REMEMBER?

Do you remember when a bare bulb like this was the last word in lighting? That's when you started calling your electric service bill a "light bill."

Today in your home electricity will cook and sew, clean, wash and iron, preserve food and entertain the family. Yes, today your electric service bill is more than just a bill for lighting. In general, it helps make life healthier, happier and easier all around.

Reddy Kilowatt says: "I'm today's biggest bargain. I do so much . . . cost so little!"

In spite of the hot weather, the summer has been good to all of us here in your Alumni Office and the experiences of working with you are truly wonderful. Probably the highlight of the summer was the National Conference of the American Alumni Council, which is a national organization of Alumni Associations of 646 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada.

This Council represents more than 10 million citizens as alumni of educational institutions in America and has become a most important agency for the development and progress of education. One of the many outstanding speakers on the program was Dr. Wilson Compton, president of the Council for Financial Aid to Education.

The past few months have seen more alumni activity on the part of local clubs than any previous summer. A swell picnic was sponsored by the St. Louis Alumni Club with more than 300 participating. Our newest active club, the San Francisco and Greater Bay Area, met twice during the summer. Houston, Washington, and New Orleans held meetings also.

Our membership program will be kicked off for 1954 on Oct. 1. Again, we ask that you give your support and help us enroll any member you meet who is not on active status. It can be done very simply—

1. Ask every alumnus you meet if he receives the Missouri Alumnus. If he doesn't—
2. Tell him how much you enjoy this monthly contact with the campus and classmates.
3. Tell him to send his membership dues, $4 per year, to our office—or
4. Send us his name and we will contact him.

“... Despite the Drought and Grasshoppers...”

By R. R. Thomasson

COME SEPTEMBER IN MISSOURI with cooling showers to wash the season's dust from roadside shrubs and weeds; with noon day heat reminding us that summer still lingers, and crisp nights warning of frosts soon to come; with the song of katydids and trills of tree frogs on quiet evening air, Missourians far and near, noted and unknown, harken back to earlier times and relive school days from first grade at Zalma or Arbela to those days at the University of Missouri devoted to the acquisition of wisdom and the discovery of assorted bits of knowledge.

It is to those wandering sons and daughters of former years that these words are addressed; to those who have not recently walked in the shadow of Jesse Hall dome or even recrossed the borders of the state to visit in village, town, or city. We especially include those who have wandered afield to distant cities and lands far away. To all we bring assurance that the dome is still in place while the sovereign state of Missouri still clings to its earlier virtues. Though in these recent years drought and grasshoppers have dealt with a heavy hand, the moral fiber of the great commonwealth is untouched.

SOME CHANGES, YES

To be sure, not everything is as it once was. The trudging first-grader of today carries school books but no slate or lunch pail. He eats a hot school lunch, and he trudges only to the road in front of his house where he is picked up by a school bus and whisked some miles away to a consolidated school. The bray of the mule and the clank and creak of harness are no longer heard, nor does the pleasant odor of sweating team accompany the plowman to the barn. Instead a chattering tractor leaves its exhaust fumes on the evening air. Only occasionally is fodder shocked in the traditional James Whitcomb Riley manner. Mechanical pickers and field choppers handle the problem in an entirely modern way. But the barnyard rooster still keeps watch over the farmstead and rouses the countryside at break of day. He is still an advocate of thrift and honest toil.

The boundaries of the state remain the same and the Missouri flows on to the Mississippi; but there are some changes on the campus. Those of you who picked up assorted bits of information at the pool hall and rounded out your education at the Greasy Spoon can fully appreciate the handicaps under which the modern generation works with these educational sources dried up and all but forgotten. There is a magnificent library—minus an east wing—and an air conditioned student union but no University Dining Club. The Ag Club no longer assembles a paddling line—no place for one to assemble what with parking lots and second-hand army barracks. There is not even a pond in which to dunk a recalcitrant freshman, or upper classman if need be. Only this summer it has been filled.

THE COLUMNS STAND STAUNCH

The columns are still standing staunch and sturdy, but there is a full set of new deans since many of you have visited the campus. The names Mumford, Williams, and Charters no longer mean what they once did. De foe and Whitten are buildings instead of faculty members respected and loved by all. And the inquisition known as the analytical chemistry lab is no longer presided over by Dr. Brown.

Not only the University but all Missouri invites you to spend a day or two on the campus or wandering among her rolling hills and green valleys. That goes for celebrities and the little known. Missouri is proud of her thousands of graduates—her Croys, Fromans, Boyles and McBrides—who have gone forth only asking to be shown, even as she is proud of her Pershings, Crowders, Bradleys, and Disneys. All will find some of the associations of youth that bring back nostalgic memories. No doubt most of you have been back to football games, but who can see a state or even a campus under such conditions?

Be assured that when you do come back for a leisurely visit, you will find Missouri persimmons just as sweet and her pumpkins just as big and yellow as in former years. The bob white's call on a frosty morning is as clear and melodious as it ever was, and the autumn color in the Ozark hills is fully as vivid. The fox hunter's horn and the bay of his hounds may be heard on any moonlight night. The water in the springs and streams is as clear and sparkling as you ever knew it; and in some favored, sequestered valley you will find a family pressing the juice out of sorghum cane and boiling it to a golden syrup. If you follow a country road long enough, you will find a well with rope, pulley, and oaken bucket. With the dipper of refreshing well water, there will be a bit of homely Ozark philosophy such as you never received on any campus.

ON ROLLINS STREET . . .

If, after surveying the corners of the state, you return to have a quiet meal at the Student Union Grill, as you most certainly should, don't expect the conversation around you to resemble that which you were accustomed to as a student. No one will have heard of a bag rush or pennant fight; and the Greek letter boys have dropped many of their barbarous customs. Perhaps there will be something on student government and maybe a word or two on segregation. But if you walk down Rollins Street, you will find the coeds just as lovely and sweet—well, almost as sweet—as those you knew there many years ago.

To all of you, far and near, great and small, we extend a hearty invitation to get reacquainted.

Mr. Thomasson, whose writings are widely printed, is Assistant Director, Agricultural Extension Service.

Our Acting President

Dean Elmer Ellis

Dr. Elmer Ellis, acting president of the University since September 10, is a North Dakotan who came to the faculty in 1930 and has been dean of the College of Arts and Science for eight years.

He is known on the campus as a personable and business-like educator whose administrative duties are handled with energy and efficiency.

