29 faculty to be honored in ceremony April 21

Eight faculty and 21 emeritus professors will be honored Tuesday during the Faculty Recognition Ceremony at 3:45 p.m. in the Memorial Union Large Ballroom, N201-202. A reception will follow.

All faculty, staff and students are invited to the ceremony and reception to recognize the award recipients and emeritus professors. Sponsored by Faculty Council and the Council of Deans, the event will be co-hosted by Chancellor Barbara Uehling and Provost Ronald Bunn.

Previously, recipients of the annual faculty awards were announced at Spring Commencement; this year a separate ceremony has been planned. Recipients are nominated by colleagues and chosen by selection committees for their professional achievements which bring distinction to both the individuals and to the University.

The recipients of the 1981 faculty awards:

The Chancellor's Awards for Outstanding Research are being presented this year to Billy N. Day and O. Allen Thiher.

Day, professor of animal science, and Thiher, associate professor of Romance languages, will each receive $1,000 and an additional $2,000 for use in professional activities.

Billy N. Day will receive the Chancellor's Award for Outstanding Faculty Research in Biological Sciences. Day was cited for his 23 years of scientific contributions in improving reproductive efficiency of farm animals. Concentrating in swine, but also extending his work to sheep and beef cattle, Day investigates the basic mechanisms involved in control of reproductive cycles in farm animals, and then develops management techniques for increasing reproductive performance for the industry.

Day has written or co-authored over 154 scientific papers and abstracts in his career, and was awarded the Gamma Sigma Delta Distinguished Award in Research in 1978.

He was a senior fellow in the Royal Society of Veterinary Surgeons in London in 1965, received an NIH special fellowship in 1965 and has also received two Gamma Sigma Delta teaching awards. He has been a prolific presenter in professional seminars, has served on editorial boards and numerous review committees, and served in many professional societies, including as president of the Midwest Section of the American Society of Animal Science from 1978-79. Since 1961, Day has been awarded 27 grants and contracts totalling over $600,000.

Canvassers kick off UMC savings bond campaign

The University kicked off its annual savings bond drive April 14 with a meeting of 65 division canvassers and a drawing for ten uncirculated $1 bills autographed by Azle Taylor Morton, Treasurer of the United States.

Chairing the campus-wide drive this year are Ria Frijters, vice chancellor for administrative services, and Ronald F. Bunn, provost, who will direct dozens of employees asking other workers to join the savings program.

"We have a good product. It's safe, competitive and worthwhile," Earl York, district director for the Department of the Treasury, Savings Bond Division told the canvassers. "People buy savings bonds because of their ease of purchase and because it is 'disciplined savings,' a systematic way of saving money."

Savings bonds available through the payroll deduction plan come in $50, $75, $100, $200 and $500 denominations at a cost of $25, $37.50, $50, $100 and $250 respectively. When held to maturity the bonds pay 8 percent interest.

"The nice thing about saving with bonds is that all you have to do is sign the enrollment card and they take the money," explained York. "It's a lot easier than trying to save out of your paycheck because most people will spend everything they get in their checks."

Enrollment cards are being sent to each division for use in the campaign which will officially begin April 20. Individuals who do not receive cards can get one from their departmental canvasser or by contacting Gary Zwonitzer at 882-7629.

Winners of the autographed commemorative dollar bills were Pat Higgins, executive staff assistant, Business Operations; Mark Winter, auditor, Student Organizations; Ruth Firestone, associate professor, Germanic and Slavic Studies; Gary Fox, associate professor, Higher and Adult Education; Alfred B. Stephenson, professor, Poultry Science; Pat Hilderbrand, associate professor, Housing/Interior Design; Sylvia Brown, senior secretary, Health and Physical Education; Donna Jackson, senior secretary, Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife; Cora Johnson, assistant manager, Cashiers; and Raymond L. Ethington, professor, Geology.

Faculty to meet

David West, chairman of Faculty Council, will present a report at the General Faculty Meeting for the winter semester at 2:40 p.m. Tuesday, April 21 in Gannett Auditorium (the new journalism addition).

Campus to observe annual secretaries' week

This is National Secretaries Week — and while faculty and staff can celebrate by taking a friend to lunch, secretaries can celebrate by attending some of the special workshops and activities sponsored by the University Chapter of Professional Secretaries International and the UM Office of Human Resource Development.

Today "In Honor of Secretaries" is being conducted from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Alumni Center, by Elaine Lyons, president of the Elaine Lyons and Associates training and development consulting firm.

Tuesday, April 21, "Desk Manual Workshop" will be held from 10 a.m. to noon, and will continue April 23 and 28 and May 5 and 7 in the Training and Development Conference Room, basement Lewis Hall.

Wednesday, April 22, "Time Management for Secretaries," will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Alumni Center. The seminar will include group discussions, films and a secretarial case study.

To register for any of the conferences, call the UM Office of Human Resource Development at 882-4859.

To celebrate National Secretaries Day, April 22, the University Chapter of Professional Secretaries International is sponsoring its annual banquet at 6 p.m. in N-208 Memorial Union. Dan Adams, a local instructor for the Dale Carnegie Course, will present a mini-seminar at 7 p.m.

Make reservations by Monday with Margie Ross, 882-2506.

