

Harlan Jensen, chief of veterinary ophthalmology

This 194-page book, published by C. V. Mosby Company, is primarily for use by practitioners and teachers. The book has 187 illustrations and includes 112 stereoscopic color views in 16 View-Master reels.

LETTERS

To the editor:

I wish to express an objection to your addressing Dr. H. Carolyn Crighton Fricke, M.D. as Mrs. Fricke when you also address her husband as Dr. Fricke. The subject of your article was her being awarded certification as a Diplomate of the American Board of Anesthesiology. Surely after many years of hard study she has earned the right to be called Dr.

Karla Baerman Wurthman, AB'61
Los Angeles, Calif.

To the editor:

Having been associated with four major state universities since leaving Missouri in 1958, I've had a good opportunity to observe the activities of other alumni programs. I believe Missouri's ranks at the top. Much credit is due your enthusiastic and energetic leadership.

One of the things most appreciated as an alumnus is the quality of the Missouri Alumnus. It is consistently well done and is of inestimable value in keeping us informed on activities of the University. This flow of information is of paramount importance in maintaining the interest of alumni.

J. Winston Martin, BS Agr '51, EdD '58
College Park, Md.

To the editor:

I am pleased to see the University recognize a faculty woman (Alumnae Anniversary Fund Outstanding Faculty Woman). We were in school at the University of Missouri back in the dark ages (1909). There were no women teachers like the present time. The only lady teacher as well as I can remember was Dr. Edna M. Day — a Home Ec teacher. She was wonderful. She married a professor and gave birth to a son, but she passed away soon after his birth. She would be my choice for Outstanding Faculty Woman were she living.

Mrs. Ethel Pennington O'Neal, Arts '32
Sweet Springs, Mo.

To the editor:

Recently I received my three-part copy of the March-April Missouri Alumnus. Once again I was very pleased with the efforts of your office.

I should have written some time ago to express my appreciation of the good work your office is doing.

Loren Reid Receives 1971 Distinguished Faculty Award

Dr. Loren Reid, professor of speech, was named the recipient of the Alumni Association's $1000 Distinguished Faculty Award at commencement exercises June 1.

In 1935, Reid first came to the Columbia campus to teach. He taught at Syracuse University from 1939-44 and then returned to the University. A holder of a BA degree from Grinnell College and a PhD from the University of Iowa, Reid has had visiting professorships on many campuses including Iowa, Michigan, Southern California, and Hawaii.

In 1969, Reid's book, Charles James Fox, was published by the University of Missouri Press and received the James A. Winans Award for distinguished research in rhetoric. He authored two other books on public speaking and his articles have appeared in Parliamentary Affairs, Quarterly Journal of Speech, Speech Monographs, and other journals.

He is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society and a member of the conference on British Studies and of the Hansard Society.

Reid was a 1970 recipient of the Alumni Association Faculty-Alumni Award. This past year, he coordinated the United Fund campaign for the Columbia campus.

Long-Time Treasurer Gets Distinguished Service Award

Hartley G. Banks Sr., AB '26, treasurer of the Columbia campus Alumni Association for 40 years, received the Distinguished Service Award from the Alumni Association at Commencement on June 1.

President of the First Bank of Commerce in Columbia, and a well-known civic leader, Banks once said that the most gratifying aspect of his relationship with the Alumni Association has been "watching things grow." He has watched the Association mature from a small, loosely-organized group to the effective organization of 17,000 dues-paying members that it is today.

After graduation, Banks joined the Columbia Savings Bank, now First Bank of Commerce, as a teller. He was elected director of the bank in 1930 and served in various capacities until 1946, when he was elected president.

He is a trustee of Columbia College and has served as president of the board for 23 years. He is a director of the Bank of St. Louis, and General Bancshares Corporation.

His wife, the former Eugenia Owen, AB '31, and son Hartley Banks Jr., BS BA '54, and daughter Eugenia Banks Rogers, BS Ed '67, are all alumni of the University.