He accepted the appointment by the Board of Curators on two conditions—that he not be asked to serve longer than next June 30, and that he not be required to move to the President's house.

His scholarship as a historian is widely recognized. Under a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1939-40 he wrote "Henry Moore Teller, Defender of the West," and "Mr. Dooley's America, a Life of Finley Peter Dunne." Previously he had edited "Mr. Dooley at His Best" and "Education Against Propaganda." Last summer Dr. Ellis was appointed a member of the Historical Advisory Committee of the U. S. Army. In 1950-51 he was president of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association. He went to Europe in 1951-52 under a Fulbright grant as visiting professor of American history at the University of Amsterdam. Dean Ellis was president of the National Council for the Social Studies in 1937. For four years he was a member of the Board of Directors of the Social Science Research Council, and in 1953 he was named to the Commission on Instruction and Evaluation of the American Council of Education.

It was largely through the efforts of Dr. Ellis that the University, in 1949, received a $50,000 grant from the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching to finance a five-year program of study for improvement of teaching in colleges and universities throughout Missouri. He was chairman of the University's committee administering the program.

Dr. Ellis earned two degrees at the University of North Dakota, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. His alma mater conferred an honorary degree upon him in 1946. He received his Ph.D. at the State University of Iowa, where he was lecturer in history, in 1930. Earlier he was chairman of the department of history at North Dakota State Teachers College for three years. Dean Ellis served as acting dean of the University's Graduate School during the summers of 1936, 1939, and 1941.

In 1945-46 Dr. Ellis was vice-president of the University in charge of extra-divisional educational activities following war service.

Nebel Heads School of Social Work

Arthur W. Nebel, for six years director of the State Crippled Children's Service, has been appointed professor of social work and director of the School of Social Work, succeeding Dr. Mark Hale.

Nebel, '30, was professor of sociology and director of the curriculum in social work here in 1946-47. He received a master's in 1935, with a major in social work, after three years of service in the field. He was assistant professor of sociology in 1937 when he was given a leave of absence to serve as director of the Department of Public Assistance of the State Social Security Commission. Returning to the faculty in 1939, he entered army service for four years. In 1940 he was president of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare, and in 1952-53 he headed the Missouri State Health Council.

IN LOS ANGELES . . .

On July 18, 1954 the Missouri University Alumni Association of Southern California held their picnic at the Arcadia County Recreation Park, Arcadia, California.

Twenty-three guests attended. Coffee and lemonade were served by the Association, and the picnic supper was enjoyed in the Patio. Mr. William Kroehle sang "Old Missouri" and several other University songs.

Chuck Hannah, President of the Association, announced that the next dinner meeting will be October 15, 1954, at Turner Inn, 15th & Figueroa in Los Angeles.

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

Missouri alumni in San Francisco and the Greater Bay Area held their organizational meeting this Summer. The problem of maintaining correct addresses and locating Missouri alumni whose names are not on the list is of primary importance, and all alumni in that area are requested to contact any of the following officers of the club.

President Lawrence L. Mattman, 3391 Coniper, Palo Alto, Calif., DA 2-8455; Justin N. Roach, 1047 Mariposa, Berkeley LA 4-2605; Herman Kruse, 304 Brentwood Rd., San Mateo, DI 4-4066; Barry Quirk, 14 Midway, Mill Valley, DU 8-4307; Yvonne Barnett, 2847 Filmore St., San Francisco, WE 1-5731; Iris Core, 2847 Filmore St., San Francisco, WE 1-5731; Morna Arbios, 2937 Piedmont Ave, Berkeley, TH 3-3675.

IN CABOOL, MO. . . .

On June 29, alumni in south central Missouri met in Cabool. Dean John H. Longwell representing the University College of Agriculture, and Commissioner Cullen Coil, president of the University Alumni Association, were principal speakers.

Alumni from six counties held individual business meetings and elected presidents for the year 1954-55 as follows:

Howell County—Bob Hinds, Willow Springs.

Shannon County—Wayne Hoeffler, Eminence.

Ozark County—Charles Smith, Baker.

Wright County—T. V. Davis, Hartville.

Texas County—Dale Moore, Ava.

G. L. Davis, District Chairman, spoke to the group and encouraged more county action in the Alumni Association.

SPORTS

In a year when a segment of mighty Niagara Falls crumbled, is it possible for Oklahoma's perennial football titans to be scuttled by a Big Seven foe?

Nope, say the experts, not hardly—but if this unlikely development should come to pass—Missouri, they venture, is the team best equipped to get the job done.

That's the early line on Coach Don Faurot's 1954 grid Tigers, who'll begin to find out something about where—and how far—they're going in a Sept. 25 opener against Purdue at Lafayette.

It's a significant year for the Bengals to be rated as Oklahoma's foremost challenger. The Big Seven-Atlantic Coast conference pact with the Orange Bowl guarantees that a conference team will appear in the Miami classic on New Year's Day . . . and the present Big Seven rule prohibits a repeat appearance by its champion.

So in the event that Oklahoma does claim its eighth straight league crown, the runnerup team will get the Orange Bowl invitation. Oklahoma defeated Maryland, 7-0 at Miami last Jan. 1.

Tiger fandom generally is optimistic about Ol' Mizzou's grid potential this fall. Their cheery outlook is predicated on the belief that the Tigers will field a seasoned club—not too hard-hit by graduation—and an outfit boasting more speed and savvy. Return to the campus of Ray Detring, and his subsequent shift to left half, also have puffed up the fans' expectations. Detring averaged six yards a crack as a second-string fullback in 1953.

Senior quarterbacks Vic Eaton, Tony Scardino and Jack Brase offer assurance that Mizzou's on-the-field leadership should be sound this fall.

Elsewhere in the backfield, there's depth and talent. A possible starting unit against the Boilermakers could average close to 195 pounds—and might include Eaton at quarterback, Detring and Jack Fox at the halves, and battering Bob Bauman at fullback.

Bauman and guard Terry Roberts are the Bengals' two returning all-conference choices—with Roberts counted on as a linebacking mainstay if his knee, injured against Oklahoma last year, remains sound.

There's a firm first-string array of Tiger forwards, however, and the opening lineup will approximate closely this picture: Pete Corpeny and Jack Hurley, ends; Charley Bull and Al Portney, tackles; Terry Roberts and Chuck Mehrer or Jake Shiveley, guards; and Tony Karakas, center.

