World War II disrupted the regular schedule of University class reunions. The crowded conditions of Columbia's hotels and private homes makes the immediate resumption of a full program of class reunions inadvisable, if not impossible.

Plans are going forward, however, for reunions October 17-18 of the classes of 1906 and 1907. Members of the class of 1898 will celebrate their fiftieth anniversary by returning to participate in the 1948 Commencement Exercises. Announcement of other class reunions must await the outcome of our efforts to secure the promise of accommodations for those who may return.

In his scholarly History of the University, Dr. Jonas Viles reports that formal instruction at the University of Missouri began on April 14, 1841. What a fine thing it would be if the Alumni Association would observe April 14 each year as "University of Missouri Day" by holding meetings in every county of the state on that date!

The University of Missouri begins the 1947-8 Session—the one hundred sixth since its founding. The student enrollment of 11,163 is appreciably above last year's previous all-time high of 10,236. Our University is entering another great year—a year that can become its greatest, thus far.

The opportunity and challenge presented to the University by the current year is likewise offered to our Alumni Association. Will we make effective use of our resources to build a greater University of Missouri?

If we cherish the things that have made America great, we will work and sacrifice to keep strong those institutions and traditions that have kept our State in the ranks of progress. It will be much simpler to fight for a strong University, and for all constructive forces now, than to wage the bitter struggle for sheer survival against the forces of social destruction that negligence will inevitably loose upon us.

Bible College Commences Program To Supply Rural Ministers

By CLARK Q. LEWIS

In cooperation with the College of Agriculture, the University Bible College is offering a five-year course leading to a degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture and Master of Rural Religious Life. The student is enrolled in the Agriculture College, but carries twenty hours in the Bible College. After receiving the B.S. degree he is eligible for the new one-year course in which he earns the degree in rural religion. The University of Missouri is the first institution to offer this degree.

This new course was first set up in 1946 with two students. Five students were graduated in June and next spring approximately thirty more will receive the new degree. The goal set is for 114 men—one for each county.

Rev. Wetherell Heads Program

The Rev. Gene Wetherell was appointed by the Bible College to serve as Extension Minister for the rural churches in Missouri. He was reared on a Calloway County farm and was a member of a 4-H club and other community organizations before entering the ministry. At the time he accepted this office he was pastor of the Wilkes Boulevard Methodist Church in Columbia.

A recent addition to the staff of the Bible College is the Rev. Virgil Nalley, who is Professor of Rural Religious Life and Associate Dean to Dr. Carl Agee. Mr. Nalley returned last summer from service in the Navy as a chaplain. Prior to that he had been pastor of churches in Kansas and Oklahoma.

It is being recommended that the rural church own a farm parsonage with twenty to forty acres of land so the minister can live in the community. Therefore it is necessary that the pastor be a man of the soil as well as a man of God.

Ag Training Aids Church

Then it can be seen that those eight semesters of agriculture will play a big part in putting the rural churches back on their feet. Some people may wonder why it is a prerequisite for the Bible college students who plan to enter the rural ministry, to have the agricultural training in farm power and machinery, veterinary science, poultry, soils, field crops, animal husbandry, and similar lines. It is felt that anyone working with farm people will need to know about their modes of livelihood in order to be in a better position to guide them over difficult obstacles and to show them the latest methods of obtaining the most out of their daily work.

At the present time there are about 500 pastorless church in Missouri and each one of these empty churches has a potential congregation of from 150 to 300 people. One third of this number would include growing children, boys and girls who would seldom have an opportunity to attend Sunday school or church.

One of the 500 pastorless churches in the state of Missouri which will gradually resume their place in the life of the people of the rural communities.

The Rev. Gene W. Wetherell, extension minister for rural churches in Missouri, speaks to a typical rural congregation. Students now in training at the University will take over posts such as this to give the individual churches a permanent pastor, with the advantages of religious and economic counsel.

