Campus Commentary

By BUS ENTSMINGER

Youth—is still youth

It seems as though one of the most popular subjects in national magazines today is the college student, his habits and his actions. Some appraisals are favorable, some are critical, but few actually depict the majority, or the average student.

If you have been reading some of these articles, you no doubt have heard of LSD, "sex on the campus" and all the other modern modes. From my view here on your campus, the student body of today does not seem to be much different from that of any other vintage.

Let's look back over the past 40 years and think of fads that would represent our particular vintage.

Some of you no doubt recall the Roaring 20's, when some of the students drank bathtub gin, wore flapper-style (above the knees) dresses and danced the Lindy Hop. I would wager that these activities seemed just as frivolous to parents in '25 as the activities of today's college youngsters seem to those of us who are parents.

How about the 30's? When the college society rocked with the guitar and banjo beat, our vocabularies were filled with initials such as WPA, TVA, and CCC.

In the 40's our parents had to look at the jitterbug and the zoot-suiter. Although this era produced some wonderful music, songs like "Want Some Sea Food, Mama" and "Mairzydoats" made as much sense as today's rock and roll beat.

The 50's will probably go down as the apathetic decade which gave birth to protest movements. Now we are swinging into the late 60's. Even though I don't "dig" today's "jive talk" and don't quite understand some of the actions of our youth, I can't help but recall some of the above—and I wonder just how "different" the youth of today really are.

What college deans are saying

In a recent article in College Management magazine, replies of deans to a National Association of Student Personnel Administrators survey sum up the "real college student" in answering a query "Do you think the image of the college student currently presented is fair and accurate?"

The query was made, of course, of the impressions given by some communications media of the shocking image—wild parties, campus riots, slack morals, and rejection of traditional values—as opposed to the public imagemakers' attempt to present the contemporary student as a saint of culture, beset with high morals and strict ideals and more dedicated to the principles of education than his forefathers.

The majority of the deans agreed that the total picture of campus life today has been distorted, but that the image is not a complete fantasy. As Fred Kramer, dean of Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., expressed it: "There have been more elements of truth in it than misrepresentations."

Another dean expressed no alarm at the distortion. Said Walter Sikes, associate dean of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, "The activist image is distinctly more attractive to me and more promising for the country than the stereotype of the mid-1950's—the conventional, uninvolved and low-risk-taking student."

Admitting the faults on today's campuses, Ralph A. Young, dean of Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio, provided the balance that most deans saw when he said, "There is long hair, sexual promiscuity, cheating, drunkenness and misuse of drugs and most of these things exist to a degree that they never did before. But there is also an increase in questing, achieving and commitment which far outweighs the negative facts in the image."

Thus, in summing up, the article pointed out that deans agreed that today's students have these main characteristics: "more serious and conscientious in high-pressure academic competition; more idealistic and dissatisfied with the world and more aggressive in voicing the protest; more insecure and anxious about the complexities of society; seeking more meaningful relationships with others."

To me, all of this seems to boil down to just one fact—youth is still youth and every generation is going to seek its own.

What happened here

One Monday morning a Central Intelligence Agency representative arrived on campus to interview students for possible employment. This is normal procedure, year in and year out. On Tuesday, about 10 students appeared in front of Read Hall and proceeded to picket in protest of CIA.

TV cameramen and newsmen were quick to record the action of these pickets, completely ignoring the fact that more than 60 students requested interviews and some 18,500 other students went about their daily duties. After their press coverage, the pickets disappeared.

His service an inspiration

Many of you will read elsewhere the obituary of William C. Tucker. Seldom has any university enjoyed the unselfish, perpetual service of a man as the University of Missouri received from Bill Tucker. His devotion to alma mater and his ever present concern for its welfare were an inspiration to everyone with whom he came in contact. The University has lost one of its truest sons.

The Museum's usefulness in teaching will be increased fourfold when a new building allows the display of its treasures

A BURGEONING MUSEUM

IN THE PERIOD of almost two years since we last reported on the Museum of Art and Archaeology (February '65 Alumnus), the growth of the Museum has been truly remarkable. Accessions jumped from 218 in 1964 to 335 in 1965. So far in 1966, more than 400 objects have been added, and the total will probably run over 450. This will bring the entire holdings of the Museum to some 2,000 objects.

More than ever, this growth has resulted from the generosity of numerous donors. At the same time, more gifts have come from the University's alumni and faculty. To Mary Chorn Hazard and Leland Hazard of Pittsburgh, as well as to a matching grant from the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, we again owe additions to the Chorn Memorial Fund. These grants allowed the purchase in 1965 of a rare and exceptionally fine carta pesta (papier-mâché) relief, The Annunciation by Francesco Segala (Cover), which preserves its rich polychromy; and in 1966 of an Attic red-figured cup (A). The cup shows a central wintry scene of two cloaked boys chatting, with a lively boar hunt depicted around the tondo.

In our last report we featured a fine Dutch painting, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan B. Hart, parents-in-law of Mr. David Shefrin, BJ '47, AM '49. We can again attribute one of our finest gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Hart: the beautiful oil painting, River Scene with Castle, by Jan van Goyen (B). While this is a gift for 1965 and 1966, the Harts have also placed on loan another painting by van Goyen, River Scene with Haywagon, dated 1649.

From Mr. George Schriever, BS PA '33, and Mrs. Schriever we have received a second painting by Arthur Schwieder (C), and further gifts are arriving for the current year. During 1965 and 1966 the Museum received twenty-six Japanese art objects from Mr. Irwin A. Vladimir, BJ '24, and Mrs. Vladimir. From these we illustrate the lacquered figure of a deity, dated to the 16th century (D).

The gift received in 1965 from Mr. and Mrs. Erskine

M. Harmon of Hendersonville, N. C., is both an alumni and a faculty gift; Mr. Harmon received his BS in agriculture in 1917 and was on the University staff from 1918 to 1926. During six years in Iran as a veterinary advisor, he collected a number of interesting items, and six of these have been presented to the Museum. These include a beautifully preserved gold braid sash reputedly used for the horses of Shah Abbas (1571-1629), an important fragment of an inscribed brick from the ziggurat at Tchoga Zambil (E), and vases and bronze weapons of about 1000 B.C.

One of the largest gifts during these two years has been that of 127 objects collected by Dean and Mrs. Winterton C. Curtis while in Japan for a year in the early 1930's, given to the Museum by their son, Dr. William D. Curtis. The largest group is composed of Japanese brass temple candlesticks, but there are numerous other metal objects as well as many of wood and stone, and a group of ivory netsukes.

A pair of cloisonné vases (F) given to Dean Curtis as a parting gift are of exceptionally fine workmanship. Many of these objects are currently being shown in an exhibit of Chinese and Japanese art arranged in memory of Dean Curtis.

An important addition to the Museum's collection of contemporary painting is a landscape in oil by the Swiss-American painter Joseph Pollet (G). This is the gift of Professor Frederick E. Shane, chairman of the department of art at the University. Another faculty gift is an Egyptian bronze mirror handle from Dr. Theodore Steegmann, formerly of the department of anthropology; still another is a Panamanian clay vase given by Professor Fernando Tapia of the School of Medicine.

Lastly, we acknowledge with special gratitude the gift by Mrs. Jesse Wrench of an Early Christian cross found by the late Professor Wrench in Palestine some fifty years ago.