With a stronger backfield in the offing, Missouri may regain some of its old-time scoring wallop in '54. With the defense predominant over the last two seasons, the M. U. scoring output tailed off to an average of 13 points per game last year; even so, defense proved a decisive factor, with all opponents being limited to an average of 11.6 points.

Here's the 1954 schedule:
Sept. 25—Purdue at Lafayette
Oct. 2—Kansas State at Manhattan
Oct. 9—S.M.U. at Columbia
Oct. 16—Indiana at Columbia
Oct. 23—Iowa State at Columbia
Oct. 30—Nebraska at Lincoln
Nov. 6—Colorado at Columbia
Nov. 13—Oklahoma at Norman
Nov. 20—Kansas at Columbia (homecoming)
Nov. 25—Maryland at College Park

A Bountiful Summer

A fair share of fame—and fortune—came the way of John (Hi) Simmons, Missouri baseball coach, in the summer of 1954.

It all began when Simmons guided his Tigers to the Big Seven title, the sixth pennant won by a Simmons-coached team in his 15 years.

Then the Bengals went on to win the N.C.A.A. baseball World Series at Omaha to collar the first national championship in the school's history.

Last month, the American Baseball Coaches Association conferred "Coach of the Year" laurels on M. U.'s Simmons for his contribution to the team's success.

Quarterback Club members throughout Missouri, and friends, supplied the icing just a few days following this announcement by presenting Simmons with a new 1954 Oldsmobile.

NEW GRID UNIFORMS; NEW SCOREBOARD TOO

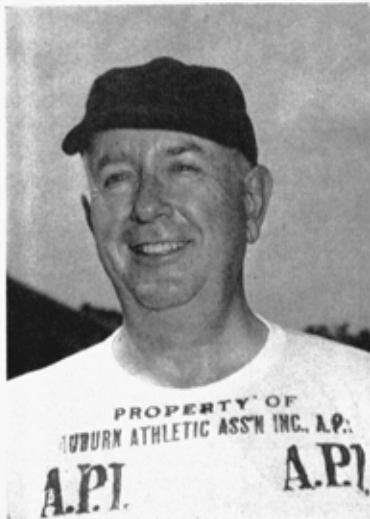

New uniforms, traveling jackets and a new electric scoreboard will be grid accessories at Missouri this fall.

The Tigers will use a short-sleeved, lightweight cotton jersey for warm-weather games. Their football pants are the more streamlined type, with built-in hip pads. The black and gold color scheme is unchanged.

On the road, Mizzou's varsity players will wear a dark blue sports coat, with a gold "Missouri" embossed on the breast pocket. These coats will be standard dress for travel squads in basketball, track and baseball.

The new scoreboard is a double-banked flasher model, similar to those used in most college stadia.

WILBUR HUTSELL, '14

Honors for Coach

Wilbur H. Hutsell, '14, track coach at Alabama Polytechnic Institute since 1921, continues to amass records and honors at Auburn.

His 1954 team won the Georgia AAU Open Track Meet for the third straight time and the Southeastern Conference championship. In his 33 years at Auburn, Coach Hutsell's track men have won second place honors in the SEC six times. Many of his athletes have held national records.

In April Coach Hutsell received the "Coach of the Years" trophy, presented by the Coaches of America and the Birmingham News.

Among his important assignments on a national basis, he edited the NCAA Track Guide in 1947-51, and headed the National Collegiate Track Coaches Association in 1941-42. Hutsell was also associate coach with Olympic teams in 1924, 1928, and 1932. He was athletic director at Auburn for five years.

"Coach Willie" is remembered at Missouri as a Moberly boy who became an outstanding quarter-miler for the Tigers, and his old friends here are pleased at his long success in coaching.

HEAVY HITTERS SEEK BALL CARRYING JOBS

Missouri's two .400-hitting outfielders on the Tigers' N.C.A.A. championship team last spring are among the leading candidates for halfback jobs with the football team.

The players are Jerry Schoonmaker, an all-American diamond selection who'll work at left half—and Bob Musgrave, a southpaw right-halfback. Both are lettermen.

ABE STUBER'S SON ENROLLS AT MISSOURI

Enrolling at Missouri as a junior this month, Dick Stuber—son of the former Iowa State coach—will give the Tigers an experienced T-quarterback in 1955.

Young Stuber, who stands 6-ft. and weighs 175, lettered at quarterback for the Cyclones in 1953. His father, Emmett (Abe) Stuber, is now back-field coach at the University of Washington in Seattle.

In his playing days at Missouri, Abe won all-Missouri Valley honors at quarterback, and lettered as a hurdler in track. He was a teammate of Don Fauror's on the 1924 team which won the conference title and lost to USC, 7-20, in a post-season game on the Coast.

RIVAL QUARTERBACKS ROOMIES IN AIR FORCE

Roommates in a five-man billet during summer camp at Scott Air Force Base were two quarterbacks who may oppose each other in the 1954 campaign.

Comparing Split T notes were Jack Brase of Missouri and Charley Boxold Maryland's Orange Bowl quarterback against Oklahoma. Another roommate was Tom Breunich, regular Terp tackle.

Brase lettered as a third-string quarterback for Mizzou last year. Boxold understudied Bernie Faloney, and will be the Terps' regular signal-caller this fall. He threw a touchdown pass against the Tigers here last season on the game's final play.

Missouri Memo

THE AG POND is no more. It has been filled with earth as a health and safety measure. For more than half a century it was the dunking place for students who erred against organizational rules and traditions, particularly of the Ag campus. Some students may be surprised to learn that it was developed for another purpose. Located near the "Dairy Campus" power plant, it served as a cooling unit to condense steam when the boilers were "blown." A new type of boiler was installed several years ago which does not require such treatment. Some student groups noted for carrying out disciplinary action will bemoan the disappearance of the Ag Pond, but if they are as resourceful as we think they are, they will think of something else.

NEW CHAIRMAN of District VI of the American Alumni Council is Bus Entsminger, director of Alumni Activities at the University. He was elected in June for a two-year term, taking office at the General Conference of the Council the following month at Edgewater Park, Miss. District VI comprises Missouri and six other states.

THREE BUSINESS MEN in Columbia have formed a non-profit University Development Foundation to help the University obtain added power plant facilities. Directors of the group are Hartley G. Banks and Al Price, bankers, and Charles W. Digges, insurance man. The Foundation's plan is to borrow a million dollars from the Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company to buy badly needed equipment and repay the loan from annual rentals collected from the University. New buildings, and particularly the new Medical Center, make the need for increased power imperative.