Certainly then, the goal set is highly worthy of attainment, and its service to the rural population of the state will bring great credit to those who aid its growth.

High School Bands Plan Massive Concert

More than fifty Missouri high school bands are being invited to attend the annual "Football Band Day" at the University on October 18 when the Tigers meet Kansas State on the gridiron.

Members of the visiting bands will be guests of the University Athletic Department for the football game and will appear in the massed band events before the contest and again at the half period.

Before the game starts the bands will march on the field, en masse, and play "The Star-Spangled Banner."

New Journalism Service Provides Special Courses For Professional People

An extended off-the-campus program of service to professional journalists will be set up this fall by the School of Journalism of the University in cooperation with the Missouri Press Association, it was announced recently by Dr. Frank L. Mott, Dean of the School of Journalism, and George P. Johnston of Fulton, president of the Association.

The new plan, which will be directed by H. R. Long, associate professor of the School of Journalism, will centralize the activities now under way and will provide for additional services to professional journalists.

Extension courses are planned at other points in the state in addition to professional short courses at the University. Journalists will be offered training in advertising, mechanical and circulation departments as well as in public relations, radio and photography. A program national in scope will be arranged for editorial writers and country news writers throughout the state will be offered specialized training in their field.

Job Placement Bureau

Contacts with alumni and perfection of a job placement bureau also come under the program as will activities of the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association and the Missouri Collegiate Press Association.

Professor Long will also serve as manager of the Missouri Press Association, Dr. Mott and Mr. Johnston said. He will assume his new duties September 1. Mr. Long is the present acting manager of the Association and held the manager's post for five years prior to September, 1946, when he resigned to study at the University toward a doctor's degree. He has been a member of the faculty of the School of Journalism since 1940.

Two Staff Members

The appointments of John A. Hogg as assistant manager and Darwin K. Flannigan, B.J. '41, as advertising manager of the Association were announced also.

Mr. Flannigan was Columbia correspondent for the United Press while in school. He worked on the Macon Chronicle-Herald and was managing editor of the Charleston Democrat before being commissioned in the Navy. Following his return from service he has been advertising manager of the Salem (Ill.) Marion County Democrat.

Mr. Hogg, a graduate of the University of Oregon in 1935, was city editor two years and managing editor three years of the Baker (Ore.) Democrat-Herald and served as a correspondent for the Associated Press for several

Corporation Grants Aid Research in Ice Cream

The University Board of Curators has accepted a $1500 grant from the De-Raef Corporation of Kansas City, Mo., for research by the Department of Dairy Husbandry.

The research project will be in fortified cultured soft-curd ice cream and will be carried out during the coming school year.

Working on the project will be W. H. E. Reid, professor of dairy husbandry, and Robert Thomas, a graduate assistant.

Kellogg Company Grant Rewards 4-H Clubbers

The Board of Curators of the University has accepted a cash grant of $200 and an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, to be awarded to the winners of the State 4-H Health Improvement Program. The awards were granted by the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

The cash award of $200 will be divided among the ten Clubs in the State which carry on the best health programs based on individual and group achievements. The all-expense trip will be given to the 4-H Club member outstanding in individual health achievement.

In addition to these prizes, national individual blue ribbon awards of honor and red ribbon awards of honor will go to each member of one blue award group and one red award group for outstanding performance in the health program.

years before entering the Navy. After attending a public relations course for naval officers at the University last summer, Mr. Hogg served in the Navy's public relations department during the past year.

Add New Department of Social Work to University Facilities

A department of Social Work has been established at the University with Prof. Mark Hale as chairman, according to Dr. Elmer Ellis, dean of the College of Arts and Science.

The new liberal arts department will offer a program of study designed to prepare students for professional work in the social service field, Dean Ellis said. Most of the courses will be on the graduate level, he added, although a number of pre-professional undergraduate courses will be offered. Extension courses will also be given in sections of the State where there is sufficient demand.

