APRIL 1957

How about treating your family to a better chance against cancer?

You give your family the best of everything . . . all-day outings in the car, maybe a movie after, and then a soda to top it all off. There's really nothing you wouldn't do to make your family happy.

And if you could help make them safe . . . safe against cancer, you'd do that too, wouldn't you? And fast. Well, you can help. The American Cancer Society needs your dollars right now. It needs them for research, which is making important gains against the killer. For education, which gives everyone life-saving facts about cancer. For service, which aids and comforts the stricken.

Don't skip the treats that make life pleasant for the family. But don't skip the chance to strike back at a disease that threatens them. Match the cost of that next outing with a check to the American Cancer Society. That's the most worth-while treat you could give! Send your check to "Cancer" in care of your local Post Office today.

JOURNALISM WEEK

Six journalists and Honolulu Star-Bulletin awarded medals for distinguished service.

Individuals receiving the 1957 Missouri Honor Awards for Distinguished Service in Journalism are:

Dr. Hollington K. Tong, Ambassador of the Republic of China to the United States, has known this land and its people first as a student and later in journalistic and official capacities. After attending Park College, he enrolled in the University where he was a journalism student in 1911 and received an A.B. degree in 1912. He did post-graduate work at Columbia University. Returning to China, he pioneered in modern journalism as publisher of the Yung Pao, a Chinese daily. He also served as editor or managing editor of a number of Chinese and English-language publications. In the war years he served as a high information officer and an indefatigable and fair-minded interpreter of China and China's cause to the outside world. He is the author of "Dateline: China" and "Chiang Kai-shek." He was Ambassador to Japan from 1952 to 1956.

Roy A. Roberts, editor, president, and general manager of the Kansas City Star, joined the staff as a reporter in 1908. His connection with the Star goes back even further; as a boy on a bicycle he carried the paper in Lawrence where later, as a University of Kansas student, he began his writing career as a correspondent for the paper. He has exposed to his tremendous interest every facet of the Star's operation—in jobs from cub reporter, to Washington correspondent, to managing editor, to boss of it all. The staff recognizes him now as the Star's top reporter. Mr. Roberts has been director of the Associated Press, president of the Washington correspondents' Gridiron Club and of the American Society for Newspaper Editors.

HONOR MEDAL WINNERS

Hollington Tong

Clint Denman

Riley Allen

Honor guest at the 1957 Journalism Banquet is Riley Harris Allen, editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, recipient of the Missouri Honor Medal for Distinguished Service in Journalism. Mr. Allen, who will accept the award, has himself been honored at home and abroad for his humanitarian, civic, and journalistic services. A native Texan and a graduate of the University of Chicago, he has been editor of the Star-Bulletin since 1912, following newspaper work in Seattle. He was with the American Red Cross in Siberia from 1918 to 1920. He received the honorary American Farmer award from the Future Farmers of America at the 1956 annual convention in Kansas City. He is also recipient of the citation of "Distinguished Citizen" presented by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. The Hawaiian Chinese Civic Association made him an honorary and life member. Mr. Allen is vice-president and secretary of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, Ltd., the Hilo Tribune-Herald, and the Honolulu Lithograph Company. He is vice-president of the Hawaiian Broadcasting System. Rothwell Gymnasium, scene of the Journalism Banquet, will have a Hawaiian motif, through the efforts of Mr. Allen and Missouri Journalism alumni in Hawaii. Special effects will include a Hawaiian outrigger canoe. Exotic native flowers will decorate the speakers' tables. Guests will receive leis, and the menu will include island delicacies.

Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, is regarded as one of the greatest natural writers of our time. Born on a farm in Tennessee, he attended Vanderbilt University. He began his newspaper career with the Nashville Banner, first as police reporter then as sports columnist. In 1928 he moved to Atlanta and the Constitution, and ten years later was awarded a Rosenwald fellowship for travel in Europe. Returning from Europe to the editorship of the Constitution, his daily column was moved from the sports page to the editorial page and later to the front page. His latest international assignment took him to India, and his reporting job on that country is considered the most competent of any done to date.

Clint H. Denman bought the Sikeston (Mo.) Herald in 1916 and maintained a high standard of journalism throughout the years as its editor and publisher. He sold the paper to the owners of the Sikeston Standard in 1954. Since then, he has continued writing for newspapers; he supplies fifty Missouri papers and many outstate papers with weekly discussions of the International Sunday School Lesson. Mr. Denman was president of the Missouri Press Association in 1940. The son of a Methodist preacher, he has been prominent in church work for half a century. He has made many contributions to Missourians with his campaigns for local and state-wide improvements, waged privately and through his paper.

Vernon C. Myers has been publisher of Look magazine since 1952. Since then he has been elected to the Board of Directors of Cowles Magazines, Inc. A St. Louisan, he was graduated with a B.J. degree in 1932, became circulation manager of the Effingham (Ill.) Daily Record and Weekly Democrat, and joined the Des Moines Register and Tribune in 1933, becoming promotion manager two years later. In 1938 he joined Look Magazine in Des Moines and four years later moved to New York as a member of the sales staff. After war service he was west coast advertising manager, and in 1947 became promotion manager in New York. Later that same year he was made assistant to the president, and in 1951 became vice-president of Cowles Magazines.

Elon Borton, New York, is president and general manager of the Advertising Federation of America, the world's largest such organization. He founded the Advertising Managers Club of Chicago, and is vice-president of the International Union of Advertising. For twenty-two years he directed advertising and sales promotion for La Salle Extension University, Chicago.

BUSINESS WEEK

Three graduates
receive alumni
Citation of Merit
for professional achievements

Three graduates of the University's School of Business and Public Administration received the University of Missouri Alumni Association Citation of Merit at the Honors Luncheon held in the Memorial Student Union during Business Week. The recipients:

Fred V. Gardner, '28, Milwaukee, management consultant and head of the firm of Fred V. Gardner and Associates.

John Latshaw, '42, Kansas City, stock and commodity executive and partner in the firm of E. F. Hutton and Company.

Orland M. Scott, '44, New York City, president of the Service Bureau Corporation, a subsidiary of IBM.

The certificates were presented by John A. Morris of Jefferson City, vice-president of the Alumni Association. The recipients were introduced by members of the B & PA faculty who were their academic advisers when the three were students on the campus. Dean William L. Bradshaw presided at the luncheon.

After graduation, Gardner attended Harvard University. While employed by General Electric, his recommendations about variable budgets and dynamic costing were adopted. The resulting successful installation in the company's apparatus plants brought him in 1935 the Charles A. Coffin Foundation Award. He is treasurer of the Appliance Corporation of America and since 1941 has been president of Smith Steel Foundry Company. He is a director of six companies.

"Your general training, your personality, and your comprehension of the problems of management control has enhanced the value of your services in many areas in addition to your consulting work," Prof. Royal D. M. Bauer told Gardner in his introductory remarks. "You have written many articles on expense control, in addition to two books. You have a national reputation for the quality of your seminars on Profit Management and Cost Control."

Lathsaw, while working as an account executive in the Kansas City office of Harris Upham and Company, developed a specialized interest in unlisted securities. In 1949 he launched his own brokerage and investment banking firm of Uhlman and Latshaw. In 1954 the firm was merged with E. F. Hutton and Company, a major financial institution; he became resident partner in Kansas City. Latshaw has become widely known as an expert in un-listed securities and on profit-sharing and pension trust plans.

"You have not limited your activities to your own business affairs," Prof. Russell S. Bauder said in his introduction of Latshaw. "You serve on the boards of directors of firms of national prominence. You have served as vice-president of the National Securities Traders Association and have been active in national and local business association organizations. Beyond the field of business, you have served your country, you have served your community, providing vigorous support to religious, recreational and cultural activities.

Scott's career has been with one organization, International Business Machines. Starting as a sales trainee in 1938, he soon earned the distinction of creating more new business for his company than any other man in its history. He was successively appointed branch manager, district manager, and general sales manager for I.B.M.'s Data Processing Division. His task became that of developing, training, and directing an organization of more than 3,000 men. Last year Scott was chosen for the presidency of I.B.M.'s new subsidiary, the Service Bureau Corporation.

