

What's the difference . . .

between a college and a school? In the past two years, two of Mizzou's schools have moved "up" to colleges—Administration and Public Affairs, Home Economics, and now, Veterinary Medicine (see story on page 6). Those involved seemed so pleased with the change that Ye Old Ed tried to determine what being a college really meant and then inform the alumni.

Unfortunately, after extensive research and after talking with several top administrators, Ye Old Ed can't quite grasp the distinguishing marks of a school and a college. None of the administrators could, either.

Traditionally, the difference was clear: college admitted freshmen. A school took students who were somewhat further along.

Now, as in many cases, the old rules no longer apply. The Schools of Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife; Social and Community Services; and Nursing take freshmen. The Colleges of Administration and Public Affairs and Veterinary Medicine don't.

Being a college now seems to be a matter of status, or good public relations, or "everyone is doing it." What was it Shakespeare said about the rose?—S.S.

MISSOURI ALUMNUS

VOLUME 62 NUMBER 5
JULY-AUGUST 1974

The Missouri Alumnus is published five times a year—September-October, November-December, March-April, May-June, and July-August—by the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri-Columbia, 602 Clark Hall, Columbia, Missouri 65201. Steve Shinn, editor; Anne Baber and Dave Holman, associate editors. Designer, Paul Fisher, professor of journalism. Second class postage paid at Columbia, Missouri, and at additional mailing offices. Annual membership is $10.

Copyright © 1974 by the Alumni Association of the University of Missouri-Columbia.

---

PHOTO FINISH

---

Graduation is a time for traditions — caps and gowns, ceremonies, speeches and, of course, picture taking. Graduation 1974 had them all. And for the first time, each school and college had some sort of ceremony for graduates. Well-attended, these mini-graduations preceded the Campus-wide ceremony in Hearnese. In between ceremonies, there was still time to get the classic picture of the graduate with the Columns and Jesse Hall in the background.

---

"Of all the days of your life, may today be the saddest. Of all the days you have lived, may today be the happiest," said Alumni Association President Mitch Murch, welcoming the graduates into the Alumni Association.

Medical students line up on the steps of Jesse for their official class photograph — then hold that smile for the relatives to snap one too.

But some special feelings about graduation the camera never can capture.

(Left to right) Friends Linda Lockhart, BJ, of St. Louis and Elizabeth Johnson, BJ, of Kansas City pose with Elizabeth's father and brother Rodney. Journalism's ceremony, at Missouri United Methodist Church, was the only one not on Campus.

(Left to right) Father I. B. Cortez and brother Larry Cortez, AB '64, MD '68, with Eddie. "I think I'm lucky to have two boys graduate from Mizzou," Mrs. Cortez said. Friend Shelley, age 7, tells her mother, "I'm going to be next," as her father R. F. Kahn takes the picture. (Right) "We're sad-happy," agree sorority sisters Trudy Woodruff, Education, and Barb Kennedy, Business. A Delta Delta Delta little sister caught the moment with her camera.

