This thesis provides a method for finding similar sequences in streams of DNA base-pairs. Both CPU and GPU architectures are utilized to employ algorithms utilizing automata to find these similarities. The algorithms are dynamic such that data structure are adapted to mirror characteristics of the DNA stream.