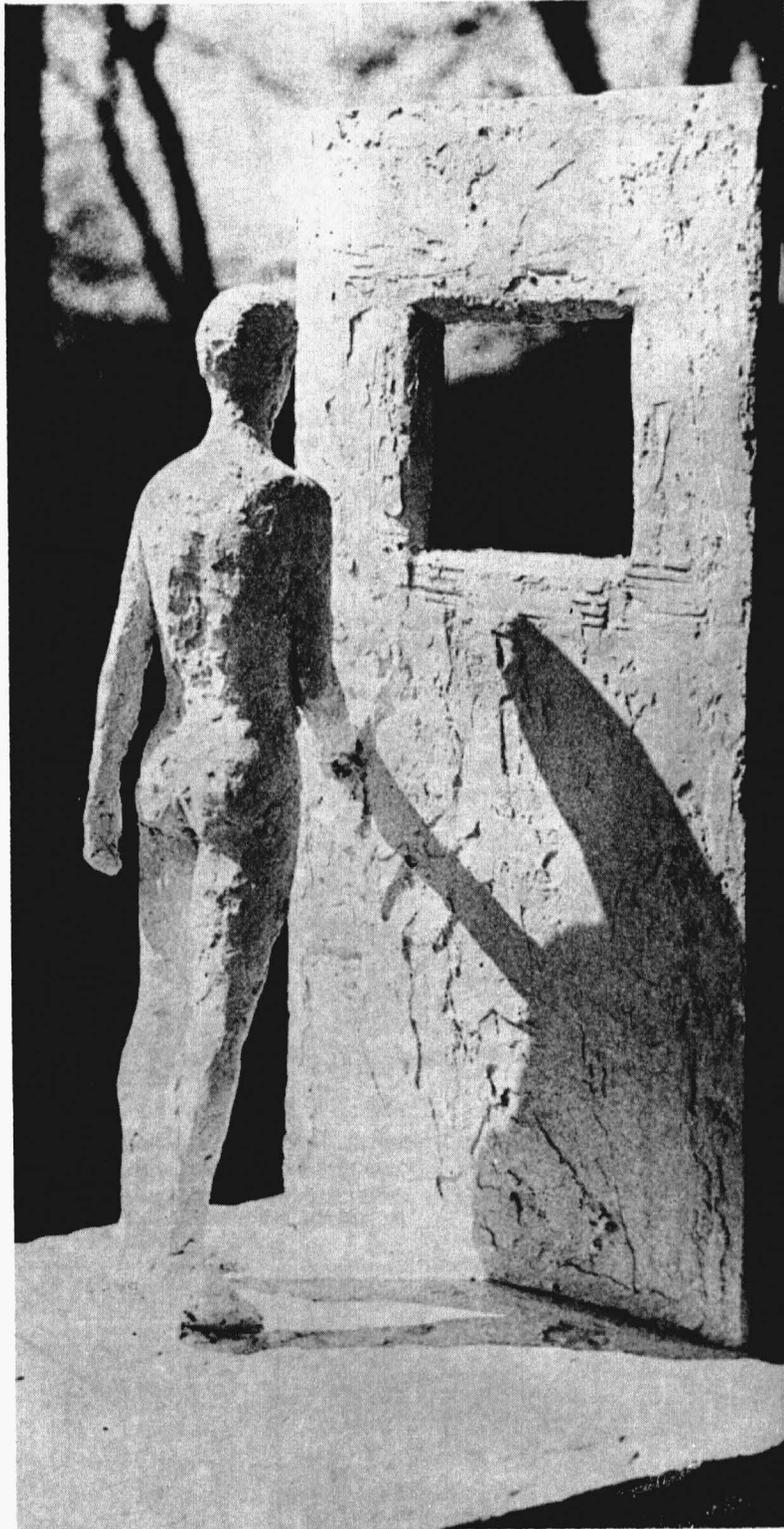

Besides these gifts from what might be termed the University family, we are again pleased to acknowledge support from friends unconnected with the University. Many of these have given annual gifts over a number of years, while others have recently joined our group.

Considering first our friends of long standing, we begin by mentioning several gifts from Professor and Mrs. Samuel Eilenberg of New York—a total of more than two hundred bronze and brass figures. These are largely from India, but include pieces from Nepal, Laos and Java, as well as two African bronzes. In view of the interest in South Asia that has come to the University with the beginning of a South Asian program of studies, these additions have been most timely and have greatly strengthened our participation in the program. We illustrate one of these objects in (H).

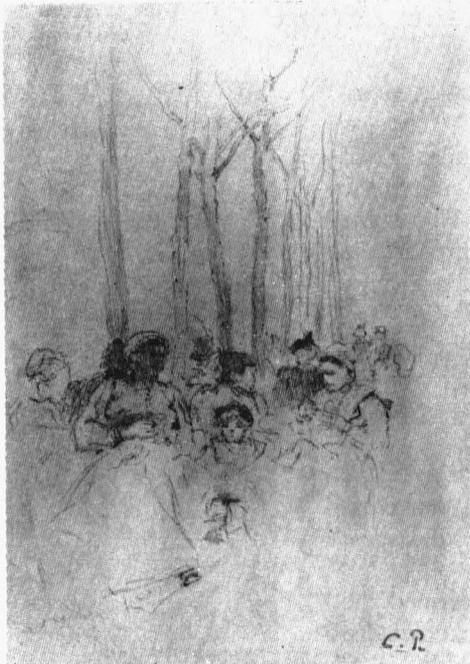

Dr. and Mrs. Martin J. Gerson have given us four more Japanese wood blocks, as well as twelve Indian and Tibetan bronzes, a fine piece of Pala sculpture, three Græco-Egyptian terracotta figurines and two New Guinea sculptures, one of which we illustrate in (I).

Annual gifts have also been received from Mr. Howard W. Lipman and from the Howard and Jean Lipman Foundation—a total of seven pieces of contemporary art. Included are sculptures and constructions by Joel Brody (J), George Cohen, Roy deForest, Mike Nevelson and Zielinski, as well as works by Bruce Conner and Richard Pettibone.

Mr. and Mrs. Cedric H. Marks have also continued their annual gifts. The latest is comprised of Precolumbian, African, Oceanic and Northwest Indian objects—thirteen pieces in all. Included is the first Maya pottery in our collections and the first piece of Northwest Indian art. We illustrate a fine Dayak shield (K).

(K) Left: decorated Dayak shield from Borneo; the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric H. Marks. (L) Center: Figures in the Park, from a sketch book of Camille Pissarro; the gift of Mr. David T. Owsley. (M) Right: black-figured Attic kylix, c. 500 B.C., showing two satyrs dancing about a palm tree; from the William and Anna Weinberg Purchase Fund.

(N) Above: Chinese bronze "Kuei" of the Shang or Yin period, 1523-1028 B.C.; the gift of Mr. J. Lionberger Davis. (O) Right: Jalisco terracotta seated figure of a man, from Mexico; the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Fischmann.

(P) Oil painting, Street of Antiques, by Ronald J. Christensen; the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Jacques Kahn.

(Q) Left: collage entitled Study for a Crucifixion by Ernest Trova; the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Morton D. May. (R) Center: Indian stone relief of Parvati, Pala period, 11th century A.D.; the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morse. (S) Right: lithograph entitled Woman in Yellow and White by Rufino Tamayo; the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Small.

It is a great asset for the teaching of the humanities

Both years have brought gifts from Mr. David T. Owsley: nine drawings and watercolors, from which we illustrate a drawing by Pissarro (L), our first piece of French Impressionist art. Mr. Owsley has also placed on loan the painting Landscape with Figures by Alessandro Magnasco.

From Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ternbach we have received a fine Luristan bronze finial. A further gift to the William and Anna Weinberg Purchase Fund has made possible the addition to our Greek collection of a handsome black-figured kylix of about 500 B.C. (M).

The number of new donors added to our roster is large, and the importance of their contributions is great. From Mr. J. Lionberger Davis of Princeton, N. J., we have received thirty-four art objects and the loan of eight others, especially in connection with the current exhibition of Chinese and Japanese art. Besides Chinese and Japanese objects, including several fine early Chinese bronzes (N), there are Indian, Persian, Egyptian, Greek, Roman, African and Precolumbian pieces among Mr. Davis' gifts.

Thirty pieces of Precolumbian art of exceptional quality came last spring from Mr. and Mrs. Milton Fischmann of St. Louis. The Jalisco seated man (O) is one of the many figures from Mexico.

Eight contemporary paintings, including three of his own works recently exhibited in New York, have been given by Mr. Ely Jacques Kahn, forming an important addition to this area of our collections (P). Another large gift, comprising seventy-one pieces of Primitive art from New Guinea and six contemporary paintings, has come from Mr. and Mrs. Morton D. May of St.

Louis. Much of the first group was included in the exhibition of Primitive art. From the second group, we illustrate a collage (Q).

A gift of the greatest importance is the Indian stone figure of Parvati (R), which has come from Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morse of New York. Professor van Lohuizen of Amsterdam, a leading authority in the field of Indian art, has called this piece the finest of its kind outside India and Pakistan.