Award Certificate

A Certificate in Social Work will be awarded those students successfully completing thirty semester hours of professional work including at least two courses in supervised field work.

Courses which will be offered this fall for graduate credit include: Social Case Work, Public Welfare, Child Care and Protection, Child Welfare Case Work, Psychiatric Aspects of Social Work, Legal Aspects of Social Work, Social Statistics, and Field Work.

Mr. Hale, who was recently appointed professor of social work by the University's Board of Curators, comes to the University from Tulane University, where he was a member of the faculty of the School of Social Work. He graduated from Hiram (Ohio) College with an A. B. degree in 1932, and received a Master of Arts degree from the University of Missouri in 1933. He has also done work toward a Ph. D. degree at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

Comes from Tulane

Prof. Hale taught at the Vanderbilt University School of Social Work at Nashville, Tennessee, for a year before going to Tulane four years ago.

In addition to Prof. Hale, the faculty in Social Work will include: Miss Jennette R. Gruener, assistant professor in child welfare; Miss Ellen Elizabeth Guillot, assistant professor in case work; Dr. C. Terence Pihlblad, professor of sociology; Dr. Emmerson C. Chiasson, M. D., lecturer in psychiatry and social work; Dr. Maurice E. Cooper, M. D., lecturer in medical aspects of social work; and Elmore G. Crowe, lecturer in the law and social work. Other faculty members are to be added.

Geology Camp in Wyoming Named Camp Branson Honoring Geologist

By LOUISE SMITH

Commencement this year marked the beginning of a bus man's holiday for Dr. Edwin B. Branson, head of the University geology department for 37 years, who is retiring to his favorite resort—his laboratory.

When Dr. Branson opened the first summer field trip for geological study at Camp Lander, Wyo., in 1911, oil companies and geological surveys paid little attention. The apprenticeship for a "rock hound" was worked out on the job. Dr. Branson believed that practical education for the profession demanded organized field trips where students could learn at first hand the technique of mapping, aerial photography, water supply, glaciation, weathering, collection of fossils, descriptions of formations, the writing of geological reports, and use of special instruments. During ceremonies at Commencement, President Frederick A. Middlebush announced that the Wyoming site had been officially named "Camp Branson" in honor of Missouri's geologist.

Field Trips Started

The summer field trip which the University inaugurated was one of the earliest in the country to provide full college credit for the work done. Today, because of such pioneer efforts, oil geologists recommend that "pebble puppies" spend at least two years, and if possible three, in field training.

Dr. Branson entered the geology profession somewhat incidentally, he says. He studied zoology at the University of Kansas and wrote his master's thesis on the classification of snakes. While in school, however, he had done some work in paleontology and later was offered a fellowship at the University of Chicago to study fossils.

During 1904 and 1905 Dr. Branson collected fossils in western Kansas and Wyoming. Many of his published papers have concerned the geology of the Wind River region in Wyoming, particularly in connection with the origin and determination of age of the Triassic red beds, familiar in such formations as the "Garden of the Gods."

Research on Conodonts

Dr. Branson's most extensive work is his research on conodonts with Dr. Maurice G. Mehl. Many thousands of specimens have been collected by students and faculty in the geology department. The University's collection of these microfossils is the largest in the world.

Conodonts are minute teeth of primitive fishes, which occur in definite succession and provide the geologist with a valuable key to the age of rock in which they are found. During 1932 and 1937 Dr. Branson visited many countries of Europe, North Africa, Russia, Japan, and Korea, collecting and comparing conodont specimens. More than half the publications on conodonts have come from the University of Missouri.

A three-volume paleontology of Missouri will claim the major part of his time now that he has retired. He expects it to take ten years to complete. He will also continue his work on conodonts. The one change will be more leisure to work, a chance to spend his time as he chooses.

In the words of one of his former students, retirement for Dr. Branson will be but "the old road into new and pleasant places."