"Your career has been more significant than the mere story of personal success," Prof. S. G. Wennberg said in introducing Scott. "By your boundless energy, your creative imagination, and your capacity for leadership you have helped build an enterprise and an industry which, in turn, have become indispensable to the growth of the American economy. By your creative marketing efforts you have contributed to the purpose of all economic activity: a richer life for people everywhere."

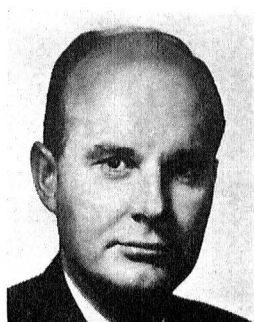

Gardner was born in Ohio, but grew up in Joplin, Mo., where he completed high school. He attended Park College before coming to M. U.

Latshaw is a native of Kansas City where he got his first glimpse of the Stock Exchange when he was a Western Union messenger boy. Scott was born in Ash Grove, Mo., where his parents still live, and later lived in Springfield and Kansas City.

The Honors Luncheon was one of several events during Business Week. Speakers at the assembly in Jesse Auditorium included Gardner and Harry J. Miller, also of Milwaukee. There were panels on finance, marketing, management, insurance and real estate, government service, and finance banking. The "Derby Day" program opened with the traditional "Bosses' Brawl" on March 28 and continued through the next night with the "Bosses' Bawl." At the "brawl" students presented skits which featured digs at the faculty and the physical state of the B&PA Building. Faculty members took the stage to lampoon themselves in a seminar-type production. Prof. Bauder took the leading role, appearing in academic robes and using a crystal ball as ready reference.

HONOR AWARD WINNERS

The Missouri Honor Award for Distinguished Service in Engineering was presented to four outstanding engineers, two of them alumni, at the special convocation in Jesse Auditorium to climax Engineers Week.

Dean Huber O. Croft of the College of Engineering made the presentations. Mason G. Lockwood, Houston, of the consulting firm of Lockwood, Andrews and Newman, gave the convocation address.

The distinguished service medals went to Donald M. Nelson of Beverly Hills, Calif., board chairman of Electronized Chemicals Corp.; Eugene J. McNeely of New York City, executive vice-president of American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Ruben N. Bergendoff of Kansas City, consulting engineer of Howard, Needles, Tammon and Bergendoff Co.; and James D. Cunningham, Chicago, founder and president of Republic Flow Meters Co.

civil engineering, was cited for his "outstanding achievements in the design of long and short span bridges; his valuable contribution to the development of modern highway turnpikes, expressways and interchanges; and his untiring service in the advancement of the engineering profession and to civic enterprises."

Cunningham, a self-educated man who took a job as an office clerk after graduation from his school and became vice-president of a manufacturing company four years later, was cited by the University for his "outstanding achievements in the development and manufacture of industrial instruments and controls; his leadership in the advancement of professional engineering societies; and his conspicuous service rendered to scientific and professional engineering education."

*Bearded engineers

The two University graduates are Nelson, war time head of the War Production Board, and McNeely. Nelson, native of Hannibal and graduate in chemical engineering in 1911, was cited for his "many contributions to governmental administration; his service in procurement and allocation of materials essential to national defense during World War II; his leadership as chairman of the War Production Board during a critical period in our history; and his statesmanship in serving as personal representative of the President to foreign lands whose policies profoundly affected our country's welfare."

McNeely, born in Jackson, Mo., was graduated in 1922 with a B.S. in Electrical Engineering degree. He was cited "in recognition of his inspiring career as an engineer in the field of telephone communication; his outstanding technical and administrative abilities; and his understanding of and ability to handle the problems arising in the field of human relations."

Bergendoff, bridge and highway builder born in Nebraska and graduated from Pennsylvania U. in

Other events during Engineers Week included traditional festivities—St. Pat's Day and the knighting ceremony on March 22; the Green Tea, alumni luncheon, business meeting of the Engineering Alumni Association, meeting of the Missouri Engineers Foundation, a showing of the exhibits and laboratories, the student-faculty-alumni banquet, St. Pat's Ball and coronation of the Queen, all on March 23.

St. Patrick conferred honorary knighthood upon three members of the profession: Edward O. Blakeley, Jr., E.E. '49, engineer of the St. Joseph (Mo.) Light and Power Co.; Paul Doll B.S. and M.S. in Agricultural Engineering, '36 and '37, executive secretary Missouri Society of Professional Engineers, Jefferson City; and Dr. Gerhard H. Beyer, professor and chairman of the department of chemical engineering at the University.

The cloak of a Lady of St. Patrick went to Mrs. Isabel Stalcup, secretary to the Engineer Placement Director at the University. Seventeen students were made Knights of St. Patrick. Carolyn Wilkerson of Columbia was crowned queen.

LAW DAY

Prominent lawyers and jurists have honor roles in annual activities
on the campus.

Thomas C. Hennings, Jr. of St. Louis, senior United States Senator from Missouri, was among prominent Missourians who received honors at the annual Law Day program. Senator Hennings was initiated into honorary membership in the University chapter of the Order of the Coif, highest national scholastic honor society in law.

Marshall Craig of Sikeston, Judge of the 28th Judicial Circuit of Missouri, became an honorary member of Phi Alpha Delta, professional legal fraternity.

R. Jasper Smith, Judge of the U. S. District Court of Kansas City (Southern Division), was initiated into Pi Sigma Alpha, national political science honorary society.

Francis Smith, of St. Joseph, former state representative and state senator, became an honorary member of Phi Delta Phi, law fraternity.

The School of Law Alumni Association conferred awards for Distinguished Service at Law upon Circuit Court Judge Waldo Edwards, '06, of Macon, and Lon Hocker of St. Louis, who was the Republican nominee for governor in the recent general election.

Hearing the final arguments in the annual Junior Case Club Finals were Judge R. Jasper Smith, Judge Randolph G. Weber of the U. S. District Court at St. Louis, and Judge Elmo B. Hunter of the Kansas City Court of Appeals.

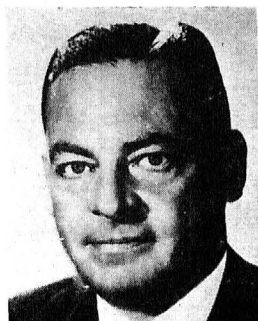

Judge Craig, A.B. '30, LL.B. '32, was captain of the conference champion Tiger basketball team in 1930, and also captained the all-conference team. On the campus he was president of the Blue Key, the YMCA, and the "M" Men's Club. He was also a member of Q.E.B.H. He has been a practicing attorney in St. Charles, assistant U. S. attorney in St. Louis, and prosecuting attorney of Mississippi County.

Judge Smith, A.B. '31, attended public schools at Campbell and Kennett as well as Southeast Missouri State College before graduating from Missouri. He served three terms in the Missouri Senate, and was both majority leader and minority leader at various times. He was a resident of Springfield when he was appointed to the bench in 1956.

Judge Edwards, colorful lawyer who practiced law in Macon until his appointment to the bench last year, is a former member of the Board of Law Examiners of Missouri.

Judge Hunter, A.B. '36 and LL.B. '38, was appointed a circuit judge in Kansas City in 1951 to fill an unexpired term, won election to a full term in 1954, and later was appointed to the bench of the Court of Appeals.

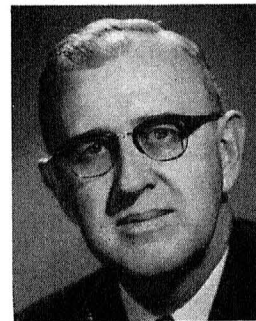

Judge Weber of Poplar Bluff was circuit judge of the 33rd Judicial District from 1943 until last March when he was appointed Judge of the U. S. District Court for the Eastern Division of Missouri.

Frank Luther Mott

IV

A HISTORY OF AMERICAN MAGAZINES (Vol. IV: 1885-1905). By Frank Luther Mott. Cambridge, Mass.: Belknap Press of Harvard University Press, 1957. viii plus 858 pp. $12.50.