From her renowned collection of ancient lamps, Mrs. Miriam S. Schloessinger of New York has given twenty-eight examples, largely from Palestine and Egypt. Mr. Marvin Small of New York presented to the Museum two lithographs by Rufino Tamayo (S). Space does not allow more than mention of two terracotta heads from Monte Albán, given by Colonel and Mrs. Clarence O. Cobb of Mexico; Etruscan bucchero vases and a fragment of a fine black-figured Greek vase, from Mrs. C. L. Fleece of Fayette, Mo.; and a bound volume containing a hundred Japanese colored prints of the early 19th century, given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamilton of Marshall, Mo.

From Mrs. Sanka Knox of New York has come a fine South Italian bronze bull's head; from Mr. Albert Rudolph of New York a Chinese painted scroll of the Ming period; from Mr. Norbert Schimmel of New York a fine bronze fibula plate in the shape of a horse; from the estate of Maurice Sterne a charcoal drawing of a woman; and finally, from Mrs. Octavia Triplett of Triplett, Mo., a group of coins.

No previous period reported in the Alumnus has brought so many gifts from so many donors. As a result, the Museum collections have been greatly strengthened in almost every area. To help in filling gaps and equalizing the collections, numerous important purchases have been made, but the enumeration and illustration of these must await the appearance of the first issue of the Museum bulletin, which is now being prepared. It is hoped that this publication will present both annual reports of acquisitions and short articles about special objects or groups.

The staff of both the Museum and the Department of Art History and Archaeology are actively engaged in research and publication of material in the Museum, and both undergraduate and graduate students continue to work on special groups and objects for theses and papers. As the collections grow, their usefulness in teaching is increased. The continuing excavations sponsored by the Museum have also brought in large quantities of material invaluable for research.

It is evident that the crowded conditions of which we wrote in our last report are now greatly aggravated; the need for a building is greater than ever, and concerted efforts are being made to acquire one as soon as possible. Meanwhile, all our ingenuity has gone into squeezing more storage cabinets into the available area and stretching the exhibition space to the greatest possible extent.

To this end, the large gallery on the fourth floor of the Library was divided about a year ago into four smaller galleries. This has permitted a greater diversity of material to be exhibited. The gallery of Eastern Art includes material of the regions from Egypt to Japan, and two galleries of Western Art house the Kress Study Collection and many other paintings, statues, drawings and prints.

The fourth gallery has been reserved for changing exhibits and allows successive showings of various large groups of material. Thus far there have been exhibits of contemporary paintings and sculpture, Primitive art and, currently, Chinese and Japanese art. The winter show will feature Precolumbian art. The Greek and Roman collections, constantly growing, now occupy what was once the smaller gallery.

This is the tenth year of operation of the Museum of Art and Archaeology, which was originally launched on July 1, 1957, with the more modest title of Study Collections for Art History and Archaeology. Six cases on the second floor of Jesse Hall housed the collections until the spring of 1961, when the Kress Gallery was opened in the new Library wing after presentation of the Kress Study Collection of fourteen paintings. The smaller adjacent gallery was occupied the following year.

The number of objects now on exhibition—and the galleries are crowded—is about one-fourth of the total collection. We try to show representative groups from all areas, but even this is not possible.

Yet what is on view constitutes the largest and most varied art exhibition in Missouri outside the two large museums in Kansas City and St. Louis. The unique facility provided here is being used increasingly by not only the students and faculty of the University but those of the two Columbia colleges, as well as the people of Central Missouri. The state of the Museum is healthy; it needs only suitable and adequate housing to allow even greater growth. □

Little Woman in a Big Man's Field

IT'S NO PROBLEM for Lori Greenstein any more. She just sits at her desk and waits for the players.

Little (just over 5 feet) but dynamic, Lori is quite a gal in a man's world: pro football. As public relations assistant to director Joe Pollack of the football Cardinals, she is following a precedent set on The Columbia Missourian, where she was the first woman sports reporter prior to her graduation from J-School in 1965.

Nicknamed "Pintsize" by the Big Red, who willingly make their way to her desk for a post-game quote, she has long been inured to the fact that she cannot cover the locker room per se and has overcome the obstacles of wire services and national press desks reacting with "Hey, fellas, I got a GIRL sportswriter on the phone!"

Her career interest stems from early tomboy football playing in Columbia, where her parents, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. James Havens, live, was continued as sports editor of the award-winning newspaper at Stephens College, which she attended, and a summer sports internship on the Shreveport (La.) Times. □

EIGHT YOUNG MEN OF 1904-05

There were asterisks beside their names

AN ASTERISK is a mark of distinction by names in the 1904-05 *Savitar*s. Not only did it designate the members of a self-formed club of "original writers," but also it was prophetic of the futures of eight young men whose footnotes today record personal successes in the annals of literature.

* PRYOR TEMPLETON SCOTT of Phoenix, Ariz., is the only living member of the group that banded together in 1904 as The Asterisk Club, to promote higher literary standards at the University. "Harry Lyon was the organizer," he recalls, "and there were six of us that year. After my own graduation in June, two more were admitted." Beside Scott's name in the yearbook, the editors noted that "he keeps a collection of rejection slips," indicative of a prolific writer. Interested also in education, he became a teacher and was principal of an Arizona grammar school. At the time of his class' 50th anniversary, he wrote a blank verse tribute to the University, "The Columns of Old Mizzou."

* HARRIS MERTON LYON, during his short life, had two books of short stories published, "Graphics" and "Sardonics." His career began in Texas as a newspaper reporter, continued in Kansas City, and finally took him to the East coast, where he became European correspondent for Theodore Dreiser, editor of Broadway magazine. Dreiser, in his book, "Twelve Men," calls him a "De Maupassant, Jr.," who, had he lived 10 more years, would have been a durable figure in American letters. Lyon died in 1916.

* CHARLES G. ROSS was best characterized by his colleagues as a "kind, gentle, sentimental newspaperman." He started as a reporter on the Columbia Herald, from which he went back to the University as an original faculty member of the School of Journalism. In 1918, he joined the St. Louis Post-Dispatch as chief Washington correspondent and editor of the editorial page. A boyhood friend from Independence, Mo., claimed him as press secretary when he became President of the United States, and he died in 1950 while serving Harry S. Truman.

* HOMER CROY, editor of the Savitar in 1906, left school without a degree (he failed English) but was awarded an honorary Doctor of Literature in 1956. Credited with writing more novels about Missouri than any other author, he hit the literary jackpot in 1928 with "West of the Water Tower." Will Rogers, whose biography he later wrote, made his first talking picture in the screen adaptation of Croy's book, "They Had to See Paris." Books and scenarios dotted his long literary career that ended in 1965.

* HERBERT CARL CROW brought the world to Americans through a series of books including the best seller about China, "Four Hundred Million Customers," published also in six other languages. His career began in partnership with the late Walter Williams on the Columbia Missourian, continued on the Fort Worth Telegram until 1911, when he went to Shanghai as an editor of the China Press, later founding the Shanghai Evening Post. He spent the major part of his life living in and writing about China, Japan, the Philippines and South America, publishing books and magazine articles about these countries until his death in 1954.

* JAMES H. CRAIG was keeping a tryst he made with his college roommate, Homer Croy, when he wrote his first novel, "Kettle Drums and Tom Toms." Like Croy, the settings for subsequent books were the rural communities he knew best, but novels were extra-curricular to the business he avidly pursued—advertising.

* ROBERT W. JONES became a journalist's journalist. Editor of the 1905 Savitar, he also received an A.B. degree and later an LL.B. degree from Missouri. He worked for St. Louis newspapers and wire services until 1920, when he went to teach journalism at the University of Washington, being also thereafter a visiting professor in journalism at Missouri. He wrote many technical articles and books, including "Journalism in the United States," and "Law of Journalism." He died in 1951.