REMEMBER the former E. Sydney Stephens home facing on Providence Road? For many years it was one of Columbia's showplaces. The 17-acre estate, now owned by the University, may one day be the site of permanent housing for married students. Work has begun on clearing underbrush and excess timber from 12 acres of the property to make way for future construction, if and when such a building program is decided upon.

CHARLES F. GALT, St. Louis artist, has been commissioned to do the portrait of Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush to be presented to the University by the faculty and staff. One of the best known portrait artists in Missouri, Mr. Galt painted the portrait of Walter Williams which hangs in Jay H. Neff Hall. Chairman of the Middlebush Portrait Committee is Prof. Raymond E. Peck.

PARENT'S DAY on the campus will be Oct. 9—day of the S.M.U. game. Y'all come.

A GROUP OF FACULTY and administrative staff members of the University attended a "get-acquainted" conference with administrative personnel of the A. B. Chance Company in Centralia on July 22. The visitors were

Mrs. Oliver N. Howard is another "first"
for Missouri. She's

America's Clubwoman of 1954

LAST SPRING Mrs. Oliver N. Howard of New London, Mo., went to New York to receive a plaque as the first woman to be chosen "America's Clubwoman of the Year." She also received an award of $1,000. Ever since, she has been on a merry-go-round of experiences and activities in what she calls her Year of Glory.

The Alumnus is particularly interested in this honor because Mrs. Howard, the former Goldena Roland, formerly attended the University and her husband was graduated in 1947. They were married before they entered M. U., and the first of their three children was born in Columbia. Oliver is with the soil conservation service in Ralls County.

When Mrs. Howard was nominated for America's Clubwoman, many supposed the title would go to some plump dowager in a ritzy suburb, that being a popular conception of a clubwoman. Instead the choice was the representative of the Monday Study Club of New London, a group that has so many civic improvement projects to discuss that the members now schedule only one study session a month. Mrs. Howard has never held a major office in the club, but she is a recognized leader of the town's campaigns for civic betterment.

BUSY AT TELEPHONE

The Howards live in a farm house at the edge of New London, a town of about 1,000. It is there that many of the boards and committees of which she is a member hold their meetings. It is there that she does much of her club work, the telephone and the typewriter being her principal tools. Telephoning and writing publicity are two of her main chores. She has written radio scripts and is a correspondent for newspapers, including the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Hannibal Courier-Post.

With Mrs. Howard and the Monday Study Club in the vanguard of the fight, New London can point to these accomplishments in recent years: New elementary school, city utilities, county health service, new high school gymnasium, and a new teenage center.

"The one thing of which I am proud," says Mrs. Howard, "is the establishment of a county health service and obtaining a county health nurse." Of course, among other things, she worked hard to get the school. And the $1,000 award she picked up in New York went to the school for stage curtains.

She was happy to receive the cash award, figuring that it would take 24 bake sales to make up the $1,000.

Mrs. Howard explains why she gives so much time to her club work: "The same reason that other mothers have. I want New London to be a better community for our children."

NOT A ONE-WOMAN JOB

She has received much publicity since being named America's Clubwoman, and some of it has been a little too extreme in her favor for her personal comfort. She has spent considerable time explaining that accomplishments in New London resulted from the combined efforts of her Monday Study Club and other town boosters. She likes to make it plain that the town was not falling apart before she came along, and that she is not the one that's putting it together again.

Here are the offices Mrs. Howard holds in a variety of activities: Parliamentarian and fine arts chairman, Monday Study Club; executive secretary, County Tuberculosis Association; secretary, Infantile Paralysis chapter; director-at-large, County Red Cross; advisory board member, Crippled Children's Service; project committee chairman, County Health Council; state board member, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs; president unit 3, Christian Women's Fellowship; chairman, Swap Shop Association; secretary, Ralls County chapter, University of

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver N. Howard of New London and their three children, Bert, Mary Roberta, and Dottie. Dottie was born in Columbia while the Howards were students at the University. Mrs. Howard says Oliver is the baby sitter when her civic activities take her away from home.

Mrs. Howard relies heavily upon her husband, Oliver, as she pursues her heavy schedule. She calls him her balance wheel, a man whose calmness and good sense have steered her safely through many situations encountered on their trip to New York and in personal appearances resulting from her Clubwoman honor. The husbands of the Study Club women, in fact, serve as baby sitters when the occasion demands. Mrs. Howard limits her organization meetings to three afternoons and one evening a week.

When the Woman's Home Companion notified her of her selection as the first America's Clubwoman of the Year, it was three months ahead of the time she was to fly to New York to receive the award. For a while it looked as if she would never get through the three months. She got the flu, Bert had a series of colds, Mary Roberta hurt her finger in the sewing machine, Dottie had whooping cough—and the whole family was exposed to mumps.

STILL MORE PROBLEMS

Just before Christmas, when Albert Q. Maisel of the W.H.C. and Mrs. Maisel called to get a story on Mrs. Howard, the house was being remodelled, she had to cook and serve meals in the basement, and was getting ready to have 45 people in for a Laff a Lot Club Christmas party.

In January, Mrs. Howard had a deep cold when a photographer arrived from New York and spent two days taking 200 pictures. Then she borrowed enough luggage for the trip east. A department store in Quincy, Ill., presented her a suit and accessories for the trip. Friends and relatives volunteered to take care of the children while they were away.

Now into the second half of this "year of glory" Mrs. Howard is still besieged with invitations to make speeches. She handles what she can, but can't accept all invitations. She has received much mail, including notes with such signatures as Mamie Doud Eisenhower and Mary Margaret McBride. Her aid has been solicited in many campaigns over the country, and she has helped where she can.

"The responsibility of representing thirty million fine women is a difficult dish to digest," Mrs. Howard says. "In reality no one woman could do it. Taken as a whole, the experience is wonderful. The genuine pride and joy of friends, townspeople, and acquaintances has been worth the effort it is costing me. It is a very humbling experience to receive the congratulations and praise of hundreds of wonderful people, all of whom have accomplished far more than I shall ever achieve."

The Alumnus Reviews

ARMCHAIR IN THE SKY, by Dorothy Kaucher. 144 pp. Exposition Press, New York, 1954.