When Frank Luther Mott published volumes II and III of his History of American Magazines in 1938, he foresaw a fourth and final volume. Now, nearly twenty years later, the fourth volume, dedicated to Elmer Ellis, president of the University, comes from the endowed Belknap Press of Harvard University. Last volume it is not, for we are brought up only through 1905. The historian has been caught by his story, and to predict now a fifth and final volume would be folly.

During the long interval between volumes, Dr. Mott has kept busy writing the standard history of American journalism, a best-selling study of American best-sellers, a study of the news, many articles, and at least one Saturday Evening Post short story. He was from 1941 until 1951 dean of Missouri's School of Journalism, has been dean emeritus since 1951 and professor emeritus since 1956, and now in his seventy-second year, twice emeritus, continues to teach on a limited service basis. Along the way he has received innumerable honors for his scholarship and devotion to the profession of journalism, among these being the Pulitzer Prize in History awarded him for his magazine history.

It was a vast and vague field Dean Mott entered some thirty-five years ago. Many thousands of magazines, important for a time, had been published, had died, and been forgotten. Files were poorly kept and difficult to locate. Though it is a rare business or calling that does not have its "trade" publication, the magazine industry had been, as it has continued to be, very backward in keeping any record of its performance. What census reports there were oftentimes tended to lump magazine figures with those of newspapers. A less stubborn man than Dr. Mott would not have persevered.

A set of limitations would have been eminently pardonable. For example, the trade and religious periodicals might have been by-passed. So too might those of limited regional distribution. Dr. Mott, however, in seeking to tell the entire story of the American magazine from 1741 allowed himself none of the luxuries of limitation.

Volume IV is of the same solid, tight-knit fabric that distinguished its predecessors. Here again Dr. Mott is telling of the magazines important to the period. (They do not have to be of transcendent importance to be important to Dr. Mott.) Most valuable to many readers will be the analysis of the contents of the magazines. Some will be interested in the developing history of typographical and pictorial presentations. And all cannot fail to enjoy the warm-blooded interrelationship the author builds between the magazines and the social, economic, and political changes during twenty bumptious and strident years, the years of the immigrant, the "big stick," of corruption and Tarbell, Steffens, and Baker at McClure's Magazine.

As in earlier volumes, the running history of the period occupies about half the book and is followed by a supplement presenting the detailed sketches of

Robert E. Lee Hill

As the Alumnus goes to press, word comes of the death of Robert E. Lee Hill in Columbia on April 24. Mr. Hill, executive manager of the Missouri Bankers Association and former alumni director at the University, had recently been selected for the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award to be presented at the June Commencement. An article on his colorful career will appear in the next issue.

Notes about alumni clubs

Indianapolis—The big news in club activities is the first meeting of the newly-organized alumni club of Central Indiana.

A few weeks ago an executive committee made up of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Teeters, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cebula, Wilkes Dinwiddie, Ed Miller, Irv Freeman, Herb Kasle, and Bob Debolt met with Alumni Field Secretary Jean Madden to discuss the formation of an alumni club.

Arrangements were made to hold the organizational meeting on May 15 in the Mirror Room of the Marott Hotel in Indianapolis. Two mailings promoting this meeting have been sent to all listed alumni in Central Indiana.

The first order of business at this initial dinner meeting of the club will be the establishment of a permanent organization for this newest of the Missouri Alumni clubs. Next, Alumni Secretary Bus Entsminger will give a report on the University. Finally, in conjunction with a plan to organize a Homecoming trip for the group, a Missouri football film will be shown.

Memphis and New Orleans—Plans are now being discussed for both these cities during early fall.

Houston—The Spring Roundup meeting of Houston alumni was held on April 23 with President Ellis, Dean Curtis Wilson, Dean Earl English, and Alumni Secretary Bus Entsminger all in attendance for this typically Texas affair.

Chamier speaks on campus

Richard J. Chamier of Moberly, former state senator and past president of the Alumni Association, was the speaker at the University's annual ceremonies observing Thomas Jefferson's birthday. The observance was held in front of Jesse Hall near the original stone from Jefferson's grave at Monticello. The stone was given to M.U. as the first state university in the area included in the Louisiana Purchase.

Chamier referred to Jefferson as "foster father of the oldest university west of the Mississippi, who gave forty years of distinguished and uninterrupted service to state and nation." He said his "priceless heritage of ideas are as fresh as the student revolt in Hungary."

25 and 50 year reunions

Nearby classes included in plans for Commencement time gatherings.

Classes of 1905, 1906, 1907, 1930, 1931, 1932—As announced last spring, the class reunions for the 25 and 50 year classes will be held during Commencement week on June 7 and 8.

After unsuccessful tries at rescheduling class reunions at Homecoming and on Founder's Day, this marks a return to the traditional time of year for class reunions. Of course, all classes are welcome, but the emphasis is on the 25 and 50 year groups. These two classes from the last two ill-fated reunions are also being invited in the hope that many of those who were unable to return the last two years will be able to make it this year.

Arrangements have been made for housing in one of the new dormitories, a tour of the campus and Medical Center, a special appearance on television, a place of honor at Commencement exercises and other activities arranged by classes.

Most of the people from the classes have already had notice of reunion plans; but there is a problem, in some instances, of location and communication with members of these classes. If you know of any members of these classes who may not have received word of the reunions, please let us know immediately.

Dr. Dan G. Stine honored

Dr. Dan G. Stine of Columbia, A.B. '07, was honored as an outstanding medical alumnus of the University at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Muehlebach in Kansas City April 3. The medical alumni met concurrently with the convention of the Missouri State Medical Association.

Dr. Stine was awarded the Citation of Merit by the University of Missouri Alumni Association. Participating in the presentation were Frank Eschen of St. Louis and Dutton Brookfield of Kansas City, alumni president.

Dr. Stine was associated with the M.U. medical faculty almost forty years, and formerly headed the Student Health Service. He published medical articles on influenza and pneumonia, served on the staff of the Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital, and was a consultant to the United States Public Health Service. In the student health service Dr. Stine did research into the effects of athletics and military training on health, and of diet on a student's academic career. It was said he could look at a scholastic record and guess closely whether the student lived on hamburgers and soft drinks or had a well balanced diet.

As another feature of the luncheon meeting in Kansas City, the medical alumni presented to Dr. M. Pinson Neal, veteran professor of pathology at the University, a scrapbook of written tributes and anecdotes from many of his former students.

Kansas City Does It Again

Great dinner meetings are getting to be a habit with Kansas City alumni. The All-School Reunion Banquet held April 5 was attended by 650 persons in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Muehlebach, and they were joined by an estimated 150 persons who ate elsewhere then dropped in to hear the program. Approximately 2,000 persons have attended three Kansas City alumni banquets within a year.

University President Elmer Ellis was the principal speaker, reviewing accomplishments of the past year and telling of plans being pushed in an effort to cope with the growing enrollment. Alumnus Hal Boyle, Associated Press columnist, was in good form and had the guests in a jovial mood. Head Football Coach Frank Broyles spoke of his program.

Robert Jeffries, president of the Alumni Association in Kansas City, was the toastmaster.

Several state senators and representatives were guests, and a number of deans were among the University representatives. Dr. Hugh E. Stephenson, Jr., selected by the National Junior C. of C. as one of the ten most outstanding young men of the nation, received a standing ovation.

A resolution was unanimously adopted saluting Robert E. Lee Hill of Columbia as "Mister Missouri." The resolution said Hill's "immeasurable loyalty, his friendly personality and ready good humor have contributed so much to so many through his services as master of ceremonies and ambassador extraordinary not only throughout Missouri, but the nation and the world." Hill, executive manager of the Missouri Bankers Association, and former secretary of the University of Missouri Alumni Association, has been ill at his home in Columbia.

Kansas City alumni did a great job in staging the big banquet, sparked by a large hard-working committee. Evelyn Van Osdol and Ralph O. Taylor were co-chairman, and Virginia Porth handled reservations.

It's Going to Be a Great Year

The first big planning session for the 50th anniversary of the School of Journalism next year leaves no doubt but what the event will be noted in a grand and fitting manner.

