Here is one repairman who doesn't send a bill!

Of course, you may never need him, either. The average telephone gives years of good service without repair or adjustment of any kind.

But if your phone ever does demand attention, just call the Repair Service (see your directory). A telephone man will come promptly. He'll do a careful job. And there will be no extra charge for his visit.

Does anything else you use so often give you such dependable, low-cost service as your telephone—year after year after year?

The World of Vic Swyden

For Victor F. Swyden, involvement is a way of life. He thrives on being wrapped up in half a dozen projects at the same time. Holding first claim on his enthusiasm and confident skill are those activities aimed at serving others. As a volunteer organizer, promoter and executive, he has given leadership to religious, educational, civic and health endeavors, usually working quietly in the background. He has been involved in such service for more than two decades.

Last spring he emerged more prominently in the public eye of his community, having won election to the City Council of his native Kansas City in April. Although long active in civic affairs, he was making his first bid for public office. Vic's reputation for getting things done efficiently undoubtedly was a factor in his success at the polls.

Vic Swyden showed strong signs of leadership in his University days. Influential in student politics, he was vice-president of the Campus Caucus. A member of Blue Key and the Men's Pan-hellenic, he was president of Lambda Chi Alpha and chairman of a Homecoming decorations committee. He also was on the Dean's Honor List. A few years ago he returned to the campus to be initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa as an honorary member. Vic received two degrees from the University, an A. B. in 1938 and a B. S. in Business Administration in 1939.

A glance at some of Vic's responsibilities gives an idea of the range of his interests: President, Heart of America Eye Clinic, which raises and supervises funds to aid people in operations to restore eyesight; director, National Conference of Christians and Jews, Council of Churches for Greater Kansas City, Multiple Sclerosis Chapter of Kansas City; member, International Relations for the City of Kansas City. At present he is chairman of the Board of Trustees of ALSAC (Aiding Leukemia Stricken American Children), an office that can be regarded as honorary now, but he earned it by yeoman service as first vice-president when he helped to spearhead the organization's gigantic fund-raising drives that led to establishing St. Jude Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. That is another story, which will be taken up later in this account.

Returning to Kansas City after earning his two University degrees, Vic became active in the Midwest Federation of American Syrian Lebanon Clubs. His local club drafted him as a delegate to the convention in Peoria, Ill., in 1939 and in the next two years he served on various committees, became second vice-president and first vice-president. Then came the war. After two years in the Army he was transferred to the Air Corps at Patterson Field, Dayton. He joined the Seventh Bomber Command of the Seventh Air Force in the Pacific Theater and was director of personnel for the command. While in the Pacific he received the bronze star for distinguished service. Upon his release from active duty to reserve status, he was a major.

After four and a half years in the service, Vic had returned home to join his father (who came to this country from Lebanon to attend the University of Illinois) and his brother (Hancey Swyden, B.J. '37) in the firm of Swyden Rug and Drapery Company. Vic plunged into community activities, joining the Junior Chamber of Commerce and holding virtually every office of that organization. He served on the Mayor's committee for special projects and had an active role in bringing major league baseball to Kansas City. He became president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of Greater Kansas City. At Indianapolis in 1946 he was elected the eighth president of the Midwest Federation of American Syrian Lebanon Clubs, presiding at the convention in Cleveland.

It was Vic's interest in the Syrian Lebanese clubs that led directly to the greatest public service involvement of his life—the founding of St. Jude Hospital. First, he saw the scattered independent clubs formed into a cohesive group with a positive national objective. Then he met Danny Thomas, the dedicated entertainer with the magic to rally throngs of supporters to his long range goal. Vic was in on the ground floor when, in 1957, the constitution of ALSAC was drawn up. At that time ALSAC stood for American Lebanese Syrian Associated Charities. The purposes included: "To raise funds for the maintenance of St. Jude Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee, a national institution dedicated to the care, cure, and research of leukemia and related blood diseases in children, and care, cure, and research in of all other diseases afflicting mankind; to foster and promote among Arabic speaking people and others, civic, historic, patriotic, and benevolent activities; to aid and assist in charitable causes without regard to race, creed, or color."

The name of ALSAC was changed to crystallize the organization's specific purpose: it became Aiding Leukemia Stricken American Children. Danny Thomas of Beverly Hills was the first—and permanent—president. Dr. Charles Malik, Lebanon's minister to the United Nations, became the honorary president. Vic Swyden was the vice-president and chairman of the board—which meant that he was charged with the heavy work of getting national fund-raising drives on the road.

How Danny Thomas got involved in this fabulous project is a familiar story by now. He was almost penniless in 1937 when he stopped in a Detroit church and found a pamphlet on St. Jude Thaddeus, one of the lesser known saints who was called the patron saint of hopeless causes. Thomas prayed to St. Jude: "Help me find my place in life and I will build you a shrine, a shrine where the poor, the help-

Their leadership crowned by success, Danny Thomas and Victor F. Swyden congratulate each other at formal opening of St. Jude Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., on February 4, 1962.

An old family friend, AP Columnist Hal Boyle, was the principal speaker at a dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, of which Vic Swyden is Protestant chairman.

less and the hopeless may come for comfort and aid."

Soon thereafter the comedian began his well-known three-year run at the old Chicago 5100 club, and he continued to prosper. But he never lost sight of his pledge to St. Jude, and he sought counsel on what kind of shrine to undertake. It was the late Samuel Cardinal Stritch who suggested the hospital; he also chose Memphis as the location, for it was there that the Cardinal had begun his career as a young parish priest.

As the fund-raising campaign got under way, Thomas began his countless trips across the country meeting with groups and giving benefits. He was often accompanied by Vic Swyden who, in these campaigning years, was in the thick of organizing and directing the activities that would bring the hospital project to reality. By the summer of 1958 three-fourths of the originally estimated cost of two million dollars had been raised; but the cost had increased to nearly five million dollars, and ultimately to six million. This money was raised, and the magnificent hospital at Memphis was opened in February, 1962. Our man Swyden, you can be sure, was there, along with Thomas and scores of leaders in the mammoth drive from all around the country.