DOROTHY KAUCHER

By the time Dorothy Kaucher, '15, who came from a pioneering family, grew up, all the pioneering seemed to have been finished; but then the planes began to fly, and she hit upon the unique plan of becoming a pioneer passenger of the air. She was unfitted by training and temperament to become a pilot, but the planes fascinated her from the first one she stretched her neck to follow. So from that day on, she made up her mind that somehow those air ships were going to become her magic carpet, as indeed they have, until today she has flown more than 100,000 miles to as many places as Eleanor Roosevelt.

Actually it took more nerve to be a pioneer passenger than to be a pioneer pilot, and nerve she had all right, but she also had a father who possessed two passes; as he was in charge of air and train mail in seven states.

Thus in 1930 she boarded a one-motored dark-blue "little squirt" named Pilgrim and flew on a round trip to Chicago. Her first ocean trip was to Wake Island, about which she wrote a book. Probably the most thrilling flight of all was to the Amazon, at least she makes it seem most thrilling to the reader. The book is delightful, with an imaginative style that shares her thrills. This third book is by far the most amusing that she has written about her adventures.

A native of St. Joseph, Mo. she holds four degrees from the University of Missouri and earned her Ph.D. degree at Cornell in 1928. She came from Cornell to teach at her Alma Mater, and is especially remembered for a course she taught in playwriting, in which all the one-acts written under her direction were produced by the University Workshop, and a number of them were published to be played widely ever since. She is now a professor of speech at San Jose State College in California.—M.P.K.

where fuller stories of the life and times of the Indians can be obtained, but it takes careful digging of numerous places to get the basic data for writing the more detailed story. Old Indian house sites, storage pits, trash heaps and burial grounds furnish the manuscript material. Seldom does one site furnish full information; the story is discovered in bits and pieces from site to site and must be pieced together like a jig-saw puzzle.

MISSOURI'S FIRST FARMERS

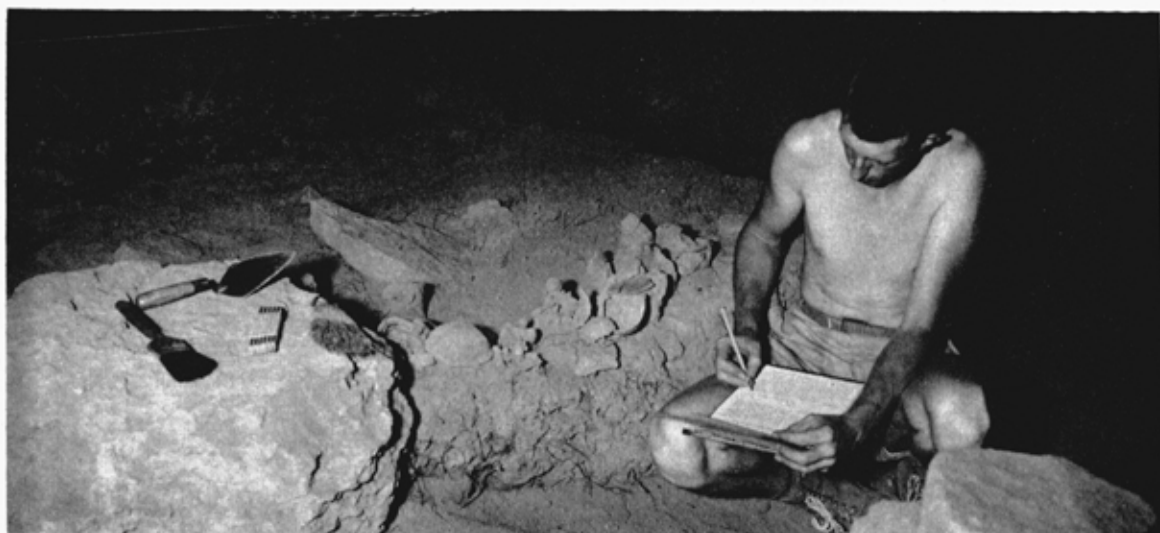

The Table Rock Area is extremely important in that it contains the unique remains of the Ozark Bluff Dwellers, the first Missouri farmers. These people may have played a prime role in the development of agriculture in the Eastern United States, and thus indirectly affected us today as our early settlers in the east obtained corn, beans, and squash from the eastern Indians and learned how to cultivate these crops. Missouri has been a corn-belt state for more than 1000 years and it is probable that corn was being grown in southwest Missouri before the birth of Christ. Lake Taneycomo and the Bull Shoals Reservoir no doubt destroyed much of the history of these early farmers (the Ozark Bluff Dwellers). The best and perhaps the only opportunity to write the history of these early agriculturists now lies in the Table Rock Reservoir Area.

The importance of the work was early recognized by the National Park Service. In 1953 and 1954, Region Three of the National Park Service, U. S. Department of the Interior, has cooperated in the archaeological work by supplying funds for labor and supplies. This has made possible research units to supplement the work of the Field Classes.

Basketry lining an Ozark Bluff Dweller storage pit.

Remnants of a turtle soup feast are being recorded by Richard Marshall, graduate student, in the Rice shelter. Trash heaps and fireplaces such as shown here yield valuable data for writing the history of the early Indian occupations.

BLUFF DWELLER SHELTER

Last year a Bluff Dweller shelter was discovered that was completely dry, and had been since the Indians were there, perhaps more than a thousand years ago. The Indians had not lived in the shelter, but they had used it for storing their cultivated crops and the seeds they had gathered. Found were abandoned pits in which were corn, squash, gourds, and sunflowers that had been cultivated by the Indians. In addition there were acorns, hackberry seeds, walnuts, hickory nuts, hazel nuts and other wild seeds they had gathered. Pieces of cane baskets had been used to line the storage pits and bits of string and rope were in the grass lining of other pits. Rabbit-string robes and feather-string robes were indicated by fragments of these. The last ones to replenish supplies from the pits had their meal or walnuts and hickory nuts beside the pit from which they obtained these stores. They then warmed themselves by a fire built of the shells of the nuts, and probably slept there for the night as one of the party lost his flint knife near the fire.

In 1952 investigations were started in a shelter on the D. H. Rice property near Viola, in Stone County. Preliminary tests there indicated that the site had been used by a succession of Indian peoples. Each one using the shelter had added his share of lost and discarded items to the trash heap in front of the rock overhang. Therefore, in 1953 a more thorough investigation was conducted, as the site gave promise of being a key to at least three periods of history in the area.

