

campus postman

Gibson Robinson, shown on these pages, travels about 25 miles, mostly by bicycle, as he covers the East Campus twice daily delivering mail to University offices. Another carrier, Howard Palmer, covers the West Campus. Starting point for both is the mailing room in the basement of Jesse Hall, which averages about 5,700 pieces of mail handled daily. Unstamped inter-department correspondence forms bulk of deliveries.

Photos by Lee Battaglia.

“Hoot” Robinson sorting mail in his Mumford Hall quarters before starting a round of deliveries and collections. The bicycling campus postman has been a familiar figure on the East Campus for 12 years.