While legally independent, St. Jude Hospital is academically and professionally in collaboration with the College of Medicine of the University of Tennessee, where ALSAC endowed a $300,000 chair of pediatrics and made funds available for research. When the hospital opened, the work and equipment of research fellows, technicians and medical students at U.T., financed by ALSAC funds, moved into the hospital.

It takes $1,500,000 a year to operate the hospital—which has no accounts receivable. ALSAC chapters across the land have pledged to raise among themselves a million dollars a year—forever—to maintain St. Jude Hospital. Teenagers through their volunteer efforts provide a substantial amount for maintenance. Sixty beds are in use at the hospital now, 150 will be in use ultimately. A child admitted to the hospital may be accompanied by an adult, expenses paid, and they occupy an apartment where simulated family life is possible. Medicines for treatment of leukemia are made available in shipments from the hospital. A heavy program of research is going on constantly.

Considering all his activities, one is entitled to wonder how Vic is able to do so many things. His stock answer is that he has a circle of friends, going back to his Junior C. of C. and war service days, who form a sort of mutual aid society. He can call on any of them to give him a lift, and in turn he is ready to help them. This no doubt is true, but it doesn't explain all his accomplishments. He's still in there working. As Watt Randall, executive secretary of the Kansas City Rotary Club, put it: "Vic is one of our standbys. He's a worker. He gets along wonderfully well with people. If he can do something for someone, he doesn't hesitate. He's carved a niche for himself in the Rotary Club." As entertainment chairman for the club, Vic is in charge of the annual picnic for the large group. He also heads a bowling league and serves on various committees. He has been active in the club's program of working with high school students who are potential dropouts.

His interest in sports, stemming from his University days, continues. Vic is coach of a team in the 3 and 2 league—boys from 12 to 14 years old. At Missouri he was on the football squad, but was too light to earn a letter; however, he made the varsity baseball team, but a hand injury cut short his career. He is a member of the University Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics.

When Vic gets into something it isn't for a short span. For example, he spent three years with Danny Thomas in spearheading the ALSAC drive; he has been a director of National Conference of Christians and Jews for eight years, and Protestant chairman for three years. (He likes to recall that in that organization Jews thought he was Catholic, Catholics thought he was a Jew, and Protestants didn't know what to think; he is an Episcopalian and a Mason).

Despite the heavy demands on his time, with Vic Swyden his family comes first. His wife is the former Vivian Farha of Detroit. They have a son and two daughters: Victor II, 14; Pat, 12; and Jan, 8. Young Vic elected to compete on the baseball team coached by his father, which may have been asking for trouble, for as Coach Vic says: "I rode Vic awfully hard." Coaches of the league chose the youngster as the most valuable player. When young Vic was laid up with a broken arm, the fathers of the players paid him a call. Coach Vic thought this was an unusual gesture, maybe too much. One of the fathers explained: "We felt that every bawling out Vic got, he was taking it for our sons. Instead of our boys getting bawled out, young Vic had to take it." Coach Vic now wonders if he overdid it.

Young Vic weighs 140 pounds—15 more than his dad weighed when he made the baseball varsity at M.U. His dad thinks the youngster has a future in baseball. The boy was a straight A student until the arm fracture and accompanying low spirits took him down to B's and C's—but he went back toward A's after promising his dad he would do so.

If you ask Vic Swyden how he became involved in so many projects he answers, "I guess I couldn't say no." Then he adds, more seriously: "I like to contribute what I can as long as it's worth while and justified. There's a certain amount one owes his community. We're not here to take everything. The only way to give it back is to participate."

Watt Randall struck some key words in his comment on Vic Swyden: "If he can do something for someone, he doesn't hesitate."

The Fantasticks

What pleased the University dramatics staff most about the success of The Fantasticks was the fact that the students had done it all themselves. The musical parable about love, based on Rostand's play The Romancers, was a Missouri Workshop Theatre presentation early in November. At each of its four performances, the audiences found much to interest and delight them. "It was a wonderful fulfillment of our aim," said Professor Donovan Rhynsburger, director of dramatics and executive producer of The Fantasticks. "That aim is for the students to take what training they receive here and then let them find out what they can do, using their talent and our facilities. It was a joy, like going to see your own kids in a play." The students did everything—casting, costuming, directing, staging and lighting—with a minimum of counsel from the staff, such as a quiet suggestion that perhaps this comedy scene is running too long, or that costume is a trifle extreme.

The selection of Diane Hodson as director of The Fantasticks points up the fact that participation in Missouri Workshop Theatre plays is not confined to drama majors, for Diane is in the College of Education. However, she has a string of credits, mostly with the production crews of a series of Workshop presentations. In addition, she has played one role and has been a director and an assistant director on two other productions. She has been associated with such presentations as Dark of the Moon, Goodbye My Fancy, Dinny and the Witches, and Bell, Book and Candle.

The Fantasticks is the story of two old college chums who want their son and daughter to marry. The surest way to bring this about, they decide, is to prevent their association. So they build a high wall between the two neighboring properties. The plan, of course, works; the boy and girl fall in love. The fathers then decide the romance should be more realistic, so they arrange an abduction scene from which the boy will emerge a more heroic figure. After the youngsters are married they discover the extent of planning in which their fathers had been engaged. Thereupon husband and wife take separate paths to romance, only to realize their own love is stronger than others, and they are reunited. Professor Lewis Stoerker was technical adviser for The Fantasticks. Arvie Baie was the producer and Charles Rose the musical director.

This foursome had two big musical numbers in the production. Errol Greenberg, at left, and Jim Zvanut, at right, had the roles of the fathers who schemed for the marriage of their offspring, played by Dulcie Creasy and Bob Dillard.

For Dan Devine and his coaching lieutenants, the 1963 football season reflected maximum achievement—and the solid assurance of future dividends.

Tiger fans could delight in a 7-3 record, spiced by thrilling comeback victories over Arkansas and Kansas on the road—and the emergence of a sophomore-hued backfield that dominated most of the statistical categories. It was, sure enough, another auspicious autumn in Tigerland and all the more gratifying because Mizzou backers had conditioned themselves for a possible recession in '63.