The earliest period, judged to begin about 3000 years ago, was that of Archaic hunters and gatherers. Following them were the first agriculturalists, the Ozark Bluff Dwellers, and the last to inhabit the shelter were the Late Mississippi people who had migrated to the area after 1541 A.D. It is strongly suspected that De Soto's march, through the spreading of European diseases among the Indians, had much to do with the migration of this last group to the head waters of White River.

Deposits were built up to a depth of six feet in front of the shelter and many of the original inhabitants were found there, interred in the trash heap in front of the shelter's entrance.

HEADQUARTERS NEAR DAM

This summer a combined University Archaeological Field Session Class and a Research Unit established headquarters on White River at the mouth of Long Creek just a few hundred yards above the spot where the Table Rock Dam will be built. Three large Indian campsites had been located on the high terraces at this place and all three are to be destroyed since the engineers had picked these terraces to be used as back-fill for the dam. Evidence on the surface of the sites indicated that they had been used by the Ozark Bluff Dweller people, the early farmers in the area.

Here was an opportunity to find what sort of houses these people built when they lived in the open.

Tests were made, but the drought was at its worst. Not only was it hot, but the ground was dry and hard. No houses were discovered, but it was found that one site had been used by three different Indian groups at different times. On top were the remains of a camp of the Early Mississippi Indians, beneath that the Ozark Bluff Dwellers, and at a depth of between 5 and 6 feet was a campsite of an entirely different Archaic Indian People.

On another site were found five burials of the Early Mississippi Indian people. These had been plowed through and were in fact located by discovering of human bones on the surface of the site. Fireplaces were revealed and more information was gained about these early people from the various tools they had used. Five different campsites were investigated during the summer and some 25 new Indian sites were located in the lower part of the reservoir area.

Those participating were James Shippee and Robert T. Bray, Associates in Archaeological Research at the University; Leo J. Roedel of Kansas City, Richard A. Marshall of Willow Springs, and Zane Cole of Jefferson City, Graduate students taking the Field Problems course in Archaeology; Marvin Diedrick and Larry Brown of Springfield, James S. Haswell of Rogersville, and Joan P. Bray of Springfield, assistants in the Archaeological Research Unit.

WORK CONTINUES THIS FALL

Robert T. Bray and Richard Marshall will continue the Archaeological Research for the University in the area this fall. They will be on hand when the big earth-moving machines start their work and will try to salvage as much data as possible when the old Indian campsites are moved to be used as back-fill in the dam. This small research unit will continue the surveys, tests and excavations during the school year 1954-55. Each bit of history salvaged will add to the growing knowledge of the 10,000 years of fascinating history of southeast Missouri that otherwise would remain a blank.

The people living in the area and the Army Engineers in charge of the dam construction have given wonderful cooperation in the research. Their friendly helpfulness has made the research pleasant as well as rewarding. Enthusiastic members of the Missouri Archaeological Society, too numerous to mention, have aided considerably in the investigation. They not only have helped search the valleys for Indian campsites but have dug right along with the other researchers to obtain the basic data that eventually will become history.

invited by F. Gano Chance, president of the firm. The day included a plant tour, luncheon, and a discussion of how business and education might cooperate for better understanding of each other's problems.

ALEXANDER W. (BOSS) GRAHAM Roadside Park on U. S. Highway 40 near Mineola was dedicated in July. Graham, '08, was chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Department from 1917 to 1922. He was an active sponsor of the Centennial Road Law, which was the beginning of Missouri's present highway system. Graham was also a promoter of the "Old Trails" route across Missouri, now known as Highway 40. He was postmaster of Kansas City from 1933 until his death in 1949. The park is on land donated by Graham's sisters, Miss Emily Graham and Mrs. Arthur Radford of Hancock, Iowa, and his son, William A. Graham of San Diego, Calif. The dedication was sponsored by the Garden Clubs of Montgomery County. Robert E. L. Hill, executive secretary of the Missouri Bankers Association and a friend of the late Alexander W. Graham, presided at the ceremonies.

The Search for "Lost" Alumni

A NEWS ITEM REACHES the Alumni Lists Section of the University's Admissions Office. It tells of a nice promotion for John Doe, and mentions that he formerly attended the University.

This is enough to send a small staff of lady sleuths on a search for more specific information. First the office records are checked. If this particular John Doe is not listed there, the hunt is carried to the enrollment records in the Admissions Office. There it is disclosed that a student of that name did spend two years on the campus in the late 30s.

An inquiry goes to the quarry in care of his business firm, along with a return card on which he may list his correct address. When this is confirmed, a reference card is made out for him, a personal file is started, and pertinent information goes onto a permanent IBM card.

This sort of procedure is enacted every day, although if the name happened to be the same John Doe used here for illustrative purposes, the search might never end. Many times the clues furnished the Alumni Lists are skimpier than the ones given here, and often the search involves many more steps and much more time.

But the search goes on, many searches every day, as the effort to track down all "lost" alumni continues. The campaign was stepped up in 1947 after years of haphazard methods. Last spring there were 23,000 names on IBM cards. From five to six thousand "new" names are gained each year, so the total in 1954 will exceed 28,000. Compared with some other universities, these totals are not impressive in view of the total number of former students still living. But the machinery for finding and tabulating information is now well established. In four more years the number of alumni accounted for will be at the 50,000 mark.

During the late spring the Lists office sends out its annual confirmation card, which is intended to check on any changes of address. Mrs. Betty Griffin, in charge of the Alumni Lists Section, says the 80 per cent return on last year's mailing was very gratifying. She urges anyone who has not received a confirmation card by this time to write in to the office, 10 Jesse Hall, because several hundred cards were returned with no forwarding addresses available.

Because the background on any name is checked well before processing, the records on IBM cards are in good shape. However, alumni are a restless lot, it would seem. They move about a great deal. Mrs. Griffin says about one-fourth of the alumni listed change addresses every year. For that reason volunteer information is welcomed, so that the addresses can be kept up to date.

Mrs. Griffin says the various University divisions are cooperative in forwarding to her office information about their former students. Newspaper clippings, information volunteered by the alumni themselves, and records forwarded by the Alumni Office are some of the other sources.

Most "lost" alumni like to be discovered, Mrs. Griffin says. Many send along appreciative notes with their information. She has found that some former students are surprised at the interest in their whereabouts inasmuch as they did not graduate.