A committee of representative journalism alumni met in St. Louis April 8 to start the ball rolling for a year-long observance that may well be international in scope. The members form the Alumni Semi-Centennial Planning and Advisory Committee, named to make proposals and suggestions. Makeup of the committee came about by nominations from various geographic and professional interest areas.

The St. Louis meeting (at least one more full committee session is expected to follow) was an explorative affair. The members put in a busy day discussing the specific objectives of such a celebration. They talked about a slogan and a symbol that would identify the anniversary and give it widespread appeal. They considered international possibilities.

It was a lively exchange of ideas among representatives of all phases of professional journalism, and much of the thinking was in big terms. Apparently they left the St. Louis gathering enthusiastic about the tremendous possibilities of a far-reaching observance that will focus new interest on the world's first School of Journalism, the State of Missouri and the University, and upon journalism education in general.

In his introductory remarks Dean Earl English told the alumni:

"At the end of fifty years of journalism education at Missouri, we have something that we need to recognize—fifty years of a particular kind of education that is still unique in journalism.

"The important thing is that we do everything we can to recognize what has gone before, and take a good look at the future. I am sure you will agree that you got something a little special at Missouri in the way of journalism education. The School of Journalism has been fortunate in having such men as Deans Walter Williams, Frank Martin, and Frank Mott, three great men of great accomplishment during their periods of service. Let's take a look at the future—the next fifty years—and try to chart a course."

Dean English also said that the faculty has been thinking of the observance as beginning in August, 1958 and running through May, 1959. The Association for Education in Journalism has already been invited to hold its meeting at the University next August, and this might be the opening event of the semi-centennial year observance.

One of the positive results of the conference was appointment of a steering or executive committee by Chairman Jack Shelley. Members of this group are John Colt, Kansas City; John Conde, Detroit; Jack Hackethorn, Columbia; Morris E. Jacobs, Omaha; Walter Reed, Kansas City; with Dean English and Tom Richter of St. Louis (president of the Journalism Alumni Association) as ex-officio members.

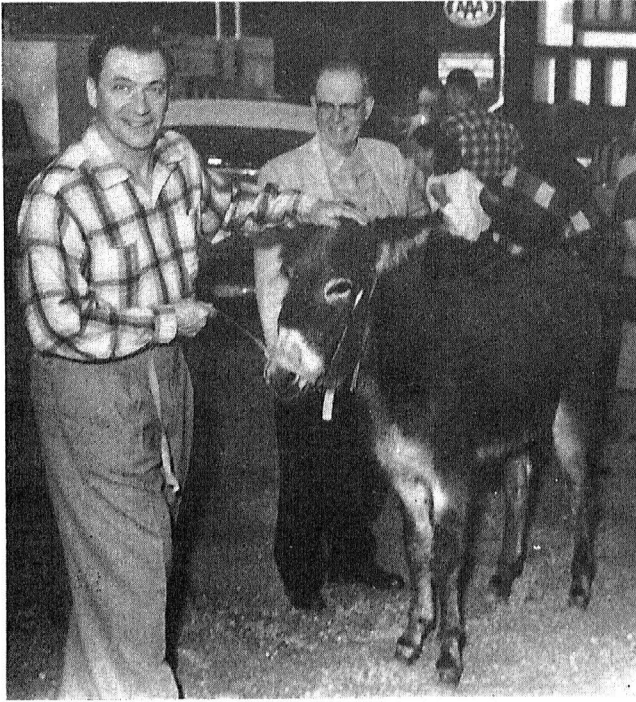

Chairman Shelley said that the committee members were purposely chosen from the mid-west area so that they could come to Columbia to meet with the journalism dean when such trips are necessary.

Campus items in brief

That talk of the Farmers' Fair folding for lack of support was unfounded; and the Ag College student event will go on as usual, May 10 and 11, for the fifty-second time. The Follies and the Horse Show, with many other features, are scheduled.

Governor James T. Blair, Jr., was initiated as an honorary member of Mystical Seven at Tap Day ceremonies held this month. Mystical Seven and QEBH each initiated seven students; Mortar Board conferred honorary membership on Miss Gladys Koepke, director of student affairs for women, and initiated twenty-one students.

The Law School Alumni Association presented a check for $2,000 to Percy Hogan, Law Librarian, who is retiring after forty-two years of service.

This is the season when various University divisions observe traditional events, and several pages of this issue of the Alumnus are devoted to these activities. Student dinner meetings also are in vogue just now. Two of these outstanding affairs were the banquets of the Forestry Club and the graduating class of the School of Veterinary Medicine.

the individual magazines that came to power during the 1885-1905 span. Among the thirty-four periodicals singled out for recognition are such items of the household as the Saturday Evening Post, Cosmopolitan, the National Geographic, and Collier's of late memory. Now gone from the scene but very important in their time and provocative of nostalgia for many of us are such titles as the old Life, the Literary Digest, and Scribner's Magazine. And, of course, McClure's, one of the important American magazines of all time.

To date the History of American Magazines numbers 2,681 pages. For most of us this would be altogether too many pages were the study purely a chronology of magazines, their editors and publishers, dates, circulations, and so forth. Justification of the bulk lies in the fact that the study goes beyond the listing of the straight magazine histories to tell what they printed, which is to say that it presents the popular movements of the various periods, what the men and women were doing and thinking and feeling. As recently as 1908, the American Historical Association debated the use of periodicals in historical studies. Surely, Dr. Mott has placed the value of American magazines to historians in the sundry fields beyond all debate.

In the introduction to his first volume, published in 1930 by D. Appleton & Company, Dr. Mott hoped that he had presented "a clearer and more trustworthy view of the course of periodical development in America than any attempted in the more or less fragmentary studies hitherto available." Since Dr. Mott's initial volume, at least two single volume studies of the magazine have appeared, James P. Wood's Magazines in the U. S. (Ronald, 1949) and Theodore Peterson's Magazines in the Twentieth Century (Illinois, 1956). Comparison simply shows that Dr. Mott's is the definitive history. It has been accepted as the clear and trustworthy view. As Howard Mumford Jones has said, ". . . the name of Frank Luther Mott is now synonymous with magazine history."

There is a wide disparity in size and appearance of the existing volumes, only the second and third, covering the 1850-1865 and 1865-1885 periods, being matched. None of the first three volumes is currently in print, but happily it is understood that these volumes are to be reprinted and boxed in the style and format of the latest volume.

At last report, the grand old man of education in American journalism was spending his Easter vacation in the Washington vicinity, visiting grandchildren, giving in marriage a former student, and, it may be safely presumed, dropping in at the Library of Congress to look into the matter of Volume V. P.F.

Mariann Cherry, A.B. '52, of Upper Darby, Pa., dropped in a drug store for a coffee break recently and was surprised to observe that the straws in the soda fountain container had wrappers with these words printed on them: "University of Missouri Memorial Student Union." The druggist had no explanation about the straws, guessed it was just a mistake. But for Mariann, who has not been back to the campus since graduation, the discovery was "a vicarious experience of a trip to Mizzou." She is in the office of the Girl Scouts of Delaware County, 45 Long Lane, Upper Darby.

Former Governor Phil M. Donnelly has placed his official papers and correspondence on deposit with the Western Historical Manuscripts Collection at the University. The papers include correspondence, records, speech manuscripts, official directives and other papers dealing with state affairs during Donnelly's two terms. Dr. J. Neal Primm, director of the Manuscripts Collection, said the acquisition gives the Collection the complete gubernatorial papers of all Missouri administrations since Guy B. Park took office in 1932. In addition, the Collection has the papers of a number of other former governors, including Arthur M. Hyde and Herbert S. Hadley, and some of the papers of Joseph W. Folk and Charles H. Hardin.

An undergraduate scholarship has been established at the University as a memorial to the late Dr. J. A. Banks, who was a practicing dentist and prominent civic leader in Piedmont, Mo. The scholarship was set up by the widow and children of Dr. Banks and will be known as the Dr. J. A. Banks Memorial Scholarship. It may be continuous for the full four years of a student's University enrollment if his academic work is satisfactory. The minimum annual stipend will be at least $100 and may be as much as $175. Dr. Banks, who died in 1937, was never a student at the University.