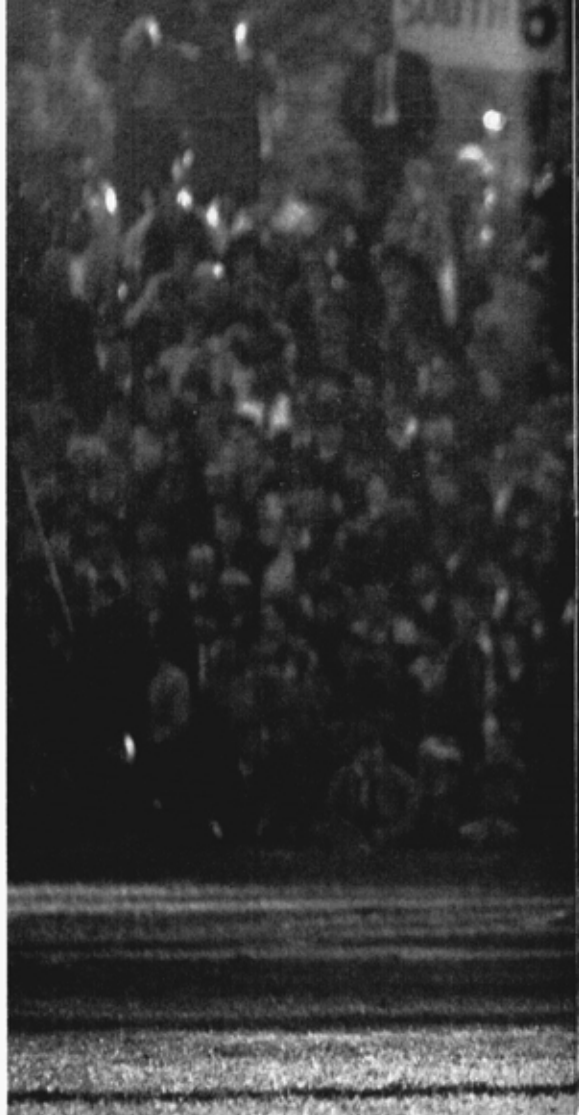

With halfback Johnny Roland on the disciplinary shelf, and proven veterans like Jim Johnson, Bill Tobin and Andy Russell graduated, the Bengals didn't figure to scare anyone offensively this fall. Once again, though, Devine and his staff demonstrated their knack of developing a winning consistency in their athletes.

There were new names to intrigue a record turnout of Bengal fans . . . Gary Lane . . . Monroe Phelps . . . Ken Boston . . . Carl Reese . . . and Ted Saussele—exciting youngsters who played with the aplomb of veterans. And, for the defense, two tough-textured lines that yielded more yardage than has been typical of recent M.U. teams, but an average of just 8.6 points a game—lowest in the conference.

Basically it was this blend of rookie backs and experienced linemen, that brought Ol' Mizzou so close to a piece of the league title. Failure to make a two-point conversion against Nebraska cost the Black and Gold a chance to share the championship with the Cornhuskers and Oklahoma's Sooners. Missouri finished third in the standings, marking the first time in six years that a Devine team had dipped below second place.

But what a superb try for the winner's wreath by a club that shrugged off adversity along the way! Against Nebraska and Oklahoma, the Tigers went down with all guns blazing. They bowed to the Huskers, 13-12, and to the Sooners, 13-3, in two bruising games that were unmatched all season for sheer intensity of play.

That the Missourians came close was in itself remarkable. Roland's loss was compounded by Vince Turner's early indisposition with a bad ankle. Altered were plans to pump up the offense by playing the versatile Turner both ways. Then at mid-season, Phelps—a surprise-package at halfback—was eliminated with a severe knee injury he suffered on the opening kickoff against Iowa State. This blow removed M.U.'s leading rusher, pass receiver and scorer—and forced Devine to rely more on a quarterback-fullback offense.

TEN

Lane's bout with infected tonsils just ahead of the Kansas finale could have been disastrous—but the rookie signal-caller capped a brilliant season by directing Mizzou's game-winning drive against the Jayhawks. Once inside the K.U. 10, place-kicker Bill Leistritz delivered his winning field-goal . . . it was a 23-yard kick officially . . . for a 9-7 upset victory.

Curiously, Missouri won seven of ten games despite being out-rushed and out-passed by all opponents. In total offense yardage, M.U. lagged with 2,289 to 2,365 for the opposition. The reason? Better ball-control by Tiger foes who averaged eight more plays per game. Yet, Devine's team apparently had the ability to convert more of its opportunities into touchdowns. On the scoreboard, Ol' Mizzou chalked up a total of 151 points—and yielded 86.

Northwestern counted 23 of those in the season's opener, as quarterback Tom Myers befuddled the Bengals' new, young secondary with his passing. After Mizzou jumped off to a 6-0 lead, Myers connected on 10 of 16 aerials for 209 yards as the Big Ten Wildcats prevailed, 23-12.

Missouri rebounded handily the next week at Little Rock, though. Down 6-0 at halftime, the Big Eight visitors surged back behind tough, determined line play to steal the initiative from Arkansas's nationally-rated Razorbacks. Lane's pass to end Bud Abell carried to the 2 from where fullback Gus Otto rammed into the end zone. Leistriz kicked the vital point in a 7-6 triumph.

For many Tiger followers, this was the sweetest smell of success in 1963. It "made" the season for those fans who never quite forgave Frank Broyles, Arkansas coach, for his abrupt departure after one year as M.U.'s skipper back in 1957.

The win was Mizzou's springboard for consecutive decisions over Idaho, Kansas State, Oklahoma State and Iowa State—the latter a hairbreadth 7-0 squeaker. Coach Clay Stapleton's souped-up Cyclone defense put the stopper on Missouri's attack more emphatically than any foe. Linebacker Otto's alert 50-yard run-back of an intercepted pass was the game-breaking play.

There was tingling drama in the Homecoming game with Nebraska. A powerful Husker attack ripped M.U. for 299 rushing yards—but a record crowd of 51,800 spectators saw the Bengals close to within one point, 13-12, with eight minutes left to play, only to fail on a two-point pass play. Lane had hit Boston on a spectacular 53-yard scoring pass for the second touchdown, and Missouri gamely gambled for victory rather than kick for a tie.

