GOOD MEDICINE

HARVEY WALTERS settled back in his chair on the sheltered side of the terrace, closed his eyes and turned up his face to enjoy the full warmth of the late afternoon sun. It was good to be home again. Good to be sitting here in his favorite old chair. Good to be alive.

He dozed off, presently, as he had several times that afternoon. Rest . . . they said that was the important thing, right now . . .

When Harvey opened his eyes a half-hour later, Fred Parsons was sitting in the chair next to him, smoking his pipe contentedly and looking across the lawn. "Hi, Fred," he said, "where'd you come from?"

Fred turned and grinned. "Your good wife, Clara, let me in ten minutes ago. She's back in the kitchen getting your afternoon snack together. Said she might even make me a cup of tea!" He looked closely at the other man. "Tell me, Harvey—did you have a pretty bad time of it?"

"Yes I did, Fred. For a few days, there, things didn't look too good. But I had good doctors and good nurses—and Clara was wonderful through it all." Harvey was silent for a moment and then said, "You know, Fred, another thing that helped me pull through was that good medicine you sold me twenty years ago."

Fred raised his eyebrows questioningly and waited. "I mean it, Fred. They didn't have to tell me things were tough. I knew it. And believe me, a million things run through your mind. About yourself. About your family. One thing I remember, out of all the muddle, was how good it was to know that at least Clara would be able to get along and the kids wouldn't have to quit college and come home . . ." He paused for a moment and then went on. "Yes, I believe that knowing those New York Life policies were around did me an awful lot of good at a time when I sure needed it . . ."

Clara Walters came through the door from the living-room with a tray of tea things in her hands and said, "It's a beautiful day, isn't it?"

Her husband looked at her and smiled. "It sure is!"

Fred Parsons said, "Couldn't be better!" And he decided that this was as nice an afternoon as he had spent in many a year.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY
51 Madison Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

FEW OCCUPATIONS offer a man so much in the way of personal reward as life underwriting. Many New York Life agents are building very substantial futures for themselves by helping others plan ahead for theirs. If you would like to know more about a life insurance career, talk it over with the New York Life manager in your community—or write to the Home Office at the address above.

I wanted personal freedom, and payment in direct proportion to my efforts

BACK in the days when I was deciding on a career, I was determined to choose one that would give me great personal freedom, plus advancement and pay in direct proportion to my efforts.

Of all the possibilities I studied, only one career — life insurance — seemed to promise these particular rewards. I next investigated several companies, and selected New England Mutual — for a number of reasons. I had been impressed with its magazine advertising*. My college roommate had joined this company earlier and had established a fine record. And I liked the type of men I met in the New England's offices here in Kansas.

I'm glad I made the choice I did. For now, I honestly feel that every minute of every day of the rest of my business career is mine to do with as I please. I am paid in direct proportion to my efforts. There is no waiting for advancement through "channels." But, even more important, life insurance is more than a mere job. It is a source of ever-increasing satisfaction for me to provide my clientele with a safe investment which becomes so vitally important to them in times of distress or tragedy.

Charles A. Colby

Recent graduates of our Home Office training course, although new to the life insurance business, earn average first-year commissions of $4200—which, with renewal commissions added, brings the total yearly income average to $6500. From here, incomes rise in direct proportion to each individual's ability and industry.

If you'd like information about a career that gives you a business of your own, with no slow climb up a seniority ladder and no ceiling on earnings, write Mr. H. C. Chaney, Director of Agencies, 501 Boylston Street, Boston 17, Mass.

The New England Mutual, America's first chartered mutual life insurance company, backs up its field force with strikingly effective national advertising. This advertisement, appearing currently in The Saturday Evening Post and Fortune (in full color), and in Time, Newsweek and Business Week, tells millions of prospects about the advantages and flexibility of New England Mutual policies, and urges them to consult our field men for expert help on life insurance problems.

CHARLES A. COLBY, Wichita, Kansas

These Univ. of Missouri men are New England Mutual representatives:

FRANK M. SEE, C.L.U., '11, Gen. Agt., St. Louis.

JOHN T. READY, '14, Kansas City.

R. L. CASEBOLT, '23, Kansas City.

GORDON E. CROSBY, Jr., '41, Seattle.

They can give you expert counsel on uniquely liberal and flexible New England Mutual life insurance that's tailored to fit your family's needs.

LETTER TO THE READERS

The Missouri Alumnus

The world is full of people. A lot of these people are Missourians, and not a few are University of Missouri alumni.

Occasionally, the trails of old friends cross. Once in a while two or three of these alums meet, or perhaps several on rare occasions, and they get a chance to visit about "the days when." Time and distance fade into nothingness, and forgotten memories of college days come flooding back.

Now and then somebody who knows both the words and the music report on experiences such as these. When they do, and its Bill Corum and Harper Moulton speaking, maybe we should listen in:

"And kow is your brother, Wes Moulton, the famous atomic scientist? I taught him how to make a nine with three threes."

"Mary Margaret McBride was talking a pretty good story then—still is"

"Ever hear of a fellow named Allison Reppey? I haven't seen him for thirty years."

And on they talked of other people and places — Burriss Jenkins, Jr., Omar Bradley, Johnny O'Connor—and the first World War stories gave us this one:

Moulton, who started as an alto-horn player in the band, became an officer and a gentleman, and gave his government issue raincoat to a French lieutenant in La Belle, France when he was able to splurge on a Burberry trench coat, befitting his rank.

That was in 1918. In the 1930's one of Harper's brothers was an American consul in Marseilles, or thereabouts. The brother had an attractive daughter and one evening a young Frenchman of her acquaintance came to call.

It was a rainy evening and the youngster carelessly tossed his raincoat over a chair. Harper's niece scarcely could believe her eyes when she happened to see that stenciled inside the collar of the coat was "H. H. Moulton, Sgt., U. S. A."

Apparently papa had passed his raincoat on to his son, and a dozen years later it had come home to roost among the same Moultons where it had begun its tour of duty.

Sincerely,

THE COVER—In his twenty-five years of service to Missouri Workshop, Don Rhynsburger has developed all the arts—our photographer caught him explaining this terpsichorean motive of the production, "The Winslow Boy," which starred Miss Pat McClarney, Broadway actress. Miss McClarney and Rodger Laramore, student from Middlebrook, Mo., proved to be worthwhile pupils, too, judging from the success of the production.

ROBERT G. ZUMWINKLE

Men's Director

Robert G. Zumwinkle, graduate of the University of Minnesota, has been appointed director of student affairs for men at the University of Missouri. He joined the staff in August, and will work under Dr. Jack Matthews, news dean of students.

