General Electric answers your questions about

TELEVISION

Q. What will sets cost after the war?

A. It is expected that set prices will begin around $200, unless there are unforeseen changes in manufacturing costs. Higher priced models will also receive regular radio programs, and in addition FM and international shortwave programs. Perhaps larger and more expensive sets will include built-in phonographs with automatic record changers.

Q. How big will television pictures be?

A. Even small television sets will probably have screens about 8 by 10 inches. (That's as big as the finest of pre-war sets.) In more expensive television sets, screens will be as large as 18 by 24 inches. Some sets may project pictures on the wall like home movies. Naturally, pictures will be even clearer than those produced by pre-war sets.

Q. What kind of shows will we see?

A. All kinds. For example: (1) Studio stage shows—dancers, vaudeville, plays, opera, musicians, famous people. (2) Movies can be broadcast to you by television. (3) On-the-spot pick-up of sports events, parades, news happenings. G.E. has already produced over 900 television shows over its station, WRGB, in Schenectady.

Q. Where can television be seen now?

A. Nine television stations are operating today—in Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, and Schenectady. Twenty-two million people—about one-fifth of all who enjoy electric service—live in areas served by these stations. Applications for more than 80 new television stations have been filed with the Federal Communications Commission.

Q. Will there be television networks?

A. Because television waves are practically limited by the horizon, networks will be accomplished by relay stations connecting large cities. General Electric set up the first network five years ago, and has developed new tubes that make relaying practical. G-E station WRGB, since 1939, has been a laboratory for engineering and programming.

Q. What is G. E.'s part in television?

A. Back in 1928, a General Electric engineer, Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, gave the first public demonstration. Before the war, G. E. was manufacturing both television transmitters and home receivers. It will again build both after Victory. Should you visit Schenectady, you are invited to WRGB's studio to see a television show put on the air.

TELEVISION, another example of G-E research

Developments by General Electric scientists and engineers, working for our armed forces in such new fields as electronics, of which television is an example, will help to bring you new products and services in the peace years to follow. General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION of THE UNIVERSITY of MISSOURI, Columbia, Missouri

DEAR ALUMNI AND UNIVERSITY FRIENDS:

We know that many of you Missouri men in the service are looking forward to the time when you can once again saunter by the columns, drag up to third floor Jesse, and drop in the Campus Drug for a coke. We, too, are looking forward to that time, and while you're "over there" winning the war, we're making big plans for the peace and your return to the campus.

Correlated with the federal program to give vocational training to veterans with minor handicaps acquired while in the service, a Veterans' Administration Guidance office will be established here at the University. This will be a branch office of the St. Louis Veterans Administration, Dr. Thomas Brady, director of the University veterans' program, has announced. The office, to be located in Lathrop Hall, will provide a guidance center for veterans who live closer to the this area than to regional headquarters in Kansas City and St. Louis.

To be eligible for training under the Rehabilitation Act the veteran must have a ten per-cent disability rating. Under a GI Bill of Rights a veteran must have 90 days active service.

Veterans will be given vocational training in an effort to overcome handicaps acquired while in service. The training will be in line with his disability. No veteran will be placed in training who cannot overcome his handicap.

The office here will be directed by Mr. Stanley Haden of St. Louis, assisted by a training officer and clerk. The center will give aptitude tests, ability tests, and interest tests where necessary for the training officer to determine the type of work in which the veterans is most likely to succeed.

C. T. Pihlblad, associate professor of sociology, and Lawrence M. Hephple, instructor in sociology, will be counsellors on the staff provided by the University. This staff will be in an advisory capacity to Mr. Haden. Dr. Dan G. Stine will be the medical consultant of the center.

A bulletin for the special guidance of veterans, listing courses and schools in the form of a job index, has been issued by the University. The bulletin is designed to help him select and arrange his curricula easily.

Another innovation will be the introduction of a veterans' guidance center, whose function is to help discharged servicemen find jobs.

You see, we're on the proverbial ball, so come on, fellows, and HURRY BACK.

M. U. Benefactor Dies at Kansas City

Funeral services for Charles Baird, investment banker and friend of education who in 1936 made a gift of a Westminster chime set of five bells for the Memorial Tower at the University, were held December 4 at his home in Kansas City.

Mr. Baird, who died of a heart attack, was chairman of the University Board of Visitors at the time he presented the chimes. He made a gift of a carillon for the campus tower of the University of Michigan in the same year.