Announce New Awards to 4-H Club Clothing Teams

Two cash awards totaling $100 have been accepted by the Board of Curators of the University for the 4-H Club special clothing demonstration contest.

The awards, offered by the American Viscose Corporation, are a $25 award to each of two State champion individual demonstrators, and a $25 award to each of the two members of the State champion demonstration team.

Grant for Research Aids Pasture Studies

A grant of $1200 by the Spencer Chemical Company of Kansas City, Mo., for research work in connection with pasture studies under the direction of Dr. William A. Albrecht, chairman of the department of soils of the College of Agriculture, has been accepted by the University Board of Curators.

The fund will be used for studies of the use of nitrogen as a fertilizer.

Scholarship Awards To 4-H Winners

A number of awards to be given by the Sunbeam Corporation of Chicago to winners of the 4-H Club national sheep shearing contest were accepted recently by the Board of Curators.

The awards will consist of a $200 college scholarship for the first place national winner, and a scholarship of $100 for the second place winner. Cash

Midwestern Conference On Labor Management Planned for Campus

Problems of labor relations will be the theme of a midwestern conference on industrial management Oct. 23-25 at the University. The University will sponsor the conference in co-operation with organizations representing 2000 Missouri industries.

Nationally known leaders in the industrial management field will participate in discussions on the latest techniques and developments in labor relations. Although primarily designed for industrial policy-making and administrative officers, the conference will be open to the public.

National Speakers Scheduled

Among those already scheduled to address the group are: Frank Rising, general manager of the Automotive and Aviation Parts Manufacturers; and Glenn Gardiner, president of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Gardiner will discuss foreman training and problems of foreman organization.

Dr. Russell S. Bauder, professor of economics at the University, was named general chairman of the conference, with Fred M. Karches, director of operations for Rice-Stix Manufacturing Company, and Wendell Huntington, vice-president of the Ralston Purina Company, program committee co-chairmen.

M. U. Faculty on Committee

Other members of the executive committee include: Robert P. Alberts, assistant in labor economics at the University and executive secretary of the conference; Robert C. Manhart, professor of industrial management at the University; Harold Alexander, Kansas City; O. L. Allman, St. Louis; and Edgar H. Behle, St. Louis.

Earle L. Bilheimer, St. Joseph; F. Gano Chance, A.B. '29, B.S. in Eng. '29, Centralia; Robert Coy, St. Joseph; A. L. Gustin, Jr., Kansas City; T. V. Hilt, A.M. '38, Hannibal; George Kinney, Kansas City; Harry T. Schwan, Kansas City; Amos J. Snider, A.M. '40, director of adult education at the University; and George B. Strother, A.B. '38, A.M. '39, professor of psychology at the University.

In addition to the University, sponsors of the conference include the Associated Industries of Missouri, the Society for the Advancement of Management, the Industrial Council of Kansas City, and the Industrial Relations Club of St. Louis.

awards of $25 will be awarded to each of six winners in the national red ribbon group. The winner of the state contest will receive a championship belt with a 4-H buckle.

Research in Atomic Energy Becomes Part of M. U. Activity

ATOMIC ENERGY—the greatest of all history's tools of war and looked on throughout the world as an even greater aid to the advancement of the modern standard of living, is becoming an important part of the research activity of the University of Missouri.

The huge 3,645 acre site in DuPage County, Illinois, just 26 miles southwest of the center of Chicago, with an investment of nearly $100,000,000—the Argonne National Laboratory—is now available for research work by advanced students in the Missouri graduate school.

Dr. Samuel Bradley Burson, associate professor of physics, will be Missouri's first representative in his research work there. He was recently granted a year's leave of absence for this purpose by the Board of Curators.

Start in Ag Research

Initial work on the Campus is expected to be in the nature of agriculture research, involving the use of radio-active tracers in plant life. This will be a close follow-up for the work already accomplished by Dr. Lewis J. Stadler, professor of field crops, who has been conducting experiments for some time in x-ray bombardment of plant life.