Mr. Zumwinkle received his B.A. degree from the University of Minnesota in 1943 with a major in political science and a minor in psychology and sociology. In his graduate work he has majored in educational psychology and minored in education and philosophy of science. He has successfully passed his preliminary examinations for the Ph.D. degree, and is currently completing his thesis which is in the field of student relations.

Mr. Zumwinkle is married and he and his wife have two boys, one twenty months old and the other four months old.

University Concert Series

The 1950-51 Concert Series of the University of Missouri is offering two brilliant young stars of the Metropolitan Opera and two of the nation's leading symphony orchestras.

Eleanor Steber, famed Metropolitan soprano, opened the season October 12 and 13. The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will make its annual visit on December 6 and 7, and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on April 4 and 5. The celebrated young Italian tenor, Ferruccio Tagliavini, will present concerts on April 25 and 26.

M. U. Representatives

The University of Missouri was represented by Prof. Leslie K. Grimes at the inauguration of Val H. Wilson as president of Colorado Woman's College, Denver.

Mr. Grimes is professor of education at the University of Denver. He received two degrees from the University of Missouri, an A.B. in 1923 and an A.M. in 1934.

Dr. Wilson will become the sixth president of Colorado Woman's College at the inauguration on Oct. 14.

H. W. Prentis, Jr., chairman of the board of Armstrong Cork Company, Lancaster, Pa., represented the University at the inauguration of Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower as president of the Pennsylvania State College on October 5.

Mr. Prentis, a 1903 graduate of the University, received a Doctor of Laws degree from his Alma Mater at Commencement exercises here last June 9.

Thomas C. Reed, zone manager and director of Southern Dairies, Inc., of Greensboro, N. C., represented the University of Missouri at the inauguration of Dr. Gordon Gray as president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, at Greensboro, Chapel Hill, and Raleigh, on October 8, 9, and 10.

Mr. Reed received a B.S. in Agr. degree from the University of Missouri in 1912, and a Master of Arts degree in 1914.

Bezoni Made Comptroller

Ray Bezoni, '38, has been promoted from auditor to comptroller of the University of Missouri, and Dale Bowling, '43, has been promoted from assistant auditor to auditor.

Bowling will be responsible for all internal and departmental auditing and Bezoni will supervise work of the university cashier, be responsible for all records pertaining to inventory and property owned by the university, and otherwise continue all his present duties except those as auditor.

Both Bowling and Bezoni will be responsible separately to Leslie Cowan, vice-president in charge of business operations.

Before leaving for Korea, H. D. Quigg of the United Press telephoned his mother, Mrs. H. D. Quigg, Sr., of Boonville to send him some corn cob pipes to present to his friend, General MacArthur, reports the Cooper County Record.

Alumna Made Assistant Director of Admissions

Miss Sara Frances Grant has been named assistant director of admissions of the University of Missouri, beginning September 1, 1950.

Miss Grant, who is better known as "Sally" to her many friends in Columbia where she has always lived, received her B.S. degree in Education at the University of Missouri in 1931. October 1, 1937, she started work in the Registrar's office as clerk, then to chief clerk and to office manager. July 1, 1949, she was appointed manager of the office of admissions, remaining in this capacity until the recent appointment as assistant to Dr. C. W. McLane, A.M. '35, Ph.D. '42, Director of Admissions.

Miss Grant's charming personality and kindly interest in the problems which are presented daily to her desk have added much to both the office of the Registrar and to the office of Admissions during these years. Staff members of the University and students alike speak her praises. A friend who has worked with her a long time says, "She tells me she can get angry, but I have never seen her do so in her work," and a student recently came away from an interview saying, "I am only sorry I did not have more questions to ask!"

Miss Grant's primary duties are in connection with general office management including information, files, records, transcripts and teacher certification, statistics and commencement activities; with selection, training and supervision of office personnel and maintenance of personnel records including vacations and payroll, and, in the absence of the Registration Assistants, the supervision of that work.

SARA F. GRANT

Recent Campus Changes

With the completion of five major building projects, furnishing structures which are being used for the first time during the 1950-51 school year, with substantial progress being made on others, and with the repainting, inside and out, of some fourteen campus buildings, an altered campus face was presented to the 8592 students beginning classwork at the University of Missouri on September 25, 1950.

The south side addition to Rothwell Gymnasium was completed and occupied early in the summer. The new Chemistry Building on the East Campus, one of the finest laboratories available anywhere, is in use for the first time. Three dormitories, Women's Residence Hall "A" on Rollins Street east of Rothwell gymnasium, and Southeast and Southwest dormitories for men, have been put into use.

A. In the two blocks between Hitt and College and bordering Rollins on the north is the site of the Agricultural Building of the future. The first unit now under construction is shown in the right foreground. Dormitories 5 and 6 are at the extreme left.

B. Women's Hall "A", the largest of the new dormitories, houses 318 students. The ground floor cafeteria was completed in 1948 as an emergency measure.

C. The new addition to Rothwell Gymnasium extends the first and ground floor of the original building. It provides shower and locker rooms, offices, classrooms and training and equipment rooms for Intercollegiate Athletics.

D. Only a corner is shown of the faculty housing unit which accommodates 90 families.

E. The laboratory of the Poultry Department of the Division of Agriculture was first used in 1948.

F. Between Sanborn Experimental Field and other agricultural buildings, including the home of the Director of the Division of Agriculture, the Livestock Pavilion and the engineering laboratories, is Dairy Lawn Trailer Camp and (left) Eckles Hall.

G. A rear view of Women's Hall "A" does not include the east fourth of the building.

H. The Men's Dormitory Group on Hillcrest Avenue is composed of Defoe Hall, completed in 1940, Northwest Dormitory, put in use last year, and the recently completed Southwest and Southeast Dormitories.

I. This area includes Dormitories 3 and 4 and the South Dormitory Bar-racks group.

Women's Residence Hall "A" is a block long and three and one-half stories high. It accommodates 318 students and houses a cafeteria.

Southeast and Southwest Dormitories, along with Defoe Hall and the year-old Northwest wing, complete the South Dormitory Men's Group which accommodates 1,000 students.

Work is progressing on the first laboratory unit of the Agricultural Building on the East Campus. This projected structure, when completed according to future plans, will be two blocks long and will house the entire College of Agriculture.

The second addition, a block of 3735 seats, to Memorial Stadium, was put in use at the opening of the football season.