Lane's three touchdowns, one a 69-yard sprint, highlighted a 28-7 win over Colorado at Boulder, but a well-alerted Sooner defense checkmated the flashy sophomore's threat in a televised showdown at Columbia. Oklahoma's Larry Shields sped 65 yards on a punt return for a first-quarter touchdown—and M.U.'s Leistritz booted a 43-yard field goal just before the half. O.U. clung to that 6-3 lead until the game's waning minutes, driving 68 yards for a clinching score.

The 72nd M.U.-K.U. football renewal drew a record 45,000 crowd at Lawrence—and followed exactly the script of the last six years when the underdog walked off a winner. It was Devine's third straight victory without a loss over Jayhawk Jack Mitchell on the Kansas field. It boosted the Tigers' all-time mastery over Kansas to 33-30-9.

Vince Turner's 102-yard return of a recovered fumble, caught in mid-air as Ken Coleman lunged for a score—and Leistritz's clutch field goal with less than six minutes to go were the key contributions. As against Arkansas, Mizzou looked listless early, but strung together a solid second-half drive and tougher defense to overcome a 7-6 handicap.

In the aftermath of victory, Bill Mayer—sports editor of the Lawrence (Kan.) Journal-World—saluted the Tigers and their hallmark "poise" in this fashion:

"One of the key traits of Devine teams is confidence. Another MU trademark is refusal to panic—they call that poise. The Tigers seem to believe in themselves and indicate they don't doubt for a moment they can do what they have to. There was a marked contrast between them and the sometimes confused Jayhawks in that crucial second half Saturday."

Eleven seniors, six of them first-string linemen, finished up for Missouri this fall—and replacing those line losses will be the main objective this spring. Though defeated in both starts, the Bengal freshmen will send up several well-regarded back-field prospects—notably speedsters Charlie Brown and Earl Denny at the halfbacks—to join a strong holdover corps of runners that will include Roland, M.U.'s top ground-gainer and scorer as a sophomore.

If Coaches Al Onofrio, Rollie Dotsch and Charlie Mackey can weld together two stable lines, the 1964 football outlook must be rated real promising.

Head Coach Dan Devine in an animated moment on the sidelines.

Margie Farmer

Wilberta L. (Willie) Linsenbardt of Jefferson City was chosen Queen of the fifty-first Homecoming at the University this fall. She is a senior in the School of Journalism, majoring in advertising. Her two special attendants were Margie E. Farmer, also of Jefferson City, a senior in the College of Arts and Science; and Betty Haw of Earle, Ark., a sophomore in the College of Arts and Science. Others among the seven finalists were Jan Carlson of Kansas City, Becky Hickman of Columbia, Karen Keck of Clinton and Mary Ann Laffoon of Trenton.

The Homecoming Committee

Behind the color and festivity of Homecoming is the work of a group of students who spend many hours in planning sessions over a period of weeks before the big event comes off. These students are members of the Homecoming committee. Here they are, gathered at the Columns and displaying some of the trappings suitable to this year's "Homecomin' Hootenanny" theme. Top row, from left: Tony Savage of Laramie, Wyo., who was in charge of the parade; Roger L. Rath, general chairman; and Doug Hrdlicka (Huskin' and Hootin'); Rath's father and Hrdlicka's father are stationed in Germany in military service. Middle row: Sally Stark of Louisiana, Mo. (half time ceremonies); Judy Eads of Iberia, Mo. (sharing Huskin' and Hootin' duties with Hrdlicka); Ann Richardson of Ladue, Mo. (house decorations); Karen Giesler of Florissant, Mo. (dance); and Linda Grasel of St. Louis (secretary). Bottom row: Jerry Sigoloff of Olivette, Mo. and Jim Cooling of St. Louis (co-chairmen); and Stewart (Skip) Weiner of Cincinnati (publicity). Not present for picture: Robert (Chip) Decker of Kirkwood, Mo. (queen selection). Jean J. Madden was chairman of the University committee on Homecoming.

"Yes, Missouri's going to beat Kansas this year. There's no doubt in my mind about it," said a young business man, Thomas R. Bruce of Mexico, Mo., as he stopped at his favorite drug store for his morning cigar—that was back in 1915. If you had chanced to be in this same drug store recently, almost 50 years later, probably you would have heard a similar forecast in the same enthusiastic manner, concerning the 1963 M.U.-K.U. game at Lawrence. (He would have been right, too, as things turned out). Through all these years Tom Bruce has remained loyal to his favorite football team, the Missouri Tigers, and now, as many as 300 games later, he is still one of the most dedicated football fans to be found anywhere. During the past 64 years he has missed but one home game, and that was back in 1924 when he was hospitalized for three weeks. Even though he is 85 years old, he doesn't do any of his quarterbacking from an easy chair at home—he never misses taking his seat in the Stadium well ahead of kickoff time on any Missouri game. In addition to football, he has seen a lot of M.U. basketball, baseball and track, for he enjoys all forms of athletics. One football game he remembers every year when Missouri plays Nebraska was the game these two teams played in 1928. That year the Cornhuskers had a couple of great backs and should have won over Missouri easily, but the game ended with the Tigers ahead 7 to 6. He also recalls with much interest the M.U.-Haskell Institute game 1899, which proved to be a fine game. With Mr. Bruce when Missouri played Idaho here this fall were his five sons, all highly successful business men who came from as far away as Florida and California. They had returned to the family home in Mexico earlier to join in the celebration of their parents' Golden Wedding anniversary. Tom Bruce was enrolled at the University from 1899 to

1906 and won a letter in track. Four of his five sons are graduates and one of his grandsons, John Swatek, son of John Swatek (a former Tiger football player), is now enrolled at the University as a freshman and was a member of the Tiger freshman football squad. The Bruces also have two daughters, Mrs. William McClure of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Jack Swatek, Mexico. For information on the Bruce family and the accompanying photo, the Alumnus thanks Mrs. Lillian Baker, secretary to Missouri's Head Football Coach, Dan Devine.