Photosynthesis of plant life through the use of radio-active carbon tracers, will enable the study of new methods of starch and sugar production from plants. Its actual significance to the advancement of agriculture is virtually immeasurable at this time, but it is easily determined to be of great value.

A cooperative arrangement with the Graduate Council and the Atomic Energy Commission, is enabling Virgil L. Stout, physics laboratory assistant, to further his work on a doctorate at the Los Alamos, New Mexico laboratories this year. Site of the war-time assembly of atomic bombs, Los Alamos' facilities are estimated to approach $400,000,000 in buildings and equipment.

Long Range Program

The long range atomic laboratory program for America includes three establishments. The Argonne Laboratories are the most nearly completed, with other comparable installations planned at Brookhaven, Long Island. Whether Los Alamos will be the third site has not as yet been determined by the Atomic Energy Commission, of which David E. Lilienthal is chairman.

Dr. Newell S. Gingrich, professor of physics, represents the University of Missouri on the Council of Participating Institutions. His responsibility includes representing the scientific interests of the University concerned with the Laboratory, serving as the official channel between the University and the Laboratory on matters relating to the cooperative research program, and making such commitments on behalf of the University as are deemed necessary.

According to Dr. Gingrich, it is hoped that several Missouri physicists will be able to take advantage of the opportunity to conduct experimental work at the Argonne Laboratories, but this action depends primarily on the obtaining of additional faculty members to take the place of those who will leave.

Charter Members

The University of Missouri is among the charter members as participating institutions in the Argonne National Laboratory program. Other institutions selected include: Battelle Memorial Institute, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Case School of Applied Science, Illinois Institute of Technology, Indiana University, Iowa State College, Mayo Foundation, Michigan State College, Northwestern University, Notre Dame University, Ohio State University, Purdue University, St. Louis University, Washington University, Western Reserve University, University of Chicago, University of Cincinnati, University of Illinois, University of Iowa, University of Michigan, University of Minnesota, University of Nebraska, University of Pittsburgh, and the University of Wisconsin.

Through this cooperative program with the United States Atomic Energy Commission and its sponsored research laboratories, the University of Missouri and her scientists will take their place among the leaders in research, Missouri agriculture will be greatly benefitted, and the entire American way of life will be gratifyingly improved by the efforts of the sons of the "Show-Me" state.

Tiger Lettermen Plentiful As Faurot Begins 1947 Grid Campaign

Don Faurot's Missouri Tigers are at least sure of several things as far as the 1947 grid season is concerned. There will be near capacity crowds for all the home games, and all the opposition will be plenty rough. Otherwise the Bengal chieftain holds the fort down in Rothwell Gym with a tight lip.

With twenty-one lettermen returning to the Tiger fold this season, the team will have experience but this experience is lacking between the tackles. The Bengals have ten lettermen back from last year, but another question mark is whether these backs have improved over the year's span.

At the end position the Tigers have Co-Captain Roland Oakes from Winnebago, Ill., Mel Sheehan from Normandy, and Kenny Bounds from Kansas City back from last year. Add to these Fred Hulse, a B' Teamer of last year who hails from Sedalia, and the Bengals can field a good quartet of wings.

Sizeable Linemen

Chester Fritz, big 210 lb. Fulton boy, is the only letterman tackle. Scott Angevine, Springfield, and Freeman Bullock, Independence, are the newcomers for the other tackle post. Co-Captain Verlie Abrams and Bob Stone will probably be the guards, and there are two other award winners available, John Trippe and Elmer Mollet.

Bob Fuchs, a big sophomore from St. Louis, is expected to get the nod to start at center for most of the Tiger games. Ray Cliffe and Giles Blair will understudy Fuchs.

Able Backfield

In the backfield Bob Hopkins, Lloyd Brinman, Bus Entsminger, Fred Kling, Bob West, Howard Bonnett, Lee Bowman and Wilbur Volz are all back from last year and present Don Faurot with a complex problem because of their nearly equal ability.

