

The Maneater Daily

View this email in your browser

The MANEATER Daily

Thursday, April 6, 2017

Today is the first day you won't need an umbrella this week. The high today will be 57 degrees, and the low will be 34 degrees.

Daily Roundup

Mun Choi | Emil Lippe/Staff Photographer

UM System looks to cut faculty and programs to deal with a smaller budget

Academic programs with low enrollment, staff positions and nontenure track professors have the possibility of being cut as the UM System deals with drastic budget cuts. The system needs to reduce spending by 8 to 12 percent, UM System President Mun Choi said in an email Monday. MU campus officials have until May 10 to release both short- and long-term plans to address these budget shortcomings.

Column: With Porter Jr. on board, Mizzou can add even more to its recruiting class

Sports columnist Brendan Lavell discusses the possibilities for Mizzou basketball now that it has one of the top recruits in the nation.

“For a player of Michael Porter Jr.’s caliber to join a program as previously hopeless as Mizzou’s was is completely unprecedented, and it’s exactly what Mizzou needed. Where there was once apathy and pessimism, there is now an optimistic and enthusiastic fan base itching to watch a sure-fire NBA lottery pick grace the court at Mizzou Arena.”

Read more here.

---

Sports

Recap:

The Kansas City Royals lost 9-1 against the Minnesota Twins.

What to Watch:

The St. Louis Blues play the Florida Panthers at 6:30 p.m. on FSMW. The Chicago Blackhawks take on the Anaheim Ducks at 9 p.m. on NBCS.

---

MOVE
magazine

Photo by O.N. Pruitt | Courtesy of Facebook

Journalism professor restores photo gallery of his hometown under segregation

When journalism professor Berkley Hudson was growing up in segregated Columbus, Mississippi, photographer O.N. Pruitt recorded life in the town with his camera. Now, after a 30-year research and curation process, Hudson is bringing the 142,000-photo collection taken by Pruitt and his assistant, Calvin Shanks, to MU.

A portion of the collection, titled “Possum Town,” is currently being showcased in three different venues throughout Columbia — the McDougall Center Gallery in Lee Hills Hall and the Reynolds Journalism Institute until May 5 and Ragtag Cinema until April 4.

The project was spearheaded by five childhood friends who grew up in Columbus: Hudson, brothers Mark and David Gooch, Birney Imes and Jim Carnes.

Pruitt, whose life spanned from 1891 to 1967, was a photographer in Columbus. During his career, he captured life events, both gruesome and beautiful, from lynchings to baptisms. In 1960, Pruitt handed off his business to Shanks. It was not until Mark Gooch started his own project on a street called Catfish Alley in Columbus that the group discovered the variety of the photos.

Read more here.

---

What to Do Today

- Campus Farmers Market, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. @ Lowry Mall
- Social Justice Seder, Doors open at 5:30 p.m., Seder is from 6-7:30 p.m. @ Mizzou Hillel

---

Compiled by Regina Anderson

---

This daily newsletter is a product of The Maneater and MOVE Magazine.

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list

the MOVE groove

In graphic novels: George Takei, whom you may know as Sulu from the OG Star Trek, is releasing his first graphic novel in 2018. The yet-to-be-titled work will tell his life story, beginning with his experience in Japanese-American internment camps. "I have spoken publicly on numerous occasions during my life on the unjust internment of Japanese Americans in my ongoing mission of spreading awareness of this disgraceful chapter of American history," Takei said in a statement. "I do this, and will continue to do so, in the hope that my personal experience can serve as a cautionary reminder of our past leaders' mistakes, and that as a society, we can learn from those transgressions and not repeat them."

In Twitter: Twitter wars are reaching a new level, as the social media site is suing parts of the federal government. An agent within U.S. Customs and Border Protection ordered Twitter to provide records regarding the @ALT\_USCIS account, including the identity of the person who runs it. @ALT_USCIS, which stands for Alternative United States Citizenship and Immigration Services, is one of several unofficial accounts of various government departments (often run by non-employees of such agencies), such as Alt National Parks Service or Rogue NASA. You can read the legal documents here if you're looking for a fun Friday-night-in activity.

In mermaids: If you liked the Beauty and the Beast remake, get ready for some more Disney live-action recreations. One is The Little Mermaid, which already has Hamilton and Moana genius Lin-Manuel Miranda on board. In fact, there are two other live-action Little Mermaid retellings that will be coming out in the near future, including one from Universal and an indie adaptation. The latter already has a trailer out, which you can watch here. Read more about the films here.

If you like art galleries: Today is First Friday for the month of April. Head downtown to the North Village Arts District and peruse the galleries' open houses. Take in the local art and watch free entertainment, while enjoying refreshments from downtown restaurants. Plus, it's supposed to be 60 degrees around 7 p.m., which is perfect for taking an evening stroll.

If you like ballet: Catch LIVE, an event that combines dance and live music, tonight and tomorrow at Missouri Theatre. The live music will include multiple genres and feature original compositions by Tom Andes and Thomas MacFarlane. Missouri Contemporary Ballet will perform three world premieres choreographed by Artistic Director Karen Mareck Grundy and dancer and resident choreographer Fernando Rodriguez. Curtain is at 7 p.m. and tickets range from $15-40. Buy them at the box office or online here.

If you prefer plays: A Chicago Tribune review calls "The Drowning Girls," which is showing this weekend at Warehouse Theatre, "a morbidly funny and sometimes wistful trip through the minds of women who paid the ultimate price for trusting the wrong man." Characters Bessie Munday, Alice Burnham and Margaret Lloyd share their stories — and murders — as the slain wives of the same man. Check out this experimental work tonight or tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. or on Sunday at 2 p.m. or 7:30 p.m.

CARAMEL BANANA CREPES

Photo courtesy of BuzzFeed.

If you like cooking: If you like pancakes but are feeling fancy, try your hand at crepes with this BuzzFeed Tasty recipe for crepes four ways. With these instructions, try chocolate strawberry, blueberry cheesecake, caramel banana or s'mores crepes.

If you like wine: Pair your crepes with an off-dry to sweet Moscato for a sparkly complement to add to your brunch (or your breakfast, lunch or dinner).

Copyright © 2017 MOVE Magazine, All rights reserved.

This weekly newsletter is a product of The Maneater and MOVE Magazine. Compiled by Victoria Cheyne, Bailey Sampson and Katherine White.

MOVE

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list

MOVE: Music. Outings. Venues. Events.