STOP RUNNING AWAY FROM YOURSELF!

Sure, you've thought about cancer. Everyone has. But...what are you doing about it? Running away? Refusing to think about it? Or are you easing your mind... and maybe adding years to your life... with a thorough medical check-up? Face up... and check up. Reach for the phone. Call your doctor now. The feeling you'll get when he says "All clear!"... it's worth a million!

P.S.: Maybe you haven't got a million. But how about contributing all you can? Mail a check today to the American Cancer Society. Help support the research program that is working round the clock to keep you alive and safe from cancer! Send a check to "Cancer" in care of your local Post Office.

Reunions

When alumni who have been out of school twenty-five or fifty years get together again you can be sure they will highlight the occasion with plenty of old-fashioned visiting, talking over the things that happened in the days not beyond recall. It was that way on June 7 and 8 when the classes of came back to the campus for their reunions. Memories were revived as this alumnus and that one dug into his store of campus recollections. "I'll never forget the time . . ." or "Do you remember when . . .?" opened the way for reliving, briefly, some of the past.

No matter what you plan at a class reunion, nothing can take the place of reminiscing among former classmates, and bringing each other up to date on how the years have treated them and their families. So, for this year's reunions the planned activities were spread out to leave ample time for visiting. Most of the doings were confined to Friday. These included bus tours of the campus, luncheon by classes, reception in the afternoon, banquet, and Curators' reception. Next morning, some of the alumni went to Brewer Field House to attend the University's 115th Commencement, and others chose to watch it on TV.

Some of the returning alumni showed up a day early, on Thursday, and right away little groups of them got into huddles in the Alumni Office where they came to register. Several pored over the pages of old Savitars, a pastime that continued popular throughout the reunion.

This year the old grads came back from widely scattered areas. They were here from such distant states as Washington, Connecticut, Virginia, California, and New York. As usual, the older classes had a higher percentage of representation, and were not far behind the younger classes numerically.

"This reunion would have been a success for me if I had seen no one else but Charley Hechler," said James Ellis of Chicago. When Hechler heard about this, he let it be known he felt the same way about Ellis.

Two alumnae from Texas came up on the train together, just as they did when they first came to the University as students. Betsy Miller Barlow and Kathrine Malone Milam found the ride on the Wabash Cannonball from Centralia strongly reminiscent of their first experience on that stretch of the railroad. They were welcomed at the empty Columbia station by a total absence of anybody and had no way of phoning for a cab. The conductor locked the train and volunteered to summon a cab for them.

The University busses took several loads of the alumni on a brief tour of the campus, with a stop at the Medical Center featured. Naturally the tourists were impressed by this great structure and all the other physical changes the campus has undergone.

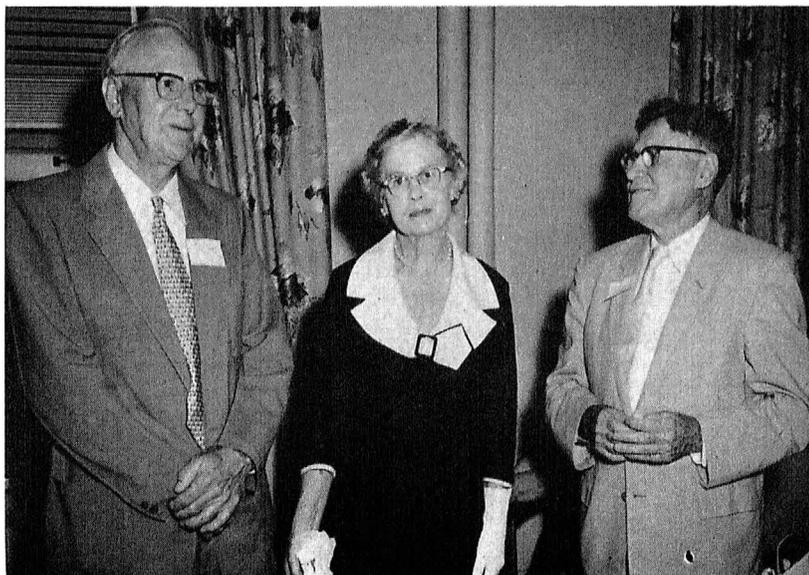

The reunion banquet featured a thick steak and a short program. Jean Madden, assistant alumni director, in the role of toastmaster, asked each guest to introduce himself, give his class year and home town. J. Andrew Squires led group singing of "I'm A Son" and "Old Missouri." Brief talks were made by Jack R. Parsell and Glen (Jack) Horner. In a series of anecdotes, Timothy Hays failed to carry out his scheduled talk on "Population Trends in the Western Hemisphere."

During the social hour in Read Hall Friday afternoon and at the evening banquet, a photographer was kept busy snapping pictures. The aim was to get a shot of every person attending the reunion. This goal was not realized. Some subjects got away. Now and then a picture was fuzzy or poorly lighted. On the other hand, some persons were in two or three different groupings caught by the photographer.