Bob West, flashy quarterback from Kansas City, Mo., is expected to be the number one man in Coach Don Faurot's aerial offense in the Big Six gridiron wars this fall. His throwing arm is also one of the Tiger baseball team's valuable assets.

Three newcomers, Nick Carras, Kansas City, Dick Braznell, University City, and Martin Sauer, Hannibal have progressed rapidly since their B team status last year, and will see action this season with the varsity.

The Tigers lost six men to the professional ranks. They are lettermen Jim Keckeris, Ralph Stewart, Marshall Shurnas, and squaddens Keith Parker, Jimmy Darr, and Dick Keller. Ed Hodges, veteran tackle, and little Len Brown, spark-plug quarterback have accepted coaching jobs. Hodges will teach physical education at Moberly Junior High School and will coach football and basketball at the Senior High. Brown will be head coach of football and basketball at Fulton High School.

Bernard Pepper, Leo Milla, Jon Tarpoff, and John Reginato have graduated and now hold positions in business. Normas Norval Piepmeier, bulky 300 lb. tackle, was forced to drop foot-

Bengals Smash Bills In Season Opener At Memorial Stadium

Coach Don Faurot made a community project of the Missouri Tiger's initial tilt of the 1947 gridiron wars, as forty Bengals saw action against St. Louis University's Billikens, who went down to defeat 19-0.

Rapid substitution throughout the game enabled Coach Faurot to vary his combinations on both offense and defense in his search for a winning eleven for the season. The initial score for the Black and Gold came on a 26-yard pass by sophomore halfback Dick Braznell to left end Fred Hulse who went the final seven yards to pay dirt unmolested. The extra point was neatly converted by halfback Bill Day, to leave the count at 7-0 at halftime.

Fullback Ed Quirk, Missouri shot-put artist, greatly aided the drive to the scoring position with his powerful plunges through the center of the line, where the Tiger's potential All-American center, Bob Fuchs, opened holes for the ball carriers all afternoon.

A Billiken fumble, recovered by Bengal end Bob Wren, was the beginning of the drive for the second score. Repeated drives by Quirk, quarterback Bus Entsminger and halfback Lloyd Brinkman took the ball to the 13 yard ball due to his pressing studies in the Engineering College.

Last season's host of injuries have sidelined quarterback Jim Austin, and fullback Fred Bouldin, and there seems to be little hope that they will be available for duty in the fall.

Prior to the opening of school the Tigers drilled twice a day preparing for the opening date with St. Louis University. Regardless of the mid-summer heat that prevailed in Columbia during those three weeks, the Tigers worked hard and responded eagerly, which may become a decisive factor in a few games.

Plan Luncheon Meeting For Alumni Attending Duke Football Game

Plans for a luncheon meeting of all University of Missouri Alumni attending the Missouri-Duke football game at Durham, North Carolina on November 8 are rapidly progressing, according to the information received at the Alumni Office. Co-chairman for the event are C. D. Matthews, B.S. in Agr. '14, of 119 Hillsboro Street, Raleigh, N. C., and Robert S. Hays, Jr., B.S. in B. A. '24, Durham, N. C. A large gathering of former Missourians from North Carolina, and adjacent areas, including Washington, D. C., and the Virginias, is expected.

All who plan to attend the game are requested to write to Mr. Virgil Spurling, University of Missouri Ticket Office, Columbia, Mo., for tickets. An allocated section of 900 seats has been received, and will be issued as applications are submitted.

Full details for the get-together in Durham will be sent to all who order tickets from Mr. Spurling, or who request such information direct from the co-chairmen of the event.

line, where Bill Day was called on to pass. Fading to the 20 yard stripe, he failed to find a receiver, so twisted and dodged his way through the St. Louis scattered forward wall for the touchdown. Fullback Quirk counted the third tally after a sustained drive late in the final period.