Around the campus

HEARINGS SET ON UMC BUDGET REQUEST — A public hearing on the University of Missouri-Columbia request for funds for the 1982-83 budget year is set for Tuesday, April 21, 10 to noon in 201-202 Memorial Union.

This hearing gives students, faculty, staff and the general public time to discuss the UMC budget request with Chancellor Barbara Uehling and UM President James C. Olson and their respective staffs.

After hearings on all four campuses, Olson and his staff, with the campus chancellors, will prepare a total recommended budget request for consideration by the UM Board of Curators later this summer. The total request, approved by the curators, will be sent to the state by Oct. 1.

A CAMPUS HEARING on the Hinkson Creek Recreation Area will be held at 7 p.m. April 22 in S-206 Memorial Union.

TeamFour, a St. Louis consulting firm, has been hired by UMC to plan site development and prepare construction documents on the area. The proposed recreation area covers approximately 150 acres.

The plans show 10 playfields for intramural and other use, a picnic area, nature and jogging trails and handicapped access to the area, according to Bill Ruppert, who chairs the Hinkson Creek Recreation Area Steering Committee and is administrative services representative.

After the meeting, TeamFour will refine the master plan drawings with construction of phase 1 scheduled for the summer. Bids will be let on the project before the June Board of Curators meeting, Ruppert says.

AGING COORDINATOR — The Boone County Council on Aging is seeking a program coordinator to begin working by May 11. The position receives a salary stipend and small travel and conference budget. Interested individuals should call the agency at 443-1111 before April 28.

THE CHAMBER MUSIC SERIES will present the London Early Music Group at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, April 23 in Jesse Auditorium.

The four musicians, who play more than a dozen early instruments including the mandora, crumhorn, sackbut and viol, and mezzo-soprano Glenda Simpson will present a three-part program: Parisian music from around 1550, including songs, a dance suite and an instrumental work; Italian music from the second half of the 16th century, including Galilei's Lute Duet, anonymous dances and a madrigal, "Non gemme non fin ore," and Elizabethan and Jacobean music, including Dowland's ayre, "Come again, sweet love," Hume's bass viol solo, "My mistress hath a pretty thing," and other works.

Tickets are $7 for the public and $6 for students (half-price student rush tickets for $3 will be available at the door) and will be sold from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 22 and 23 at the Jesse Box Office. For phone orders, call 882-3875.

14TH CENTURY SCHOLARSHIP — UMC will host a symposium on the present state of scholarship in the literature of 14th Century Europe April 23-25. The conference will be highlighted by a Friday, April 24, dinner, concert, and lecture at the Best Western University Center. Featured at that event will be music performed by the Collegium Musicum, directed by Dean Andrew Minor, and a lecture, "The 14th Century in History," by Robert Lopez, Sterling Professor of History at Yale University. Tickets for the evening program are $10. For information, telephone 882-4676.

THE FUTURE OF WOMEN'S STUDIES will be the topic of four open forums featuring the final candidates for the position of director of women's studies at UMC.

Questions will be taken from the audience and faculty, staff and students are welcome.

The programs will be held in the Women's Center, 1 Gentry Hall, and will feature:

— Nancy Davis, assistant professor of sociology at Indiana University, 4 to 5 p.m. Monday, April 20;

— Sally Wagner, Ph.D. in women's studies from the University of California at Santa Cruz, 2 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, April 22;

— Dorothy Haeker, Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Kansas, 4 to 5 p.m. Monday, April 27;

— Nancy Oppenlander, post-doctoral fellow, Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis at Indiana University, 4 to 5 p.m. Thursday, April 30.

PARKING — Application forms for 1981-82 parking spaces have been distributed to faculty and staff. Anyone who has not yet received an application should contact his or her supervisor or call the Parking Operations Office at 882-4568.

RECORDS SEMINAR — A seminar on records management will be held April 23 at UMC. Topics of the seminar designed for secretaries and filing personnel include records retention and disposal, archives transfers, records storage center, filing skills review, and microfilming at UM. For information, contact the Office of Records Management, 882-2321.

SATURDAY SEMINARS — The Honors College will sponsor "Saturday Seminars for Gifted High School Juniors" April 25 for 75 students from across the state. The seminars are designed to acquaint them with faculty members, academic disciplines the students might consider and the procedures for admissions, housing and financial aid.

HONOR STUDENTS RECOGNIZED — A reception will be held from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 29 in the Memorial Union Faculty/Alumni Lounge for students who will graduate with departmental/divisional honors this May or who have completed requirements for the General Honors Certificate.

The Arts and Science Honors College and the honors programs in agriculture, education and engineering are sponsoring the event.

HELP CLEAN UP COLUMBIA APRIL 25 — The first "Klean Up Columbia Day" has been organized for next Saturday by the Columbia Chamber of Commerce to coincide with the national "Keep America Beautiful" day.

Individuals and groups throughout the city are being asked to pick up litter and beautify public areas and the areas around their homes. Clean-up groups are forming within UMC, Columbia and Stephens colleges, the public schools, civic groups and scout troops to clean up specific areas. At UMC, students in University housing will be organizing campus clean-up campaigns.

