) JOHN K. LOBSIGER received his promotion in July. He says BILL HARVEY is bunking with HAROLD WOOD, B.J. '39. He also ran across SANFORD WERNER, now a Naval officer aboard the Hornet when she was sunk, and who spent several hours in the water.

BOB GARWITZ is at Camp Peterson, Farragut, Idaho, training for the QM Department.

ENS. L. BLAINE CARR is in Amphibious Training at Little Creek, Va.

Av/C IRV FARBMAN, former publicity man around Rothwell Gym, spent six weeks at Sheppard Field, Tex., and is now stationed in Jonesboro, Ark. He is writing camp news for two local papers.

PVT. L. F. BENTLEY tells us that there are about 95 Missouri men at Camp Callan, Calif., taking anti-aircraft training.

ELMER L. AUSSIECKER, shotput champion on last year's Tiger track team, is at Fort Sill, Okla., Field Artillery School, as an officer candidate.

PVT. JIM AUSTIN is in San Diego, Calif.

BLACK AND GOLD --- Tradition and History

The University colors of gold and black were named, according to persistent tradition, by Austin L. McRae, an assistant professor, who taught here in 1890 and organized a football team which played Washington University in St. Louis. The University colors before that time were crimson and gold and had been officially adopted some years before by the faculty.

In 1891 the Board of Curators set aside the present Rollins Field for athletics, but it was not until four years later that it was graded and a track built.

In 1891 Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska formed the Western Interstate Football Association.

DICK HIGGINS, pole-vaulter in 1940-41, a lieutenant in the infantry, has reported to Ft. Benning, Ga., to join the paratroops. Higgins, as a University track man, once achieved the pole-vaulting height of 13 feet 8 inches. He won the Big Six conference one year. Higgins came to Missouri with JOHN MUNSKI, the well-known miler, who is now overseas in Hawaii.

ROBERT CLETUS ORF, former Tiger football star, received a promotion as captain in October. Bob, with his brother BUD, comprised a pair of ends on the All-American team of a few years back.

Hyde, Curtis Represent M. U. at William Jewell Inauguration Rite

Laurance M. Hyde, judge of the Supreme Court and president of the Missouri Alumni Association, represented the University at the inauguration of Dr. Walter Pope Binns as president of William Jewell College November 5.

Dr. W. C. Curtis, Dean of the College of Arts and Science, also attended as an official representative of the University.

Lawrence Adams Designs Middlebush's Bookplates

Designer of the new bookplate for the Walter Williams Library in President Middlebush's home is Lawrence Adams, assistant professor of theory and practice of art in the University.

For nine years of the library's existence there has been no standard plate for these books. Mr. Adams has made on a zinc plate a design of the doorway to the president's home on the campus as the central theme of the design. The plates were ready for use in this year's additions to the collection.

In 1934, Walter Williams, dean of the School of Journalism and president of the University at that time, began to collect some of the good current books for the president's use.

Each year since then it has been added to by the Alumni Association of the School of Journalism, until today it includes several hundred volumes.

Dean Williams wrote personal letters to more than two hundred authors he had chosen that first year, and their replies, fastened between the pages of their books, make one of the most fascinating and priceless collections of autographs and letters of current writers in the world.

Then, as now, the books were selected by a committee of leading educators, librarians and journalists, as the best books in their fields. This year's committee includes A. H. R. Fairchild, professor of English in the University; Benjamin E. Powell, University Librarian; Robert L. Ramsay, professor of English; and Dean Frank L. Mott of the School of Journalism.

University Library Acquires London Times Produced On Microfilm

The University library has acquired the London Times from 1785 to 1860, reproduced on microfilm, Benjamin Powell, librarian, has recently announced.

The library already has a complete file of the Times from 1864 to date. There are only three microfilm copies in this country, one in Ohio State, one in Minnesota, and the third now in the University of Missouri.

Health Service Approves University of Missouri School of Nursing

The University of Missouri School of Nursing has been approved for participation in the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps, according to the U. S. Public Health Service. This program offers student nurses an opportunity to obtain a nursing education at very low cost to the student, as participants will receive tuition, fees, school and outdoor cadet uniforms, and a monthly allowance.

It also offers the student an opportunity to give valuable assistance immediately to the total war effort by releasing Graduate Nurses who are eligible for service in the armed forces.

On graduation the student is eligible to become a Registered Nurse in the state. The wear in of the uniform of the U. S. Nurse Corps is optional with the woman.

A monthly salary of $15 for the first nine months, $20 during the next twenty-one months, and $30 during the last six months is also to be paid the student nurses.

The University plans to accept students into the corps who have completed one year of satisfactory college work including chemistry and zoology. After graduating and passing the State Board Examination, these women will become Registered Nurses.