MISSOURI MEMO

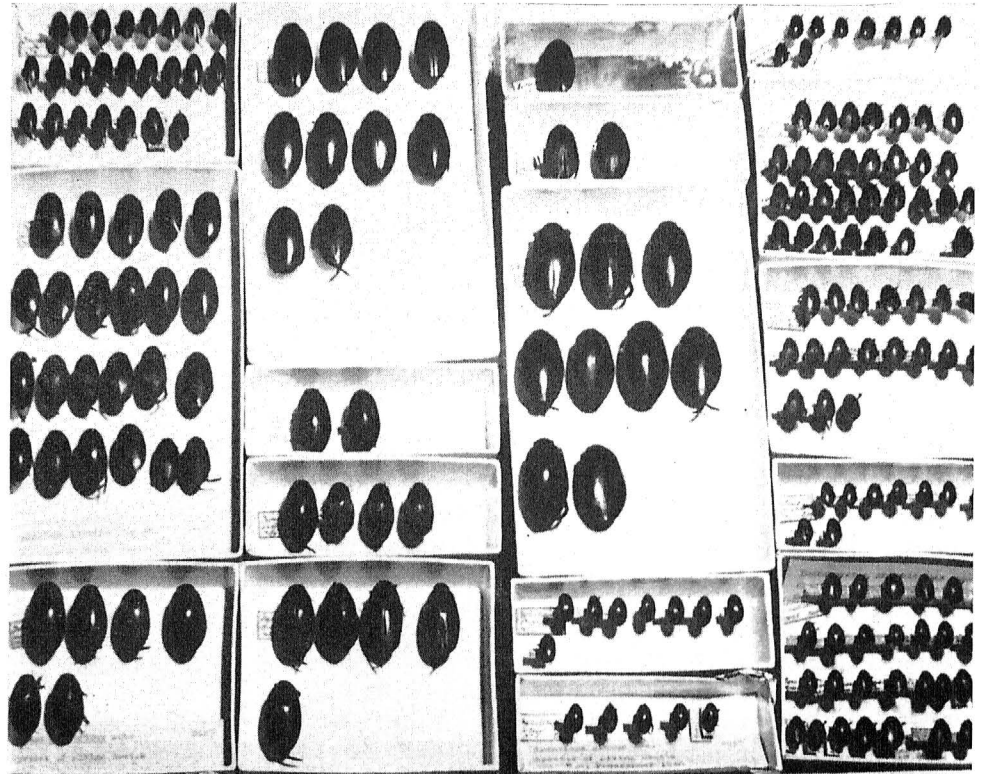

Some startling findings were made by executives and administrative officers of forty colleges and universities in Missouri who met on the University campus this month. They gathered to consider the report of a special committee and of a research specialist employed to make a detailed study of the impending tide of students in the state. The group decided that more than 10,000 Missouri students will be denied a chance for higher education in 1970 because of lack of facilities, despite plans for extensive expansion. The conference, of the Division of Higher Education of the Missouri State Teachers Association, foresaw a doubling of college enrollments in the next fourteen years. The committee pointed out that, in order to accept the increased number of students in 1970, Missouri will need additional facilities equal to three plants the size of the present University of Missouri.

Vaughn M. Bryant, Ambassador Tong, C. D. Whitmire, Jr.

Dr. Hollington K. Tong, Ambassador from Nationalist China to the United States, who is a speaker at this year's Journalism Banquet, recently had a reunion with other University alumni when he was an honor guest in Houston, Texas. He toured the Port of Houston aboard the port's inspection boat, Sam Houston. He was guest of the director of international relations for the Port of Houston, Vaughn M. Bryant, Jr., B.J. and A.B. '38, who invited C. D. Whitmire, Jr., '36, to come along. Whitmire, is district sales manager for Trans World Airlines, Inc., Houston. So the three enjoyed a University reunion during the hour and a half trip down the course of the channel of the nation's second port. Dr. Tong was in school with Vaughn's father, Vaughn Bryant, and both received degrees, the elder Bryant in '11 and Dr. Tong in '12. Although Dr. Tong has not been back on the campus until this year, he has kept in close touch with the University. In Houston he addressed the Rotary Club and was honored at a reception given by the mayor.

These water beetles look alike but have slight differences. Wilbur Enns, entomological museum director, displays a case of moths from the South Pacific

Those Fascinating Insects

Bugs are just bugs to most people, but not to Wilbur R. Enns, director of the entomological museum at the University. After twenty years of close acquaintance with insects, Dr. Enns has found that they have personalities as varied and as curious as do human beings.

A museum visitor can be both entertained and informed by hearing of the peculiarities of some common insects. He learns that most bugs turn up their heels and die from a dose of nicotine. The cigarette beetle, however, thrives on the stuff, merrily making tunnels through Havana cigars or North Carolina cigarettes, showing no preference for brand names. Nothing would please him more than a luscious dip of snuff.

Another insect with a taste for flavor is the red pepper beetle, whose favorite dish is obvious. But the one with an appetite for lethal doses is the drugstore beetle, which feeds on anything from penicillin through various kinds of poisonous drugs without any noticeable after-effects.

Then there is the death watch beetle, which derived its name because of its habit of banging its head against the wood as it moved about in the walls of an old house. In the quiet of a wake, neighbors sitting with a corpse heard this ticking in the wall, and it sounded like a watch. So this poor little bug, who banged his head as often when people were alive as dead, became known as the death watch beetle.

The red-shouldered leaf beetle reposing peacefully in a glass case could tell a strange tale of family feeding habits. The adult feeds on leaves, but its young grubs live in the nest of ants. Since ants are very particular about their nests, the question is, how do the little grubs get in there? Go not to the ant, but to the beetle for the answer. The female carefully extrudes an egg and catches it with her hind feet. Then holding it, she decorates it with a secretion of waxy scales until it resembles a seed. This she drops where the ants will find it. They mistake it for a seed, take it to their nest and store it, along with the rest of their winter supply. There the grubby sluggard grows, feeding on the ants' food.

Actually, a very small portion of Dr. Enns' time is consumed in escorting visitors around the museum. A more important part of his job is to identify strange insects mailed by persons worried about the crawling creatures' influence on Missouri crops. Using 25,000 specimens in the museum collection for reference, he decides whether the unidentified bugs are expensive pests or innocent bystanders.

Only one-tenth of one per cent of all the insects of the world are harmful, yet this small percentage destroys one-tenth of all the crops that man produces. In cotton, every seventh potential bale goes to feed the boll weevil. While some insects are man's most destructive enemies, others are his most valuable allies. People could not get along on this earth without the activity of insects in pollinating fruit, vegetable and forage crops and in controlling harmful insects.

The entomology department of the University has a staff of twelve teachers who train agriculture and forestry students to recognize the most prevalent of 15,000 types of insects found in Missouri. In addition to local examples, the museum contains many exotic specimens.

"Why do you have these foreign insects?" is a question asked frequently by visitors. Dr. Enns explains that airplanes pick up unwanted insects, although customs officials are extraordinarily efficient at detection and elimination of such cargo. Foreign pests would be ruinous under conditions where natural enemies are not present to keep them under control. Therefore, the museum has representatives of foreign species for identification purposes.

Laboratories in the entomology department are equipped with enough microscopes for each member of a class to examine under a powerful lens the specimens he is to classify. By the end of the basic course, Applied Entomology, each student brings in his collection of at least fifty different kinds of insects, which is added to the accumulation in the museum.

Each year some three hundred different boys take courses in entomology at the University. They will become veterinarians, vocational agriculture teachers, county agents, foresters, beekeepers, high school science teachers, managers of fisheries. Some of them are foreign students who will return to their native countries to practice what they have learned in America. All of them will be more alert to the dangers and benefits of various insects after their study of entomology.

WORKSHOP SHINES ON

Now in its thirty-fifth year, the Missouri Workshop Theater this season has produced three major plays, scenes from which are reproduced on these pages. Each of the plays, "The Rainmaker," "Summer and Smoke" (by Tennessee Williams, a former student), and "The Late Christopher Bean," won acclaim.

Workshop productions traditionally have been characterized by quality. H. Donovan Rhynsburger, at the directorial helm since 1925, still gets the maximum output from his players and his stage crews for all around excellence of presentation.