Trash collection areas are being established at the southwest corner across from the Memorial Stadium, at Hickman High School, the new Kroger Store on Route B and at K-Mart for individuals to leave collected litter. The litter will be allowed to accumulate at the collection areas over the weekend to show the amount deposited by the community.

FINANCIAL AID DELAYS POSE PROBLEMS FOR STUDENTS — Processing delays and uncertain funds at the campus financial aid office could jeopardize the financial aid many students receive, forcing them to rely for a time on their summer savings when they start school next fall.

The Reagan administration is revising the formula used to evaluate student applications for Pell grants, formerly known as Basic Educational Opportunity Grants. Until the new formula is adopted a stop order has been placed on the processing of all applications.

Congress is now examining appropriations for student financial aid programs. Cuts could threaten not only grants, but loans, scholarships and work-study programs as well.

Currently 35,000 of UM's 54,000 students receive financial aid. Aid to UM students totals about $70 million and comes from three sources — the federal government, the state and the University.

However, according to George Brooks, director of student financial aids on the UMC campus, his office has received 26 percent more applications than at this time last year.

Brooks says even if the University receives the same appropriation as last year, there will be less money available to each student.

Loans seem particularly threatened. Brooks says, "The Reagan Administration has not indicated whether it will cut out loans entirely, but some recommendations may discourage many students from applying."

VOLUNTEERS TO BE HONORED — Nearly 300 volunteers in the University hospital and clinics will be honored at a luncheon at the Country Club of Missouri on April 28, in conjunction with National Volunteer Week. The volunteers include Red Cross members, Service League members, employees who donate time, 100 college students and many junior volunteers between the ages of 13 and 18.

MICROCOMPUTER SHOW — The applications of microcomputers in instruction and research will be demonstrated from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. April 28 in the Memorial Union ballrooms. Sponsored by the Academic Computer Policy and Review Committee, the Academic Computing Center and the University Bookstore, the show is seeking faculty who currently use microcomputing to demonstrate their applications. Interested individuals may phone Carmel Mazzocco, director of the Academic Computing Center, at 882-4575.

AID REPORT — The Center for International Programs and Studies has received the AID Project Impact Evaluation Report "Honduras Rural Roads: Old Directions and New." The report is now available for borrowing at 101 Gentry Hall.

EXTENSION BOOSTED — The Cooperative Extension budget is getting a boost under the 1981-82 federal budget proposed by the Reagan administration. The administration has recommended an 8.6 percent increase including a 9.7 percent increase in the basic extension funding and Expanded Food and Nutrition Extension Program. The proposal also included an 8 percent increase for pest management, energy centers and pesticide impact assessment.

THE WOMEN'S CENTER BOOK DRIVE is now in progress and will continue through May 7. The center is seeking donations of books, periodicals and term papers to enhance its women's literature collection. Currently the center has 1,000 volumes and over 200 articles and original research related to women's lives.

Donations can be dropped off at the Women's Center, 1 Gentry Hall, or persons can call 882-6621 to have donations picked up.

THE EMPLOYEE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM provides referrals for personal problems as well as for a wide range of other services.

"If you don't know how to get access to something," says Betty Pascoe Hosokawa, acting director, "we'll try to provide assistance."

Information on subjects such as career development, personal enhancement, sexual harassment, exercise classes, consumer problems, child care and summer campus is available from EAP.

All EAP consultations are confidential and free to UMC employees and their families.

For more information, stop by the EAP office, 215 Professional Building, 909 University Ave., or call 882-6701.

THE STUDENT FEE CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS COMMITTEE at UMC will receive new project proposals through April 27.

The committee, funded from student activity fees, has nearly $200,000 available for capital improvement projects, according to chairman Steve Mitchell.

Mitchell asks that proposals include a brief description of the project, cost estimates, drawings if applicable and an indication of the project's benefit to student life or the campus.

Any individual or organization associated with UMC may write a proposal, says Mitchell.

Written proposals, including the name, address and phone number of the individual or group proposing the project, can be sent to the Capital Improvements Committee, 17 Read Hall.

Recent projects funded by the committee include Brewer Fieldhouse renovations, Woodland and Floral Gardens development, MSA Craft Studio equipment purchases and renovation of the end of Lowry St.

Funded projects will be announced in December.

A CHANCELLOR'S OPEN HOUSE, for faculty, staff and students, will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. Thursday, April 30.

Chancellor Barbara Uehling will be assisted by Patsy Brown, Chancellor's Residence coordinator, and members of Phi Upsilon Omicron, a home economics honorary society, who will give tours of the first floor and the garden.

The Chancellor's Residence, part of the Francis Quadrangle Historic District, is the oldest building on campus and was named to the National Register of Historic Places in 1974.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME — The day to turn your clocks forward one hour is rapidly approaching. Daylight savings time officially begins at 2 a.m. April 26.

O. Allen Thiher: Chancellor's research award

Faculty honored

Thiher, a scholar of French literature and cinema, will receive the Chancellor's Award for Faculty Research in Creative and Performing Arts and the Humanities. He has been described as bringing an exciting intellectual style and substantial research credentials to the UMC French faculty.