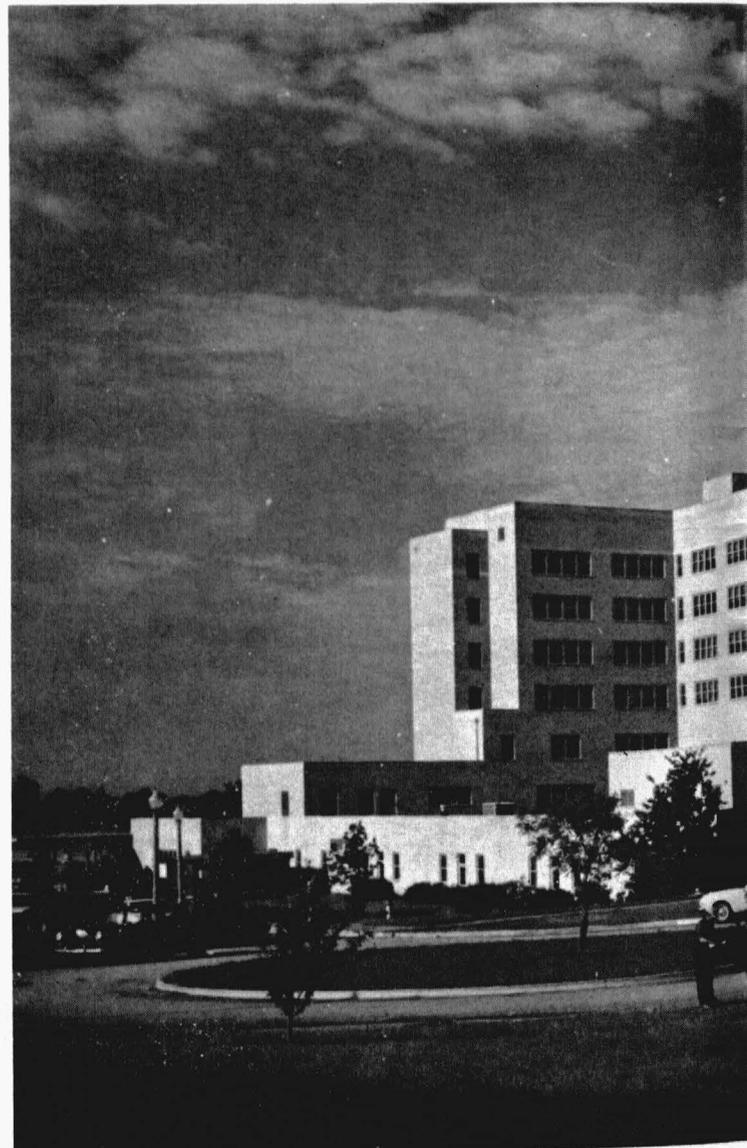

* DANIEL HOUSER MCFARLAND was also a protégé of Walter Williams while in school but after graduation turned his attention to business. He died in 1949. □

THE TENTH

HEALTH radiates to all parts of the State of Missouri from Columbia. This "most prized of all human possessions" is the sacred trust of the University of Missouri Medical Center, which November 6-11 celebrated its tenth anniversary.

Visible and invisible changes were underscored as the University reviewed its growth and progress in educating candidates for the medical profession, in providing an aggressive quality program abreast of current research and developments, and in achieving health care for Missourians whose lives in every county of the State have been touched by the facilities and help available at the Center.

THIS DREAM of high standard medical care became reality after small beginnings that date back to 1845 but did not have a full curricula or a home of its own until State appropriations in 1951 and 1953 expanded the program permanently to four years and provided capital to build the present Center. What this has meant in terms of patients served and graduates trained is recorded in statistics: more than 9,000 patients yearly are referred by physicians throughout Missouri to receive care in the 441-bed hospital; more than 70,000 persons pass through the out-patient clinics annually; 518 medical degrees have been granted with 137 graduate doctors practicing in Missouri (36 of these are in communities with population of 5,000 or less and many are serving in the armed forces or taking advanced training). Three hundred and eighty-two have received nursing degrees; 91% of those graduating between 1955 and 1960 are known to have stayed in Missouri, and 68% of these in non-metropolitan areas. This semester, 325 students are enrolled in the School of Medicine and 287 in the School of Nursing. Additionally, 1,490 undergraduates from other departments of the University campus attend health related classes in programs that encompass public health, therapy, nutrition, radiology, orthopedics, laboratory technology and the like.

Facilities to increase classes entering the School of Medicine from the present 85 to the planned maximum of 100 will be available with the current raising to the intended seven stories of the Medical Sciences building, thus expanding classroom and laboratory space. This also will permit additional graduate students to seek degrees in the basic sciences. Dedicated at the anniversary celebration was the recently completed addition to the research wing. Construction will be under way soon for a 480-bed Veterans Administration Hospital to be completed by 1968. Fundamental to the design of all buildings in the medical complex have been connecting corridors or underground walkways to make them an integrated unit.

BASIC TO THE GROWTH of the hospital have been numerous grants for research and study fundamental to advancements in the field of medicine. Numerous fellowships for intensified study have been awarded to students and many of the 220 faculty members. Available within the school is such special equipment as an electron microscope, a Van de Graaff accelerator, radioactive isotope counting systems, darkrooms and animal quarters. Attracting international attention is the computer system which is being used to process laboratory test results, to recognize disease patterns, to keep records, and to research new ways to free physicians for more patient care.

Special programs in cooperation with national agencies and with private-fund backing focus attention on such areas as multiple handicaps, birth defects, diabetes in children, or such regional emphases as heart disease, cancer and strokes. The Center maintains an Eye Bank and a Tumor Registry.

TAKING PART in the week-long celebration of the Center were Dr. Francis L. Schmehl, of the National Institute of Health, who spoke at the research building dedication ceremony; University officials, President John C. Weaver, President Emeritus Elmer Ellis, Chancellor John W. Schwada and Dean of the School of Medicine Vernon E. Wilson, who discussed the Center's first decade on "Missouri Forum," a public affairs program on radio and TV in Missouri, and Dr. Robert M. Zollinger, chairman of the department of surgery at Ohio State University who delivered the W. Alton Jones surgery lecture. Sharing knowledge were Missouri and Colorado physicians who gathered for the annual M.D. Day open to all doctors in the state just prior to the anniversary week. □

Students in the two-year medical program attended classes in McAlester Hall. Laboratory facilities set up at the turn of the century were among the best of their time.

A REPORT ON THREE DAYS IN NOVEMBER

IMAGINE A TWO-WEEK vacation at Hotel Orbiter, conveniently located midway between the popular Sea of Tranquility and crowded Earth. The hotel spins leisurely around its own central docking hub. You can have an early-sunlight dip in the bubble swimming pool suspended by electrostatic force. For recreation there are also games and dances adapted to various levels of gravity.

These were possibilities suggested by J. Ray Gilmer, vice-president of Varo, Inc., Garland, Texas, at the National Conference on the Management of Aerospace Programs held November 16-18 at the University of Missouri.

A profit motive viewpoint might be the key to retrieving some of the costs of the space program, Gilmer said. The major stumbling block in developing space for industrial and medical research, manufacturing and tourism is the cost of getting there and back. "The cost can be very greatly reduced by expanding what we now know about space transportation," he said.

"There are some manufactured articles in which the transportation cost—even at today's rate—is small compared to the value of the product." Any product manufactured in a sterile environment, such as antibiotic drugs or microelectronic circuits, might be manufactured economically by remote control in space, Gilmer said. "Think how much less it will cost to build a huge factory in space, using only cables to hold the walls together.

"Individuals with paralytic conditions and those with burns and trophic ulcers due to pressure could be relieved by weightlessness," he said.

THE CONFERENCE, one of the American Astronautical Society's national meetings, was co-sponsored by the University of Missouri's Space Sciences Research Center, the School of Business and Public Administration, the Department of Industrial Engineering and Extension Division, and by the Cost Effectiveness Section of the Operations Research Society of America, in cooperation with the Air Force Systems Command and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

More than 300 persons attended, including representatives from Canada, France and Germany. Gleanings from some of the 30 papers read during the three days show that speakers were also concerned with the less romantic aspects of aerospace investigation.

■ Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Robert H.

Charles told participants that a new step taken last year treats development and production as one, and awards the contract for an entire program on the basis of competition at the outset.

■ John Fisher, of TEMPO, Santa Barbara, California, stated that further developments are needed before computers can approach their full potential as tools for management of aerospace systems. Natural English as the language of communication between man and machine and direct access to the computer are required if alternatives are to be tested and evaluated promptly.

■ Peter K. Hatt, of NASA's Lunar and Planetary Program, told how a work-breakdown structure early in the Voyager program has been helpful in defining the coverage and application of management systems.