Day and Brinkman shone offensively as they carried the ball 34 yards in five tries for the former, and 36 yards in six trips for the latter.

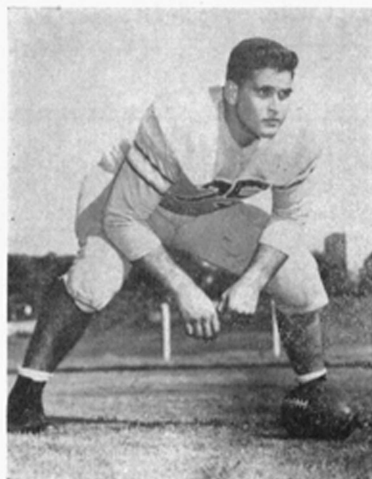

This victory was Missouri's seventh consecutive win over St. Louis University, beginning with the 13-7 win of 1936.

The end of the summer session this year saw one of the biggest Summer Commencement Exercises in the history of the University. Approximately 530 students marched in the traditional academic procession, to Jesse Hall, led by the acting president of the University, Dr. Loran G. Townsend, his official party, deans of the University divisions, and school marshalls.

The formal procession entered the Auditorium to the processional march played by Miss Anna Husband, instructor in piano at the University. The candidates remained standing for the Invocation which was given by the Rev. F. L. Neebe, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church of Columbia.

Dr. Townsend then introduced Dr. Charles E. Friley, president of Iowa State College, who delivered the commencement address on "Science and Society." Dr. Friley is well-known for his work on commissions and committees concerning education. He has been chairman of the committee on accrediting procedures of the American Council on Education since 1945.

Following the address Dr. Townsend conferred the degrees as the graduates were presented by their deans. Oak Hunter, president of the University Alumni Association, then led the class in the pledge of allegiance and the Rev. Neebe pronounced the benediction.

The first all-University pep rally since 1934, Tiger Nite, was held the night prior to the season's opening game with St. Louis University. The kick-off rally was held at Rollins Field and sponsored by the Student Government Association, the University Mens' Burrall Cabinet, and Tiger Claws.

The rally consisted of a parade from downtown to Rollins Field, a picnic supper to which students, alumni, and townspeople were invited, talks by Tiger Coach Don Faurot and Professor Jesse Wrench, and all followed by a street dance held on Rollins Street.

Appointment of three associate professors and seven assistant professors to the University faculty enabled the over-worked teaching staff to meet a student body of 11,259 at the opening of the fall term. Appointments also included 26 instructors, 23 assistant instructors, 29 graduate assistants, and 36 student assistants.

A "Meet Missouri Night" was held the Monday before the start of school for freshman and transfer sopomores at Brewer Field House. The program, which was planned to help new students become acquainted with the University, was sponsored by Kappa Epsilon Alpha, woman's sophomore honorary society.

Mack Hency, master of ceremonies, quizzed representatives of the campus organizations on their functions and membership requirements.

Read Hall held an open house for the new freshmen also. The program was sponsored by the Freshmen Week Committee and included dancing, games, and tours through the offices of the hall.

Albert Spalding, distinguished American violinist, will open the University 1947-48 concert series with dual concerts in Brewer Field House the evenings of October 27 and 28.

The concert series will also present two famous orchestras, the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under direction of Vladimir Golschmann and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra conducted by Thor Johnson, and the sensational young Metropolitan Opera Star, Patrice Munsel, coloratura soprano, in dual evening concerts on the season's program.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, perennial favorite with Missouri's music lovers, will appear in the second pair of concerts of the Fall session November 24 and 25. This will be the thirteenth annual appearance of this organization.

Home Economics Program Begins Aid to GI Wives Throughout State

The University recently inaugurated a series of community home economics conferences for wives of veterans enrolled in the University's GI institutional farm training program.

Group organizational meetings have been held with GI wives in Powersville, Renick, Cairo, Centuria, Sturgeon, and Columbia, and will be extended as rapidly as facilities permit to include communities in twenty-eight Missouri counties where the institutional farm training classes are being held.