Although at UMC less than four years, Thiher has written numerous articles and reviews. He has also published two books: Celine: The Novel as Delirium with Rutgers University Press in 1972 and The Cinematic Muse: Critical Studies in the History of French Cinema with the University of Missouri Press in 1979. He is currently completing a book-length study on the relationship between contemporary language theories and the practice of fiction today, supported in part by a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Thiher received his bachelor's degree from the University of Texas in 1963 and doctorate from the University of Wisconsin in 1968. He was a Guggenheim Fellow in Berlin for research on contemporary fiction and language theory in 1976 and was a Fulbright Scholar in France in 1966.

The chancellor's research awards were established last year to provide special recognition to UMC faculty who have made outstanding contributions in research or creative activity and who have great potential for the future. The 1981 awards were designated for the areas of biological sciences and creative and performing arts and the humanities.

The 1981 Alumnae Anniversary Award for outstanding contributions to the education of women on the UMC campus will be presented to Marilee Howell, assistant professor of physical education.

The $1,000 award is presented annually to a full-time faculty member for his or her noteworthy contributions.

Howell, a UMC faculty member since 1952, had a key role in the amalgamation of the women's and men's physical education programs and in elevating the status of the women's program to the level of the men's.

She also helped establish the first Athletic Committee for Women at the University.

Marilee Howell: Alumnae award

Howell, who organized and conducted the State Sports Day Swimming meets for college women in Missouri and also sponsored the Mo-Maids Synchronized Swim Show from 1952 to 1969, has coached the UMC participants for the National Division of Girls' and Women's Diving Championships, women's varsity swimming and women's tennis.

Listed in the World Who's Who of American Women in 1978, Howell received a Faculty/Alumni Award in 1973.

She has served as chairwoman or member of a number of committees on campus, including the Academic Advisory Committee for Athletics, the Missouri Association of College Teachers of Education, the Futures Committee of the College of Education and the Undergraduate Teacher Education Committee.

The Alumnae Anniversary Fund for Recognition of Faculty, the award sponsor, was established in 1969. Alumnae have contributed to a permanent fund from which the award is made.

People

Roger L. Mitchell, Manhattan, Kans., has been appointed chairman of the Department of Agronomy at the University, effective May 1.

Mitchell is not a newcomer to the UMC faculty; he was chairman of the agronomy department from 1969 to 1972 and then became dean of the UMC Extension Division in 1972. He left in 1975 to go to Kansas State as vice president for agriculture.

Mitchell received bachelor and doctorate degrees in agronomy from Iowa State University and a master's in agronomy from Cornell University.

Margaret Sayers Peden, professor of Spanish, has received a $12,500 fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts for a project translating Chilean poetry into English.

Peden has also been selected to participate in the Summer Translation Institute at the University of California, Santa Cruz, as a member of the guest faculty.

David P. Thelen: AMOCO award

Donald Brooker: AMOCO award

Donald Brooker, professor of agricultural engineering, and David P. Thelen, professor of history, will receive the 1981 AMOCO Good Teaching Awards for distinguished undergraduate teaching at UMC.

The $1,000 stipends are funded by a gift from the American Oil Co.

Letters from former students, currently enrolled students, teaching peers and administrators in addition to resume and teacher evaluation data were considered by the screening committee.

David Thelen was described by one of his students: "He's dynamic, well-informed, energetic and passionate about his subject matter. He is one of the best professors I've had in college."

His peers also praised him. "He is a perfect demonstration of the ideal relationship between the roles of scholar and teacher in the most traditional sense.

Each supports the other. David will never need a faculty renewal program, because his career is already a perpetual series of spontaneous renewals."

Thelen teaches undergraduate courses in American history, including mini-courses on "Populism, Old and New," and "Social Outlawry in America from Jesse James to the Present." He also conducts graduate readings and research seminars on U.S. history since 1865, focusing on social and political history.

Thelen came to UMC in 1966 after receiving his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Since then, he's had three books and a number of articles published, many of which were about the progressive movement in America and about the Wisconsin senator, Robert LaFollette.

In 1973-74, Thelen spent a year at the University of Manchester in England as a Guggenheim Fellow and a Fulbright-Hays Senior Research Fellow.

Included in the honors Thelen has received are a 1979 Purple Chalk Award, a 1968 Faculty/Alumni Award and induction into QEBH and ODK. He also was named "Outstanding Professor" by the student yearbook, "Savitar," in 1971.

"When the time comes for him to retire, someone else will teach his classes — but they cannot replace him," wrote a faculty member about Donald Brooker. "He has made a lasting contribution to the Agricultural Engineering profession by his influence on students."

One of those students, now employed by International Harvester, praised his former teacher. "He made learning interesting, and made his students want to learn and let them know he expected them to learn."

Students have honored Brooker's teaching ability by giving him a College of Engineering Teaching Award six different years. In 1973, he received the Teaching Award of Merit from Gamma Sigma Delta, an agriculture honor society. The Halliburton Teaching Award from the College of Engineering and the American Society of Agricultural Engineers Massey-Ferguson Education Award were granted to Brooker in 1979 and 1980.

Brooker has continued to work with students outside of the classroom, by serving as advisor for the Missouri Student Branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and to the National Student Journal of ASAE.

An international authority on grain storage and drying, Brooker first came to the University as an agricultural engineering student in the 1940s. After receiving his M.S. in 1949, he spent two years at Purdue University before returning to the UMC faculty.