Inasmuch as those in the pictures are identified in the following pages, we'd like to list those persons who are not thus represented. They include: Billie Hempelman Seitz, '31, Arlington, Va.; Gertrude A. Dawson, '33, and J. Carl Dawson, Ferguson, Mo.; Horace F. Blackwell, Jr., '32, Kansas City; Roy H. Pender, '32, St. Louis; William H. Harrison, '32, St. Louis; James Y. Hart, Kansas City; Miss Louise Hirsch, '32, Jennings, Mo.; Miss Dorothy Daniel, '32, Webster Groves, Mo.; Miss Mary V. Ragland, '35, Madison, Mo.; Tom R. Hamilton, M.D., '32, Kansas City, Kan.; Mrs. Harvey A. Jones, '30, Independence, Mo.; Homer C. Wright, '31, Tuscumbia, Mo.; Edgar E. Coy, '31, Garden City, Mo.; James Baker, M.D., '31, Delbert E. Dunkin, '32, Mrs. Dorothy Dysart Flynn, '30, Mrs. George Zumwalt, '31, and Edward R. Hamilton, '98, all of Columbia.

Awards Luncheon

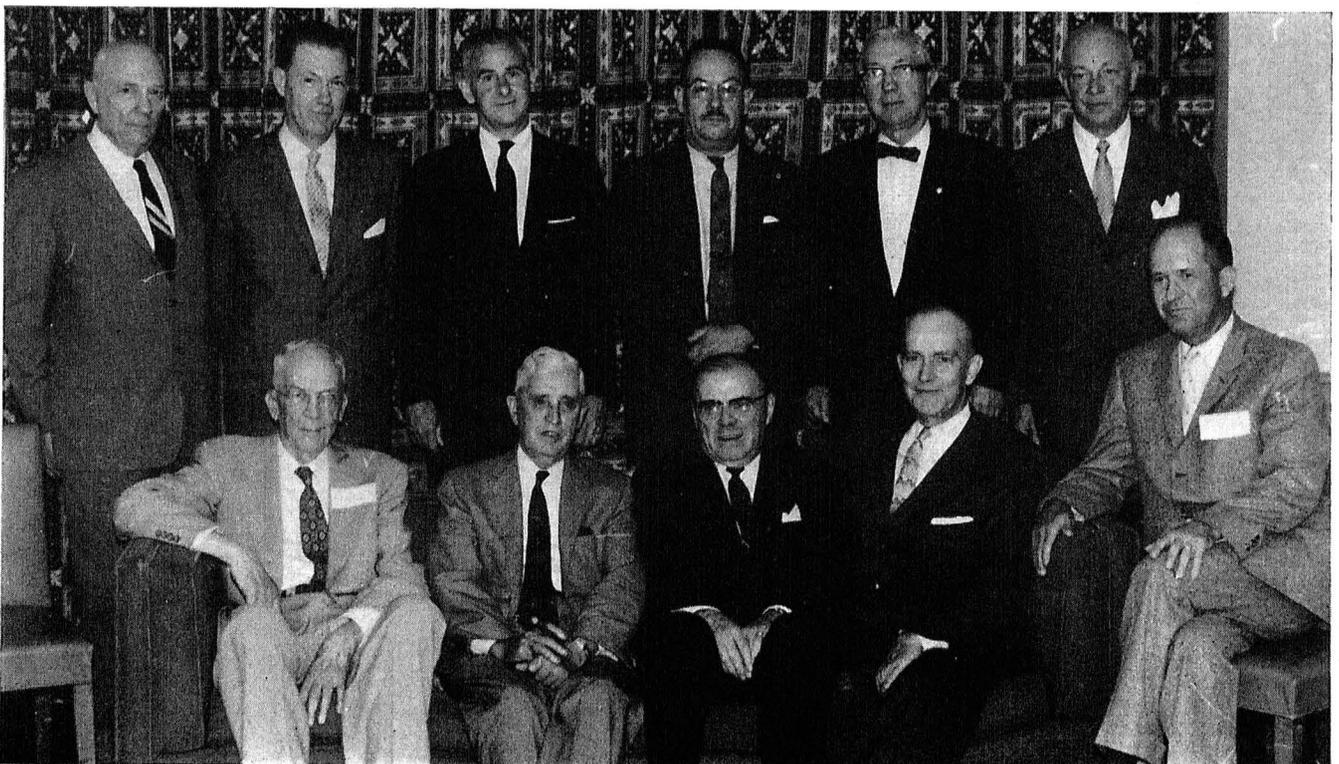

A new honor presented for the first time, the Alumni Consulate Award, has been bestowed upon eight past presidents of the Alumni Association and seventeen former Curators of the University.