The new program is under the supervision of Miss Opal Arnold, recently appointed home economics supervisor in the Adult Education Service. An additional home economist is to be added to the staff soon.

Home Planning

Miss Arnold and her aids will give direction in home planning for the production and conservation of food, meal planning, food preparation, selection and care of household equipment, general storage in the home, clothing the family with comfortable well-made clothing, home sanitation, home improvement, and home budgeting.

The new program is designed primarily to furnish this service specifically to groups of wives of the GI farm trainees, and will not interfere with or replace any of the services of the county home demonstration agents of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University. The two services are working in close cooperation with each other.

Repeated requests from the GI wives for some service which would help them keep pace with their husbands in providing better farm homes had prompted the new program. Programs will be offered only in those communities having GI institutional farm training groups.

Native Missourian

Miss Arnold is a native of Dexter, Missouri, and was graduated from Southeast Missouri State Teachers College, Cape Girardeau, with a degree in home economics in 1939. She has done graduate work at the University and the University of Colorado, and taught home economics at New Madrid and Leadwood, Mo. For the last seven years she has served in Missouri and Illinois as Home Management Supervisor in the Farmer's Home Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The program is expected to serve the wives of more than 700 veterans

Buckeyes Squeeze by Tigers In Dramatic Battle of Power

Missouri's Tigers roared a warning to future football opponents when they forced Ohio State to a dramatic last second fight before bowing 13-7 on the Columbus field.

For the last four minutes of the battle, 59,444 spectators strained on their toes and yelled themselves hoarse as the two teams swirled up and down the turf with sparkling runs and sensational passes.

At the end of the third quarter, Missouri led 7-6, and looked to be sure winners. But, with four minutes left, the Buckeyes climaxed an 83 yard drive by sending Joe Whisler, their candidate for honors at the fullback post, over for the winning score.

Long Pass Completion

The Bengals threatened seriously a minute later when a 40-yard pass from Dick Braznell found Bob Wren's arms, and it was Mizzou's ball first and ten, on the enemy's 27-yard line. Ed Quirk muscled his way to the 20, but on the next play, Howard Bonnett was rushed in getting away a pass and, it fell into the waiting arms of Ohio State's Pete Perini on the five yard line. The hosts then froze the ball for the 50 seconds of play remaining.

Although still lacking a passing game and a good breakaway runner, the Tigers played heady football in the first half as they kept the Buckeyes in their own back yard. When Missouri did not have the ball, it was usually deep in enemy territory anyway, with the Bucks trying to dig themselves out after one of Bill Day's devastating kicks. Day's first aim at coffin corner left Ohio State with the ball on their six yard line, while the second rolled out-of-bounds on the six inch line.

Quirk Plunges

M. U. scored soon after Whisler's counter in the third period on Ed Quirk's plunge climaxing a 93-yard drive, and Bill Day converted for the short-lived lead for the Black and Gold.

Fullback Lee Bowman suffered a discolated knee which probably will bench him for the rest of the season, while end Kenny Bounds incurred a back injury. Bounds is expected to return to the squad within two weeks however.

Bill's Retired

And he's only six months old! Yes, the Treasury Department says the average dollar bill holds up only about half a year before it goes to pieces!

But any housewife can tell you the life expectancy of a greenback is even shorter than that. When a dollar goes to market nowadays, it lasts hardly any time at all—and seems to buy less and less of everything!

Everything but electricity, that is! Because the service you get for your electric dollar is just about the biggest bargain in your budget. If yours is an average family, that dollar buys you twice as much electricity as it did 20 years ago!

Break it down into terms of service, and that little greenback lasts a long while. It can run a radio for 100 evenings—or do your family wash 50 times—or tell you the correct time for more than a year and a half! It'll even vacuum clean 600 rugs—or brew you 2000 cups of coffee!