He has had numerous articles published in professional journals. In addition, Brooker co-authored two textbooks and is working on another.

JILL RAITT, associate professor of historical theology at Duke University, has been named chairperson of the new UMC Department of Religious Studies. Raitt will assume the post in August.

Raitt, president of the American Academy of Religion, has attended Radcliffe College, the Institutum Historicum of Rome and the San Francisco College for Women where she received her undergraduate degree.

She holds a master's degree in English from Manhattanville College, and master's degrees in theology from Marquette University and from the University of Chicago. The latter institution also granted Raitt a doctorate in theology. In 1980, she was named Alumna of the Year by the Divinity School of the University of Chicago.

The Department of Religious Studies was established to fill the gap created with the closing of the 74-year-old Missouri School of Religion. Supported, until recently, entirely by private funds, the school announced last year that it lacked money to continue offering courses to UMC students.

UMC has purchased the school's building at Ninth and Lowry. The new Department of Religious Studies Raitt will head will be located elsewhere. Some School of Religion faculty members will receive one-year appointments at UMC to assure continuity of the program while a national search for new faculty members is conducted.

WILLIAM RILEY, assistant vice chancellor for student services and director for student development at UMC, has accepted a position at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. Riley will become assistant chancellor for student affairs and associate professor of counselor education and educational foundations effective July 1, 1981.

In a written statement, Riley said, "I have enjoyed very much my tenure at UMC, and have made many, many personal and professional friends through the University and the city. I will cherish for a long time the many positive memories gathered over the past ten years."

Riley received his Ph.D. in counseling psychology from UMC in 1975, and has worked for the University's office of student life since 1971. Before coming to UMC he was director of institutional research and assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater.

BENJAMIN POWELL, head librarian at the University from 1937 to 1946, recently died in Durham, N.C.

While at UMC, Powell improved the status and the size of the library staff, gained faculty support for restoration of acquisitions funds after the Depression and set the groundwork for the collections to become suitable for a university library rather than a college library, according to John H. Gribbin, director of libraries at UMC.