As the first director of athletics at the University of Michigan, a position to which he turned from practice of law in Chicago, Mr. Baird hired Fielding Yost as coach and during his 10 years in the job "put football on a business as well as a shouting basis."

Mr. Baird's interest in college life was resumed after his retirement from a banking career in Kansas City which began in 1908. In 1930 the Western Exchange Bank, of which he had been president for 16 years, was sold.

The Westminster Chimes in the University Memorial Tower were cast by one of the leading bell founders of American, who also cast the bell in Switzer Hall, given to the University by James S. Rollins, "father" of the University. That bell had been used to sound the hour through the school year for many decades. The bells given by Mr. Baird were so pitched that the old one might be included with them in a carillon someday.

The chime set includes an electric clock, with faces to the east and west in the tower. The clocks have seven-foot dials. The hour bell is the largest, weighing 3500 pounds, and the chime bells weigh 2500, 1050, 750, and 575 pounds. On the large bell is a Latin quotation, suggested by Dr. Walter Miller. Translated it reads, "With the other bells I ring out the chimes from the height of the Tower. I publish abroad the rushing flight of time."

The installing of the chimes was a task which had to be performed cautiously. A hole was cut through the ceiling of the tower and the large bell was lowered from the roof with heavy block and tackle and harnessed into place. The chimes were formally dedicated at the Homecoming celebration on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, 1936.

The Memorial Tower was originally planned as a feature of a Memorial Union Building dedicated to the memory of 104 University students and graduates who died in the first World War. Their names are inscribed in bronze plates on the walls of the high-vaulted passageway.

Frank P. Briggs Named Senator From Missouri

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, of Missouri, has announced the appointment of State Senator Frank P. Briggs, Democrat, publisher of the Macon Chronicle-Herald, to the United States Senate to succeed Vice-President-elect Harry S. Truman.

Gov. Donnelly announced this appointment shortly after he received Senator Truman's resignation. Senator Briggs took office Jan. 18.

After announcing the appointment which is for a two year unexpired term, Gov. Donnelly said that he had worked with Senator Briggs in the state Senate since 1933 and that "He's a good parliamentarian with considerable legislative experience." Senator Briggs served as president pro-tem of the state Senate last session.

He was born in Armstrong, Mo., Feb. 25, 1894. He attended Central College at Fayette, and graduated from the University of Missouri School of Journalism in 1915.

His first newspaper jobs were on the Democrat Leader in Fayette and Moberly Index. He became editor-owner of the Trenton, Mo., Times in 1918, and the next year became city editor of the Republican-Tribune in the same town. A job as night editor on the Shawnee (Okla.) News was followed by his becoming assistant city editor of the Oklahoma City Times in 1923. Later that year he became editor of the Macon Chronicle-Herald and in 1926 bought the paper, which he still publishes. He was first elected to the state Senate in 1932.

Senator Briggs is a former mayor of Macon, former grand high priest of Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and former president of the Missouri Associated Dailies.

He was married to Miss Catherine Allen Shull of St. Joseph, Mo., in 1916. They have five children: Thomas, Eugene, Darlene Ruth, Betty Barbara, and Dorothy Catherine.

Eugene Briggs, like his father, is a graduate of the University School of Journalism having received his B.J. degree in 1943. Now in the navy with the rank of ensign, he is serving in the Pacific.

Missouri Alumnus Is 'Getting Around'

We've heard of the Missouri Alumnus being used for many things, but the latest discovery of its usefulness takes the cake. It seems an article in the December issue concerning the marriage of REESE H. WADE, B.J. '33, was used as the basis for a promotion scheme of an insurance salesman. We're glad to know that the Alumnus is literally "getting around."

Lt. Mendenhall's Tent Has Running Water

Lt. Hirst Mendenhall, B.J. '41, was opening six packages from home when correspondent Cy Peterson entered his tent in France. The packages were a month late but they were a welcome sight to Lt. Mendenhall and his company, recent dispatches said.

Car trouble had forced the reporter to spend the night in the tent village of the Marauder Squadron, so he spent the evening interviewing members of the squadron. A Pittsburgh daily newspaper carried the story of his interview with Lt. Mendenhall.

In spite of sub-zero weather, the men had installed hot and cold running water in their tent, and had salvaged an electric stove and material for electric lights from equipment Germans had left behind. There were times when the water was frozen, and chopping enough wood to heat a tent with no insulation was a problem.