The foundation is ready for the Classroom Building being constructed just west of Jesse Hall between the Education and Engineering buildings.

Student interest in buildings under construction is centered chiefly in the $2,210,000 Memorial Union Building which will adjoin the Memorial Tower on the north, and which is scheduled to be completed within eighteen months.

The Memorial Union Building is being erected in memory of University students who died in World War II. It will extend approximately 148 feet north from the Tower, and will be approximately 185 feet in depth. It will have two stories above the ground floor, and will be of white stone exterior construction to match the architecture of Memorial Tower and other buildings on the East Campus. The main lounge, which will be approximately 100 feet long and 50 feet wide, will have its entrance from Memorial Tower through the Memorial Lobby, and will also open into the main corridor of the building to give easy access to other parts of the building.

Only one new student home was built this year by the Greek letter organizations. The new $150,000 modernistic brick home of Phi Gamma Delta on College Avenue is being completed to replace a frame structure destroyed by fire more than two years ago.

At the School of Mines and Metallurgy, Rolla, a dormitory to house 177 students has been completed. The laboratory section of the Mechanical Engineering Laboratories is in use, and the exterior of the Chemical Engineering Building, with work progressing toward its completion. The Men's Dormitory was dedicated at special exercises on October 6 with Frank C. Mann of the Board of Curators as principal speaker.

Other construction at the School of Mines and Metallurgy includes a $120,000 remodeling project on the Experiment Station Building, formerly occupied by the United States Bureau of Mines. This project is a three-story addition for use by the Metallurgy department. The remodeling project also includes an additional floor in a high-ceiling laboratory room and a third-floor hallway. A new $5,000 basketball floor has been laid in Jacking gymnasium, and fireproof stairways are being installed in Norwood Hall and the Old Chemistry Building.

A total of 8,592 students had enrolled in the Columbia divisions of the University of Missouri at the close of regular registration for the fall semester, according to Dr. C. W. McLane, director of admissions. Of the total, 6,734 are men and 1,858 women.

With 1,649 students registered in the University School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla, this makes a total of 10,241 registered in all divisions of the University.

Enrollment in the Columbia divisions at a comparable time a year ago totaled 10,020 students, and at the School of Mines and Metallurgy there were 2,465 registered, for a total of 12,485 students in all divisions. Late registrations at Columbia last year brought the final total enrollment at the end of three weeks of classes to 10,373. Dr. McLane said that late registrations may increase current figures by a comparable percentage.

The total of 8,592 shows 1,428 fewer students than had enrolled in the Columbia divisions last year. However, it is only 400 less than the estimate of 9,000 given by admissions authorities some weeks ago based upon advance registrations and the number who had applied for permits to enroll. This estimate was made before the war situation in Korea had become serious enough to affect registrations. A large number of students who have been attending the University have been called to active service within the past few weeks, as have a number of prospective students who have been inducted through Selective Service.

Nine Negro students have been admitted to the Columbia divisions of the University of Missouri. Eight are enrolled in the Graduate School and one is enrolled in the College of Arts and Science.

Members of the staff of the University of Missouri who are called to active duty in the armed services during the present emergency will be regarded as on leave of absence during that service and will be reinstated upon their return with the same tenure and in the same type of service.

MISSOURI HEADLINERS

DAVID MEEKER

Six Meeker Alums

From a farm near Cabool, Missouri, came a family of six Meeker brothers, all of whom attended the University of Missouri and all of whom have made interesting lives for themselves, and history for their alma mater.

Phillip, Werter and Frank Meeker, former students of the University, have made their homes in the Northwest and are engaged in similar businesses, all of which deal with feed, seed, and fertilizers. Phil has an extensive industry with the chief interest being his experimental work with seeds. He lives in Amity, Oregon. Werter is engaged in fertilizer and feed business in Woodland, Washington, and Frank in Salem, Oregon.

David Meeker, who received his B.S. in Agriculture at the University of Missouri in 1924, has recently been appointed Pacific Coast sales manager of Dearborn Motors. Until his promotion he was director of education for Dearborn Motors, which is the national marketing organization for the Ford tractor and Dearborn farm equipment.

Upon graduation, Meeker served fifteen years with the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Missouri as a county agent and as district agent.

Mrs. David Meeker, the former Helen Elizabeth Kendrick of Knob Noster, Mo., received a B.S. in Education in 1926. Mr. and Mrs. Meeker and three children now live in Oakland, California.

Clifford R. Meeker, state extension specialist in balanced farming of the Agricultural Extension service of the University, received his B.S. degree in agricultural in 1925 and lives on a farm near Columbia, Mo.

Brice Meeker and his wife, the former Wilma Davis, are graduates of the class of 1948 of the University, and Brice continued advanced work for his A.M. and Ph.D. degrees at Purdue University in Lafayette, Indiana. This year he is doing his graduate research in England under the terms of the Fulbright Act. They are living near Oxford.

Bacon Heads State Legion

Charles L. Bacon, LL.B. '34, of Marshall, Mo., was elected commander of the Missouri Department of the American Legion on September 5 at the thirty-second annual convention of the department held in Kansas City, Mo.

Graduating with an A.B. degree from Missouri Valley College in 1930, Bacon was chosen the outstanding graduate of that class on the basis of scholarship, leadership and service. A member of Sigma Nu fraternity, he was active in dramatics, music and debate.

After working one year, Bacon entered the law school of the University of Missouri, where he was president of the student body, and a member of Phi Delta Phi, Editorial Board of Law Review, and Mystical Seven.

Since graduation he has practiced law in Marshall, with the exception of forty-four months in the U. S. Navy, from which he was released to inactive duty as Lieutenant Commander.

In 1938 Mr. Bacon became the youngest president of the Marshall Chamber of Commerce. Other civic interests include Red Cross, Teen-Age Club, Lions Club, Presbyterian Church and Masonic Lodge. He is vice-president of the Board of Trustees of Missouri Valley College.

He joined the Marshall Post of the American Legion in 1946, became seventh district chaplain in 1947, department judge advocate in 1948, and senior vice-president in 1950.

The Chamber of Commerce of Marshall held a recognition dinner in his honor on September 19. Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush of the University of Missouri was the guest speaker of the evening.

Seven Rudder Alumni

Samuel M. Rudder, C. E. '15, let Colorado University score a point against us when his oldest son, Sam, Jr., received his degree in chemical engineering from that institution, but we can still count seven among his family of Missouri graduates.