The work of the Alumni Lists Section is unending, and it is heavy laden with routine—checking, double-checking, forms, tabulations, student numbers. But in this maze there is a personal interest. The staff, through repeated contacts by mail, get to know some of the alums quite well. When news comes in of a new baby or a nice promotion, the lady sleuths take a personal interest, as though they really knew the person involved.

CLASS NOTES

85 MAMIE COLEMAN of Columbia, who celebrated her ninety-second birthday this year, began her career when she walked between the columns of the original building of the University. She worked as a reporter in the Old West and was a reporter for the old St. Louis Republic and in Washington during the Cleveland administration. She recalls the black uniforms she had to wear as a co-ed, and the straw caps with black lettered bands, which she says made the girls look hideous. But they did have pretty girls on campus then, she adds, but no queens, at least none crowned formally, because nobody had thought of that yet.

97 "Young Dr. BERT MUNDAY, will be seventy-nine on Nov. 6," his wife writes, "and in the annals of surgery is the exception to the rule, an oldster making the grade after a major operation—direct herniarotomy. I understand none have survived long, but with God's help, I pushed him about to cheat the undertaker, whom he has never collaborated with." The Munday lives at 526 Hudson St., New York 14, N. Y.

Dr. LEONARD M. EDMISTEN has been appointed Educational Specialist in Course Materials with the U. S. Air Force Institute at Gunter Air Force Base, Ala. He has taught English at the University for the last five years and received his doctorate in English in June. He is married and has three children.

Second Lt. CHARLES W. MONSEES has completed an orientation course in military medical service at Medical Field Service School, Brooke Army Medical Center, and has been transferred to Maywood, Cal.

Mrs. BILLIE DON COONCE is teaching in the public schools of Denver, Colo. this year while her husband is studying at the University of Colorado.

Prof. Thomas C. Van Cleve Retires at Bowdoin College

A NATIVE MISSOURIAN who received two degrees from the University then went on to an illustrious career as historian and teacher in New England has retired after long service on the faculty of Bowdoin College at Brunswick, Maine.

He is Dr. Thomas C. Van Cleve, who was born in Malden, Mo., 66 years ago and came to the University as a freshman planning to study law. By his junior year he had decided that medieval history would be his field. After receiving an A.B. degree in 1911, he remained as an assistant in history and earned his A.M. degree in 1912. He left M. U. after a year as instructor in history, going to the University of Wisconsin as an assistant and continuing graduate study work that led to the Ph.D. in 1921. Dr. Van Cleve returned to the Missouri campus in 1929 as professor of history during the summer session.

He joined the Bowdoin faculty in 1915 as instructor and except for leaves of absence in both world wars he has taught there since. He won citations for meritorious overseas service in both conflicts. In 1950 he was listed in the Official Army Register as Colonel, Military Intelligence, in the Officers' Honorary Retired List. Since 1919, except for the war years, he pursued research activities during summers and sabbatical leaves in the archives and libraries of France, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy.

On the Bowdoin campus several functions have been held recently in his honor, including a dinner by history majors and a faculty reception. The student-edited Bowdoin Orient reported announcement of Prof. Van Cleve's retirement "elicited from the student body the sort of spontaneous admiration and regret which reflect more truthfully than any considered eulogy could have done the esteem and affection in which Mr. Van Cleve is held." At the faculty reception he received two historical volumes from his colleagues, presented, according to a special bookplate, "in token of admiration for his long and distinguished career as teacher, scholar, and inspiring leader."

At Bowdoin he was promoted to assistant professor of history in 1916, and to professor in 1920. He was named Frank Munsey Professor of History in 1925 and later was transferred to the Thomas Brackett Reed Professorship of History and Political Science.

As a medievalist Dr. Van Cleve's chief research work has been concerned with the German Empire of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. His publications in that field include "Markward of Anweiler and the Sicilian Regency," a study of the Papal-Imperial Conflict for the control of Sicily during the minority of Frederick II of Hohenstaufen. At present, Dr. Van Cleve is one of a group of medievalists from seven countries engaged in the writing of a five-volume History of the Crusades, now in process of editing and to be published by the University of Pennsylvania Press.

As a member of the Medieval Academy of America, he is a regular contributor to Speculum, the scholarly periodical of that organization. He is also a member of the American Historical Association and the Council on Foreign Relations, and a fellow of the Royal Historical Society, London.

In Memoriam

REFORD BOND, '97, on June 19 at Oklahoma, City. He would have completed 20 years as chairman of the state corporation commission in another month. He was admitted to the Indian Territory bar in 1899 and established practice at Chickasha and practiced there until 1934, when he was appointed to the corporation commission. His legal achievements appeared in Who's Who in America. He won a freight case to destroy discrimination, establish equalization, furnish a market of raw material and employment for trained labor. He served at one time for the Chickasaw and Choctaw nations in cases involving more than 50 million dollars. He is survived by his wife and a son, Reford Bond, Jr.

Miss ETHEL ENYART, '01, for fifteen years postmaster of Stanberry, Mo., on June 25. She taught several terms in the Stanberry schools and traveled extensively. She was long identified with the civic, cultural, and social life of her town, and was one of the founders of its public library. She is survived by a sister.

Miss MARY ALICE COCHEL, '07, in St. Louis on July 19. She was a teacher in the St. Louis schools for more than thirty years. She is survived by a brother and two sisters.

ROBERT N. DENHAM, '07, former National Relations Board general counsel, on June 20 at St. Louis. Starting his career on Wall Street, he became known as a banking trouble-shooter and liquidator of private banking corporations before entering government service. He is survived by his wife and three daughters and one son.

ROLAND B. WESTOVER, '09, life insurance agent, at La Jolla, Calif., on June 9. He was at one time president of the Kansas City Life Underwriters. He served as a lieutenant in World War I. He is survived by his second wife, a son, and a daughter. His funeral was held in La Jolla, where he has been living since 1947.

Judge BARNEY R. WILLIAMS, '10, in Moberly, Mo. He was probate judge in Macon County for many years, and after that sheriff. His wife and three children survive him.

CLARENCE R. INNIS, '10, at Seattle on July 24. He was valedictorian of his law class at the University. After graduation he practiced law for some time at St. Joseph, where he was on the school board. He moved to Seattle twenty years ago and continued his practice of law there.