For the second year Workshop plays have been given in the new Jesse Auditorium, whose 1900 seats provide playgoers the ultimate in comfort, although the large hall was not designed for dramatic offerings. Workshop looks to the day when the projected Fine Arts Building becomes a reality, with a 300-seat theater as one of its units.

This year has been unique and rather special for Rhynsburger, who is professor of speech, chairman of the department of speech and dramatic art, and director of dramatics. He directed the Rhynsburgers' daughter, Donia, in her first big role on the Jesse stage. After a small part in "Summer and Smoke" she won the lead role of Abby in "The Late Christopher Bean." Donia, a sophomore majoring in dramatics and speech education, has done TV and Starlight Theater work here and summer stock in Colorado.

Baseball Coach John 'Hi' Simmons, in 17 seasons, has won six conference titles, one national.

His Winning Average Is High Too

By ART MATHERS, '58

When Coach John (Hi) Simmons sent his Missouri Tigers into Big Seven Conference baseball play this spring, he was launching a bid for his seventh league title in 18 years as Bengal baseball boss. That's not a bad record for a fellow who went to college to study law.

In fact you might call Simmons Missouri's answer to the multitude of frustrated athletes in the legal ranks.

Simmons, a native of Lancaster, Mo., entered Kirksville State Teachers College in 1923 without having received a single scholarship offer. Nevertheless, he went out for football and basketball and lettered in both as a freshman.

Forced to drop out of college after his freshman year because of financial reasons, the lanky youth returned in 1925 and was introduced to the new all-sports coach at Kirksville, a fellow named Don Faurot. At that moment was born one of the closest and most mutually beneficial friendships in Missouri sports annals.

The would-be lawyer picked up three letters each in football, basketball and track during his three years under Faurot—and switched his field to physical education. He graduated in 1928.

Meanwhile, "Hi" was spending his summers as a pitcher and an outfielder in Northern Missouri and Southern Iowa semi-pro baseball.

Simmons moved into the high school coaching ranks with Milan, a Class B school in Sullivan County, in the fall of '28. He remained there for one year, and then began a phenomenal six-year stretch at Mountain Grove High, where Simmons-coached teams captured 10 championships—four in football, and two each in basketball, track and baseball.

Coach "Hi" arrived at M.U. with Faurot in 1935, as freshman coach of football, basketball and baseball.

Two years later he was named to the post of head baseball coach, and that's where he has become nationally famous. In 17 seasons—he spent '43, '44 and '45 in the Navy—his Tiger teams have won 215 games and lost 99 for a .685 percentage and six conference championships.

Most Tiger fans, of course, are familiar with Simmons' feat of leading his 1954 team to the national championship, an achievement which earned him the "Coach of the Year" award that season in college baseball.

"Hi," who acquired his peculiar nickname because of his stringbean build as a 6-foot-2 high school sophomore, makes no secret of his greatest thrill as Mizzou's baseball mentor. He comments:

"The biggest thrill, as far as I was concerned, was when (Bob) Musgrave caught that fly ball for the final putout against Rollins (College) in the 1954 national championship finals."

He also is justifiably proud of the number of former Tigers who have entered organized ball. The list includes such all-time Bengal greats as Junior Wren, Jerry Schoonmaker, Dick Atkinson, Bob Musgrave, Kent Kurtz, Don McMillan and Don Boenker.

Schoonmaker, Wren, Kurtz and Atkinson all received sizable bonuses when they entered pro baseball.

Wren and Schoonmaker, both of whom played center field for Mizzou, have each gone a long way. Schoonmaker is a "bonus baby" outfielder in his second season with the Washington Senators, while Wren has switched sports to become a starting defensive halfback for the Cleveland Browns in pro football. Both Wren and "Schoonie" were All-Americans in their baseball days at M.U.

"Hi" Simmons has become a tradition on the Missouri campus. Self-effacing and reserved when it comes to personal publicity, he usually is just the opposite on the baseball field. Above all he demands hustle, and failure to exhibit same invariably results in an unflattering verbal reprimand.

A gravel-throated, sharp-tongued disciplinarian, he sometimes appears to outsiders to be unduly harsh on his players. But those close to the club quickly sense the strong comradeship generated by his humorous way of expressing things and a genuine, fatherly regard for those who play under him.

Coach "Hi's" fairness is well illustrated by the large number of sophomores who make his team each season. For instance, no fewer than five of Missouri's nine starting players in the 1954 national championship game were from the sophomore class.

At 6-2¾, the square-jawed mentor with the piercing eyes is as lanky as ever. But he now tips the scales at about 200—15 pounds above his one-time playing weight.

He is married to the former Janet Vleck and is the father of three boys—John (15), Don (10), and Bob (7½).

Wanted: more pitching

As expected, pitching has turned out to be the big problem for the Missouri baseball team in its pursuit of a Big Seven Conference championship. With the exception of a three-man combined no-hitter against Washington University in St. Louis and two complete games in a doubleheader win over Colorado, the Tiger pitchers have been roughly handled. In the Iowa State series, for instance, Missouri hurlers gave up 17 runs as they dropped two of three vital conference games.

To alleviate this problem, Jack Davis, the star centerfielder, has been shifted to part time mound duties and will probably work at least one game of each remaining series. Sophomores Don Cooper and "Red Dog" Miller will probably share the balance of the starting roles.

To date the defense has been adequate and the hitting strong with the team average consistently above .300; but all this will go for naught unless the pitching picks up.

Tigers win dual meets

The Missouri giant killers who upset defending champion Kansas in an indoor dual meet did it again in the first dual meet of the outdoor season. Indiana, the Big Ten indoor champs, led by Olympic Champion Greg Bell, was the victim by the narrow margin of 61 1/3 to 59 2/3. Missouri strength in the hurdle races and the weight events offset Indiana dominance of the flat races.

Missouri has not shown as well in the big relay carnivals at Texas, Kansas and Drake where overall depth and balanced scoring ability is overshadowed by individual brilliance. Among the most brilliant individual performances of all, though, was Charlie Batch's upset triumph over Olympian Eddie Southern in the 120 yard high hurdles at the Kansas Relays. Batch's winning time of 14.1 seconds was, not only a new school record, but also a new Big Seven Conference record for the event. Batch also teamed with injured teammates John McIntyre, Henry Wiebe and pole vaulter Karl Englund to write a new American record of 58.4 seconds in winning the 480 yard shuttle hurdle relay event at Drake.

Team balance should come back into perspective in remaining dual meets against Kansas and Notre Dame and in the Conference Meet on May 17 and 18.

Football spirit pleases

As spring football ground to a begrudging halt, Coach Frank Broyles and his staff expressed great satisfaction at the general spirit and enthusiasm shown by the football squad. The play of the interior linemen was particularly singled out for praise; while fumbling and defensive weakness by the backs were listed as the principal shortcomings.

Many things were learned in the twenty tough sessions by both the staff and the squad members. Men who had not even been in the picture at the beginning were firmly entrenched in key spots by the end. Others who had been regarded highly have slipped way down in this new system which places most of the stress on defensive excellence. In fact, it is probably safe to say that the eleven best defensive players on the team will take the field against Vanderbilt in Nashville on Saturday night, September 23.

Tennis team shaping up

At the halfway point in the season Coach Ray Odor's young and inexperienced tennis team seems to have solved many of the tactical errors that cost them their first four matches.

There wasn't a single letterman among the candidates who reported out for the squad early this spring, but Coach Odor has put together a fine squad in John Hess, Dick Palmer, Bob Eisen, Cliff Welsh, and Tom Edwards. This group has won its last three matches and is looking forward to conference play.

CLASS NOTES

89 March 29 was designated this year as "Dr. Patterson Day" in Warrensburg, Mo. in honor of Dr. WILLIAM R. PATTERSON, 91-year-old general practitioner. The Johnson County Medical Society and its auxiliary held an open house at the Warrensburg Medical Center. Dr. Patterson has been a physician there since 1910, and was one of the founders of the present hospital. Born in Shelbyville, Ind., Dr. Patterson was three years old when his family settled at Bunceon in Cooper County, Mo. He received his medical degree from St. Louis University in 1891, and began his practice in Tipton. He moved to Warrensburg in 1910, and in 1920, with two other doctors, established the Warrensburg Medical Center. In 1910 Dr. Patterson sold his interest and moved to a private office. He is still in his office daily for limited practice. The Pattersons have two sons and one daughter, also two granddaughters and one great grandchild.