Rudder is highway planning engineer of the State Highway department and lives in Jefferson City, Mo. Mrs. Rudder was the former Nadine Roach, '17.

Their son, John C. Rudder received his degree in civil engineering from the University of Missouri in 1943. He is now employed as engineering superintendent with Porter-DeWitt Construction Company of Poplar Bluff, Mo. At present he is working on a highway job at Benton, Ky. They have two sons.

Daughter Marion, now Mrs. John W. Kern, received a degree in B. and P. A. from M. U. in 1943. Mr. Kern, also a graduate of B. and P. A., '47, is treasurer of Mid-Continent Paint Company, Kansas City, Mo. The Kerns have one daughter and live in Mission, Knas.

Constance A. Rudder, now Mrs. Douglas Rogers, is a home economics graduate, '48. Rogers, also a graduate of the University of Missouri, is now a dental student at the University of Kansas City. They have one son.

Sam, Jr. is sales representative for Foxboro Instrument Company in Indiana, with headquarters at Indianapolis. They have one daughter.

With five grandchildren as prospective students, Grandpa Rudder should "watch that Missouri line." Rudder, Sr., lives at 1120 Moreau Dr., Jefferson City, Mo.

Jane Froman will sing in the Persian Room at the Hotel Plaza in New York City through the month of October.

Hyde to Jurists Conference

Chief Justice Laurance M. Hyde of the Supreme Court of Missouri is Chairman of the Conference of Chief Justices of the forty-eight states and presided at the second annual meeting of the Conference held in Richmond and Williamsburg, Virginia, and Washington, D. C. September 15-19, 1950. Sessions were held both in Richmond and Washington.

The Jurists and their wives were guests of the Virginia Commission and the Virginia Bar Association in Richmond, and visited historic shrines in Richmond and Williamsburg.

In Washington, the Conference closed with the Judiciary Banquet in the Presidential Ballroom of the Statler Hotel, at which guests of honor Chief Justices of the forty-eight states, Justices of the United States Supreme Court, Justices of the Supreme Court of Canada, the Chief Justice of the Canadian Provinces and Sir Norman Birkett of the English Supreme Court of Judicature. The speakers table at this dinner represented the greatest concentration of judicial power ever assembled.

Mrs. Hyde and their daughter, Mrs. Florence Hyde Hines, accompanied Judge Hyde to the Conference.

The University Library has added five new members to its full-time staff, raising the total to sixty-one.

The above scene was taken from one of the most popular of the major productions of Missouri Workshop, "Dark of the Moon," given in 1949. It is a lusty hillbilly saga with songs dramatizing the life of Barbara Allen.

Missouri Workshop Special

When W. H. Mikesell joined the staff of the English department of the University of Missouri in the fall of 1922, the University Dramatic Club furnished the nucleus of students who formed the Missouri Workshop. The organization was patterned after Professor G. P. Baker's famous Harvard 47 Workshop. It was through the guidance and sponsorship of Mr. Mikesell that its first play, "The Copperhead," was presented in March, 1923, in a local movie house. Since that time only one other production has been given off-campus, the remainder being produced in Jesse Hall auditorium.

For the next three years, the Workshop director changed annually. G. H. Scholtz produced "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "The Boomerang" in 1923-24. In 1924-25 Professor Vance Morton directed "The Show Shop" and "Dear Brutus."

In September, 1925, Professor Donovan Rhynsbarger became director of Workshop activities. With the exception of the 1936-'37 and '37-'38 seasons, when Professor Herbert Hake assumed these duties, Professor Rhynsbarger has continued in this capacity. Special activities are being planned this year along with the Homecoming festivities of November 22 and 23, honoring Mr. Rhynsbarger's twenty-five years of service.

The dramatics department of the University of Missouri, since its modest start, has grown and flourished. It now has four staff members and offers ten courses in dramatics to students. The policies of the University toward dramatics have strongly favored the development of appreciation of the theatre and the dramatic arts.

Missouri Workshop is one of the largest extra-curricular activity groups on the campus. It is an open organization. One of the main objectives of the Workshop is to extend to all students in the University the opportunity and privilege of participating in dramatic activities with the aim of building and perpetuating an audience for the legitimate theatre. Any student with an M grade average and having more than 12 hours credit may join by paying a nominal associate membership fee. When he has earned points to prove himself worthy, he may be initiated into full membership in Workshop Club.

Presenting four major productions annually, each year's program has aimed to include a revival of an important classic, a play by an important contemporary literary figure, a comedy or farce recently seen on Broadway, and a serious play from contemporary literature. In addition to the major productions, Workshop presents intramural, original and experimental one-act plays. Taking part in two major productions given in 1949-50 were 116 active and associate members of Workshop Club and 64 non-members. Of the 212 persons taking active part in the one-act productions, more than sixty per cent were non-members of Missouri Workshop Club, thus indicating the opportunities offered by an open, extracurricular organization.

Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush is one of a five-member state panel named by Gov. Forrest Smith to screen applicants for the Fulbright foreign scholarships.

Twenty-five Years With Workshop

By MARY PAXTON KEELEY

Don Rhynsburger and his Missouri Workshop have been many things to many people in the twenty-five years he has sponsored it. Letters written from many places and professions tell the value of his work better than it could be told otherwise.

Marion Shockley, well known actress, writes: "My work in dramatics at M. U. was the start of my acting career. I'd certainly never thought of acting before I appeared in plays there. As a matter of fact, I didn't intend to continue acting after I left there, but fate has a curious way of changing our plans. And the ensuing years have made me grateful for the training I received at Missouri, for as an actress, I've had a full, enjoyable life. Recently, I've been doing some television, and I guess that about runs the gamut—pictures, stock companies, Broadway, radio and television. Some of the people I've worked with come to mind: Geo. M. Cohan, Walter Pidgeon, Jane Cowl, Ina Claire, Orson Welles, Brian Aherne, Denis King, Ray Miland, Helen Hayes, but none more dear to me than Don Rhynsburger."

Harold Kathman, the Easton Star-Democrat says: "Few teachers have the ability to transmit their own enthusiasms, ideals, and knowledge to their students. Very few indeed implant principles that still shine bright after twenty-two years, especially in an art as murky as the theatre. You have done that for me, and I, in turn, have tried to pass them on, while I was playing stock or directing high school plays, while I was starving and breaking my heart on Broadway, while I was writing and directing and producing my own play, and now while I'm directing a Little Theatre Group here."