When not chopping wood or shoveling snow from the icy runways, Lt. Mendenhall and his friends hunt wild boars, pheasants and other wild game in the forest. The evening of the correspondent's visit was spent trying to trap one of a nest of field rodents beneath the tent floor.

Mrs. Mendenhall, the former Mary Jane McDonnell, B.S. in B.A. '42, recently received his air medal and some German equipment, including three helmets, a woolen cap with a bullet hole in the back, a gas mask, a knife, a German good conduct ribbon, and German emblems. She is living in Columbia.

A. E. Murneek's Article Published in 'Science'

An article entitled "Vitamins in Our Food," written by A. E. Murneek, associate professor of horticulture at the University, appeared in the December 22 edition of "Science" official publication for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Murneek estimates that the people of the United States are spending a quarter of a billion dollars annually on vitamin pills, the contents of which could be gained naturally if proper food was prepared in proper ways.

"By catering to eye appeal," he says, "food growers are losing food value, including vitamins known and unknown. Economy and style, not nutrition and health, have guided most parties concerned in food production and distribution."

The situation is not a hopeless one as he sees it. Scientists are working to find what foods are highest in essential vitamins and minerals, and new ways to use foods that are lacking in them.

Dr. H. H. Noyes Leaves For New Type of School

The Abraham Lincoln School in Chicago, whose faculty Dr. H. H. Noyes will join the first week in February, stresses modern instead of classical studies. The Chicago school sets new standards in American educational procedure says Dr. Noyes, who has been associate professor of English at the University since 1940.

"Abraham Lincoln, although not a degree-granting school, offers university-level work in the range of courses and in the sequence in which these courses are taken," Dr. Noyes says.

The school works toward the cause of total democracy, Dr. Noyes emphasizes. There is no discrimination as to race, religion, creed or previous education. All persons may attend classes based on the levels of their ability and previous training. Many of the new students at Abraham Lincoln also attend the University of Chicago, while others are professional men and women.

Dr. Noyes will develop courses in creative writing and modern American literature. "Modern American literature has been neglected to some extent in many of our schools," he says.

Dr. Noyes received his B.A. in '33, and his M.A. in '36 from the University of Toronto, Canada. While working on his master's degree in English, he taught at St. Andrew's College near Toronto.

After receiving his Ph.D. from the University of London in '38, Dr. Noyes returned to Canada to teach at the universities of Toronto and Manitoba.

Dr. Swindler Publishes Advertising Bulletin

William F. Swindler, head of the Department of Journalism at the University of Idaho, recently published a bulletin on "Legal Advertising Rates of the 48 States." A former instructor in the School of Journalism here, Dr. Swindler received his A.M. degree in '36 and his Ph.D. degree in '42, from the University.

The bulletin is the second in a series based on studies for the Idaho State Editorial Association designed to give newspapermen extended research results in current publishing and editing problems. It compares statistics gathered in a recent survey of state laws defining legal rates. Misconceptions in state laws covering advertising rates are pointed out, clearing up misbeliefs concerning the relation between legal rate averages for the whole country and commercial rate averages for the daily and weekly newspapers throughout the United States.

Missouri Man Helped Doolittle Bomb Tokyo

Charles McClure, f.s. '36-'40, was the navigator with Ted Lawson on the ill-fated B-25 bomber, "The Ruptured Duck" in Lt. James Doolittle's raid over Tokyo.

He was enrolled in the College of Engineering when he left for the Army Air Corps.

About a year after he returned to the United States and to his home in University City, McClure visited in Columbia and described the raid and all ensuing experiences to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gaebler.

The bomber crashed on the coast of China, and he waded to shore in water up to his neck with both shoulders broken.

Enough medical aid was given to the injured to relieve them, but it was not until they were in the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., that they were given expert attention.

At the time he was in Columbia McClure still hadn't regained full use of his arms, but today he is back in the service.

Ted Lawson has written the story of the raid, and it is now pictured in the movie, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo."

When the St. Louis Union Group gave a bomber to the army, McClure accepted it in behalf of the government as the first St. Louis area boy to go over Tokyo.

Coral Floors Walk Out, Writes Missouri Man

The coral atoll on which Pfc. Charles L. Ferguson, B.S. in Agr. '38, is now living in the Philippines rises only six or eight feet above the surrounding ocean and is so small the soldiers' tents cover it entirely. Pfc. Ferguson, who entered the army a little over a year ago, is with the harbor craft of the infantry and had been in New Guinea before being sent to the Philippines.

Pfc. Ferguson writes that the island is covered with loose coral "and there are just about as many trees as tents."