EZRA ARTHUR IKENBERRY, '11, widely known orchardist and pioneer county farm agent, on June 19 at Independence, Mo. He operated his own orchards as well as orchards that he leased, which included apple, peach and cherry trees. From 1935 to 1942 he was district supervisor of the Farm Security Administration. He was active in the Methodist church, the Independence Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club, and the Knife and Fork Club. His wife survives him.

BENNETT CHAMP CLARK, '13, on July 13 at Gloucester, Mass. Former senator from Missouri, and Judge of the United States Appeals Court, he was never content to be merely the son of his famous father, Champ Clark, but achieved his own prestige. We quote from an editorial of the Kansas City Star. "In Missouri the name Clark became a tradition as native as country ham and red eye gravy and Missouri mules. And through Bennett Clark that tradition was a national factor at a time of vast economic and social change. In the Senate he was frequently called an "aginer," but it would have been more accurate to say that he stood pat on basic principles that were part and parcel of his upbringing. He recognized the need for many changes and battled to make them sound . . . his fight against the Roosevelt court packing plan was one example. This hard hitting Senate leader was the same Bennett Clark who spent years of research to write his excellent 2-volume biography of John Quincy Adams. A World War I soldier and one of the original founders of the American Legion, he led the fight for the GI bill in the Senate. Ten years after he left the Senate to become judge, his imprint is still deep."

Dr. RALPH FELLOWS, '19, at Milwaukee, Wis. on June 22. He served in World War I as a captain in the army. He took his medical degree after the war and practiced medicine for a number of years at Salisbury, Mo. where he grew up. He later practiced in Texas and was associated with the Meninger Clinic at Topeka. He also served in World War II. At Milwaukee he was prominent in civic affairs, the Red Cross and American Legion. His wife survives him.

Mrs. E. Raymond Boyer (MILDRED BATTERTON, '21) at Detroit, Mich., on Aug. 9. She taught for many years in the public schools of Cleveland and Detroit. She is survived by her husband.

Dr. LEONARD WILLIAM GADDUM, '22, on July 27 at Gainesville, Fla. After his graduation from the University he served as instructor in the physics department, which he left 25 years ago to take the position as chairman of the physics department of the University of Florida. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

IRVING J. LAUDERDALE, '23, on July 16 at Kansas City. He worked on the Kansas City Star until he joined the Potts-Turnbull Agency, and at the time of his death he was vice-president of the agency. He was active in the Masons. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

Mrs. Clemence L. Hein (DOROTHY HONEY JOHNSTON, '24) on Aug. 1 at University City, Mo. She was a director of the St. Louis Woman's Club, chairman of the city division of the 1949 Community Chest and former president of the John Burroughs School Mothers' Club. Besides her husband, a director of the International Shoe Company, she is survived by two daughters.

Mrs. J. H. Kinsella (DOROTHY JONES) '24, on June 6 at Atlanta, Ga. from injuries received in an automobile wreck. She was the wife of a vice president of D'Arcy Advertising Agency, which handles the Coca-Cola Account. Besides her husband, she is survived by her daughter Ann.

MERVIN CLAUD HUDSON, '30, on July 10 on Highway 13 near the junction of Highway 50 when a tractor he was driving was struck by a car. The retired educator served as superintendent of schools in many Missouri communities. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

CHARLES E. NORTHCUTT, '31, on July 8 at Columbia. He served as superintendent of Boone County schools for 20 years. He was a resident of Fulton at the time of his death. His wife died in 1935.

Mrs. Earl Farnham (MAY CURT-RIGHT, '34) at Midland, Mich., on Aug. 8. She is survived by her husband and son.

Mrs. GRACE HODGE, Haas, '38, on June 24 at California, Mo. She taught for 16 years in a high school at St. Joseph, Mo. and upon the death of her husband returned to Moniteau County where she taught in the California, Mo. high school for four years.

Dr. LAWRENCE W. DEVANEY, '40, personnel administrator for Towanda Laboratory of Luide Air Products, on May 24 at Grand Island, N. Y. Before going to this company, he was professor of chemistry at Baylor University. He was the author of numerous technical articles and held patents on chemicals for petroleum. He was active in the American Chemical Society. He leaves his wife and three children.

Miss ELLA RANK, '43, retired school teacher, on June 13 at Columbia. She taught at Lowry City, Sumner, and Pattonville. For many years she was superintendent of the Lowry City and Sumner high schools. She was active in church work and filled the pulpit on various occasions.

DONALD R. SNOOK, '48, a former veterans vocational agriculture instructor died from injuries in a car wreck near Mexico, Mo., Aug. 8. He taught in the veterans' administration program until 1951, when he was appointed soil conservationist for Marion County and was then transferred to Shelby County where he remained until last July, when he opened up a new soil district in St. Louis County. He was active in Boy Scout work. His wife and two children survive him.

Lt. PAUL SMITH, '50, on July 30 at the Fitzsimmons Army hospital, Denver. He was seriously injured in an automobile accident three months earlier. At the time of the accident Lt. Smith and his family were making their home at Omaha, Neb., where he was stationed. He practiced veterinary medicine in Brunswick and Slater until 1953, when he entered the armed services. His wife and ten-months old son survive him.

Wrap the big hand around the little hand . . . for now begins a little heart's journey into prayer . . . the guide is Dad, the goal is a security not even he can provide.

But the pattern is security, and it is Dad's privilege to supply his part of it for the little hearts in his care.

In this binding, enclosing love life finds its finest answer.

The security of our homes is our worthiest goal. And providing it is a privilege unique in a country like ours, where each of us is free to choose his way.

And, think: The security that begins in your home, joined to that of other homes, builds the strength of America.

Saving for security is easy! Read every word—now!

If you've tried to save and failed, chances are it was because you didn't have a plan. Well, here's a savings system that really works—the Payroll Savings Plan for investing in U.S. Savings Bonds. This is all you do. Go to your company's pay office, choose the amount you want to save—a couple of dollars a payday, or as much as you wish. That money will be set aside for you before you even draw your pay. And automatically invested in Series "E" U.S. Savings Bonds which are turned over to you.

If you can save only $3.75 a week on the Plan, in 9 years and 8 months you will have $2,137.30.

United States Series "E" Savings Bonds earn interest at an average of 3% per year, compounded semiannually, when held to maturity! And they can go on earning interest for as long as 19 years and 8 months if you wish, giving you a return of 80% on your original investment!

Eight million working men and women are building their security with the Payroll Savings Plan. For your sake, and your family's, too, how about signing up today? If you are self-employed, ask your banker about the Bond-A-Month Plan.