Bown Adams, owner of the Bown Adams Professional Studio, New York, adds his tribute to the flood of letters: "One of the best things that ever happened to me was attending the University of Missouri, and the best thing for any artist is to work under Don Rhynsburger at Missouri Workshop. It has resulted in my case in my wife and I establishing ourselves in the creative world of the theatre, and after all creating must be one of the fundamental principles of living."

Cena Christopher Draper, playwright with several volumes of children's plays to her credit, says: "There is no doubt about what an important part dramatics has played in my life. For seven years I had a Little Theatre here with classes of children from five to seventeen. We put on pageants and plays in the College out-of-door theatre; I wrote all the material and directed it. Then in an AAUW group, I organized a two year program in reading Shakespeare's plays aloud. In our Woman's Club of Arts, Books and Crafts, I organized and headed the Drama Group and substituted at the Central Missouri College in the Dramatics Department. That is only the beginning of the things I have done for which Don trained me. There isn't enough I can say for him, and, without his fine coaching and his sense of fairness and his real talent, I am sure all of us would say our lives would lack some of the color that his training brought into them."

Frank H. Gearhart, Kansas City, psychologist Veteran's Bureau, says "The great influence Don had had in teaching and preparing students for the theatrical profession is small compared with the number in whom he has instilled a love of the stage, acting and producing on an avocational basis. As a psychologist, I feel that it is this which is his greatest contribution to the University and to Society. Hobbies make for good emotional adjustment. With the increasing amount of mental disorder in our civilization, we need a lot more "Dons," who with their dynamic love of their field can pass it on to their students without thinking of the training in purely vocational terms. Unfortunately, there is only one Don Rhynsburger, and his personal contacts have to be limited, but a new theatre for him would certainly broaden his secondary contacts."

Duke Paddock writes: "The experience I gained in Missouri dramatics was to prove valuable. I continued in play acting in Little Theatre groups and other organizations from coast to coast for many years after graduation. Only last winter I put on grease paint again and had a lot of fun learning lines and stage business. But Don Rhynsburger's influence goes far beyond student dramatics and mere participation in home talent plays. During my war service in World War II, I had to instruct soldiers in a complicated technical matter. We organized a dramatic team to demonstrate this action. It was very successful and contributed in its small way to the success of the war. I would never have attempted it if I had not learned something of dramatic direction back in the University."

W. E. Payton of Kansas City writes: "You might expect dramatics as you teach it to be helpful in radio, television, entertainment and allied fields, but my vocation is the automobile and farming, and I want to tell you that of all my studies, yours was the most enjoyable and more important and most helpful to me now. The little things I acquired from you some twenty years ago have helped me with my sales force, our service people, and our daily contacts with customers. I think good expression oils the cogs of human relationship. I certainly hope my child has the privilege of studying Missouri dramatics under you, even if she turns out to be a farm wife."

Mrs. Thomas E. Walker of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, contributes: "Tom and I were thrilled at the opportunity of expressing what our college dramatics meant to us, but when we tried to put our feelings into words we ran into some difficulty. It seems there are so many intangible things associated with our participation in dramatics. First, I met my husband when he was butler and I maid in "The State of the Union." I majored in dramatics, because it was a way of making people happy by taking them out of themselves, showing them another side of life and making them appreciate their own lives more than ever. I know I gained a good deal of confidence in myself by being in Workshop productions. Since we have been out of school, we have found our dramatic experience has been most important both in teaching and directing youth activities. Dramatics opens new interests for children, brings out a hidden capacity of accepting responsibility, develops character, and dissolves shyness. Just recently, we moved to Chapel Hill and have made many good friends through Tom's playing Sir Andrew in the Playmaker's Theatre of the "Twelfth Night."

Irwin J. Reif writes: "I was active in dramatics, which made me useful in the Signal Corps, as I was assigned to the Army Pictorial Service, and was in charge of motion picture distribution for eighteen months in New York area. I also produced some army training plays which toured the area. My last play, "The Eternal Weapon," was considered good enough by Pentagon Brass for a complete tour of all Army Service Force Training Centers. After varied assignments, all hinging on my training in dramatics, I was Assistant to the Director of Production in the making of all Army Training and Orientation Film. I was released as Major in 1947."

Mrs. Laurence S. Newman of Manset, Maine, reports: "Don Rhynsburger and the Missouri Workshop provided some of my best memories of Mizoo. It was fun, too, to be part of the Yale Workshop audience as actor and seeing Don practicing what he preaches.

I took part in amateur plays when we lived in New Haven, Connecticut, in one of which I played the part of the mother of my own dramatics loving son, Harry, who will be a freshman at Yale this fall. More to my credit perhaps was my reviewing plays last summer for the nearby summer theatre, the Bar Harbour Playhouse. Most stimulating was my interview with the playwright, Mary Roberts Rinehart, after her revival of her famous mystery thriller, "The Bat."

Frank Eschen, Director Special News Events, KSD and KSD-TV, contributes: "During my years at the University, 1928-32, my association with Don Rhynsburger, both in his Public Address classes and in Missouri Workshop, was one of the happiest I experienced, and the most beneficial. In my job I do two daily newscasts, a considerable number of interviews and on-the-scene descriptions of events and make many appearances at various clubs and civic groups. The newscasts are written out, of course, but everything else I do on the air or before the public in person is ad lib. I have every reason to be grateful to Don for the training I received under his direction. I still quote him every once in a while."

Jerry Wenneker, of the Pennsylvania College for Women, writes: "I am anxious as anyone to say 'Thanks' to Don Rhynsburger on his twenty-fifth anniversary celebration. He showed me what I wanted to do with my life. Since 1946, I've been teaching drama and producing plays at PCW. I hope that some of my shows would make Don glad he encouraged me, and that one or two of my students have anything near the respect and affection for me that he inspires again and again."

Fred Hunter, professional Broadway actor, writes: "I feel myself everlastingly in debt for the indoctrination and inspiration I received from Don Rhynsburger."

David Z. Shefrin on the editorial staff of Life Magazine, writes: "My associations with the Workshop were excellent, but too few. Rehearsals and work were enjoyable and difficult sometimes, but the experience because of Prof. Rhynsburger's spirit and colorfulness was kept always. I'm not in a theatrical job now, but it's been important for me in radio and newspaper chores to dramatize clearly. I got something from Workshop, and it came from Don Rhynsburger."

William A. Vaughn, Program Director of Radio Station WDYK, says: "You are probably familiar with the philosophy which recommends buying bread with one of your two pennies and with the other buying hyacinths for the soul. For many people the field of drama provided a few hyacinths during college, even as it did for me, but I do not mean that the only worth of college drama was its relief from education. On the contrary, it was one of the major contributors to my education as distinguished from vocational training.