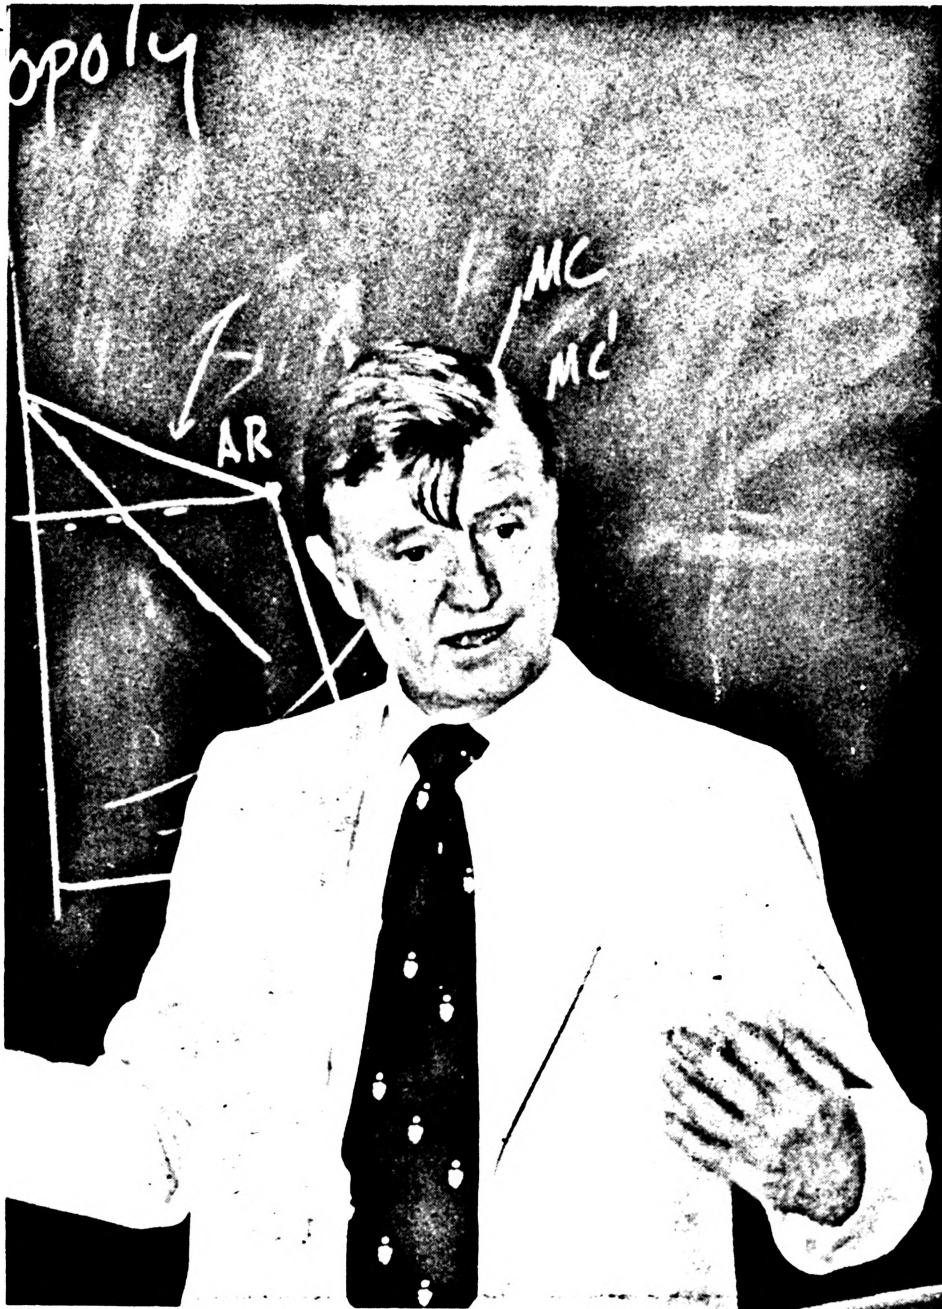

Powell became University Librarian at Duke University after leaving Missouri and remained there until his retirement in 1978. He was president of the American Library Association in 1959-1960 and president of the Association of College and Research Libraries in 1948-49.

ALLEN SMITH, dean of the UMC School of Law will become dean of the Law School at the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa in August.

In a statement, Smith said, "My work with the excellent UMC law faculty and the fine UMC law students will always

John M. Kuhlman: Alumni distinguished faculty award

Robert A. Killoren: Byler administrative award

Currently, he is co-director of a $109,923 grant for on-farm demonstrations of solar drying of crops and grains.

John M. Kuhlman, professor of economics, has been named to receive the Distinguished Faculty Award presented by the UMC Alumni Association.

The Distinguished Faculty Award, presented annually since 1960, is the highest award given by the Alumni Association. It includes a $1,000 prize and a plaque. Recipients are selected from many outstanding faculty members based on the accomplishments of the faculty member, with special emphasis given to his or her relationship with students.

Kuhlman, a member of the UMC faculty since 1962, has taught more than 2,000 students. He has long been recognized as an outstanding teacher, rank as one of the finest experiences in my career as a legal educator. I am very proud of the UMC School of Law and especially of its fine faculty and staff."

Smith, who had been dean of the UMC Law School for almost five years, was in private law practice in Austin and Beaumont, Texas, during the 1960s and 1970s. Smith received undergraduate and legal degrees from the University of Texas, where he taught law for 12 years.

CLARA LOUISE MYERS, professor of social work, has been selected to receive the special merit award of the Missouri State Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers.

Myers, who has been on the faculty since 1950, will retire at the end of the Winter 1981 semester and the association is presenting the award citing her "deep and lasting impact on her many generations of students as well as her colleagues in education and practice."

having been honored by student organizations with membership in Mystical Seven, ODK and Alpha Phi Omega. He also won the Standard Oil prize for outstanding teaching in 1969, an Alumni Faculty Award in 1973, the Arts and Science Purple Chalk Award for Outstanding Teaching in 1974, and has been presented the Gamma Sigma Delta Award for Outstanding Teaching outside the UMC College of Agriculture.

As a result of Kuhlman's work in the Honors Section of Economics 51, the honors program in economics is one of the strongest in the College of Arts and Science.

Kuhlman, who was honored as the first Middlebush professor of economics in 1977, is the author of four books and numerous articles. He is known internationally for his work in antitrust economics, and is a consultant with the Federal Trade Commission and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

GARY DUNKERLY, assistant professor of anatomy, has received the medical students' Golden Apple Award as outstanding teacher in the bio-medical sciences. It is the seventh time he has been honored.

CLIVE LEVINE, associate professor of radiology, received the Golden Apple Award as outstanding teacher in the clinical areas of medicine.

BERYL BLAIN, education specialist, and DAVID KLACHKO, professor of medicine received special service awards.

RANDY VESSELL, assistant professor of recreation and park administration, received the outstanding therapeutic recreator award of the Missouri Therapeutic Recreation Society and the associate fellow award of the Missouri Park and Recreation Association recently.

Robert A. Killoren, manager of grants and contract administration in the Office of Research, will receive the 1981 Byler Administrative Award.

Funded by a gift from UMC alumnus William H. Byler, the award is presented each year to an administrator who exhibits outstanding competence and who wishes to increase his or her administrative skills.

Killoren will receive $1,550 for a two-week internship with the National Institutes of Health in Washington D.C. where his activities will include observing the processing system for grants and participating in proposal reviews.

Before coming to the University last year, Killoren managed grants and contracts in addition to preparing and monitoring the budgets of the Office of the Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs at UMSL.

Killoren also has taught courses on proposal writing, technical writing and business communications for the English department and Extension Division at UMSL.

As an administrator at McDonnell-Douglas Corp. for three years, Killoren was responsible for contract administration, budget, manpower planning and test planning in the flight test program of the F-15 Eagle.

He received his master's degree in English from UMSL in 1976 and a bachelor's degree in English from St. Louis University in 1972.

Killoren has written an article on "Planning for Research" published in the "Journal of the Society of Research Administrators." He also is the author of two books of poetry published by BookMark Press.

UMC's experimental van hums along repair free

The experimental electric-powered van helping deliver mail on campus has operated virtually maintenance free since its delivery last spring, according to a recent evaluation of its operation.