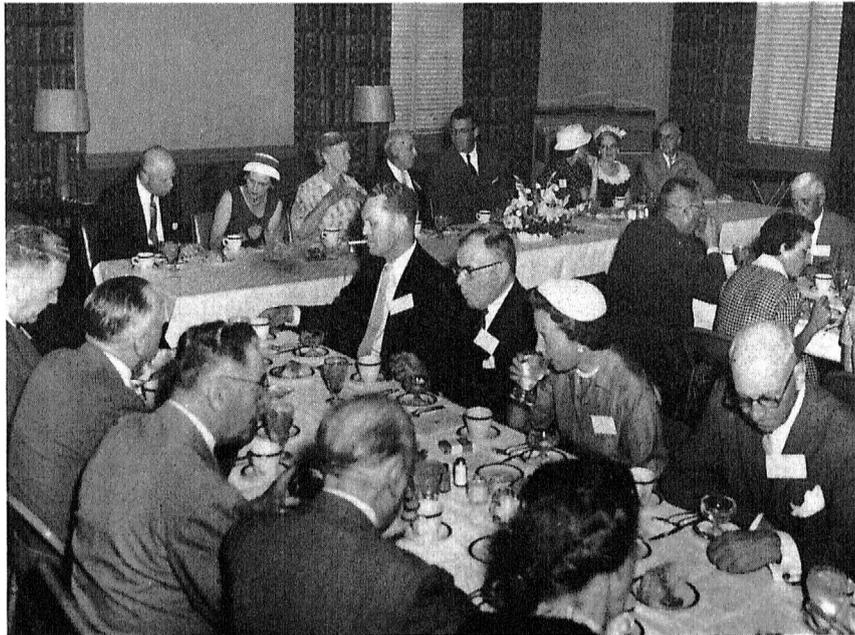

The Alumni Consulate is one of four awards conceived during the tenure of Richard Chamier of Moberly as president of the association. It is given in recognition of outstanding service and leadership in behalf of the University and the Alumni Association.

The presentations were made June 7 at a Memorial Student Union luncheon where the guests were University President Elmer Ellis and Mrs. Ellis, President Emeritus Frederick A. Middlebush and Mrs.

Standing, former alumni presidents: Judge Laurance M. Hyde, Harold Niedorff, Cullen Coil, Richard Chamier, Allen Oliver, and Byron Spencer. Seated, former Curators: Allen McReynolds, James A. Potter, Frank G. Mann, Frank Stonner, and David W. Hopkins.

Middlebush, the present members of the Board of Curators, and Alumni Association officials. Dutton Brookfield of Kansas City, who retires this month as association president, presented the awards.

Dr. Middlebush, as the speaker, commended the association for providing official recognition to those who have held a high place in the total structure of the University. He said the Board of Curators and the Alumni Association are two tremendous forces without which there would be no University.

Not all of these entitled to the awards could be present, but the complete list of recipients follows:

Former Curators—Mrs. Helen C. Zwick, St. Joseph; George C. Willson, St. Louis; John K. Walsh, Webster Groves; John H. Lathrop, Kansas City; James A. Potter, Jefferson City; H. Charles Cox, Rock Port; Harold J. Moore, Brookfield; Tom K. Smith, St. Louis; Cowgill Blair, Joplin; David W. Hopkins, St. Joseph; Frank C. Mann, Springfield; Elton L. Marshall, Kansas City; Guy A. Thompson, St. Louis; Allen McReynolds, Carthage; Frank Stonner, Chamois; Dr. Glenn W. Hendren, Liberty; James S. Bush, St. Louis.

Past presidents—Richmond C. Coburn, who held office in 1935-37, St. Louis; Byron Spencer (1938-40), Kansas City; Allen Oliver (1940-41), Cape Girardeau; Judge Laurance M. Hyde (1942-44), Jefferson City; Oak Hunter (1944-48), Moberly; Harold Niedrop (1950-53), St. Joseph; Cullen Coil (1953-55), Jefferson City; and Richard Chamier (1955-56), Moberly.

The first Awards Luncheon of the association had the atmosphere of a reunion about it. It brought together numerous associates devoted to University interests. In addition to the present association directors and past presidents, present Curators and former members, many of the wives were present.

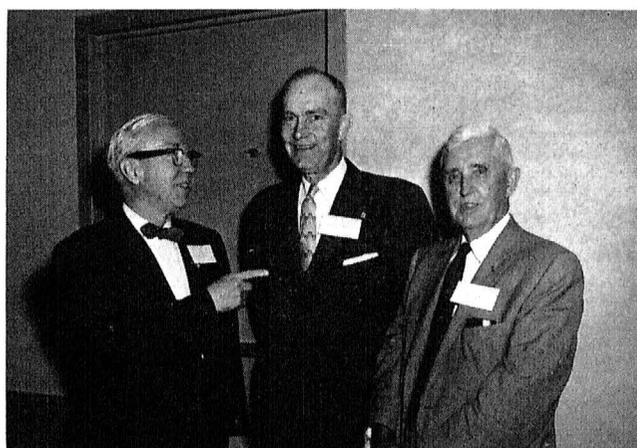

Judge Laurance M. Hyde of the Missouri Supreme Court, Mrs. Hyde, and Mrs. David W. Hopkins.

Richard Chamier, Harold Niedorp, Cullen Coil, and Byron Spencer, alumni ex-presidents.

Haskell Holman, A.B. '31, Missouri state auditor, has been designated by Governor Blair as Missouri's disaster co-ordinator in the distribution of federal funds to tornado-hit areas. With Federal Government officials, Holman works out exact details for handling more than two million dollars, the amount of federal funds expected to be allocated to Missouri.

John H. Longwell, director of agricultural sciences and dean of the College of Agriculture at the University, sailed recently with the United States Navy training cruise Bravo to Valparaiso, Chile. He represented President Elmer Ellis. Each year the Navy Department invites several university presidents to cruise with a training operation. University ROTC midshipmen are among the six thousand midshipmen from all over the United States participating in the training cruise. Dean Longwell expected to be away three weeks.