Women who enter the nursing program with one and a half or two years of college work may be able to complete the requirements for a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing during their three years in school.

Fred Harrison, B.J. '12, Gallatin Publisher Dies

Fred M. Harrison, widely known Missouri newspaper man and publisher of the Gallatin North Missourian and Democrat, died in October after a long illness.

After graduating with a journalism degree from the University in 1912, Harrison served on the St. Joseph News Press and a Pittsburgh, Pa., paper. He succeeded his father as publisher of the North Missourian in 1914.

Harrison had served as a member of the state legislature and at one time was president of the Missouri Press Association. He had been a frequent visitor at Journalism Week here and spoke on the program in 1934.

Harrison served in World War I as a sergeant and was overseas, serving with the army of occupation in Germany four months.

Read Hall Facilities Open For Servicemen's Leisure

The University of Missouri, cooperating with the City of Columbia, is making the servicemen's stay here as enjoyable as possible. One of the privileges extended to the servicemen is the use of Read Hall, which is the student's recreation center.

Among their weekly entertainments are an hour of recorded concert music on Sunday afternoon; music quiz, informal concerts, bridge and chess tournaments, and occasional exhibitions of works of art.

The Craft Shops are open every night to men who have artistic impulses. There is work with leather, clay, wood, linoleum, and other media.

Mott Publication Features Jefferson Press Philosophy

"Jefferson and the Press" is the title of a new book by Dr. Frank L. Mott, dean of the School of Journalism of the University, which has been published by the Louisiana State University Press.

The sixty-five page volume marks the first time that Jefferson's philosophy of the press and his experiences with the newspapers of his time have been presented completely.

The book is the second of a series of monographs on journalism, published under the auspices of the National Council of Research of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism.

"This monograph is intended as an humble contribution to the observance of the bicentenary of Jefferson's birth," Mott says. "Jefferson stands out as the foremost exponent in history of the necessity of a free press in any system of popular government, and no other man has stated that principle so well."

The publishers say of the volume: "The confusion among students as to Jefferson's attitude toward the press is clarified and the charges of inconsistency arising from apparent contradictions in ideas appearing in letters to his friends over a period of many years are refuted; the great exponent of freedom of speech and the press is presented in true perspective."

Missourians on Battlefronts Send Greetings to Friends By Maj. Conrad Hammar

In a letter received recently from Maj. Conrad H. Hammar of the School Military Government in North Africa, greetings are sent from Missourians there to those at home. He is former professor of agricultural economics, on leave of absence from the University.

Hammar says he has met William Beckett, former student in the School of Law, who has been in North Africa since November 8, 1942. Beckett landed with the first invading forces at Oran and participated in the fighting there and in both the Middle and North Tunisian campaigns.

Hammar has met since his arrival several former university students and faculty. Chesney Hill, associate professor of political science on leave; William Gill, former president of Blue Key; Glen Weston, history graduate; Arthur Dreyer, for a time Missourian sports columnist; and Bill Henry, former basketball player for the Tigers.

Hammar describes meeting Capt. Charles Turner, whose family is in Columbia; Maj. A. R. Troxell of Columbia, Capt. Louis W. Laughlin of Springfield; Capt. Samuel Blair, Jefferson City District Judge.

All these men send greeting to members of the faculty and to their friends at the University.

President Hyde Requests Alumni Officers Continue

Laurence M. Hyde, president of the University Alumni Association and Judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri, has announced that Homecoming activities will not be provided for this fall. Therefore present officers of the several divisional alumni groups will continue to serve until further meetings can be scheduled.

Ordinarily various alumni groups, including the alumni of the School of Law, the School of Medicine, the School of Business and Public Administration, and the College of Arts and Science, hold their annual meetings here on the campus at Homecoming, at which time group officers are elected and their respective representatives on the Board of the General Alumni Association are chosen.

Members of the University's Committee on Homecoming decided early in October not to schedule a Homecoming this year for reasons which are obvious.

Peace Officers Conduct Classes in Law School

A two-week school to train Missouri peace officers in modern police methods was held in Tate Hall during October under the joint supervision of the State Highway Patrol and the University authorities.

gave the welcome address and assigned President Frederick A. Middlebush ed faculty members to aid the Patrol in instructing the school. A joint certificate was awarded those who completed the course.

M. Stanley Ginn, LL.B. '34, highway patrol superintendent, said, "The school is planned to make modern police training available to all peace officers of the state.

"Efficient policing is a responsibility that involves many duties and depends largely upon good training."

War traffic keeps her busier than ever but she manages to keep calm and pleasant.

She still has "The Voice With A Smile" even when the lights are thick on the Long Distance switchboard and the circuits are crowded. Even when she has to ask you to —

"Please limit your call to 5 minutes. Others are waiting."

That's to help everybody get better service and you couldn't ask for a better reason than that.