The van, which was purchased with a $10,000 grant from the federal Department of Transportation, has used electricity at a rate of about 1 kilowatt per mile, which translates into a cost of about 4 cents per mile, according to Richard Hoft, professor of electrical engineering.

The van can be seen during the day when it makes its twice-daily, three-mile round trips to pick up and deliver mail. The vehicle features rechargeable batteries that provide electrical power when it is not hooked up for "refueling."

"It's nice to drive with that humming noise as you go along. The steering is good. The unusual part is that there's no clutch to depress," says Gary Johnson who drives the van on its rounds. "The voltage is controlled by the accelerator. The brake is just like a car's."

Despite its dependence on electricity for power, the van does rely on gasoline — but only to operate its heater. The van is equipped with an 8.2 gallon tank for that purpose.

The operation of the van is being supervised by Hoft and Electrical Engineering Professor Byron Sherman. The University received the federal grant for the project as part of a nationwide project to collect field data on the operation, maintenance and reliability of electric vehicles.

The 1981 Byler Distinguished Professor Award will be presented to Arthur L. Kalleberg, professor of political science.

The $2,000 award was established by a gift from UMC alumnus William H. Byler, retired senior vice president for research of the U.S. Radium Corp.

Kalleberg, who received his Ph.D. in political science and sociology from the University of Minnesota, came to UMC as an assistant professor in 1961 after teaching at Mt. Holyoke College for a year.

He has served in several administrative positions within his department: as director of graduate studies for political science, department chairman and representative to Faculty Council.

His articles on political theory have been published in the three leading national political science journals. He also is writing a book, "The Logic of Political Theory," with Mulford Sibley of the University of Minnesota, and he is planning another book, "Social Justice: Needs, Merits and Rights in Contemporary Industrial Society."

Kalleberg teaches a wide range of courses, from introductory classes in political theory to graduate seminars. During the last decade, he has supervised more doctoral students than any other member of the political science faculty.

Kalleberg was elected a member of the American Society for Political and Legal Philosophy in 1968. Other honors include an American Council of Learned Societies Fellowship in 1963-64, serving as a visiting associate professor at the University of Minnesota in 1967-68 and appointment to the Frederick A. Middlebush Chair in Political Science last fall.

Individuals receiving emeritus titles will also be recognized during the Faculty Recognition Ceremony. This year, the following faculty will receive certificates from their deans:

John H. Falloon, professor emeritus of agronomy; Ellis R. Graham, professor emeritus of agronomy; Paul B. Burckham, professor emeritus of mathematics; Arthur A. Case, professor emeritus of veterinary medicine and surgery;

Donald O. Cowgill, professor emeritus of sociology; Frederick B. Davis, professor emeritus of law; Frank L. Dobyns Jr., professor emeritus of journalism; George T. Duffy, professor emeritus of journalism;

Alice I. Fitzgerald, professor emeritus of education; Paul H. Gwin, professor emeritus of extension education; Robert W. Habenstein, professor emeritus of sociology; Paul Mengel, assistant professor emeritus of social work;

Jesse Hall's south entrance to receive facelift

According to plans approved at the March Board of Curators' meeting, the present parking lot south of Jesse will be removed this summer and replaced by a pedestrian plaza as part of the campus beautification effort.

Work on the area should be completed by the fall semester. The estimated cost, $188,232, will be funded from UMca and UMC special project dollars allocated in 1979-80 for improvement of campus facilities.

Architectural plans drawn up by William Ippner and Associates of St. Louis show that all existing trees will be preserved along with the present walkways which are now in good condition. The plan provides for additional walkways to accommodate existing pedestrian walk patterns and for new steps to be added for a direct south entrance to Jesse Hall. The existing steps lead only east and west.

By removing the present horseshoe drive area and the parking lot, a roomy plaza area will be created, along with room for a larger lawn and 12 new seating areas.

Although all parking spaces will be removed, the plan still provides for access for emergency vehicles.

Deadline near for changing to biweekly payroll plan

Non-exempt employees who wish to change from the monthly to biweekly payroll systems must provide their department heads with a signed conversion form by Monday, April 20, in order to be included in the May 1 conversion. Conversion forms are available from the Payroll Office, 10 Jesse Hall.

Under the biweekly system, employees receive 26 checks each year based on the number of hours worked times an hourly pay rate for the two-week pay period.

Employees who wish to convert to the biweekly system must do so by Monday or wait until the next conversion date in October. Employees who choose the new system will receive their regular monthly check on April 30, 1981. The first biweekly check will be issued May 20 for the 48-hour work period of May 1 through May 9. Thereafter the full biweekly paycheck covering the hours worked for the two-week pay period will be issued beginning June 3.

Individuals who convert from the monthly to the biweekly system may not later reconvert to the monthly procedure. Questions about the biweekly system should be directed to Jim Robinson, 882-6447, or Juanita Bishop, 882-4054.

Staff Council considers payroll, award reports

The new payroll/personnel system is still scheduled for implementation July 1, Associate Fiscal Operations Officer Gary Zwonitzer reported at the April Staff Advisory Council meeting.

The new system, which will store both payroll and personnel information, requires new forms to replace UMUW 116, 117 and 202.