While many of the Class Reunion pictures in this issue were taken unposed and informally, we must admit that the large photo on the cover page was prearranged. The six persons pictured attended the reunions, all right, but if you know them, you'll realize they are all Columbia folks. The reason: After the reunion pictures were examined it was obvious that none had the proper dimensions for the cover photo, which of course is vertical in shape. So the local grads we contacted kindly consented to dress up on a warm day after the reunions were over and report to the east end of the underpass that connects the two campuses at Lowry Street. Through their cooperation we were able to obtain a suitable cover picture. It may appear that they are sight-seeing, which is unlikely, inasmuch as they all have made Columbia their home for years. Our thanks to Miss Hertha Eitzen, Mrs. Caroline B. Pearman, Dr. Albert G. Hogan, State Senator George A. Spencer, Byron Cosby and Stanley Sission.

MISSOURI MEMO

When Winsor V. Morrison completed the eighth grade, the high school nearest his Missouri home was twelve miles away. He finally reached the tenth grade, then had to quit to help the family. After military service and marriage, he passed a special examination to receive an equivalency certificate covering high school. Morrison then came on to the University, earning an A.B. in '53 and his B.S. in Medicine in '55. He went on to the University of Tennessee College of Medicine at Memphis where, at the age of 32, Dr. Winsor V. Morrison won his M.D., and the Charles C. Verstandig Award for overcoming the most obstacles in obtaining a degree—along with a sincere salute from the 186 other graduates of the University of Tennessee medical units. Dr. Morrison, formerly of West Plains, Mo., begins a United States Public Health Service hospital internship in Seattle July 1.

Lloyd Randolph Killam, who attended Graduate School here in 1912 and was secretary of the YMCA for two years, was a recent visitor from Honolulu, which he has called home for forty-five years. In fact Mr. Killam and his bride, the former Sadie Craig, A.B. '10, left for Hawaii immediately after their marriage in Columbia. Mr. Killam, a native of Winfield, Mo., continued his "Y" work prominently in Hawaii where he was associate general secretary in Honolulu from 1912 to 1925. The next five years he was the "Y" territorial secretary of the Hawaiian Islands. From 1930 to 1935 he was dean of the Hawaiian School of Religion, University of Hawaii. In the next ten years he was, successively, executive secretary of the Territory of Hawaii "Y," the Pioneer Fields Commission of the National Council, and of the Southern Area. Since 1945 he has been president of Pacific Properties, Ltd.

In 1922 Mr. Killam traveled in China, Japan, and Korea. He organized the Pacific "Y" Conference, which developed into the Institute of Pacific Relations in 1925. He has specialized in work among racial groups, and is founder of the Hawaii University Exchange Plan, through which scores of young people from the islands have attended colleges and universities on the mainland. He is active in civic organizations.

Several members of the Killam family have graduated from Missouri U. Among them are two of Mr. Killam's brothers, David Edward Killam, '08, who is an attorney in Tyler, Texas; and Oliver W. Killam, LL.B. '98, Laredo, Texas. A recent newspaper article told how Oliver Killam, as a Missouri boy of 14, decided to become a millionaire and achieved his goal at the age of 44. He starred in football and track, served as a state senator in Oklahoma from 1908 to 1918, founded the town of Locust Grove and became its mayor. He moved to Texas in 1920 "to do some horsetrading." Robert Craig Killam, a son of the Lloyd Killams, married a Missouri girl, Jane Winn, who received an A.B. degree in '40. The Lloyd Killams have another son, Douglas Lloyd Killam, and a daughter, Eleanor Margaret (Mrs. Hartley H. Aram). H. M. Craig of Columbia is a brother of Mrs. Killam. The home address of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Killam is 1905 Makiki Street, Honolulu.

One professor gives his Summer Session students something really to think about. After announcing the first objective quiz, he said, "Later we'll go over the questions, one by one, to see just how ambiguous they were."

EMERITUS

Five men whose combined services on the staff of the University of Missouri at Columbia total 200 years were awarded emeritus titles at the 115th annual Commencement exercises of the University in Brewer Field House June 8. The emeritus diplomas were presented by President Elmer Ellis.

The five staff members were: Dr. Arlie Glenn Capps, named Professor Emeritus of Education; Eugene Woodville Cowan, made Professor Emeritus of Agricultural Chemistry; Leslie Cowan, made Vice-president Emeritus of the University in Charge of Business Operations; Dr. Adrian Jackson Durant, made Professor Emeritus of Veterinary Bacteriology; and Luther Abraham Weaver, named Professor Emeritus of Animal Husbandry.

Dr. Capps, widely known authority on educational research and statistics, has served on the faculty of the University for 36 years, having first been appointed an associate professor of education in 1921. A graduate of Northeast Missouri State Teachers College and the University of Missouri, he also received a Ph.D. degree from the University of Illinois in 1921. He has served on a number of state-wide committees and commissions studying education in Missouri, and has served as consultant to legislative committees considering educational reforms.