■ Professor Donald C. Carroll, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, indicated that through the use of shared computers, with numerous terminals or operators keeping the machine's information base constantly updated, it may be possible for segments of the aerospace industry to make "superhuman" decisions within the next three years. "On the commercial end," he said, "we can't afford the time it takes the user to think."

■ J. Schmissrauter and Ann Somol, of Douglas Aircraft's Manned Orbital Laboratory in Huntington Beach, California, stated that ground rules are being laid out to help solve the complexity of interrelations between associate contractors, the procuring agency and other government agencies.

M.U.'s SPACE SCIENCES Research Center, established in 1964, is supporting and encouraging space-related research at the University of Missouri. On the Columbia campus, research centers on environmental physiology, bioenergetics and photobiology. The Columbia staff is also administering a multi-disciplinary research grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and is cooperating on projects with industrial and non-profit organizations and with the National Science Foundation, the Atomic Energy Commission, and the Department of Defense.

The Research Center at the School of Business and Public Administration is currently doing a NASA-supported research project to ascertain the cost structures of clustered versus dispersed research facilities, with implications to be used for evaluating public investment decisions. □

HOME COMING '66

THIS YEAR the dates were November 4-5, and the opposing team was Colorado. Alumni and just plain fans swelled the Stadium crowd to 56,500—a record second only to last year's Homecoming attendance.

Old grads came home. There may have been close to 5,000 if we judge by the number who attended 19 separate alumni dinners, luncheons, coffee hours, receptions and open houses and add several hundred for those who came unannounced.

The class of '41 celebrated its silver anniversary. Medical classes of 1941 and 1961 met together at a Medical Education Conference on Friday night and had individual reunions. Nursing classes of 1956 and 1961 held 5th and 10th anniversary reunions.

Men of the 1916 football team, some of whom hadn't been back for 40 years, dined together on Friday night and joined the "M" men on Saturday, when Don Faurot's football teams of 1921-26 and 1939-42 were honored. Don Faurot, in turn, was honored in advance of his retirement June 30 as the University's athletic director.

Alumni members of Mortar Board, ODK, QEBH and Mystical Seven joined undergraduates at the annual Honors Brunch on Saturday, and open houses were sponsored by the journalism, agriculture, B&PA, law, nursing and home economics faculties. There was a dinner for all alumni on Saturday evening.

PREPARATIONS FOR the "Buffalo Bonanza" were started by an 18-member student committee soon after school opened in September. The number of students participating was 750—the largest ever.

New this year was the sale of Buffalo-hunter hats. Black stetsons branded with gold M's were hawked on street corners before the games, sold through the University bookstore, now located in the Student Commons, the Missouri store, or could be purchased from sales representatives in each of the living units. Those who attended the October 22 game against Iowa State received "Homecoming '66" hatbands for additional trimming.

"Make sure there are no bare heads," admonished ads in Maneater, the student newspaper. "All the good guys (or gals) are wearing black hats. Have you bought yours?"

Dormitory radio station KCCS helped the promotion by giving away a hat a day for a week.

THE BIG DAY seemed more imminent when students chose the queen from among seven finalists. Barbara Brown, Tiger cheerleader and senior in education from Ferguson, Missouri, survived 63 other candidates through two judgings and the student poll to reign over '66 festivities.

She and attendants Laura Brink, Pope AFB, N. C., and Vicki Hood, St. Louis, had a day of grace before starting on the now-traditional Tour of the State. On October 27 they journeyed to Jefferson City to meet Governor Warren E. Hearnes and M.U. alumni of Cole County. They met Kansas City Mayor Ilus W. Davis and other city officials on November 1 and were fêted at a luncheon given by alumni there. On November 2 they were in St. Louis, where they met Mayor A. J. Cervantes and city officials and dined with alumni board members. Back in Columbia on the 3rd, they faced a full schedule of public appearances over the weekend.

On Friday afternoon, rain began to fall just as finishing touches were being put on house decorations. With judging set for 6:00-8:30, miles of plastic sheeting were brought forth for interim protection. The rain became heavier as the evening progressed. By Saturday morning, the judged and exposed Tigers had lost their stripes.

Other continued traditions were the pep rally, now called “Romp, Stomp & Chomp,” the parade and a post-game dance in Rothwell Gym. For those who didn’t dance to music of the Chevelles at the “Buffalo Bash” there was a new feature: a play in Jesse Auditorium. The touring cast of “Barefoot in the Park” played to a sell-out audience.

It was a busy weekend, but perhaps more mentors should have worn black hats. Maybe next year?

The black-hat campaign began with the Minnesota opener on September 17. Good guys and gals who donned black hats were, left to right, Chancellor John W. Schwada, Governor Warren E. Hearnes, President John C. Weaver; and Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Hearnes, Mrs. Schwada.

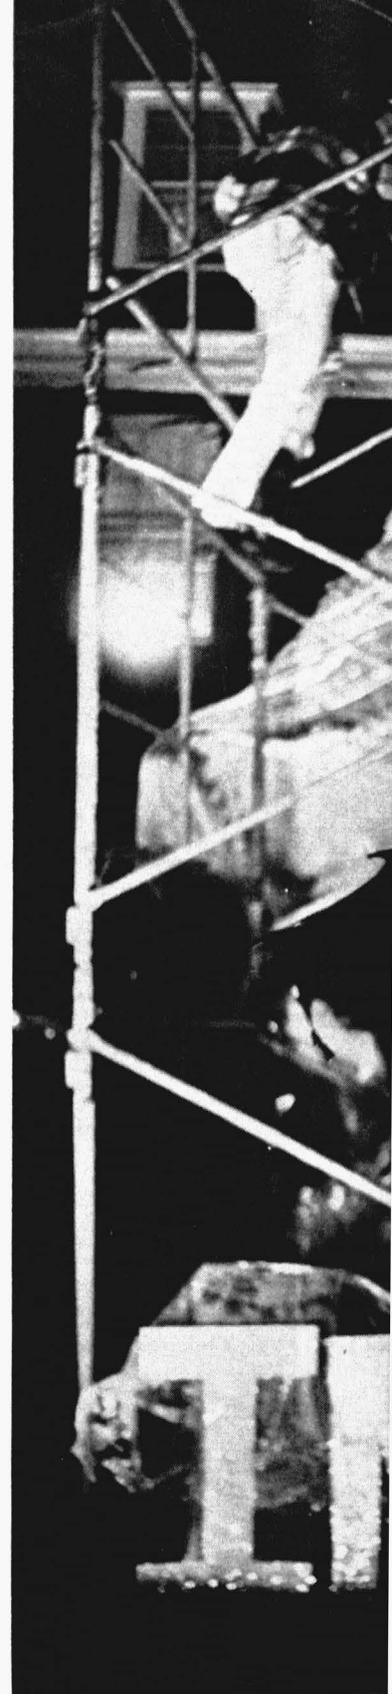

The menu at Friday night's Romp, Stomp & Chomp included three pieces of barbecued chicken, or fish, plus corn-on-the-cob, cole slaw, rolls, ice cream and coffee or milk—all for 80 cents. Some 5,300 students and alumni gathered at Brewer Field House for the dinner and pep rally that featured the Delias, the Marching Mizzou band, and the Homecoming court, cheerleaders, pom-pon girls, and Dan Devine and the football team. Paul Christman, 1940 All-American, was also there to present a plaque to Don Faurot, who retires June 30 as athletic director.

There was good cheer in moist weather for the parade

The parade wound under foggy skies from the stadium end of Providence Road over Kentucky, Richmond, Rollins, Hitt, University and College to Broadway, and back to the campus. It disbanded at Conley and Sixth, near Mark Twain Residence Hall. The first-place floats were entered by Buckner House and Jones and Donnelly halls ("Tigers Stew the Buffaloes") and the Dairy Club ("Juiced-Up Tigers Ready for Buffs"). The first of recent Homecoming parades, in 1947, was chaired by H. Bailey Gallison, AB '48, now of San Diego, who was a judge for this year's house decorations.

and house decorations

Rain began to fall on Friday evening as house decorations were being assembled. Plastic sheeting protected weeks of effort until judging began at 6:30. Winning sorority decoration was the Tri Delt "Buffs Cautwright in Devine Reign," above. A Buffalo-drawn stagecoach, behind scaffolding, is driven by a Tiger. There were 36 entries in the four categories of Men's and Women's Independent and Men's and Women's Greek.