"When we first set up our tent we carried in a floor covering of coral (like gravel) which contained a lot of shells. After the work was over we were sitting back taking a breath and to our surprise we saw our floor liven up and start warlike out. Nope, we had no tuba (a native liquor made from coconut and salt water). The shells contained animals like snails. When everything became quiet they came out of their shells (as snails do) and started out for a relocation!

"The tent sides extend like a porch, and they are so close to the water you can almost reach out and wash your feet.

"Everything isn't war here. There is a lot of monkey biz."

Miss Peggy Gibson, senior in the University, succeeds Miss Williams and will assume her duties in March.

Frances Grinstead Publishes First Novel

A short story written at the mail sorting table in the post office at Morrisville, Mo., the summer before she entered the University as a freshman, became Frances Grinstead's first published fiction. This month her Ozark novel, "The High Road," which includes a picturesque cross-roads store in the hill country with a post-office "at one end of the counter" was published by Doubleday, Doran and Company.

Though the story is not in any sense autobiographical, Miss Grinstead, assistant professor of journalism at the University since 1931,* has made vivid use of her own childhood background in the Ozarks to give the novel its outlook and authenticity.

The Grinstead family moved to Morrisville, in Polk County, when Frances was nine years old. Her father edited the Morrisville Journal, a weekly newspaper, and when Woodrow Wilson became president in 1912, Hugh F. Grinstead was made postmaster in the Ozark town. Himself a short story writer, he was contributing regularly to the Youth's Companion and American Boy. So Frances became the postmaster's assistant and dispatched mail, handed out letters, wrote money orders, and sold stamps to everybody who could read and write and some who couldn't. Here she absorbed the real atmosphere of the hill country which was to become so valuable in the maturing of her own literary career.

In "The High Road" the reader is introduced to an assortment of Ozark characters who continue to creep back into consciousness long after the book is finished.

The story is chiefly concerned with Rove Carruthers, his courtship and marriage to Jubilee Sherman, the miller's daughter, and his unending struggle with Abner Holly, the "successful" one in terms of local criteria. Then there is the understanding Widow Chandler who runs the Halfway store and doles out advice to the lovelorn and comfort to the distressed as easily as she weighs up sugar and measures out piece goods. Unforgettable is that gem of a character, "Pee-Wee" Hooper, the whisky-maker, who gives Rove sage advice in regard to his persistent call to preach the gospel: "Folks don't like for a man to prophesy in his own end of the county."

Whether whisky-maker, preacher, impetuous like Rove, or peace-loving like Sam Melcher, each of these people shares in the unity and bond that finally compels the triumph of their common humanity over their divisiveness. That such little islands of linked humanity still exist in a world torn apart by war and destruction, where even allies quarrel among themselves, is heartening and comforting to the reader who wants to escape from the ugly realities of the moment to a simple miniature of what the world of man may one day become.

Miss Grinstead took her B.J. degree in 1922 and her A.M. in 1928. Her articles and short stories have appeared in a variety of newspapers and magazines while she was teaching feature writing, book reviewing, and magazine writing and editing at the School of Journalism.

Although the manuscript of "The High Road" underwent three full revisions, its author says the process of bringing it into final being was "the most pleasurable experience." This is in keeping with what the late Dean Walter Williams of the School of Journalism once remarked to the writer of this sketch: "Miss Grinstead works harder, makes less fuss about it, and gets more fun out of life than anybody else I know."

*Miss Grinstead has resigned from the School of Journalism to devote her time to writing.

Dr. J. C. Parrish Dies

Funeral services for Dr. J. C. Parrish who died at his home in Vandalia December 4 after an illness of several months, were held at the Christian Church in Vandalia.

Dr. Parrish was appointed to the Board of Curators of the University in 1905 at the request of the State Medical Association, and served two six-year terms. He worked for a four-year school of medicine at the University and helped to develop all the scientific schools.

He supported Dr. A. Ross Hill in his efforts to bring the University to a high degree of service to the state. It was while he was chairman of the executive committee of the Board that the White Campus was built.

Dr. Parrish was born Nov. 5, 1854 in Buchanan County, near St. Joseph. During his youth he lived in Mannington, West Va., coming to St. Louis on a scholarship at the New American College of Medicine at the age of 19. He received his M.D. degree in 1887 and did graduate work in the Polyclinic at New York, taking another medical degree from Marion Sims medical College in 1891. He practiced medicine in Vandalia for 45 years, being employed as surgeon for Alton Railroad until his death.