Prof. Cowan is also a graduate of the University, receiving a Bachelor of Science degree here in 1913, and a Master of Science degree in 1924. After two years with the Florida Agricultural Experiment Station, he returned to Missouri and joined the teaching staff in 1926 first as instructor in agricultural chemistry. He has served M. U. for 31 years. A widely recognized authority on fertilizers, he has been responsible for much of the fertilizer control services in Missouri.

Leslie Cowan has served the University a total of 49 years, having become an employee while still a student. He worked in the office of the committee on entrance in 1908 and moved to the office of the Registrar in 1909. He became assistant to the Registrar in 1910, and secretary to the President in 1912. In 1920 he was named Secretary of the University and Secretary to the Board of Curators.

In 1944, Mr. Cowan's title was changed to Vice-president of the University in Charge of Business Operations and Secretary of the Board of Curators, and, effective September 1, 1956, he was made Appraiser of University Lands, a new responsibility.

Dr. Durant has served the University for exactly four decades, receiving his first teaching assignment in 1917 as instructor in veterinary science. A native of Alabama, he received a Bachelor of Science degree here at the University of Missouri in 1913, and a master's degree in 1915. He received his D. V. M. degree from Michigan State College. He served as student and graduate assistant while in school here, and as a teacher rose from his instructorship to full professor and chairman of the department in 1931. When the School of Veterinary Medicine was established here in 1949, Dr. Durant's title was changed to Professor of Veterinary Bacteriology.

Prof. Weaver has devoted 44 years to teaching at the University. He received his Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree from the University in 1910, and was appointed assistant professor of animal husbandry in 1913. He was promoted to associate professor in 1918, and was made a full professor the next year. He has been chairman of the department of animal husbandry since 1945. Holding a nation-wide reputation as a livestock judge, and long esteemed as a teacher who instilled a love of their profession in his students, Prof. Weaver received high recognition when his portrait was presented to the Saddle and Sirloin Club to hang in the Club's internationally famous portrait gallery in Chicago in 1954. The portrait was presented by the American Society of Animal Production.

Bill Callahan: Missouri's Sports Publicist

By ART MATHERS, '58

The morning after a Tiger football game, Mr. Average M. U. Fan grabs his copy of a metropolitan paper and scans it eagerly for the story of the game, the boxscore, team and individual statistics, and other sidelights of the contest.

The account of the game is the reporter's. But all the "extra's," including mimeographed play-by-play sheets available to the working press, represents the direct or supervisory efforts of William F. (Bill) Callahan, University sports publicity director and the man-behind-the-scenes at all Mizzou athletic events.

For a fellow recognizable to only a handful of Tiger backers Bill has a most important job. His various duties, which run anywhere from preparing brochures to maintaining a sports page clipping service, number close to 20.

Bill's regular staff consists of only three part-time student assistants, although a secretary was added about a year and a half ago to handle the unusually heavy load of outside correspondence.

Extra assistance is necessary for major sporting events. A home football game, for instance, requires 10 to 12 helpers. That includes three full-time statisticians, who file a report to the National Collegiate Athletic Association after the game.

Callahan's office in Rothwell Gym continually hums with activity, especially just prior to a major event. The busiest time, according to Bill, is the day before a football game at Memorial Stadium. Out-of-town reporters and radiomen start arriving Friday, and it is Bill's job to accommodate them in countless ways while he is still making pre-game preparations.

Bespectacled Bill has become such a fixture around the University athletic department the past eight years that few current Tiger athletes realize he is a Missourian only by adoption.

Callahan, a native of Newport, R. I., first broke into sports writing at Rhode Island State College. He majored in business administration, however, but found time to edit the college yearbook before being graduated in 1941.

Early in 1942 Bill entered the Army as a second lieutenant. Although he didn't do any writing during a service hitch which took him to Normandy, Okinawa and Korea, it was during this period that he definitely decided upon a career in sports writing.

He received his discharge just in time to enroll in the University School of Journalism in February, 1946. It took him a year to pick up the Bachelor of Journalism degree, and he recalls writing a daily sports column—"Cal's Corner"—in the Missourian.

For five months after his graduation Callahan was the sports editor or, as he puts it, the "sports department"—of the Coffeyville (Kan.) Daily Journal. From Coffeyville he advanced to the Topeka State Journal where he spent a year as sports editor.

When veteran Tiger publicist Blaine Carr announced his impending retirement in 1948, Bill applied for the job. He was accepted soon afterward and reported to work in July of that same year.

How does Callahan feel about his background role which seldom permits him to see his creative work in print, at least the same as he writes it?

"It was hard to get used to at first," Bill discloses, "but I soon came to the realization that it was my business just to supply the facts as simple and readable as possible—and leave it to the correspondents to fashion the clever phrases."

The main responsibility of a sports publicity man, Bill explains, is "to sell his product to the public" just as a public relations man does.

Although he admittedly exerts a bit more effort on feature material, Callahan strives merely to point out interesting angles which the writers can develop.

There are other compensations. For example, Bill counts among his personal friends some of the most famous writers and radio personalities in the Midwest and the nation. He rubs shoulders with fellows like Bob Broeg, Bill Corum, Robert Burnes, J. Roy Stockton, Dave Condon, Bob Busby, Ernie Mehl, Harry Caray, Joe Garagiola and many others.