The Personal Data Forms, which replace UMUW 202, have already been sent to employees. Council members questioned the necessity of some of the information requested on the form; Zwonitzer explained that marital status and birthdate of spouse were necessary for retirement benefits.

Guests attending the meeting included Ria Frijters, vice chancellor for administrative services, and Blake Danuser, coordinator employee relations, Personnel Services.

Pat Ives, council recorder, reported she had received a phone call from a member of the newly formed staff council at UMSL, requesting information about Staff Recognition Week. The UMSL group also is interested in working with the UMC Staff Council.

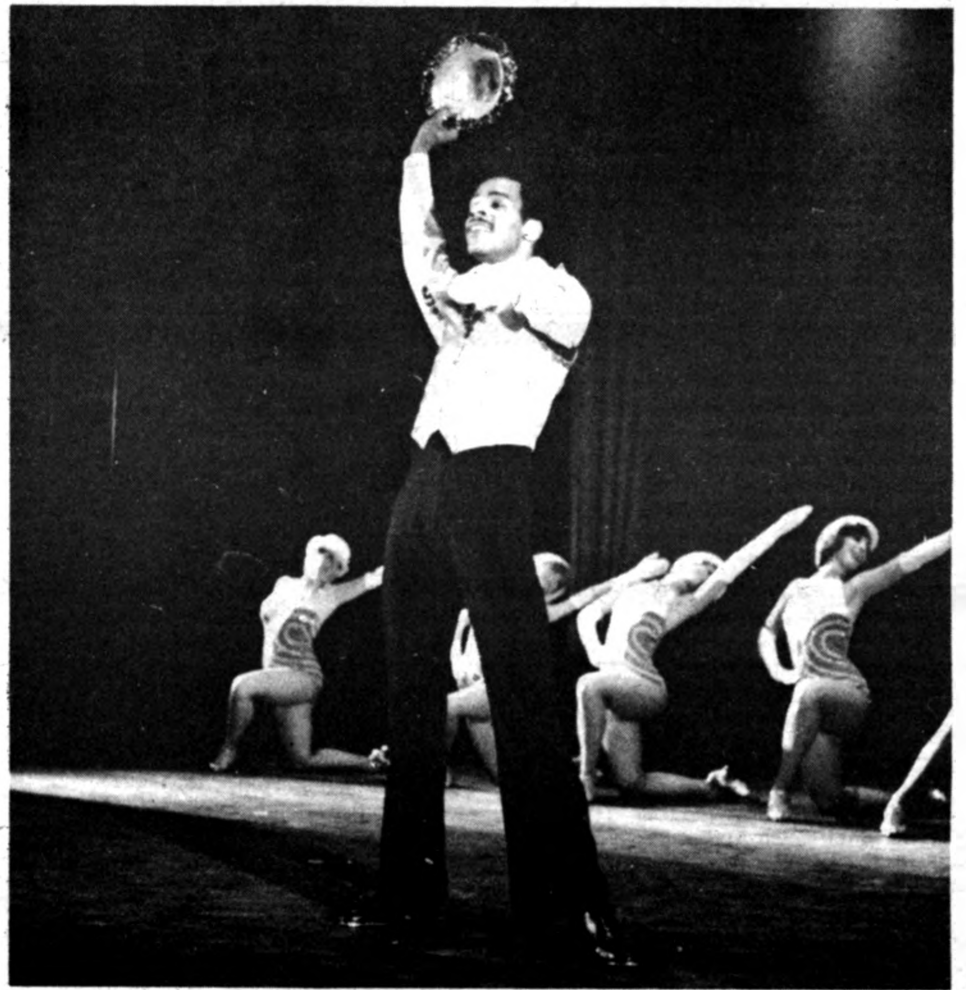

Several letters about Staff Recognition Week have been received by the council. One employee who helped review nominations said she felt angry after reading the same comments on nearly all the forms in the secretarial/clerical category: "This person works overtime without pay," "The department would fall apart without this person" and "this person takes time out of personal life for job."

She asked, "Why isn't this respect reflected in the paycheck?"

She also felt that because more nominations were received in the secretarial/clerical category than in others, more awards should be given in that classification.

Another letter stated that the selection process for the winners seemed fair but the writer was concerned that those employees receiving multiple nominations may have been helped by the attitude that quantity equals quality.

An employee responded to last month's request of the council for suggestions for changes in the grievance procedure. In his letter, the staff member said that supervisors were ignored in the grievance process; the policy does not explain their rights, he said, or if they are requested to testify. In addition, he said supervisors have no right to appeal or to appoint members to the hearing committee.

Danuser explained that the University represented the supervisor; however Frijters felt there was some validity to having the supervisors present at the grievance hearings as a resource.

Travel funds for non-academic staff was the subject of another letter. Steve Cox, council chairman, turned the letter over to the Staff Development Committee for further study.

Frijters said the chancellor had recently discussed the use of travel funds and planned to make an analysis this summer of how such funds have been spent.

Marjorie Bodard, chairwoman of the Compensation Committee, reported that the committee would look into different types of benefits for employees, since salaries may not be increased this year. Extending educational assistance to dependents, limited-use I.D.'s for spouses and use of shop equipment in the physical plant for employees were several possibilities discussed.