Dr. Parrish was active in politics, serving many times on the Audrain County and Ninth District Republican Committee in 1900. After being appointed to the Board of Curators at the University, he resigned his political affiliations because he believed the board should be removed from politics.

In World War I, Dr. Parrish served as a member of the Volunteer Medical Service Corps and was the local representative of the War Department in charge of selecting enlisted candidates desiring commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

In 1919, he married MARY ALICE HANNA, A.B. '09, B.S. in Ed. '11. Besides his wife, Dr. Parrish is survived by two daughters and several nieces and nephews.

M. U. Man Commands Defense of Mindoro

Brig. Gen. William C. Dunkel, B.S. in Agr. '15, who has been charged with serving the defense of Mindoro's rapidly being-constructed airfields against possible Japanese counterattacks from nearby bases, and who commanded the landing, has had considerable experience in fighting the Japanese and knows intimately the terrain his forces have taken.

Gen. Dunkel was field artillery commander of the 104th "Timber Wolf" infantry division at Camp Adair, Ore., in 1942 and 1943.

An announcement of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said: "American troops who landed on Mindoro were under the command of Brig. Gen. William C. Dunkel, who was slightly wounded in an air attack the day before but refused to be evacuated and continued to command the group troops who landed."

Gen. Dunkel, who entered the army in the last war during 1917 as a second lieutenant, served as a war plans officer for the Philippines when Gen. MacArthur was chief of staff and in the same capacity from 1930 to 1941 when Gen. MacArthur was military adviser to the Philippines commonwealth government. He was an American division's artillery officer during the heavy fighting at Bougainville in the Solomons. There his field guns smashed many Japanese suicide attacks.

In May Gen. Dunkel rejoined Gen. MacArthur's staff working in the Philippines campaign planning section. He was appointed task force commander.

Medical Men Are Special Jap Targets

Medical aid men in the South Pacific "don't dare to wear the Red Cross arm band prescribed by the Geneva Convention" for fear the Japs will use them as a target, according to PVT. LESTER A. CHANDLER, f. s. '42 in the School of Agriculture, now at O'Reilly General Hospital at Springfield undergoing treatment.

"Early in the war, the Red Cross arm bands were a favorite target for Jap snipers," he said, "and we soon quit wearing them. We were told, by Jap prisoners, that they were carefully instructed by training films how to vary their fire in such a way as to kill medics—if they only had a glimpse of the red arm band."

Such action is pursued by the Nipponese because, depending on the terrain, a wounded man required the services of from four to eight men. This hurts the morale and efficiency of the outfit hampered.

"The Japs take a fiendish delight in wounding and crippling as many medical men as possible," said Pvt. Chandler, "and also in reducing the efficiency of the medical arm."

Telling of the duties of the medical men in this war, he said: "We go into battle with bandages, sulfa, plasma, and morphine. We are strictly on our own. If a man requires plasma, it is administered in a sheltered spot if possible."

"Naturally, we have to use more care than would be used in colder climates in order to guard against infection—but in this regard, sulfa and penicillin have made our work easier."

"When the fourth wave comes ashore on an island, bulldozers are brought along. These scoop out a large dug-out, over which we throw logs or whatever material we have at hand . . . and of course, we camouflage it. This makes a fairly safe aid station."

Pvt. Chandler was wounded June 25, while his company was advancing on some of Saipan's open terrain. Under a heavy Jap barrage, they could find little cover. He was crawling over the field, helping the wounded, and was hit in the right knee by a bullet.

Navy Chaplain W. J. Jarman Returns From Pacific Service

Chaplain W. J. "Jack" Jarman, A.B. '37, returning after 23 months in the Pacific where he served on a destroyer tender, visited in Columbia recently and cited the need for more chaplains in the service.

"Many ships, even large destroyers, are without a chaplain," he said. "There are so few ministers that are eligible, I believe those filling the requirements should think the matter through again. If they can conscientiously enter the service, they should do so. The church has a job to do in ministering to the men in service. It cannot fail to perform this duty."

The Navy requires that the chaplains be under 45 years of age, have a college degree and three years of seminary training.

"Not that the ministers filling requirements," he added, "are unwilling to serve. Often the congregations are reluctant to let them go, because they feel they cannot fill their places."

In this work, Chaplain Jarman has ministered to as many as 20,000 men in a ten-day period. His congregation was a conglomeration of men from PT boats, air wings, mine sweepers, destroyers, LST boats, in fact from practically every type of ship in service.