Add to these the names of many fine athletes and coaches Bill has known here at Mizzou and you can see how the 37-year-old New Englander has maintained a high degree of enthusiasm for his work.

Callahan hasn't added much poundage since his days at Rhode Island State. He still carries only 145 pounds on a 5-10 frame, and his boundless energy combines with frequent trips to the University handball courts to repel any threats to a middle-thirty paunch.

Bill is married to the former Barbara Morrissey of Cranston, R. I., and they have four children—Judith (12), Maureen (10), Steve (7) and Joe (5).

Physics course by TV

University to telecast high school program in fall.

A complete high school course by television will be inaugurated by the University next fall over its commercial television station, KOMU-TV, from Columbia.

The course, recently announced by President Elmer Ellis, will be offered in high school physics through arrangements between the University's Adult Education and Extension Service and the high schools in the KOMU coverage area. The University will certify the student's grade to the high school authorities for approved credit.

The television course is on motion picture films and will consist of 162 half-hour telecasts—one a day, five days a week—and coordinated with assigned readings, written reports and examinations which will be graded at the University.

The high school will provide a classroom equipped with television for regular viewing of the daily program, and a teacher-monitor to supervise in the classroom and direct coordination of the reading and written assignments of students. The teacher-monitor will not need to be a physics teacher, but might well be another teacher, a librarian, or any member of the high school staff.

The primary purpose in offering the television course is to help the Missouri high schools overcome the critical lack of physics teachers and at the same time provide this basic science course which is now in such high demand and which is not available in most high schools because of the lack of teachers and lack of necessary laboratory equipment.

Physics is the heart and core of the physical sciences and most critically needed in this atomic age, according to educators, and yet most high schools cannot offer it. Industry and government are taking all available physicists at salaries which schools cannot begin to match, and laboratory demonstration equipment is costly.

The course has been approved by the State Department of Education, and the context has full approval of accrediting agencies.

The University's telecast will be supervised by the Adult Education and Extension Service in cooperation with the College of Education and the College of Arts and Science.

The physics course was filmed by Encyclopaedia Britannica in cooperation with the Ford Foundation Fund for the Advancement of Education. The context and arrangement was directed under the National Science Foundation. Dr. M. H. Trytten, director of scientific personnel of the National Academy of Science, served as chairman of an advisory committee.

Dr. Harvey E. White, a professor of physics at the University of California, serves as the teacher and director of the program. With the aid of Dr. Trytten's committee as well as a group of teachers and science supervisors, he taught a complete course in introductory physics which was televised to a group of high schools in the Pittsburgh, Pa., area and was simultaneously filmed by the Encyclopaedia Britannica Films, Inc. The complete course consists of more than 160,000 feet of film.

Each thirty-minute television program will be followed by another thirty minutes in the classroom in which the monitor will distribute assignments for the following day and help outline the paper work to be done by the students. Counselors at the University will receive the papers for grading and written comments on progress.

The course will cover such basic elements of physics as mechanics; properties of matter; heat; sound; light; electricity and magnetism electronics; quantum optics; atomic physics; and nuclear physics. It will also contain some special lessons, such as slide rule, algebra, and trigonometry.

The course is so arranged as to coordinate with five of the most popular and most used text books in high school physics.

High schools which subscribe to the television course will pay a basic annual fee plus a per capita fee for each student enrolled. These fees are to amortize the cost of the film, the cost of the telecasting, and the expense of handling and grading papers in the course.

But the cost of the course will be only a fraction of the salary of a physics teacher (even if such a teacher was available), and the School will not have to purchase and maintain a large amount of expensive laboratory equipment.

Dr. Amos J. Snider, director of the Adult Education and Extension Service, mentioned a number of other distinct advantages of the television program. Among them, he cited the fact that in laboratory demonstrations, usually only a few students in front row seats get a good view. On television, however, every student in the class gets a clear and closeup view of every detail.

He also mentioned that school teachers now in training can watch, and thus gain valuable material for their future use, and adults now employed in industry may get the basic instructions in physics that they missed in school. Officials of the high schools that subscribe to the course will be invited to Columbia before the course begins for a preview showing of some of the film and instructions on the proper methods of conducting the classes in their schools. Station KOMU-TV will also telecast several of the lessons before the regular course begins in order that parents and other interested persons may get an opportunity to see the type of instruction given and be better able to evaluate such a program.

Regular presentation of the course will begin in September as soon as all participating schools have opened.

M. U. gifts and grants

Finch announces total for year is $1,456,757.

Gifts and grants to the University during the year just ended have totaled $1,456,757.02, it was announced at the 115th annual Commencement exercises by James A. Finch, Jr., of Cape Girardeau, president of the Board of Curators.

Included are $1,194,655.68 given to the University in cash or research equipment for its divisions at Columbia, and $202,091.34 for its School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla.

Mr. Finch said the University greatly appreciates the monetary value of these gifts, and appreciates even more the realization of the many benefits which can be accomplished through them. But of equal significance, he said, is the fact that they come from 2,126 individual donors, indicating the great interest which an increasing number of persons are taking in the State University and in the welfare of its students.

"To all these persons who have expressed their interest in the University of Missouri by their gifts during the past year, the Curators express appreciation for their faith in this institution of learning," Mr. Finch said.