THEY WERE Missouri Valley champions with a 6-1-1 record. Twelve of them gathered together again on November 4-5 to celebrate their semicentennial. JOHN JOSLYN, of Pasadena, California, and EARL McMILLAN, of Seattle, Washington, traveled farthest. Here from Texas were STANLEY ANDREWS, Alamo; WILLIAM H. RIDER, Dallas; and HARRY VINER, Houston.

Two came from Oklahoma: HENRY B. BASS lives in Enid, and RICHARD B. RUTLEDGE hails from Tulsa. Living closer to "home" were PAUL HAMILTON, Kansas City; EDWIN SCHROEDER, Clayton; CLYDE H. SLUSHER, Fulton; and C. DEAN THORP and ANTON J. STANKOWSKI of Columbia.

Men of the 1916 football team marked their 50th anniversary

That's not a whistle around A. J. Stankowski's neck; it's a gold medal presented by the Alumni Association to Homecoming queens and alumni who come back to 50th anniversary reunions. Stan was heading for the bus that took "M" men to the Stadium after a luncheon at the Student Union.

COACH HENRY F. "Indian" SCHULTE played only 12 men in the important Kansas game that season. In the closing minutes of the first half, "The ball was on Missouri's 26-yard line. Woodward's forward pass was intercepted by Rider, who returned 8 yards. It was Missouri's ball. A plunge through center by Rider netted 5 yards as the half ended. Score: Missouri 6, Kansas 0.

"An airplane and a parade by the Missouri band occupied the attention of the capacity crowd of 16,000 during the half."

The game ended 13-0 after Collins scored a touchdown and Lansing kicked goal at the end of the fourth quarter. □

A letter from Memphis

THEY'RE CALLED Old Boys or Girls in England, regardless of their age. They're alumni who are loyal to their alma mater; it's part of their heritage, and they come back from time to time to keep in touch.

Five families came from Memphis this year. All were here in the 40's, and we asked them to reminisce.

Were these your years?

"THE ENROLLMENT is far larger than we had ever hoped. In the early 40's (pre-war) we had 5,500 students and didn't know where to put 5,501. Look at it now. Somehow you get the feeling that the personal touch between professor and student is fading away.

"Of course, we were all interested in 'Freddie' Middlebush and wish him well. How patient he must have been with all those phone calls.

"Sights at the game brought back old memories: the long lines queuing through the tunnel and waiting outside the restrooms were quite the same.

"We all wondered why the natural arc of the Stadium hadn't been filled in with seats to accommodate more fans; there had been so much progress elsewhere.

"We did miss Jesse Wrench leading the cheers, and guarantee that the stands would not have yelled 'Hold that ball' if he'd been there.

"Yes, whatever happened to the golf course? (We did see the new, and rougher one.) A seven-iron shot on the old course would certainly cause a flurry in the ladies' shower.

"Even though residents of Kentucky Road now have a New Yorkish skyline and the dairy barn is shadowed by high-rise dormitories, the heart of each campus looks almost the same, except for the new geology building on the Red Campus. Red is still red and white is still white—with shades of buff mixed elsewhere.

"The 'Commons'? How's that for a name?

"And how about those 'crazy' coeducational dorms?

"The polo field has given way to the 'largest campus reactor in the U.S.,' and not just 'west of the Mississippi.'

"Some of us checked on the Hinkson and found it still intact, but it's 'gone Mod.' The woods are littered with Mustangs instead of strolling couples with blankets underarm.

"We looked everywhere, but couldn't find any Purple Passion!

"THE STUDENTS appear quite different—a good ten years younger than we were, we're sure, and much sloppier—the men with shirttails hanging out and tresses blowing.

Barely discernible in Columbia's early twilight are BILL and NATALIE DANIEL (BS BA '48 and BJ '46) and children Donna, 17, Cindy, 16, and Billy, 11; HOWARD and GLORIA BONNETT (BS Ed. '49 and AB '46) and daughters Gloria, 15, and Roxanne, 14; BOB and Betty BAKER (Arts '43) and daughter Susie, 17 (son Bob, 12, was elsewhere), all from Memphis; former Memphisites ROY and Lynne PARSONS and daughter Robin, 16, now of Minneapolis; and ROLLAND and Gil OAKES (BS Ed. '49, BS Med. '51) and son Tim, 15, from Ft. Worth.

Also here from Memphis with their children were HOWARD and Jean BROEMMELSICK (Agr. '41) and WALT and SUE BAKER (BS CE '47 and Arts '47). Mr. Broemmelsick is president of the Memphis Alumni Club.

"Jack's Shack is still there, but who painted the front?

"We missed Doc at the C.D., but feel sure John Blow will carry on well. Campustown has changed somehow.

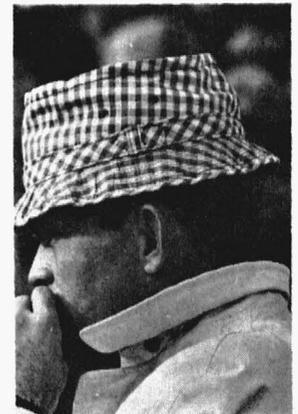

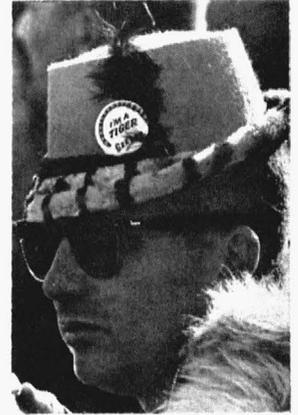

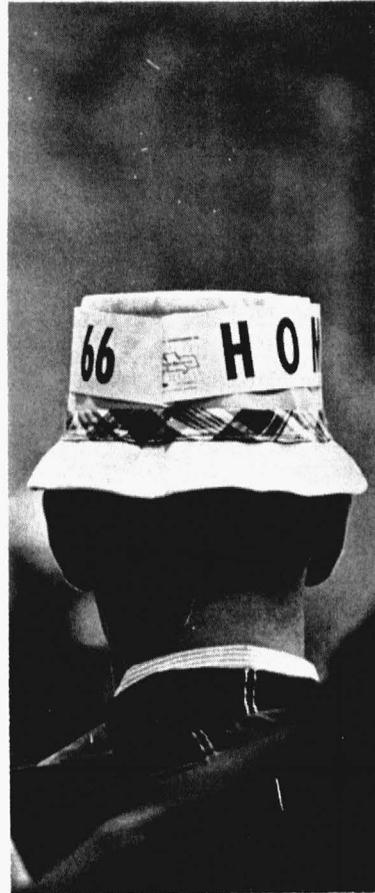

"We hear the J-School lions haven't roared in years. Is this a sign of the times?

"The old 'Welcome Grads' signs that were dragged back and forth from the attic in our day were a far cry from the lit-up, animated house decorations of today that we all enjoy.

"We'll be back soon."

Bob Vanatta Has High Cage Hopes

Coach says team taller, more experienced in '66-67 preview for Missouri Alumnus

THINGS ARE LOOKING up. That's smiling Bob Vanatta's cheery outlook for his '66-67 Tiger basketball team. Anyway you look at it, the coach couldn't be far wrong. Mizzou had one of its most miserable cage showings in history last season, winning just one of 14 Big Eight games to finish in the conference cellar—and were a sorry 3-20 overall.

But this is a new year, and Vanatta apparently has more experienced and taller "horses" to go with the type of basketball he likes to play: the running game with big men who can grab the ball off the defensive backboard and roar back down the court.

When drills opened October 15, Vanatta was cheered by the fact that six of seven lettermen were back and he had gained some badly needed height in the person of four tall junior-college standouts—three from the championship Moberly Junior College. The three are "swingman" (he can play guard or forward) Tom Johnson, 6-5, former St. Louis McKinley star; forward-center Larry Pierick, 6-7, of Union, Mo.; and forward Jim Chapman, 6-6, Sedalia. Then there's Gene Jones, who stands 6-7 and can play either forward or center. He's from Paducah Junior College in Kentucky.