For a time, Chaplain Jarman was the only "floating chaplain" at New Caledonia.

The chaplain described his navy congregation as larger and more varied than the civilian audience. A service he remembers vividly was one which included the small handful of survivors of the cruiser Juneau. Only the Sunday before he had preached to the throng of Protestant worshippers from the ill-fated ship.

"The chaplain," he explained, "is guide, counselor, parent to the men, or whatever else the situation may call for. Graduate work which I did here at the University in guidance and counseling has been invaluable to me in my work."

After graduating in '37, he was teacher of the Keystone Class in the Christian Church and student pastor at Martinsburg and Rush Hill. He also taught several years at the Christian College Young People's Conference during the summer.

After finishing his training in the Union Theological Seminary in '40, Chaplain Jarman returned to Missouri to become pastor of the Christian Church at Paris where he served until he entered the service in '42.

He described several pet monkeys, one of which got loose and put its soldier owner's tent in a condition which failed to pass military inspection. Parrots are also favorite pets. Pfc. Ferguson described one that "only tries himself out on chicken talk, he hasn't yet come up to human talk." Another however, is quite vocal. Its typical phrase is "Air raid! Air raid!"

The parrot whose education consists of "chicken talk" gets its training from the many roosters among the soldier's tents.

Soldiers traded for these chickens from natives on surrounding islands. Now the first sound before break of day is roosters crowing—just like home. Pfc. Ferguson says it gives him "a good feeling to see and hear them."

The night visitors are not so desirable, he writes. They include rats, and big black ants which visit the sleeper "about every fifteen minutes." Pfc. Ferguson says he also spends a good many slumber hours chasing crickets out of his tent. However "the chickens have cut insects on the island to less than a fourth."

Pfc. Ferguson had jungle fever on shipboard after leaving New Guinea, and had to recover without drugs. He rolled himself in blankets and had to "sweat it out." But he says his recovery has been more rapid than that of many men for whom drugs were available.

Tigers Upset Cyclones, 38-32, Fooling Experts

Missouri fooled most of the experts by upsetting the highly-favored Iowa State Cyclones in the Brewer Field House January 20, 38-32. Louis Menze's over-rated Cyclones fell to pieces on snags of a tight Missouri defense and offense which clicked in near-perfect fashion during the opening half of the game.

The Bengals led by Captain Paul Collins in his final home game, took a quick lead at the start of the contest and rolled it up to 29-14 at the half. During the second half the Missourians played cautious basketball and held to a diminishing lead, despite the frantic efforts of Jim Myers and his ten second-half points.

The Tigers maintained a clear edge over Iowa State in every department of court play. While the Tigers hit steadily in both field goals and free throws, the Cyclones missed just as regularly until Myers started on his second-half spree.

Center Bob Mott of Iowa State set the pattern for the entire openway when he missed a free throw in the second minute. Iowa State made only four of 11 free throws in this half and Cyclone shots from out on the floor were hurried by a taut Tiger defense. The second half was a slightly different story, with the Cyclones making four of six foul tosses and Myers ten of his 16 points for the game. Collins paced Tiger scoring with three field goals and three free throws for nine points.

Collins dribbled in on his favorite fake and dash at about three minutes in the game to open the scoring. Followed by a free throw by Ed Mickelson and Jim Myers' first basket for State, the Tigers led 3-2. Scores by Johnny Heimburger and Collins and a Collins free throw put it up to 8-2 before the Cyclones got two points on Block and Mott free throws.

Mickelson and Myers matched field goals to make the score 10-6, then "Mick" tipped in a rebound, Gene Kurash basketed one of his long bullet heaves, "Red" Weir scored from under the basket, and Collins made a free throw to reach 17-6 before Mott counted on a field goal from the side. From there on, the Tigers forced the game and Kurash, Heinsohn, Freeman, Weir, and Sherman tallied. Deal, Chamberlain, and Myers wound up Cyclone basketing for the half.

Missouri played a slower brand of ball in the second half. They held onto the ball as long as possible and tried to set up their shots carefully. As a result, the Cyclones gradually came out further on the defense and desperately tried to hook the ball away from Tiger ball-handlers.

These tactics, plus Myers' better scoring eye in the half, allowed Iowa State to cut the Missouri edge to six points, and they were steadily drawing closer at the end of the game.

The third quarter found each team adding six points—Collins, Stiegemeier, and Kurash for Missouri and three baskets by Myers for Iowa State, making the score 35-20.