He reported that of the total received in the period from May 26, 1956 to May 15, 1957, for both campuses, $838,401.81 was given by 70 donors for research; $5,490.53 was given by 15 donors to student loan funds; $196,606.27 by 790 donors for scholarships and fellowships; $43,322.50 by 23 donors for prizes and awards; and $372,935.91 by 1,217 donors for miscellaneous purposes. He said there were also 11 gifts of articles such as historical papers, portraits, books, and art objects.

A breakdown of the items for the two campuses shows that the Columbia divisions received $772,208.97 for research and the School of Mines at Rolla received $66,192.84. The additions to student loans include $5,277.53 for Columbia and $213 for Rolla. Scholarship and fellowship grants were $118,093.27 at Columbia and $78,513 at Rolla; prizes and awards were $41,735 at Columbia and $1,587.50 at Rolla; and miscellaneous gifts included $257,350.91 at Columbia and $115,585 at Rolla.

Many of the cash gifts and grants were to support research, Mr. Finch said, but he also called attention to valuable equipment such as the 2-million-volt Van de Graaff x-ray generator given by the Donner Foundation of Philadelphia for the new Medical Center at Columbia and the grant of more than $100,000 from the Atomic Energy Commission to the School of Mines and Metallurgy for the purchase of equipment for educational and training courses there.

Other gifts of substantial amounts were to fill specific needs of the University. The largest of such gifts during the past year, Mr. Finch said, include one of $75,000 from A. L. Gustin, Jr., of Kansas City for the construction of a golf course, and a gift of $65,000 from the Allen P. and Josephine B. Green Foundation of Mexico, Mo., for construction of a chapel, both on the Columbia campus, and a gift of $26,000 from E. R. Needles of New York for support of the scholarship program at the School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla.

"We feel that the increasing interest in University needs, as expressed by these donors, is somewhat due to the fact that the development fund program of the University which was started only a few years ago is beginning to take root," Mr. Finch said. "This program, as it moves forward, should bring a greater interest on the part of the general public in the educational program of the University, as well as provide funds for much needed, though not so essential endeavors."

Tucker Prairie purchased

The University has purchased 160 acres of virgin prairie farm land in Callaway County, known in that area as the Tucker Prairie Land, from members of the Tucker family of Fulton, Mo. According to President Ellis, the land will be used for research purposes under the direction of the department of botany.

President Ellis said the land was bought with funds donated for the purpose by a small group of individuals and industrial firms and by the National Science Foundation. The purchase price was $32,000.

The land, located on the south side of and adjacent to Highway 40 between Kingdom City and Columbia, has remained in possession of the same family since pioneered from the Public Domain more than a century ago. The soil has never been broken by the plow, and it still contains many specimens of flora that grew here when only the American Indian knew it. President Ellis said the National Science Foundation had granted the University $19,000 to be used toward purchase of the tract, and that the remainder of the funds had been donated by the following: Edward Mallinckrodt, Edgar Queeny, the Mexico Refractories Company; and Tom K. Smith, J. S. Lehmann, and Sidney Maestre, all of St. Louis; R. B. Price, Columbia; and William Tucker, Warrensburg.

"This is a fine addition to our resources for research and teaching in botany and related subjects," President Ellis said. "It is almost the only flat virgin prairie land left in Central Missouri, and as such should be kept in that condition for basic research."

The University has been carrying on some research on the tract for several years, conducted by the botany department. When the owners, who had given permission for the research, decided recently to sell the land, University officials sought the financial aid necessary to preserve the unbroken soil so that the studies could be continued.

Award to Robert E. Lee Hill

At the University's 115th Commencement on June 8, the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award was presented, posthumously, to Robert E. Lee Hill. Participating in the Commencement exercises, Dutton Brookfield of Kansas City, the association's retiring president, presented the award and made the following remarks:

"One year ago a new award to be given at Commencement was approved jointly by the University and the University Alumni Association. This is a Distinguished Service Award given for outstanding service to the University.

"At the inception of this award one man's name was immediately recognized as deserving one of the original Distinguished Service Awards. This man, throughout his life an international booster of Missouri served the University as Director of Alumni Activities for 23 years. During his career his enthusiasm and interests were directed to the development of a greater University of Missouri. The loyalty, determination, and service exemplified by him constitute one of the University's finest elements of strength.

"It is with great sorrow that this award must be presented posthumously to Robert E. Lee Hill who passed away on April 24th.

"This award with our love and sympathy will be given to Mrs. Hill, who is in the Commencement audience today."

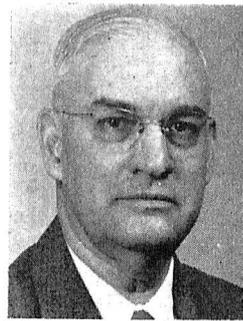

Dearmont heads Missouri Pacific

Russell L. Dearmont, LL.B. '14, St. Louis lawyer, politician and financial expert, is the new president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. He has been associated with the railroad for two decades, becoming general counsel in 1936. He had served as vice-president and general counsel since the reorganization last year of the ten-thousand-mile line which operates in eleven states.

He is member of the St. Louis board of police commissioners and a host of civic and community groups. He is vice-president of the St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts of America, a vice-president of the Metropolitan YMCA and trustee of the YWCA.