"And you remember how important it was to be part of a group—to 'belong'? I know of no other group of students with such satisfactory 'social security' as the members of the Workshop family. Another contribution of college dramatics which should not be overlooked is the opportunity for creative expression. For me, at least, dramatics made college life into a dynamic period of growth. IT WAS THE ONE THING WHICH CHANGED THE ROUTINE OF FORMAL EDUCATION INTO AN OPPORTUNITY TO LEARN—WHILE LIVING.

"Even after graduation, I find continued benefits from college thespian days. Admittedly, my position as Program Director of a radio station offers many opportunities for direct application of dramatic techniques. But even if that were not true, I think college dramatics has significantly and permanently contributed to my social, cultural, educational, professional and personal development. Could there have been a more important contribution?"

Henry W. Atherton, Climatic Engineering Company, Galveston, writes: "I remember quite vividly Donovan Rhynsburger's first year at the Workshop. I am sure he must have been one of the youngest professors in the school. I attend the plays of the Galveston Little Theatre and feel that I know a little more of what is behind it because I was under Rhynsburger for three years."

Duane G. Harman, Texas Technological College, writes: "My work in the Missouri Workshop was concerned with the technical aspects, lighting in particular. It contributed to learning team work and developing a deeper appreciation for the final production. At this time I am teaching Electrical Engineering and am responsible for teaching illumination to architectural students. My training in stage lighting is valuable in this connection. The greatest value that I received from Missouri Workshop came from Mr. Rhynsburger who proved many times the satisfaction of a job well done."

Marjorie Hall says: "Looking back wistfully to those long past college days brings an amazing assortment of memories. The most vivid and cherished are tied in with my dramatic courses, shows, and Workshop. Having been a very 'theatre minded' person from my first ballestic Cupid, aged three, I was impressed to the point of awe in my first classes with Don Rhynsburger. My only regret then and now was that there were not more courses that I could have taken and that I wasn't good enough to be in more plays.

"While teaching in private schools, I was able to continue with both dance and drama, but later in my own schools in California and more personal performances, it seemed necessary to choose between my two loves.

"It may be prejudice, but I always insist that practically every normal person should study dance and drama—and those who have an opportunity to study drama at the University of Missouri under Don Rhynsburger are indeed most fortunate."

It is certainly a pity that space would not permit full quotation from other old Workshopers who wrote equally enthusiastic tributes to Donovan Rhynsburger, but the above are picked at random to show the variety of vocations for which the Missouri Workshop trained. Others who reported are: Jack Shelley, news manager of Station WHO; Dick Dozier, Station KIHQ, Sioux Falls, S. Dakota; Laura F. Cottingham, Pinderton School, Kansas City, Missouri; Jack Shefrin, Station Manager, KNAL, Victoria, Texas; Thomas L. Carrol, National Cotton Council of America, Charlotte, N. C.; Spencer Allen, Director of News, WGN-TV, Chicago; William Shockley, Kansas City; Mrs. Harold Wainess, Bellwood, Ill.; John R. Cassidy, Alexandria, Virginia; Sue Wells Bartholomees, Ft. Benning, Ga.; J. G. Doerr, Boise, Idaho; Fred Bailey, Washington Farm Reporter; Fran Grover Niemstedt, Chez Paree, Chicago; John W. Jacobs, Jr., WDUN, Gainesville, Georgia; Betty Edmiston, Belleville, Illinois; Robert S. Eastin; E. M. Sellers, Oklahoma City; Gene Ellerman, WSGW, Saginaw, Michigan; and Lorena Scherer, Jefferson City, Missouri.

Of the eighty-two alumni of the University of Missouri whose names were published in the September issue in the Missouri Workshop ad as "Lost," thirty-two have been found. Their latest addresses have arrived in the Alumni Lists office, and we are hoping for even more to add to the "ninety-and-nine."

Eula James, A.B. '17, A.M. '18, who is in Personnel Service of the American Red Cross, returned late this summer from a trip to Europe, and comments on the phenomenal change since she visited there in 1948. Evidence of recovery and reconstruction, almost a pre-war Paris, was encouraging, but the news of Korean difficulties reached them aboard the Queen Elizabeth on the return voyage.

Miss James' address is 3620 16th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

FOOTBALL

Unless they could arrange a rapid about-face, it looked like a long, hard pull for Missouri's 1950 football team after the Tigers took a 34-0 mauling at the hands of Clemson in a Sept. 30 opener at Memorial Stadium.

A crisp, well-drilled squad from South Carolina made the kill in no uncertain fashion before some 25,000 chagrined fans—and their 34-point majority represented the worst setback ever handed Coach Don Faurot on his home turf in 13 head-coaching seasons.

The Southerners, finding the 80-degree weather all to their liking, scored in every period—and picked up a pair of touchdowns in the third quarter. Missouri's Split T plays, stalemated from the start, never provided the threat needed to counteract Clemson's attack, and team defense—especially on passes—was spotty.

The Country Gentlemen scored on the opening scrimmage play, with Jackie Calvert, the day's top ground-gainer, rambling 81 yards off tackle for the counter that seemed to stimulate a keyed-up team to even greater endeavor.

Thereafter, the visitors lanced Mizou for a 23-yard scoring pass, Calvert to end Glenn Smith, in the second quarter—and fullback Fred Cone got his two scores in the third period on a 1-yard plunge, and a 50-yard solo down the middle. Ray Mathews went five yards in the last stanza for the fifth t.d., and Charley Radcliff added his fourth of five conversion tries.

Tiger bright spots were few, but the play of sophomore guards Jack Lordo and Bob Castle, and rookie fullback Bill Burkhart, gave some lustre to an otherwise dull afternoon for Missouri coaches and fans.

Injuries eliminated guard John Kadlec from the contest early, and he, along with halfback Mike Ghnoully—also crippled—were slated to sit out the follow-up game with S.M.U. on Oct. 7.

BASKETBALL

C. C. N. Y., Ohio State and Arkansas are just a few of the intersectional giants included on Missouri's 1950-51 basketball schedule.

Coach Sparky Stalcup's cagemen open their 24-game mill on Dec. 7 against Washington U., at St. Louis. Two nights later they meet City College in Madison Square Garden, and catch Ohio State on the homeward trip at Columbus Dec. 11.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch Photo

Outrunning one Clemson tackler, Bob Henley, Missouri quarterback, finds his path blocked by Clemson's Wyndie Wyndham in this action shot of the Tigers' opening game. Wyndham was one of the visitors' defensive standouts, as Mizzou bowed to the South Carolina team, 0-34, before 25,000 fans.

