Research celebration

Studies to aid agriculture were reported at the general faculty meeting.

Greater yields from soybean crops and a vaccine to combat a pork disease may result from Missouri Research Assistance Act projects at UMC. Investigators reported on those projects at the winter semester general faculty meeting April 10 in Allen Auditorium. "The real occasion of this meeting has been a celebration of research," noted Chancellor Barbara S. Uehling.

The Research Assistance Act provides partial funding of projects designed to benefit Missouri's economy. RAA awards must be matched by at least twice as much from private sources.

Since the Board of Curators approved the first RAA awards in 1983, 38 projects have received nearly $1 million in state funds and more than $2.1 million in private grants.

Diana Helsel, assistant professor of agronomy, reported on her study of double cropping, which received private support from the seed and fertilizer industries. Co-investigators are Zane Helsel, assistant professor of agronomy, and Harry Minor, associate professor of agronomy.

"The traditional system is to plant soybeans in mid-May," she said. "That's about the time you run out of water in Missouri." In Helsel's project, soybeans are planted in April and harvested in July, when a second crop is planted. The first crops have yielded 40 bushels an acre, about double the traditional amount. The second crops have been less productive because of inadequate rain, she said, but keeping the land in production helps counter erosion.

Kim Wise, associate professor of microbiology, discussed his study of an organism that causes an economically damaging disease in the pork industry worldwide. Co-investigator is Mark A. McIntosh, assistant professor of microbiology.

"It has been very difficult to control this disease, because it is resistant to antibiotics," Wise said. He is using pieces of DNA to express components of the organism in bulk for possible use in vaccine material.

Wise secured private funding from a pharmaceutical firm. Both he and Helsel said that the six-month limit to obtain private support posed constraints. "Without earlier informal contacts, I probably could not have met the deadline," said Wise, who also advised colleagues who obtained RAA funding to discuss publishing rights with the private sources.

In other matters, Chancellor Uehling emphasized that the proposed study of the undergraduate curriculum should not be confused with the recent review of all campus programs. "Results of program review are alive and well," she said. "I want to stress that on this campus we do plan to begin some of the program improvements and enhancements for which we've slated ourselves. The extent will depend on the state appropriation" yet to be determined.

Concerning physical facilities, Duane Stucky, vice chancellor for Administrative Services, said a new telecommunications system is needed to replace obsolete equipment, to allow the campus to manage its own system and to provide communication between computers. "We are hopeful that we can do this without any increase in cost of phone service to the campus," he said, noting that current costs are $3 million annually.

Improvements to the power plant, he said, would increase capacity. Stucky credited Campus Facilities Director Alan Warden with securing "enormous savings in energy costs" through astute management. The savings will help pay for modern equipment. "We're trying to do this without increasing energy costs to the campus by more than inflation."

Stucky also reported on studies of campus space needs, summarized in a document available in 110 Jesse Hall. Even with a substantial enrollment decline, he said, the campus needs additional space equivalent to three or four Ellis Libraries. The estimate excludes proposed buildings for agricultural engineering, law and engineering. Major needs include research laboratories.

Stucky also announced that public discussions on master planning have been scheduled. They will be held from 3:40 to 5 p.m. April 29, 30 and May 1, and from 9:40 to 11 a.m. May 2 in Ellis Library Auditorium. Topics will include current proposed master planning by Jack Robinson, UMC planning consultant, future building sites, recreation space, pedestrian walkways and parking structures.

Faculty, staff invited to event

The theme "Show Me Tomorrow" will highlight the inauguration of UM President C. Peter Magrath.

The April 25 celebration, hosted by the Board of Curators, reaches out to all parts of the state through 3,000 invitations to leaders of organizations, government, business and industry. It will emphasize four-campus unity and illustrate how the University serves the state through education, research, extension and public-service programs.

Speakers for the 10 a.m. ceremony in Jesse Auditorium will include Gov. John Ashcroft; Robert Clodius, president of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges; and Magrath, the University's 17th president. A student choir from all four campuses will perform special music. On stage also will be the UMC Philharmonic and a UMC brass and percussion band.

UMC Sunrise Jazz Combo will provide music at a reception following the ceremony in a large tent on Francis Quadrangle. The tentative menu includes fruit, baked ham on cocktail biscuits, miniature quiche, tea muffins, cinnamon pinwheels, fresh vegetables, cold bleu cheese souffle, chocolate truffles, punch and spiced tea.

Jesse Hall and Francis Quadrangle are handicapped accessible, and a signer will translate the ceremony for the hearing impaired. A shuttle bus will transport guests from the Hearn parking lot to Jesse Hall. Campus tours will be offered and an exhibit of presidential memorabilia will be displayed.