But the last ten minutes were hectic basketball, with the Cyclones carrying the play to Missouri and throwing in 12 points to the Bengals' three. Myers tossed another field goal and two free throws, Feurbach two field goals and a foul shot, Deal a two pointer, and Peterson a free toss. A Stiegemeier basket and a Collins free throw finished Missouri scoring five minutes before the game ended.

Missouri's superior ball handling and shooting against Art Peterson's Nebraska teammates Feb. 3 gave the Tigers a 47-41 victory and put them on an even percentage basis in the Big Six standings at .500.

Harold "Red" Weir and Ed Mickelson, Tiger forwards, scored 22 points between them to offset the Cornhuskers' one-man gang, Art Peterson. Topping the conference in point scoring, the six foot seven inch Nebraska center dropped seven field goals and six charity tosses for a total of 20 points.

The lead changed eight times during the first half. The Tigers found the basket near the close of the opening half to put Missouri in front 25-21 at the midway point. Nebraska threatened in the second half on the strength of Art Peterson's fine individual scoring. But the Tigers with Kurash's long shots and "Red" Weir and Ed Mickelson's close-up baskets earned their second conference victory. This was the Cornhuskers' sixth straight defeat in conference play this season. Lane Bauer, replacing Bob Heinsohn at center, scored three field goals.

Coach Edwards moved Ed Mickelson to a forward post to team with Weir. The move paid dividends. Weir and Mickelson led the Tiger scorers, and Mickelson's additional height with Heinsohn, six foot five inch center, aided the Tigers in regaining rebounds in the front court. Bill Dellastatious made his appearance as a guard for a Missouri replacement and scored two points.

Seahawks Humble Tigers In Easy Win, 74-38

The sharp-shooters from Iowa Pre-flight gave the Tiger cage team a lesson in passing and trick plays as they hung up a 74-38 defeat on Missouri, January 13, in Brewer Field House.

Joe Holland, the 6 foot, 3 inch Seahawk center, turned in the top offensive performance of the game as he scored nine field goals and three charity shots for 21 points.

Gene Kurash, who was supposed to play only 15 minutes because of an infected ear, started for Missouri and topped the scoring with 15 points on seven long shots and a free throw.

George Edwards, Missouri coach, pulled two surprise moves in starting Kurash and John Heimbürger at forwards.

The team was no match for the Hawks, whose passes and tip-in shots had the Tiger defense flatfooted most of the way.

Ed Mickelson won the tip-off for Mizzou, but fouled Charley Pugsley as the Seahawk guard intercepted a pass. Pugsley's free throw put his team ahead after seven seconds of play.

After two minutes of play Pre-flight led 7-1, as Mickelson's free throw was matched by field goals by Pugsley, Jim Klein, and T. S. Ary, their leading scorer.

After four minutes the Seahawks had a 13-5 lead, as Wayne Weaver, Holland, and Pugsley all connected. Kurash and Heimbürger made goals for Missouri.

Pre-flight led 26-11 at the end of the first ten minutes and hiked the margin to 39-18 at the end of the first half. Fourteen fouls were called against both teams in the first 20 minutes.

For a minute early in the second period, it appeared the Tigers were coming to life and might give the Iowans a scare before the evening was over.

Klein broke the ice in the second minute with a set-up shot, but Kurash came back to sink a free throw for the Tigers. Ary made good on a basket and free throw, but Kurash sank the first of four long shots at hat point. Dale Freeman sank a free throw, which Klein duplicated, but Kurash came through for two quick goals, followed by a goal by "Red" Weir.

At this point the score was 45-28, but Pre-flight rallied to hike their lead to 54-30 at the end of the third quarter.

Former Tiger Is Member Of Unbeaten Navy Team

Ensign Michael Fitzgerald, known to Missouri football fans as "Iron Mike," was a member of the undefeated Bainbridge, Md., naval station football team.

Fitzgerald lettered as guard on Tiger teams in '40-'41, and '42. He won all-conference honors during his last two years.

The Bainbridge team eased through nine game against service teams, and received an invitation to play Randolph Field in the Oil Bowl at Houston for the service championship. But Washington stepped in to put a ban on post-season games for service teams.

K-State Beats Bengals, 50-29

Kansas State's Wildcats took over undisputed ownership of third place Feb. 5 by soundly beating Missouri 50-29, at Manhattan, Kan.