01 ELEXIOUS T. BELL, BS, MD '03, pathologist, continues to practice at St. Paul, Minnesota. Dr. Bell's address is 522 N. Mississippi River Blvd., St. Paul.

02 WALLACE B. BENSON, LLB, is retired from law practice and is living at 411 Raton Avenue, La Junta, Colo.

06 RUSSELL E. HOLLOWAY, AB, LLB '08, is retired after many years as a realtor in Columbia, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Holloway live at 502 Turner Avenue in Columbia.

Mrs. Irvin V. Barth, AB, BS, is enjoying life doing for family and friends at her home at 2090 Broadway, San Francisco 15, Calif. The most recent addition to her family is a great-grandson, Samuel Yoder, born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ivan Yoder of Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Yoder is a granddaughter. Mrs. Barth is the former GUSSIE KAHN.

07 GEORGE HORTON BLACKMAN, BS ME, of Carmel, Calif., retired at the age of 60 after being in the machine tool business 35 years. He is now 71, and says he belongs to the "Coronary Club." Mrs. Blackman is the former ADA LEFEVRE, AB '10. They have three children and eight grandchildren, all "very wonderful." Their address is P. O. Box 2377, Carmel.

09 PATTERSON BAIN, BS CE, has been operating Riverview Orchards at McBaine, Mo., near Columbia for the past 36 years. Since August, 1955, he has been an employee of the Missouri Department of Agriculture. In the marketing division he assists the fruit and vegetable growers with their marketing problems.

13 EPHRIAM H. LEWIS, BS EE, lives at 2319 Riverside Drive in Santa Ana, California.

ROY P. HART, BS CE, became vice president of the executive department of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company in St. Louis on April 1. He had been vice-president of operations since March 1, 1956, when the company was reorganized to include Texas subsidiaries. Prior to that he was chief operating officer with similar duties. The Hart residence is at 719 Tuxedo Boulevard, Webster Groves 19, Mo.

14 LORIMER E. KNAPP, BS EE, a member of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation's apparatus sales office in Cleveland for over 42 years, retired on March 28, 1957. A native of St. Joseph, Mo., Mr. Knapp has called Cleveland his home since joining the Westinghouse sales force in 1914. He has held assignments as sales engineer, supervisor of central stations, and, for the past five years, has been area sales manager for the electric utility, steel, automotive, marine, transportation and aviation groups. His long career with Westinghouse was interrupted only by World War I during which he saw overseas service as an infantry lieutenant. His retirement plans call for a trip to Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Knapp live at 21246 Eric Road, Rocky River, Ohio.

E. USTICK BAIN, 3333 Barnard, Dallas, Texas, is retired and plans to move to Chapel Hill, N. C., to make his home. He is a brother of PATTERSON BAIN, '09, of Columbia.

16 When ARNOT M. FINLEY, EE, returned to the campus with his camera for Engineers Week, he was confronted by gray and leaky skies. He faced the same obstacle when he posed in a family group and took a picture by pulling a string attached to the camera. It is reproduced on this page. The setting is Takoma Park, Md. In the rear are Mrs. Finley and Mr. Finley. Between them is Robert H. Smith, Jr. Seated are Jane Finley Smith and her husband, ROBERT H. SMITH, EE, '49; between them is Bryant Finley Smith. Bob is assistant sales manager of the Washington, D. C. office of the American Machinery and Foundry Company of Brooklyn. The Smiths live at 7204 14th Ave., Takoma Park, Md. The Finleys live at 5645 Summit, St. Louis, Mo.

17 FRANK KING, BJ, is general executive of the Associated Press in the News Building, Dallas, Texas. The King home address is 4009 Gillon Ave., Dallas 5.

MORRIS E. JACOBS, of Bozell and Jacobs, Advertising and Public Relations company, has offices in the Electric Building in Omaha, Neb.

HERBERT W. WALKER, BJ, is vice president and general manager of NEA Service in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Sidney R. Stanard, who was CARALEE STROCK, BJ, is on the staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

21 FRANCES GRINSTEAD, BJ, AM '28, associate professor of journalism at the University of Kansas since 1948, is for the fifth successive year Director of the University of Kansas Writers' Conference, to be held June 25-28 in the Memorial Union on the University of Kansas campus at Lawrence. One of the five leaders at this year's conference will be LEWIS NORDYKE, BJ '33, of Amarillo, Texas who will direct the non-fiction workshop. Miss Grinstead lives on Route 4, Lawrence, Kansas.

Dr. ROTHWELL LEFHOLZ, AB, AM '22, dermatologist, has his offices at 1009 Huntington Building, Miami 32, Florida.

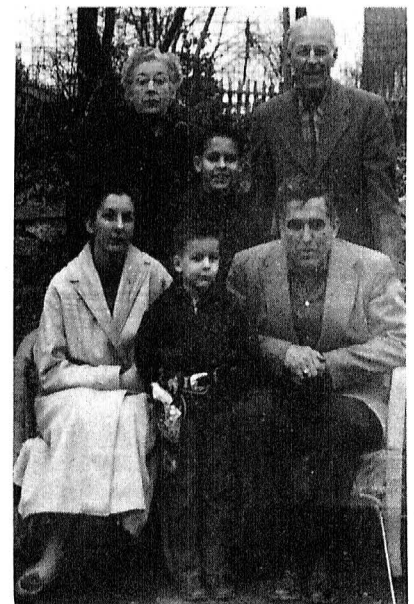

SAM R. BROADBENT, BS For., is assistant chief of the Division of Estimates, U. S. Bureau of the Budget. His address is 3133 Connecticut Ave., N.W. Washington, D. C.

BURDETT GREEN, BS For., is executive vice president of The Veneer Association, Chicago, Ill. His address is 666 N. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Dr. KATHERINE BAIN, AB, is with the Children's Bureau in Washington, D. C. She lives at 2710 Quebec N.W., Washington.

22 LOUIS D. POTTER, LLB, has been practicing law in the State of Wisconsin since August, 1922. His first wife passed away in 1947. Their son, Wesley W. Potter, is program director and news broadcaster for WFIE-TV, Evansville, Ind. Mr. Potter was remarried in May, 1956. His address is 316 Arcade Building, Racine, Wis.

FRED H. MAUGHMER, LLB, of Savannah, Mo., has been Circuit Judge of the Fifth Circuit in Missouri since 1946. He was a former prosecuting attorney in Andrew County, and served for a time as an attorney for the U. S. Department of Justice in Chicago and Washington.

24 BERNARD J. LUNT, an assistant vice president of the Fort Worth National Bank, Fort Worth, Texas, was honored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in that city recently for his outstanding service as a Catholic layman and in many civic enterprises. He is a graduate of the North Texas School of Law, and of The American Institute of Banking. He has been with the National Bank since 1926. Mr. and Mrs. Lunt and their four children live at 6714 Kirkwood Road in Fort Worth.

J. BARNARD GIBBS, BS Agr., retired as an agricultural attache with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in 1945 after 20 years service, but he has rejoined the department recently as an escort for eight Spaniards who are studying agricultural methods in the United States. The Spanish visitors arrived in Columbia in March, and plan to spend three months in this country. Mr. Gibbs has been operating a farm near Woodlandville, Mo., and his family will continue operation of the farm while he is away. His further assignments with the Department of Agriculture have not been determined. During his years as an agricultural attache, he held posts in Yugoslavia, Puerto Rico, India and Mexico City. The Gibbs address is Route 1, Rocheport, Mo.

TALK ABOUT SPEED . . .

NO JET WILL EVER TRAVEL THIS FAST!

Far faster than the fastest plane . . . with the speed of light! That's how fast you get electric service when you need it—186,000 miles a second—at the flick of a switch!