Dr. Robert J. Lockwood, who died at his home in Portland, Ore. on September 10, was the last of seven brothers and two sisters, children of John and Mary Lockwood, all of whom attended the University. Dr. Lockwood was a former student who later earned a degree in osteopathy in Kansas City. His brothers and sisters were: William Duncan Lockwood, M.D. '93; Marquis Heartwell Lockwood, E.E. '93, M.S. '00; Franklin Leroy Lockwood, B.S. in C.E. '06; Bartley Marshall Lockwood, LL.B. '01; Helen Marie Lockwood, medical student in 1899-1901; Marvin Barnett Lockwood, '02-'04; Charles Clyde Lockwood, B.S. in Agr. '08; and Sara Lawrence Lockwood Williams, B.J. '12, A.M. '31. Four grandchildren are M.U. graduates: J. Marshall Lockwood, LL.B., son of Bart M.; June Lockwood Fredericks, B.S. '30, daughter of Robert J.; Sara Louise Lockwood Mann, B.S. in Nursing '44, daughter of Charles C.; and Franklin Marquis Lockwood, B.S. in Medicine, '45, son of Charles C. There is one great-granddaughter: Linda Louise Lockwood Hunt, A.B. '60, daughter of J. Marshall Lockwood. This report is based on information from Mrs. C. C. Lockwood, the former Amelia Frauens, B.S. in Ed. '11, who lives at 212 E. 34th Terrace, Kansas City 11, Mo. Two scholarship funds at the University are provided by members of the Lockwood family. One is the John and Mary Lockwood Education Fund, established in 1929 by Marquis H. Lockwood of New York City, and the other is the Sara Lockwood Williams Scholarship Fund, originally established by the Missouri Press Women and now augmented by proceeds from the estate of Mrs. Williams.

St. Louis dinner-dance

The Starlight Roof of the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel was the scene of the annual St. Louis Alumni dinner-dance which was attended by approximately 350 persons. Special guests at the December 6 event were four University deans—B. W. Kingrey, School of Veterinary Medicine; Vernon E. Wilson, School of Medicine; Joe Covington, School of Law; and James L. Bugg, St. Louis Campus; and Allan W. Purdy, director of Aids and Awards, and William Gates, director of University Extension in St. Louis County. Mr. Purdy was presented a check for $1200 from the alumni for use in connection with the University's student loan fund.

Mitch Murch, outgoing president of the St. Louis alumni organization, presided. Banquet chairman was Jim Turner, the incoming president.

G. H. Entsminger, University director of Development and Alumni Activities, presented a certificate of appreciation to Mr. Murch for his services as president, and Mr. Turner, on behalf of the St. Louis alumni board, presented his predecessor a chair in appreciation of his numerous accomplishments in office.

Biennial Kansas City event

The tragedy that struck the nation on November 22 was uppermost in the minds of alumni who attended the dinner meeting in Kansas City at the Hotel President that night. It was deemed too late effectively to cancel the event and it was carried out, although in subdued form; the scheduled "pep" portion of the event held biennially on the eve of the Missouri game at Lawrence (which that night was postponed for a week) was dispensed with, and the planned radio broadcast also was abandoned. Of 350 persons who had reservations, 250 were present. A. G. Eddy was banquet chairman and Jack Senter, retiring president of the Kansas City Alumni, presided. Brad Brett, president of the University Alumni Association; Dan Devine, Missouri football coach; and Don Faurot, athletic director, spoke briefly. Jack Senter presented a $600 check from the Greater Kansas City alumni group to the University Alumni Achievement Fund for use in the scholarship program; Mr. Brett accepted. F. Alan Roby presented an "M" blanket to Jack Senter for his services as president.

Testimonial to Dan Devine

A testimonial to Dan Devine, Missouri's head football coach, was sponsored by "M" Men of St. Louis on December 1, the affair taking place at the Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson with an attendance of 840 alumni and other fans. Co-chairmen of the testimonial were Jim Kekeris and Mike Fitzgerald. Master of ceremonies was Harry Caray, sports announcer, and entertainment was provided by Bob Holt.

Devine was lauded by Caray and by Bob Broeg, sports editor of the Post-Dispatch, and Bob Burnes, sports editor of the Globe-Democrat. The coach received an M.U. letterman's jacket and an M blanket in presentations made by Wally Dryer, former Mizzou baseball player. A check was presented to Missouri Athletic Director Don Faurot for the setting up of scholarship fund named in Faurot's honor; this presentation was made by Clair Houston, captain of the football team in 1935, Faurot's first year as coach at Missouri.

James A. Finch, president of the Board of Curators, represented University President Elmer Ellis. Guests included all members of the football coaching staff and their wives and about 25 M.U. football players.

Egypto-Roman Mummy Portrait of a Man

Dated to the 1st or 2nd century A.D., this mask was recently acquired by the Museum of Art and Archaeology with funds provided by H. K. Negbaur of New York. Although the exact origin of the mask is not known, it is believed to have come from the area of Luxor on the Upper Nile. The mask is of stucco, carefully modeled and painted; the eyes are of deep blue, black and white glass set into the rich red-brown skin tone of the stucco. Such masks were set over the faces of mummies which were then carefully wrapped in strips of linen. The wrapping of the head provided an oval frame of cloth through which the portrait appeared. Although masks of this type were mass-produced and kept in stock for purchase by bereaved families, this piece is probably a true portrait, individually modeled after the actual features of the deceased. The fine workmanship and the excellent state of preservation of the mask make it an exceptionally important addition to the Museum's growing collection of Egyptian antiquities. The mask is on display in the Ancient Gallery of the Museum of Art and Archaeology located on the fourth floor of the Library.

Cagers provide surprises

Missouri cashed a rare football-basketball win ticket . . . and both were thrilling victories . . . on Nov. 30 when the two sports overlapped following a week's postponement of the M.U.-K.U. grid finale at Lawrence in the wake of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

Emulating the come-from-behind tactics of Missouri's footballers against Kansas, Coach Bob Vanatta's basketballers fought back from a 15-point handicap at halftime to nip the Air Force Academy, 65-61, in Brewer field house.