The Tigers will play 13 away and 11 at home this winter.

Stalcup will be working with a thin spread of veterans when basketball practice begins Oct. 15. Bob Murrey's recall to active duty with the Army last month pares the list of available lettermen to six—Bud Heineman, George Lafferty, Dan Witt, Abe Rubin, Bill Stauffer and Dick Adams.

The 1950-51 Tiger schedule:

- Dec. 7—Washington U., at St. Louis
- Dec. 9—City College of New York at New York
- Dec. 11—Ohio State at Columbus
- Dec. 14—TEXAS CHRISTIAN AT COLUMBIA
- Dec. 18—ARKANSAS AT COLUMBIA
- Dec. 27-30—Big Seven tourney at Kansas City (First opponent—Nebraska, Dec. 28)
- Jan. 4—UNIV. OF HOUSTON AT COLUMBIA
- Jan. 6—KANSAS STATE AT COLUMBIA
- Jan. 8—Kansas at Lawrence
- Jan. 13—Oklahoma at Norman
- Jan. 16—WICHITA AT COLUMBIA
- Jan. 17—WICHITA AT COLUMBIA

- Jan. 22—IOWA STATE AT COLUMBIA
- Feb. 2—Iowa U., at Iowa City
- Feb. 10—Kansas State at Manhattan
- Feb. 12—KANSAS AT COLUMBIA
- Feb. 17—Colorado at Boulder
- Feb. 19—Nebraska at Lincoln
- Feb. 24—OKLAHOMA AT COLUMBIA
- Feb. 26—Iowa State at Ames

"Chuck" Lewis

(ED. NOTE: Chester L. Brewer devotes this article to the football heroics of Charles L. "Chuck" Lewis, starry Tiger halfback of some 30 years ago.)

Old-time Missourians and Iowans long will remember Charles L. "Chuck" Lewis, the Tigers' great football halfback of the post-World War I era.

Most of the older-generation Tiger observers would reckon Lewis as the finest all-around back ever to don the Gold and Black of Ol' Mizzou. They'd get considerable backing from Iowans of that same period, who would have particular reason to recall the exploits of their old nemesis . . . But more of that later.

The sandy-haired 170-pounder, with a fighter's flattened nose, was thrice an all-Missouri Valley back during his playing days from 1919 through 1921. By all odds, he was a far greater gridder than any of his contemporaries within the conference. A shifty, heady climax-runner, his only challenger for the "all-time best" sobriquet in MU football annals probably would be Bob Steuber, who won his all-America spurs as a Tiger in 1942.

On that score, you can whip up a debate just any time that Tiger alumni, old and new, gather to indulge in football talk. It's much like the Dempsey-Louis argument that always rages when boxing fans compare the relative merits of each fighter in his prime.

Chester L. Brewer, with a natural fondness for the athletes he nurtured or knew intimately in the old days, would give the nod to Lewis.

"Chuck was something more than a wonderfully talented football player," Mr. Brewer points out. "He was a natural leader as well. He was elusive, smart—a quick thinker with a remarkable change-of-pace. From the standpoint of running ability alone, Steuber was probably the best we've ever had, he was powerful, big and fast. Lewis, though, had a little edge in his ability to come through time-after-time as a clutch player."

Steuber, of course, was a "money player," too—but the records are crammed with Lewis' heroics. By comparison, Frank Merriwell was a very dull chap, indeed.

During Chuck's reign as kingpin of Valley backs, Missouri won 18 football games, lost 4 and tied 2 over a three-year stretch. He had a positive hand in nine of these victories, as well as one of the ties. His most unique trick was his complete mastery over Iowa foes—from Ames and Drake—in six encounters with the Corn State squads.

As a sophomore on Coach John F. Miller's 1919 team, he pitched in with a vengeance to bring home a Missouri Valley championship. That gang of Missourians, led by Lewis, "Brick" Travis, "Shifty Pete" Peterson and "Stan" Stankowski, was termed by Oklahoma Coach Bennie Owen "the best Missouri team I have ever seen."

Here's the table on Lewis' top achievements:

1919—Missouri 10, Ames 0—Kicked a field goal in the Tigers' second win over the Iowans in 12 meetings.

Missouri 3, Drake 0—Kicked the winning field goal over a lightly-regarded Bulldog team that was primed for an upset.

Missouri 6, Oklahoma 6—Scored MU's touchdown in the first half. An Oklahoma scribe wrote of his overall performance—. . . hurdling, passing, kicking, but most of all starring. . ."

Missouri 13, Kansas 6—Passed to end George Ruth in the end-zone for the Tigers' winning t.d. and the Valley title. Played quarterback in place of Stankowski, out with a broken leg.

1920—Missouri 14, Ames 2—Got both touchdowns, one on a 67-yard solo through a broken field.

Missouri 10, Drake 7—Duplicated previous year's stunt with winning field-goal boot.

Missouri 7, Oklahoma 28—Saved an MU shutout, by returning a kickoff 87 yards for Tigers' lone tally.

Missouri 10, Kansas Aggies 7—Scored touchdown and kicked 35-yard field goal in final period.

Missouri 16, Kansas 7—Passed to Jack Fulbright for tying touchdown, and after Fulbright scored in the third quarter, Lewis added the field goal to insure the victory.

1921—Missouri 17, Ames 14—Kicked field goal for game-winning margin.

Missouri 6, Drake 0—Figured in trick play that produced game's only score. Took the Bulldogs' opening kickoff, and punted it back downfield. His teammate "Red" Kershaw retrieved the free ball, and raced for a touchdown.

Missouri 24, Oklahoma 14—Played what sportswriters said was "best game of his career" . . . threw first-quarter touchdown pass to Brutus Hamilton.

Missouri 9, Kansas 15—On the losing end in his bow-out game as a Tiger, Lewis provided the game's first score with a field-goal, and counted Mizzou's only touchdown in the last half.

Talented in track as well as football, Lewis excelled in the field events, notably the pole vault, shotput and discus. He was third in the Pennsylvania Pentathlon as a sophomore, and won a fourth in the Illinois Septathlon the same year. He did not go out for track in his last two years.