Electricity, unlike almost anything else you use, must be made and delivered the instant you want it. It cannot be manufactured ahead of time and stored in a tank or a pipe or a box. That's why giant electric generators and other costly facilities must be constantly ready to meet your requirements and those of all our other customers every day . . . morning, noon and night.

It also takes investments of large sums of money by thousands of security holders to provide these facilities . . . plus the constant attention and work of skilled and experienced employees to operate the equipment.

So, next time you use electricity, remember you are getting made-to-order service, actually so fast it's delivered at the flick of a switch!

She Helped a Burglar make his Getaway

Her home was in a part of the city where anything could happen

WAKING ONE MIDNIGHT, she surprised a burglar in her room. As he leapt for the window, she stopped him. "You'll be hurt. Go down by the stairs and let yourself out."

Calm, kind, and acutely intelligent, she had long ago learned to stay human in emergencies—by living where emergencies were routine, in the heart of one of Chicago's poorest immigrant neighborhoods.

Here she had settled down to her life work—helping people. No sociologist or social worker, she left it for others to make this a science. To her, it was an art. An art she practiced so beautifully that, eventually, while she was loved around Halsted Street, she was admired around the world.

When, in 1935, Jane Addams of Hull House died, her little grandniece, seeing hundreds of children among the mourners, asked, "Are we all Aunt Jane's children?"

In a sense, we all are. For the work Jane Addams did and the lessons she taught still help us all. And they prove magnificently the fact that America's greatest wealth lies in Americans.

It is the character and abilities of her people that make this country strong. And it is these selfsame people who make our nation's Savings Bonds one of the world's finest investments. For in U. S. Savings Bonds your principal is guaranteed safe to any amount—and your interest guaranteed sure—by the government that represents the united strength of 168 million Americans. So for your family's security, buy Savings Bonds. Buy them at your bank or through the Payroll Savings Plan at work. And hold on to them.

join the fight against cancer in children!

Wonderful, isn't he? Sometimes when you're alone, you dream a little. You like to imagine him all grown up. A doctor perhaps. Or a lawyer. Or (you smile at yourself, but it could happen) maybe even President . . .

What are his chances? Better . . . if we stamp out cancer. Because cancer doesn't care about tomorrow. Last year, 4,000 children were killed by cancer. 4,000 tomorrows were wiped out . . . by a disease man hasn't conquered yet!

How can you help? What can you do to help make his future secure? You can do so much . . . so easily! You can send a nice fat check to the American Cancer Society. You can help raise every dollar we need for our greatest weapon: research. Do it today. Who knows? Sooner than we think . . . we may strike cancer from his future forever!

P. S. Why not do a little something for yourself? Learn cancer's 7 danger signals. And have a thorough medical checkup once a year.

GENTLEMEN: I want to help conquer cancer. Please send me free information about cancer.

In Memoriam

CHARLES E. PRETTYMAN, Jr., LLB '99, retired attorney of Neosho, Mo., on March 27 in Neosho, following a brief illness. His parents moved to Neosho when he was six months old, and he had lived there since that time. Following his graduation he practiced law in St. Louis a short time, and returned to Neosho, where he soon opened his own practice. In 1933 his son joined him in the firm. Mr. Prettyman served on the Board of Visitors to the University and the School of Mines, and served as secretary of this Board for 12 years. As a student he was a champion bicycle racer and track man. Survivors include his wife, of the home at 306 S. Jefferson in Warrensburg; a son, CHARLES E., 3rd, AB '30, and two grandchildren.

ELMER D. TWYMAN, '03, on April 5 at his home in Kansas City. Dr. Twyman, a veteran general surgeon and a pioneer in cancer and reconstructive surgery, began his practice in Independence in 1908 and moved to Kansas City after World War I. He retired in 1942 following a heart attack. Dr. Twyman was on the staff and was a consulting surgeon at the hospitals in Kansas City and Independence. A son, RICHARD A. TWYMAN, AB '33, of 1020 West 56th St., is also a surgeon. His wife, of the home at 750 W. 47th St., and a daughter, Mrs. J. Neil Smith, Jr., of Riverside, Calif., also survive.

CHARLES W. MARTIN, BS CE '05, of 400 Algonquin Place, Webster Groves, Mo., on March 18 in St. Louis. Mr. Martin, a consulting engineer, was a partner in the Woermann Construction Company. He was employed by the City of St. Louis from 1909 to 1917. During World War II Mr. Martin was a consultant with the Ninth Corps of Engineers. A specialist on reinforced concrete and structural steel, he was associated with Harland Bartholomew on city planning projects in Dallas, Texas. Mr. Martin directed the revisions of the city building code in St. Louis and also received a city award for engineering design of the Globe-Democrat Building. As a student Mr. Martin originated several St. Patrick traditions in 1905 with his close friends, H. H. Haggard and the late Wray Dudley. He wrote the key verse for the St. Patrick song and sketched the first Blarney Stone. He was credited with originating the kow-tow ceremony. Survivors include Mrs. Martin of the home, and two daughters, Mrs. F. W. Drosten of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Mrs. Austen Lowenhaupt of Webster Groves.

DORSEY BERRY DUNCAN, BS CE '05, on March 16 in Kansas City, Mo., after a three-year illness. Born in Columbia, Mo., Mr. Duncan had lived in Kansas City the past 35 years. "Don't worry, I'm not going to sing"

THE OLD LADY had lost her voice. That rich, vibrant contralto which had rung through opera's golden age was long gone. And she made no bones about it.

Standing at the network microphones, she'd loudly promise her audience: "Don't worry, I'm not going to sing."

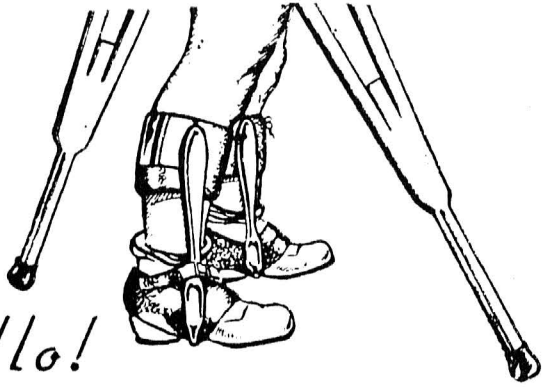

Yet, every Christmas Eve, she did sing. And millions of homes hushed to listen. For Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht does not demand a big voice. Rather, a big heart.

And Ernestine Schumann-Heink had always had that. From the beginning, when she threw away her budding career for love, only to wind up deserted with her four children. Through World War I, when she sang to sell Liberty Bonds while she had sons fighting—on both sides. Right up to the end of her turbulent life, she stayed warm, generous and brave.

Naturally, her adopted country loved her. Because Americans admire heart, and as the little stories in every daily paper show, they have plenty of it. That's one of the vital reasons why America is strong and why her Savings Bonds are a tremendous guarantee of security.

The heart and strength of 165 million Americans stand behind these Bonds.

There could be no better guarantee. So, for yourself, and for your country, invest in U.S. Savings Bonds regularly. And hold on to them.

The Baron wanted him shot

"You," said the suavely arrogant young baron in the blue and silver Generalstab uniform, "are a British spy. And," pointing his hand like a pistol, "you know what that means."

What it meant was that the most daring correspondent of his day, counting on America's 1914 neutrality, had wandered too far behind German lines. And made a new acquaintance who was now politely insisting on having him shot.

But 24 hours later, Richard Harding Davis nonchalantly rode back to Brussels in a German general's limousine.

By that time, Davis had become an experienced hand at getting out of tight spots. It was, after all, his sixth war. And as early as his third, he had been officially commended for cool courage and offered a commission. His admirer: Colonel Theodore Roosevelt of the Rough Riders.

Novelist, playwright, reporter, world-traveller, Richard Harding Davis was the idol of his generation. And his clear-headed adventurousness, his love of fair play, would have made him one today. For America's strength as a nation is built on just such personal qualities.

And America's Savings Bonds are literally backed by them. It is the courage and character of 170 million Americans that make these Bonds the world's finest guarantee of security.

For in U.S. Savings Bonds your principal is guaranteed safe, to any amount—and your rate of interest guaranteed sure—by the greatest nation on earth. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds regularly where you bank or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. And hold on to them.