By mid-December the Bengals had used this heady, opening triumph as a springboard to a surprising 4-1 record. Most significant was their 85-74 upset of mighty Ohio State at Columbus—a rude jolt for the Big Ten's defending co-champions.

Arkansas (76-74) and Washington U. (89-63) were numbered among Missouri's early victims too, but back-to-back scheduling of the Buckeye and Indiana road games (just 16 hours apart) took its toll in the Hoosier contest. Indiana polished off the Big Eight Tigers, 100-76, at Bloomington.

Veterans Ray Bob Carey, Bob Price and Don Early were scoring more productively than last year—but Vanatta was getting impressive help from Gary Garner, 5-11 junior guard, and Ned Monsees, broad-shoulder 6-4 recruit from intramural ranks last season.

Garner was hitting better than 50 percent from the field, and trailing only Carey in scoring output. Monsees proved to be a rugged ballhawk in the rebounding department.

As the Tigers prepared for their first court tussle with St. Louis U. in 13 years—and the follow-up Big Eight post-Christmas tournament at Kansas City, prospects were brighter for more bench strength. With only 10 days practice, footballers Gary Lane and Jim Waller made the travel squad to Ohio State and Indiana—along with George Flamank, ailing letterman, who was not expected back for duty until January. Another new addition at the semester will be 6-5 Tom Officer, a transfer from Murray (Ky.) State.

Mizzou opens its 14-game conference schedule against Oklahoma on Jan. 6.

Dr. Chandler lectures here

Dr. Lester V. Chandler, one of the lecturers in the series of lectures honoring Professor Emeritus Elmer Wood, is Rentschler Professor of Economics at Princeton University where for six years he was head of the department. Before joining the Princeton faculty in 1950, Dr. Chandler had served thirteen years as a member of the Amherst College faculty. He spent the academic year 1961-62 at the University of Bombay as Visiting Professor in Monetary Economics.

Professor Chandler earned two degrees from the University of Missouri—A.B. in 1930 with Phi Beta Kappa honors, and A.M. in 1931. After receiving his Ph.D. from Yale in 1934, he taught at Dartmouth and Princeton before going to Amherst in 1937. His services as an economic adviser are frequently sought by governmental agencies and congressional committees. He is a prolific writer in the field of economics. Professor Chandler is co-author of Economic Processes and Policies, and author of Inflation in the United States, Introduction to Monetary Theory, A Preface to Economics, Economics of Money and Banking and other works. He is a member of the American Economic Association and the American Finance Association.

Dr. Rubey wins high honor

Dr. William Walden Rubey, A.B. '20, D.S. '53, a native of Moberly, Missouri, received the Penrose medal at meetings of the Geological Society of America in New York recently.

The annual international award is considered the highest honor given to a geologist. Dr. Rubey won recognition for his research into the history of seawater and the relationship between water in rocks and the structural strength of rocks.

Dr. Rubey is professor of geology and geophysics at the University of California at Los Angeles. He was with the U.S. Geological Survey from 1921 to 1960.

In addition to graduating from M.U., he attended Johns Hopkins, Yale and Villanova universities and has taught at Yale, California, Johns Hopkins, and the California Institute of Technology.

Teaching award to Dr. Pearce

Dr. Josephine A. Pearce, associate professor of English at Bradley University, Peoria, Illinois, received Bradley's top teaching award for the year at the school's 67th annual founder's Day convocation.

Dr. Pearce, who joined the Bradley faculty in 1955 after receiving her Ph.D. degree at the University, was presented Bradley's annual Putnam Award for excellence in teaching. It included $500 and a certificate.

A former teacher of English at the Universities of British Columbia, Miami (Florida) and Missouri, Dr. Pearce is only the second of seven Putnam Award recipients who was not a department head. The first award was given in 1957.

Dr. Pearce received her undergraduate degree from the University of Washington at Seattle and her master's degree from Stanford. A Shakespearean scholar, she did her graduate work at the University under Dr. Hardin Craig, long-time visiting professor of English at the University.

PERFORMANCE EVALUATOR

This test engineer is one of a team at GM's Michigan Proving Ground which has developed a new Performance-Economy Console, the latest in a long line of specially-designed test equipment. It registers car performance precisely—pickup, hill climbing, passing—under all sorts of driving situations. Fast, slow or in-between speeds. Long runs or short hops. City or country roads. Rainy, snowy or sunny days. Sizzling heat or extreme cold. Fuel consumption is also measured down to the nearest cubic centimeter. All year long, the exacting tests go on and on. In fact, a total of more than 50,000 test miles are logged every day at the three GM Proving Ground facilities—in Michigan, at Pikes Peak and in Arizona.

But testing doesn't begin or end on the track. In the GM Proving Grounds and other GM laboratories are ultra-modern instruments, machines and computers—specifically built to test for noise, vibration, stress and durability in engine, body and chassis. In fact, practically everything that goes into a GM car is thoroughly tested and retested. These constant laboratory checks make the data collected on the road more meaningful, more useful every year. The goal can be wrapped up in one word—quality!

The test engineer wears three, sometimes even four hats. He plans tests, performs tests, evaluates test results—and even designs the equipment used for testing. He makes a big contribution to your comfort, safety and pleasure.

Product quality is paramount at General Motors. That's why the test engineer is a key man on the GM team.

Six alumni into Missouri Academy of Squires

Ten Missouri residents who have distinguished themselves in business, labor or the professions have been initiated into the Missouri Academy of Squires. Six of these are alumni of the University.

James A. Finch, Jr., A.B. '30, LL.B. '32, an attorney in Cape Girardeau, was cited for "conspicuous service to the cause of higher education as president of the Board of Curators of the University of Missouri and as a member of governors' boards and councils which have contributed to the formation of educational policy in the state."

Dr. Robert M. Good, LL.D. '47, president emeritus of the School of the Ozarks at Point Lookout, was given this honor for "more than four decades of inspired and indispensable service to the School of the Ozarks, the growth and advancement of which are in large part a tribute to his energetic and understanding leadership through a long period of years."