Heading the corps of veterans are co-captains Ron Coleman, 6-1, and Rob Vanatta, 6-3, son of the coach. Coleman, former Jefferson City prep ace, is the leading Tiger scorer. He averaged more than 21 points a game last season and was the third best scorer in the conference. Vanatta, of Columbia Hickman, averaged eight-points-plus a game.

Other lettermen are forwards Gary Frazier and Bob Dinsdale, center Rich Milling and guard Henry Pinkney.

What may be the most interesting part of the cage campaign this season is the presence of the University's first seven-foot player: Booker Brown of Kansas City Central. The 19-year-old, 215-pound pivotman averaged better than 15 points a game in pacing the Tiger freshman team to a 5-3 record. Coach Vanatta says he has "high hopes" for the towering newcomer. Two other promising sophomores are 6-6 forward John Weston, who may also see a lot of action on the backline, and 6-2 guard John Duft. Weston led Springfield Parkview to the state high school championship two seasons ago. Duft, of Highland, Ill., was the top scorer on the Tiger yearling team last year. He averaged 20-points-plus a game.

In summation, Vanatta told the Missouri Alumnus: "We ought to have a better, more exciting team. We'll run more—just like the pros—and I hope to be using the triple-lane fast break which former St. Louis University Billiken coach Eddie Hickey used to employ so effectively. I plan to get away from deliberate, pattern play type of offense. Defending champion Kansas should be real tough again. In fact, only Missouri and Oklahoma State are being left out of the 'championship picture' in pre-season conference polls."

Vanatta, who will be aided by a new assistant coach this season, Glenn Cafer, appears happy that the so-called experts are ignoring the Tigers. If experience and added height mean anything, the Bengal basketball team may surprise more than a few people in '66-67. □

'Tiger' Tour to Visit Europe

"CHARTER FLIGHT MISSOURI ALUMNI departing for London now boarding at Gate 7."

The date: June 23, 1967. The place: Kennedy Airport. The flight: Air France Boeing 707 jet. Destination: Europe, for 23 days of fun and adventure with fellow Tigers—a first for Missouri alumni.

Boarding the jet will be excited travelers who have never been abroad before, taking the Grand Europe tour encompassing England, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Switzerland, Lichtenstein, Austria, Italy, Monaco and France. Those with a curiosity and desire to see the northern countries will have chosen instead a Scandinavian Holiday including England, Holland, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and France.

The experienced traveler will be following the Independent itinerary, spending two days in London with the group before striking out on his own. He will rejoin them again in Paris prior to departure for home.

First class accommodations will be provided for all traveling abroad together on the charter flight from New York. They may come to Kennedy by pre-arranged group flights from central points or independently. In London and at other specified points along their routes they will welcome Missouri alumni living abroad.

Together in London they will experience a gala get-acquainted dinner prior to embarking on separate tours, and will rejoin for a farewell party in Paris July 15.

Included in the package tours are first class hotel rooms with private bath, deluxe motorcoach transportation, most meals, the services of a professional escort, guides, tips, taxes and all major expenses. Independent sight-seers will be on their own except for the days of planned activity in London and Paris.

Cost of the tours are: Grand Europe, $799; Scandinavian Holiday, $877; and Independent charter flight with London and Paris events, $365. Compared to other commercial tours, the Tiger Special Excursion is $300 less expensive because of the charter flight.

Only one jet trip is planned for 1967 and reservations will be limited to those making early commitments. Further information may be obtained by calling or writing the tour coordinator: Mrs. Mary Klausman, 982 Kinstern, St. Louis, Mo. 63131, YOrktown 6-8547, whose husband, Dale, is first vice-president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis.

AROUND THE COLUMNS . . .

Dr. Dick Renner directs Arts and Science Honors College

Graduation "with honors"—completion of programs developed through the Arts and Science Honors College for high-ranking students—is now under the direction of Dr. Dick A. Renner, associate professor of English, who has succeeded Dr. William McKendrey Jones, associate dean of the Graduate School. He did his bachelor's and master's work at the University of Wisconsin and received his Ph.D. at Missouri in 1962. He has been a faculty member since 1954.

Conferences keep University in the stream of progress

The consumer's right to know and his freedom of choice in the market place spark provocative thoughts in the governmental and business world. Prominent leaders of both visited the Columbia campus Dec. 4-6 for the ninth annual Freedom of Information Conference to discuss public policy, business ethics, consumer protection and prevalent problems. Missouri Governor Warren E. Hearnes opened the session.

Junior College Day, Dec. 3, mid-way in the annual observance of Arts and Science Week, brought together members of the Missouri Association of Junior Colleges and the University faculty for discussion of institutional operation and divisional meetings. Climaxing events in the Nov. 30-Dec. 7 celebration was the traditional banquet honoring distinguished alumni, at which President John C. Weaver spoke.

Other areas in which pioneers and experts met in discussion on campus were the Electrical and Chemical Machining Conference Dec. 2; the Kansas-Missouri Seminar on theoretical and applied economics, Dec. 2; a Systematic Biology Colloquium, Dec. 3; and the general practitioners meeting Dec. 7-8 on "Current Concepts in Arthritis," under the auspices of the Office of Continuing Medical Education.

November conferences welcomed insurance managers of Missouri, sanitary engineers, veterinarians, radio and television personnel, and interior design students from 30 college campuses. In addition, the third in a series of eight sessions on new techniques of operations analysis was given for managerial personnel by Dr. Robert O. Schlaifer of Harvard University.

The Nov. 16-18 Conference on the Management of Aerospace Programs is reported on page 15.

Prof. Rogers Whitmore retires after 30 years

"Music hath charm" for a retired professor, Rogers Whitmore, who after more than 30 years as chairman of the University of Missouri music department will devote full time to teaching violin and directing the University Concert Series. Honored by students, friends and faculty Nov. 19 at a dinner, the occasion brought reminiscences of his own student days at the Utica and Ithaca, New York, Conservatories, fellowships at the American Conservatory in Fontainebleau, France, and Juilliard in New York, and personal appearances as soloist and with string quartets.

One hundred years for coeds

Women were officially admitted to the University of Missouri in the fall of 1867. To recognize this significant and historic event, a committee composed of alumnae, students, and faculty has been appointed by Chancellor John W. Schwada to make plans for a suitable observance.

The 100th anniversary of the admission of women to the University will be recognized during the 1967-68 school year by a series of events on the Columbia campus and throughout the United States. Projects and plans are being made for taking a glimpse into the early period, for recognizing the accomplishments of women graduates through the years, and for projecting into the future the advancement of the University of Missouri and her women students.

An invitation is extended to each alumna to communicate ideas on purpose and program for the centennial. All women, and men too, are encouraged to send their ideas to Dr. Lois Knowles, Professor of Education, who is chairman of the committee for the 100th Anniversary Observance of the Admission of Women. Please address your letters to Dr. Knowles at 208 Hill Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. 65201.

Gifts provide new vistas

"Fair Missouri," the 300-acre farm of President Emeritus Frederick A. Middlebush and Mrs. Middlebush has been deeded to the University by its owners, who are wintering in Florida and will live on the grounds of the Lenoir Home when in Columbia.

Two checks have been accepted by the School of Business and Public Administration: $750 from Monsanto Co. Fund in Accountancy for the furtherance of activities in accountancy and $1,000 from World Color Press, Inc., St. Louis, for teaching and research, particularly in foreign countries.

The opportunity to invest in the stock market has been provided for students enrolled in Business Communications course 338 through a gift of $7,000 from

The Space Sciences Research Center will be located in Research Park, where the reactor facility now stands (lower left). At the opening of the National Conference on the Management of Aerospace Programs, Chancellor John Schwada, left, views a model of the Park with Dr. Ward Haas (center), director of the Space Sciences Research Center, and Lewis Larmore, president of the American Astronautical Society, Huntington Beach, Calif.

Henry Crown, Chicago business executive and philanthropist, making Missouri one of several universities so endowed.

