BY Dr. Michael Eric Dyson

October 7, 2009-1:00p.m.-2:30p.m
Miller Nichols Library~Room 303

BOOK DISCUSSION QUESTIONS:
1. Did certain chapters of the book make you uncomfortable? If so, why did you feel that way? Did this lead to a new understanding or awareness of some aspect of your life you might not have thought about before?

2. If another storm of the same magnitude as Hurricane Katrina happened next week, what do you think would happen differently this time? Would anything happen differently?

3. What did you find surprising about the facts introduced in this book? What one new fact did you learn from reading this book?

4. How has reading this book changed your opinion of the impact of Hurricane Katrina?

5. Does Dr. Dyson present information in a way that is interesting and insightful, and if so, how does he achieve this?

6. Dr. Dyson is writing on a debatable issue, does he give proper consideration to all sides of the debate? Does he seem to have a bias?

7. How has the book increased your interest in the subject matter of Hurricane Katrina?

8. If the head of FEMA would have asked you for help at the beginning of the disaster, what important advice/ideas would you have given?

9. From your knowledge of Hurricane Katrina and the book, Come Hell or High Water, identify your “gut feeling” about how the government response.
Discussion Questions

Use some or all of these questions to engage your group in a deeper discussion about human rights, housing, displacement, and the needs of the Gulf Coast. For background information on Hurricane Katrina and applicable human rights standards, see the last section of this guide.

• What scenes stood out to you in this movie? Why?

• Why don't Kim and Scott evacuate New Orleans? Who was able to evacuate New Orleans? Who is responsible for helping evacuate those who can't leave on their own?

• What did President Bush say is government's responsibility during the hurricane?

Was he right? That is, what is government's responsibility during the hurricane?

• Should every kind of building be evacuated during a disaster like Katrina? Should hospitals? Should prisons?

• Did Katrina change your perception about racism in the U.S.? Did this film?

• How is displacement by Hurricane Katrina a human rights issue?

• How does the availability of housing affect the right to return?

• When Kim and Scott return to the Lower Ninth Ward a few weeks after Katrina hit, he says, "If they rebuild it, it's not going to be the same." Has New Orleans been rebuilt since Katrina? Is it the same?

• What services does the government -- whether FEMA or other agencies -- attempt to provide for Kim, Scott, and others displaced by Katrina? Is that enough?

Source: http://www.troublethewaterfilm.com
• At one point, Kim says the neglect by the government during and after the storm made her feel "as if we lost our citizenship". How did Kim’s view make you feel?

• Should citizenship matter in this case, or are non-citizens equally entitled to protection by the government during and after a disaster like Katrina? Are all citizens entitled to the same protections -- for example, are prisoners entitled to the same protections as non-prisoners?

• What role does a chronic lack of information play in prolonging Kim and Scott’s displacement?

• If another storm of the same magnitude as Hurricane Katrina happened next week, what do you think would happen differently this time? Would anything happen differently?

• What difference, if any, can a film like Trouble the Water make to the ongoing human rights crisis in the Gulf Coast?

• How will you make a difference?