James M. Kemper, Sr., A.B. '16, chairman of the board of the Commerce Trust Company, Kansas City, whose citation centered on "his long service to his community and state as a bank and civic leader" and for "his contributions of time and money to the University of Kansas City (now the University of Missouri at Kansas City), the Kansas City Museum, the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, the Liberty Memorial Association, Midwest Research Institute and the Downtown Redevelopment Corporation."

Dillard A. Mallory, M.Ed. '47, superintendent of schools at Buffalo, was cited for "his extraordinary dedication to the schools of his community" and for

"having upon his own personal credit made it possible for his district to build an attractive modern school, plus up-to-date housing for its teachers," and for "finding time also to take part in other community affairs and to serve as district governor of Rotary."

Dr. Ruth Seevers, M.D. '06, of Osceola, received her citation for "her compassionate, unselfish service as a general practitioner of medicine during the years following her graduation from the University of Missouri, for being entitled to the recognition bestowed upon her by the people of her community as 'first citizen' of Osceola" and for "her kindness of heart that has so often impelled her to 'adopt' and care for those who found themselves sick and penniless."

Roy D. Williams, Law '02, Boonville attorney, was cited for "his great usefulness to his community and state as a lawyer, public official, and judge" and for "his services to the Boonslick Historical Society, which has become one of the most lively local historical societies in the United States, and to the State Historical Society which he serves as president."

Other new squires are Edwin M. Clark, John I. Rollings and Leif J. Sverdrup, all of St. Louis, and Howard Cook, Jefferson City.

The Academy was founded in 1960 by the late Governor James T. Blair, Arts '21, LL.D. '60, to give recognition to persons who have enhanced the history and prestige of their communities in Missouri. New members are elected by existing members of the Academy. With the addition of these ten new squires, the membership now totals forty-four.

Marguerite White Hennessy (B.J. '35) being greeted at airport in Dublin as her husband, Frank Hennessy, looks on.

The busy times of Rita Hennessy

Since receiving her B.J. degree in 1935, Mrs. Frank Hennessy, the former Marguerite "Rita" White, has kept her varied journalistic talents at work.

It was while working for a radio station in Little Rock, Arkansas, that she met her husband. They married and later moved to Memphis and then to New Orleans, where Rita was assistant radio director of an advertising agency.

While husband Frank was in the Armed Forces (World War II), Rita got a job as sales promotion manager for WQXR, the New York Times "Good Music" station. When he returned to civilian life, the Hennessys moved to Syracuse, N. Y. Rita filled in her free time doing volunteer work—publicity mostly—for the Girl Scouts, Community Chest and Children's Theater. She also did a little TV work with her husband, at a time when television was just catching on with the public.

Their next move was to Baltimore, Maryland, where Rita handles public information for the State Health Department, now called Health Education, while Frank is Community Relations Director for a brewing company.

The Hennessys travel, too. They visited several European countries this spring and earlier served as representatives of the local Irish Societies to visit the people of Baltimore, Ireland on St. Patrick's Day. "That was quite a thrill for a guy named Hennessy . . . and his wife," says Rita.

"I read an article once that said if you cook poorly enough your husband will hire a full time maid. It didn't work. He took up cooking! It's his hobby," says Rita. And this was the subject of a recent feature article in the Baltimore Evening Sun, complete with pictures of Rita and guests on the patio of the Hennessy home at 1315 Boyce Ave., waiting for some of Frank's prize-winning Argentinean lamb asado roast.

WHAT COSTS
1/3 LESS TODAY
THAN 30 YEARS AGO?

ELECTRICITY DOES! The average price a kilowatt hour is 1/3 less now than it was 30 years ago.

So, if your electric service bill is more today, it's simply because you are using more electricity . . . and the amount you pay is for a two-months' period of time! Divide your two-months' bill by 60. See how little it costs a day to provide comfort, convenience and better living for your entire family!

Some inquiry has arisen about the irregular appearance of this department. This is embarrassing, but there is a simple explanation. One becomes so immersed in various speed-up operations, and contributes so heavily to the general efficiency, that there is scarcely time left for such pursuits as writing. We do far more work now than in the past, but unfortunately it is not for ourselves. After one has put in an honest day coping with his zip code number, in distance dialing (13 digits), and in putting down his bank account number whenever a check is written or deposited, he is near exhaustion, and in need of some form of therapy. We have nothing against the post office, the bank or the telephone company—all noble institutions—but we do wish they could return to the days when they did much of their own work themselves. Their charitable distribution of labor has gone far enough.

Readers who have long memories may recall that in the September issue this department referred to the possible loss of personal marbles whilst bemused by a sign in the University Library. The response from veterans of the knuckle game was quick, mostly from fellow editors noted for their compassion. Denton Beal of Carnegie Alumnus mailed three marbles, without comment. Chet Worthington of Brown Alumni Monthly pointed out where we had overlooked a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to make typographical capital—he said we should have had the word marbles set in agate. We can assure our readers that both men ordinarily give every indication of being rational and harmless. Then there was quite a letter from Mrs. Mildred Isely, Library assistant, who wrote to wit:

"Imagine my concern when I read on page 44 of the Alumnus that you had lost some of your marbles in the Library. My concern was increased when I noted your column head was 'Page Thirty six,' although I carefully recounted the pages and number 44 was correct. (Ed's note: Obviously, a newcomer among our readers).

"Thinking maybe I had misplaced a few marbles of my own, I hastened to the Lost and Found Department. They had a quantity of marbles and had been wondering for some time over who might be short a few.

"To the consternation of some of my colleagues and the gratification of others, I retrieved the marbles and took them to my desk. After looking them over, I couldn't possibly decide whether they were the marbles you had lost or not.

"However, no one else had reported lost marbles, so I am sending these along to you. If any of them aren't yours, please send them back, because the owner might show up, and we really don't want anyone to lose his marbles permanently in the Library."

Mrs. Isely considerably enclosed five attractive marbles, bringing our total haul to eight and bolstering the power of the printed word. In this day of confusions and pressures, eight marbles on hand are none too many.