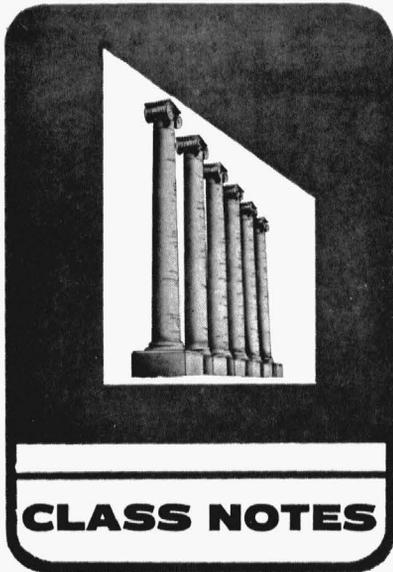

Marching Mizzou, the University marching band, has created a memorial loan fund honoring William Robert (Bob) Williams II of Bolivar, Mo., a former drum major and first-year law student who died as a result of a motorcycle accident in Columbia, Oct. 1.

Financial report shows $87.6 million income

A total current income of $87,686,987 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1966, was reported by President John C. Weaver for the four campuses of the University of Missouri. Sources of income were: $41,936,741 (47.8%) from the State of Missouri; $11,222,340 (12.8%), student fees; $4,772,939 (5.5%), federal appropriations; $10,786,197 (12.3%), gifts, grants and endowment income; $6,572,868 (7.5%), sales and other sources; and $12,394,902 (14.1%), auxiliary enterprises. This was an increase of $17,232,489 over the 1964-65 fiscal year.

Work at the Space Sciences Research Center building, soon to be constructed, will be pointed toward the environmental sciences, adapting man to conditions found in outer space or adapting conditions on planets to man.

This was the year the first coed crossed the threshold of the University of Missouri to open the doors of higher education to women. She, with others like her, pioneered the way for generations of coeds. For 100 years the achievements of educated women have brought pride to the University of Missouri. It is anticipated that the academic year, 1967-68, will be known as the Year of the Tigress at Mizzou.

A new communications network gives police the jump on fast-moving fugitives

It takes a suspect 85 hours to drive, and nearly six to fly, from New York to Los Angeles. California is ready and waiting for him just four minutes after he starts.

Reason? A fully automatic teletypewriter network just completed by the Bell System to provide better communications for law enforcement agencies from coast to coast.

The new national service, known as Law Enforcement Teletypewriter Service or LETS, cuts from days to minutes the time required to transmit criminal descriptions, license checks, bulletins and other vital police data.

The Bell System is also working on other service improvements to help combat crime and protect the public.

The reason is simple enough. We have an obligation to keep providing the best communications possible—for law enforcement or for you and your family at home.

William C. Tucker, 1914-1966

Editor and publisher, Warrensburg (Mo.) Star-Journal, from 1947; president, radio station KOKO; member, University of Missouri Board of Curators; former president, University Alumni Association; reporter, Columbia Daily Tribune, 1935-43; Associated Press, Kansas City, 1943-45; member, Wilson's Creek Battlefield National Park Commission; president, Missouri Association of Daily Newspapers, 1950, secretary 1952-62; member, Governor's Commission on Higher Education, 1959; chairman, Freedom of Information committee, Missouri Press Association; member, Advisory Committee to Wing Commander of Strategic Air Command, Whiteman Air Force Base, from 1954; former vice-president and trustee, State Historical Society of Missouri.

WILLIAM C. TUCKER crammed into his fifty-two years a broad range of activities to which he devoted genuine interest and enthusiasm—two attributes that characterized him in everything he did. He was a journalist, businessman, and leader in educational, civic, historical and cultural causes. Accompanying his success in these fields was the warm, personal concern he had for people—particularly the individual; tributes to his memory attest to this quality.

As his involvement in the furthering of education developed, Bill Tucker was elected president of the University Alumni Association. During his second term in that office, his abilities were further recognized by his appointment to the Board of Curators. "He was always available to assist the University and its program, often at a sacrifice to his publishing and broadcasting interests," University President John C. Weaver said. "He contributed greatly to the University," President Emeritus Elmer Ellis said. Now his work, ended on November 11, will be carried on by his wife, the former Avis GREEN, A.B. '37, who has been appointed to succeed her husband as Curator.

TO THE EDITOR:

As a graduate of Old Mizzou I have enjoyed the Alumnus each month, and I think the football report each week is very good. I have not seen many of this type produced by any other university and have displayed it to others, who received it with interest and with about the same comments.

WILLIAM G. STROUD, '28

Tupelo, Miss.

TO THE EDITOR:

The last issue of the Alumnus was "fun"! High school students and their parents had a good tour of the University. Phi Psi's and sorority girls let down their sox and raced about on tricycles. The students in Professor Jones' Shakespeare class were able to laugh (always a healthy sign) and learn a great deal, to. I approve—don't get me wrong.

But: the knowledge explosion has hit other countries and other regions, and I assume that M.U. has not taken an ostrich stance.

Past issues may have answered my questions (it's been several years since I've seen the Alumnus), but for prodigal sons and daughters like myself, I hope you will continue to offer proof that our alma mater is in the front ranks.

(Ed's note: We are always pleased to hear alumni preferences and to know that alumni are concerned about the academic standing of their university. In this issue, Dr. Saul Weinberg reports on the noteworthy Museum of Art and Archaeology which is outgrowing its quarters in the Library. We also report briefly on the tenth anniversary of the School of Medicine and on a conference on aerospace systems management, held recently on the Columbia campus. Let me assure you that Mizzou's sails are set to windward of the gales.)

TO THE EDITOR:

As an alumnus who would be classified politically as Liberal, rather than either of the extremes, I was disconcerted by the appearance of two German shepherds, each with a policeman in tow, during the closing minutes of the Homecoming game (Nov. 5 against Colorado).

When I was in school, shirt-tail parades formed on the field to wind their way downtown. Snow-fencing now keeps people off the field. Why use dogs?

Could you explain the rationale behind this, and find out whether it is an accepted practice at other universities in the Midwest?

(Ed's note: We must first of all correct an impression: the German shepherds are there to guard the goal posts and not the field itself, as the picture shows. The Athletic Department explains that dogs have been used for four or five years. As you may know, it was traditional for winning visitors to try to tear down the posts, and for home supporters to try to save them. During one of these fights a woman was nearly killed when hit on the head by one of the posts.)

TO THE EDITOR:

I love football, and I would drive to Columbia to watch the Tigers play even if I knew they would lose . . . BUT not to have one of the ushers tell me "I don't know if there are any seats left."

My section was LL, Row 42, East Side, which is reserved at $5 per seat. There I am with $20 worth of tickets in my hand and the usher as much as tells me that I may as well look elsewhere for an empty seat! (I admit the tickets were borrowed.)

Well, we finally fought our way through the mass of students and other people standing solid around the exit (violation of fire code!) and ousted the four people who were in our seats. Students continued to stand around the exit partially blocking our view.

I hope and trust that something may be done about the situation.

TO THE EDITOR:

The University lost a loyal alumnus and, like many others, I lost a good friend with the recent death of Bill Tucker.

When I was a greenpea as campus correspondent for the AP in Columbia in 1939-40, Bill Tucker (I called him W. Camp Tucker after he toured Europe and interviewed Hitler) was extremely kind to me and most considerate.

He was then an enthusiastic, warm, young reporter for the Tribune and, over the years as publisher and public servant, he never changed.

It's tough for his family, his community, his state and the University to lose a man who was so much to so many, especially when he didn't come close enough to the three-score-and-ten we all like to think of now as a comfortable minimum.

When I think of Bill Tucker, in death as in life, I find myself smiling—sadly now, rather than happily, but still smiling. He was that kind of man.

Bill sparked his school football team...
now he calls signals on a GM assembly line.

Bill Geshwiler is a Methods Engineer, quarterback of the engine assembly line for Buick at Flint, Michigan.

He works with miniature men and machines on a three-dimensional board, an actual facsimile of the plant. By moving, changing, arranging and rearranging, he coordinates and balances men and equipment for peak efficiency and productivity. He evens the individual work load so that a smooth, orderly production flow is maintained all the way along the assembly line.

Bill has always been a quarterback—in grade school and high school at Beech Grove, Indiana, near Indianapolis. The fact is, he made the All-

State football team in 1954. Passing up scholarships at two universities and an appointment to a service academy, he decided instead on the General Motors Institute in Flint, and was graduated with an engineering degree.

He's the kind that could make any team, but we're glad Bill Geshwiler is in the General Motor's lineup.

General Motors is people making better things for you.