Mr. Dearmont was elected to a four-year term in the Missouri state senate in 1928, and led a successful fight to reduce interest rates charged by small loan companies in the state. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1932.

He is a member of the board of regents of Southeast Missouri State College, from which he was a graduate in 1911. His father, the late Dr. Washington S. Dearmont, was president of the college twenty-two years.

A. C. Ragsdale

Ragsdale honored by college

Culver-Stockton College awarded Prof. A. C. Ragsdale, chairman of the University of Missouri dairy department, an honorary doctor of science degree at its annual commencement June 7.

The degree was granted Prof. Ragsdale in recognition of his professional scientific achievements and for his outstanding leadership among the laymen of the Disciples of Christ.

Prof. Ragsdale has been chairman of the Missouri dairy department since April 1, 1919. During his tenure as chairman, the department has developed an international reputation for scientific research and graduate training that annually attracts large numbers of graduate students from throughout the United States and many foreign countries.

He has served as president of the American Dairy Science Association, is a member of many scientific and professional societies, has served the Missouri and national dairy industries in many ways, and is listed in "Who's Who in America."

He has served as state and national president of the Christian Men's Fellowship and is a member of the National Layman's Advisory Commission of the Christian Church-Disciples of Christ.

Craig gives up chairmanship

Cleo F. Craig has resigned as chairman of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in a personal voluntary decision. The company's retirement policy at age 65 would not have affected him before next April 6. He will continue as a director and a member of the executive committee.

Mr. Craig, a native of Rich Hill, Mo., joined AT&T in 1913 immediately after his graduation from M. U. He had been a vice-president since 1940 and had been in charge of finance from 1949 until he assumed the presidency in 1951. He was the company's eighth president, and served until last September. His decision to retire was foreshadowed last fall when he handpicked his successor as president and chief executive officer.

He returned to the campus in 1952 to receive the honorary Doctor of Laws degree, thirty-nine years after receiving his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering.

25 The old-time, autocratic top boss, who was likely to own his own business, is disappearing, in the opinion of POWELL B. McHANEY, AB, president of the General American Life Insurance Company and a member of the University's Board of Curators. Into his place has moved the professional manager, brought up in an entirely different tradition, said Mr. McHaney, who was the principal speaker at ceremonies awarding certificates for completion of studies in University College, adult education division of Washington University, St. Louis. "The modern manager knows that no company today can afford to be a one-man show," McHaney said. "He recognizes that modern business requires trained, competent people at all levels." He said that "tycoons" no longer can exercise unchecked economic power. "Today's top manager must balance interests of his employees, stockholders, customers and the citizens of his community."

"I have had lots of troubles"

AFTER YEARS OF WORK, the doorway to literary success finally opened. She managed to get her novel, Moods, published.

It promptly flopped.

Undaunted, she wrote a second novel, which instantly turned out to be the rage of 1869. Businessmen, lawyers, housewives, everybody read and talked about Little Women.

Fortune had finally smiled on Louisa May Alcott. Twenty years had passed between her first writings and Little Women—years of privation, struggle, pain. She had worked as a maid, as a paid companion, had nearly lost her life as a Civil War nurse, had once come close to suicide.

Now world-famous, her family secure, she would write many more books. And people would love them.

For, as she said, "I have had lots of troubles; so I write jolly tales."

In those words, spoke the kind of unvarnished courage without which this country would be a far poorer place. Poorer not only by Louisa May Alcott's stories, but by the accomplishments of millions. For it is human courage and character that have made America wealthy and strong. And have made America's Savings Bonds one of the world's finest investments.

170 million Americans back U.S. Savings Bonds—back them with a guarantee unmatched by any other form of saving. Your principal guaranteed safe to any amount—your interest guaranteed sure—by the greatest nation on earth. If you want real security, buy Bonds. Get them at your bank or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. And hold on to them.

NOW U.S. SAVINGS BONDS PAY YOU HIGHER INTEREST FASTER!

If you've always bought U.S. Savings Bonds for their rock-ribbed safety, their guaranteed return, the way they make saving easier—you've got one more reason now!

Every Series E United States Savings Bond you've bought since February 1, 1957 pays you a new, higher interest—3¼% when held to maturity! It reaches maturity faster—in only 8 years and 11 months. And redemption values are higher, too, especially in the earlier years.

About your older Bonds? Easy. Just hold onto them. As you know, the rate of interest a Savings Bond pays increases with each year you own it, until maturity. Therefore, the best idea is to buy the new—and hold the old!

The main thing about E Bonds, of course, is their complete safety. Principal and interest are fully guaranteed. They are loss-proof, fire-proof, theft-proof—because the Treasury will replace them without charge in case of mishap. Your Savings Bonds are as solid as a rock—backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

Maybe you already know about Savings Bonds—as one of the 40 million Americans who own them today, or as one of the other millions who have used Bond savings to help pay for new homes, cars, or college educations, or to make retirement financially easier. If so, this is familiar territory to you—you know there's no better way to save.

But if you're new to the game, find out about Savings Bonds and what they can do for your future. Ask your banker, or check with your employer about the automatic Payroll Savings Plan that makes saving painless and easy.