Alumni activities roundup

Organized alumni activities pick up steam in the fall, and the season just passed was a crowded one in the best tradition. Out of state gatherings almost outnumbered those held in Missouri (three events in the state are reported elsewhere in this issue, however).

Alumni in the San Francisco area were the first to start off the schedule—actually meeting in late summer at an informal affair. Little Rock was next, a Lafayette Hotel meeting on September 21 tying in with the Tiger-Razorback game that night; Don Faurot was the speaker; Ken Quevreaux headed the executive committee, whose members included Dick Dame, Ed Mayfield, Bill Dougan, Mr. and Mrs. John Willingham, and Bob Pettit. Another M.U. representative was Bruce Gray.

During October meetings were held by alumni in Dayton (the M.U. film, "Record of Progress," was shown); Des Moines, where the alums gathered for a bus trip to the Iowa State game; Louisville, with Joe Carpenter in charge; Jacksonville, Fla., at the home of C. Howard Hill; and at Omaha. It was the first regular meeting of alums in the Omaha area, with about 50 present; members of the executive committee: Henry Wiebe, chairman; Harry Robinson, John Duncan, Bob Belknap, Marty Belknap, Lou Gerdes, Dr. Tony Barak, and Morris Jacobs.

Ninety-five attended a Los Angeles meeting (see page 16).

A first meeting of alumni in the area of Hutchinson, Kan., was held October 21 at Hutchinson. Harry Tidd was meeting chairman, and Dean W. Francis English of the College of Arts and Science was the speaker. An M.U. football film was shown.

November gatherings included a strictly social function in New York City, and a meeting in Indianapolis featuring a showing of the M.U. film. There also was the biennial meeting in Denver in connection with the Missouri-Colorado game at Boulder. The University Alumni Association president, Brad Brett, was the speaker. Chuck Henning heads the Denver group. Evan Slack was meeting chairman, and Mahlon Aldridge was a special guest. Seventy attended the affair at the Denver Press Club.

Recent meetings in Missouri include one in Farmington which was a charter night and informational meeting at which Jean J. Madden was the speaker. Bob Hawn was the meeting chairman and also introduced Jack Taylor who presented a skit. W. S. Rumburg, who handled arrangements, is a member of the St. Francois County Executive Committee whose chairman is George Pallo; other members are George Shaw, Arlin Allmon, Tom Fitz, Dr. Paul Dennis, Dave Colson, Mrs. Una Rice Thomas, and C. E. Brightwell.

An informational and charter night meeting also was held at Caruthersville for alumni of Pemiscot and Dunklin Counties. The University was represented by G. H. Entsminger and Jean J. Madden. Chairmen involved in the meeting were: Wyman Dillman, arrangements; Bob Coleman, publicity; Bob Mehrle, meeting; Jim Ed Reeves, Pemiscot County; and Harold Treasure, Dunklin County.

Judge William Kimberlin was chairman of a meeting of Cass County alumni in Harrisonville, called to celebrate victory in an alumni membership campaign. Among those present were District Director Bill Tucker of Warrensburg, and Editor J. W. Brown of the Cass County Democrat Missourian. The speaker was "Timothy Hays."

A good turnout greeted Jean J. Madden at Bolivar

on December 10 when he spoke at a meeting of Polk, Hickory and Dallas County alumni. Bud Thomas was the arrangements chairman and Elvin Douglas the meeting chairman.

Continuing traditional events in Missouri included the St. Louis Engineering Alumni meeting in St. Louis and the Northwest Missouri Barnwarmin' at St. Joseph. Earl Schooley of A. T. & T., New York, was the speaker at the Engineering meeting, which was attended by Ken Kolkmeier, alumnus who is project engineer for the St. Louis arch project. Prof. Milo Bolstad was in charge of arrangements. Engineering Dean Joseph Hogan and several other faculty members were present. The Homecoming Queen and her Court were guests of honor. Approximately 250 persons attended the Barnwarmin' at St. Joseph which had the promotional talents of Don Spalding, Duke Dillard and John Giddens behind it. Baseball Coach John "Hi" Simmons was the speaker; the University was also represented by Dean C. Brice Ratchford of the University Extension Division.

A customary Columbia event was the December 4 meeting of the 33rd Degree Fan Club held in Rothwell Gymnasium to honor Missouri's football team and coaches. Ed Brown is president of the club. Mahlon Aldridge presided and introduced the speaker, Ara Paraseghian, at that time coach at Northwestern and now of Notre Dame.

Howard's gift of paintings

A collection of 24 paintings depicting the life of a convict at ill-famed Devil's Island prison in French Guiana has been presented to the University by a former student and native Missourian—Bailey K. Howard, president of Field Enterprises Educational Corporation, of Chicago.

The paintings, work of Francis (Flag) LaGrange, one of the great art forgers and counterfeiters of modern times, have been on display at the Student Commons art gallery on the University campus. This was the first public exhibition of the paintings in the United States.

Mr. Howard purchased the paintings from a restaurant owner outside Cayenne, French Guiana, after their discovery by Richard S. Smith, American public relations executive.

LaGrange, sentenced for life to the penal colony in 1930 for counterfeiting, served eight years in the French prison. Fifteen of the paintings were reproduced in the book, "Flag on Devil's Island," written by the artist in collaboration with William Murray.

Photographers were forbidden to enter the prison or photograph inmates working as trusties outside the camps, so the paintings are the only authentic pictorial record of life in the prison.

A native of Jamestown, Missouri, Mr. Howard formerly was a reporter on the Kansas City Journal-Post and sales manager of Marshall Hughes Company in Kansas City from 1935 to 1940. He joined Field Enterprises in 1953 as general sales manager, education division, and was named vice-president and general sales manager in 1953, a position he held until 1957 when he became president.

M. R. Irwin (right), chairman of the committee for the Harry L. Kempster Memorial Fund, presents a check for $3,000 to Allen Purdy, Director of Aids and Awards at the University. The interest from the fund will be used to aid students majoring in poultry. Mr. Irwin, B.S. Agv. '34, A.M. '41, is president of Colonial Poultry Farms, Pleasant Hill, Mo.