Graduated in 1922, Lewis did not immediately sever his Missouri ties. When Coach Tom Kelly relinquished the football coaching job in the middle of the following season, Lewis was recalled from California to finish out the season as co-coach with Hank Garrity of Princeton. Together, they salvaged much prestige out of a disrupted campaign by piloting an underdog Tiger team to a 9-7 triumph over Kansas—a triumph engineered by Al Lincoln's 49-yard field goal.

For some 15 years, Lewis was employed as business manager to the late Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., in the movie actor's California home. The former Tiger great, during that time, was Fairbanks' chief trainer and athletic partner in a daily routine calculated to keep the actor in shape for his gruelling film roles.

Lewis, now in his early fifties, is a science teacher in San Fernando high school, in San Fernando, Calif.

"DOC" QUIGG, B.J., has gone back to the wars. This time his assignment is a United Press column—the human interest side of the fighting, what the GIs are eating, what they laugh and joke about in the interludes between the fighting, and what they want to tell the folks back home. "Doc" was city editor of the Boonville Daily News before he joined the United Press in 1936. Nine landings with American assault troops in the Pacific in World War II, a 2500-mile night bombing raid against Wake Island, re-entering Manila with Gen. MacArthur—these experiences, along with outstanding reporter jobs as the trail of the 11 Communist leaders last year, five months with Admiral Byrd at the South Pole, the Alger Hiss perjury trial, and the mercy murder trial of Dr. Hermann Sander—make that veteran's by-line, "Doc Quigg" one of the best-known press association signatures in the country. His home is in New York City. Cooper Countian H. D. Quigg probably became known as "Doc" because his father is a Boonville physician.

THE STORY OF TEN LITTLE FREE WORKERS

THESE ARE THE WORKERS

REDDY DOCTOR RAILROADER MINER STEELWORKER FARMER LAWYER GROCER SALESCLERK REPORTER

Ten little free workers in this country fine and fair,
But if you cherish your freedom—worker have a care!
Ten little free workers—Reddy was doing fine
Until the socialists got him—then there were nine.

Nine little free workers laughed at Reddy's fate
Along came federal medicine—then there were eight.

Eight little free workers thought this country heaven
But the government took over the railroads, then there were seven.

Seven little free workers—till the miners got in a fix,
Uncle said coal's essential and took over leaving six.

Six little free workers till the day did arrive
The steel mills, too, were federalized—then there were five.

Five little free workers—but the farmers are free no more
The farms have been collectivized—that leaves only four.

Four little free workers till the government did decree
All must have free legal advice—then there were three.

Three little free workers—the number is getting few,
But with government groceries selling food—then there were two.

Two little free workers—our story's almost done,
With clerks at work in federal stores—that leaves only one.

One little free worker—the reporter son-of-a-gun
Mustn't criticize government—so now there are none.

Ten little workers—but they are no longer free
They work when and where ordered, and at a fixed rate you see,
And it all could have been prevented if they'd only seen fit to agree
And work together instead of saying "it never can happen to me!"

TELEPHONE LINES ARE HUMMING

THIS COUNTRY'S telephone service is one of its greatest assets in time of emergency. It unites millions of people — helps thousands of businesses to get things done quicker — and is a vital part of our national defense.

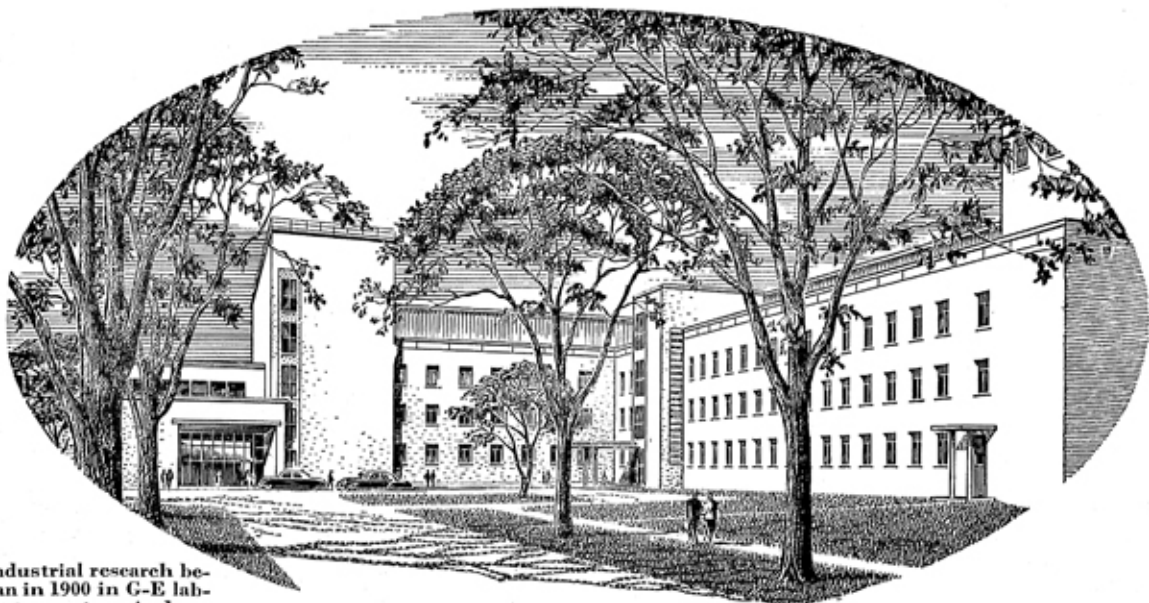

Since 1941, the Bell System has increased the number of telephones by more than 16,000,000. There are nearly twice as many now as nine years ago. Billions of dollars have been spent for new telephone equipment of every kind. The number of Bell Telephone employees has increased to more than 600,000.

All of this growth and the size of the Bell System are proving of particular value right now. One reason this country can outproduce any other is because it has the most and the best telephone service in the world.

50 YEARS of General Electric Research

Industrial research began in 1900 in G-E laboratory set up in barn behind home of Charles P. Steinmetz.

When the General Electric Research Laboratory was established in 1900, it was the first industrial laboratory devoted to fundamental research.

At that time E. W. Rice, Jr., then vice president of General Electric, said:

Although our engineers have always been liberally supplied with every facility for the development of new and original designs and improvements of existing standards, it has been deemed wise during the past year to establish a laboratory to be devoted exclusively to original research. It is hoped by this means that many profitable fields may be discovered.

Many profitable fields were discovered—profitable not only for General Electric but also for industry, the American public, and the world.

A half century ago the industrial experimental laboratory was itself an experiment. This month it begins its second half century with the dedication of a new building, greatly augmenting the facilities it offers to the advancement of man's knowledge.