Trailing 26-17 at the intermission, the Tigers could dent the Wildcats' basket for only two field goals in the second half, as the Kansans pulled steadily away.

Missouri's erratic shooting from the foul line helped make the Wildcats' margin of victory a safe one, as the Bengals missed on 13 attempts. "Red" Weir, with two field goals and two charity tosses, shared scoring honors for the Tigers with Gene Kurash who sank three long shots. Kansas Dave Weatherby's 16 points gave him individual scoring honors.

The Wildcats had no trouble winning their third game of the year. Sharp shooting by Weatherby and Bill Schultz, one of Coach Fritz Knorr's 17-year-olds, gave Kansas an early lead which they never relinquished.

The Tigers scored their initial points from the field in the second period when Weir tossed in a one-hander after nine minutes had elapsed. Seven minutes later, John Heimbürger registered the other two-pointer.

Tigers Drop Two On Oklahoma Tour

Missouri's travel weary basketball Tigers returned home Jan. 29 after an unsuccessful invasion of Oklahoma, losing to the Sooners on the 26th and bowing to the powerful Norman Navy Blue Jackets on the 27th, 61-34.

Coach George Edwards said recently that the Tigers were far off their average shooting form on their Oklahoma tour, but intimated that he didn't expect Missouri to seriously threaten the star-packed Norman Navy team.

Gibbs and Day scored 26 points between them for the Zoomers with Earl Stiegemeier heading the Tigers with three field goals.

Coach Edwards substituted freely in the Norman game. Collins played only half of the game for the Tigers, tallying one field goal. Playing his last game for Missouri, Lane Bauer broke into the scoring column with a field goal.

New Tiger Captain

With the loss of Paul Collins through graduation, Missouri's Tigers found themselves in need of a new captain and chose Earl Stiegemeier, also a guard, to fill Collins' place.

Sooners Defeat Missouri Tigers, 43-27

The Oklahoma "Runts" treated 3000 fans at Norman to an exhibition of guarding Jan. 26, as they topped the Missouri Tigers, 43-27.

Playing his last Big Six game, Paul Collins was given the tough assignment of guarding Harold "Scooter" Hines, the 5 foot, 5 inch O. U. forward who has averaged more than 13 points a game. He held the set-shot artist to three field goals, but guarded too closely, and the Sooners made good on five free throws. Collins fouled out with four minutes to play. He scored two goals and a charity shot for five points.

Mizzou held the lead only once, when Earl Stiegemeier flipped a long shot through the basket after eight minutes of the second half had gone. However, the Sooners guarded so hard thereafter the Tigers failed to register another goal.

Don Buelow, sub guard, got a starting call from Coach Bruce Drake and made 14 points on six goals and two free throws. Kurash and Mickelson split the Bengal scoring honors with six each.

O. U. started fast and registered a 11-3 lead at the end of the first quarter. Missouri was saved from being smothered by Mickelson's tip-in shot and a two-pointer on Collins' best play, a fake to the right and a left-handed shot under Landon's arm. The intermission score was 21-16.

The Tigers flashed their best offensive play at the start of the second half. Red Weir flipped in two running one-handed goals, and Stiegemeier's long set-shot gave the Tigers a temporary lead. However, the Sooners came back fast. They were sparked by Don Kruse, sub center, who came in after Brinegar fouled out and scored two baskets.

Lane Bauer, playing his final Big Six game for the duration, saw five minutes of action, but failed to register a point.

It was Missouri's poorest offensive showing to date. The Tigers mustered only nine field goals during the game, and missed 11 charity shots.

There Are Too Many Sleeping Beauties in American Homes . . .

If you could peek into America's living rooms during after-dinner hours, you'd find many a sleeping beauty like the one above.

These people aren't tired — they are victims of light — too glaring light — too dim light — wrong lighting of one kind or another.

Better light will help keep them awake and alert. You can help bring this about by cleaning fixtures, reflector bowls and bulbs, using correct size bulbs and shading them properly.

Only a Piece of Paper!

It may be the torn-off cover of a cardboard box, a piece of an old magazine, some discarded wrapping paper.

But if saved and collected, it may become the container for a quart of blood plasma that will save a GI's life.

Or it may become part of an airborne container that will drop food or medicine to liberated peoples.

Our armed forces need every scrap of waste paper. Throw it away and you're throwing away helmet linings, gun covers, ration containers—countless war materials too numerous to mention. Save every scrap to help bring victory and peace.

Enjoy it at home, too, with frosty Coca-Cola from your own refrigerator.