TREAT BOWSER TO SPRING CLEANING

The second annual dog wash, sponsored by the student public education committee, will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 11 at the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Dogs must be combed out and on a leash. Bring towels for drying. Cost is $4 per dog; proceeds will be used to buy a walk-on scale for the small-animal clinic.

The event will feature appearances by Hilda and Louise, the college's mules, and birds from the raptor rehabilitation group. There also will be free Pepsi and literature.

PANELS FEATURE WOMEN IN MEDIA

Seven prominent women in journalism and politics will participate in Journalism Week panel discussions sponsored by Women in Communications Inc. and Women Studies April 22 in Jesse Auditorium.

"Women in Television" begins at 8:40 a.m. Panelists are Joan Richman, vice president of CBS television; Jo Moring, vice president of NBC television; and Carole Simpson, ABC's Washington correspondent.

"Should They Believe Us? Are Women Accorded Comparable Coverage?" will begin at 9:40 a.m. Speakers are Christine Craft, a former Kansas City anchorwoman who sued her employer, Metro

Media, for sex discrimination; Tad Bartinus, a national reporter for the Associated Press; Alison Muscatine, a Washington Post reporter and the first woman Rhodes Scholar; and Lt. Gov. Harriett Woods, the first woman to hold a state office in Missouri.

Students, faculty and others may meet the panelists at a luncheon sponsored by Women in Communications at noon April 22 in Memorial Union's Benton-Bingham Room (N214-215). Tickets cost $5 and will be available outside Gannett Auditorium April 19 and 20 and in front of Jesse Auditorium April 22. Luncheon seating is limited.

RETIREMENT WORKSHOP SET

A free workshop on retirement will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. April 25 at the Career Planning and Placement Center, 110 Noyes Building.

People of all ages are welcome to share ideas in small group discussions with those who are about to or recently have retired. No registration is necessary. For more information, call 882-6803.

FOR THE RECORD

HOUSING WANTED: A Purdue University professor and his family wish to rent a faculty home in Columbia during June and July. Call Robert Brugger at 882-4211.

TENNIS ANYONE? Recreation/Intramurals is offering tennis lessons beginning the week of April 22. The four-week sessions meet twice a week at Brewer Courts and are open to faculty, staff and their families. Cost is $15 for faculty and staff, $17 for alumni and $12 for students, who must have permission of the instructor. Participants must supply their racquets. For information, call 882-2066.

JOURNALISM HONOR MEDALISTS: Four journalists, an advertising executive and a publication are 1985 recipients of the Missouri Honor Medal for Distinguished Service to Journalism. Medalists will be honored during Journalism Week April 17 to 22.

They are Bill Bray, BJ '48, of Columbia, executive director of the Missouri Press Association; Jo Foxworth, BJ '39, of New York City, president of the Jo Foxworth Inc.

advertising agency; Fred W. Friendly, former president of CBS News and currently the Edward R. Murrow Professor Emeritus of Broadcast Journalism at Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism in New York; Sarah McClendon, BJ '31, Washington newspaper, radio and television journalist; photographer Arnold Newman of New York City; and Dong A Ilbo, the largest independent daily newspaper in Korea.

LIBRARY AWARDS: The UMC Libraries honored two staff members at their second annual recognition ceremony April 3. Ellen Blair, senior secretary, was named outstanding library staff member of the year. Scott A. Smith, an art major who has worked in the shelving department for four years, was named outstanding library student assistant of the year.

ALCOHOL STUDY: Males ages 21 to 26 are being sought to participate in a UMC project to research the tension-producing properties of alcohol. Project director Kenneth Sher, assistant professor of psychology, says participants should consume alcohol regularly but not have drinking problems. For details, call 882-3465.

JOB HUNTER: The Job Hunter, a listing of more than 500 jobs published every other week, is available free at Ellis Library, Memorial Union, Brady Commons, Arts and Science Building, Clark Hall and the Career Planning and Placement Center.

JOBS

The following staff openings were approved and posted Monday, April 15, and may be filled at any time after meeting the required posting period. # Q&A

Q. I would like to know why it is so difficult to remove University parking stickers from our cars. The last one I removed was so difficult that I'm not sure I want to put one on my new vehicle. I feel that this is depreciating the value of my car. Any alternatives?

A. "The bumper stickers are designed to adhere to bumpers so that it's difficult to remove them," says Carol McAllister, assistant manager of Parking Operations. "This is to prevent them from being stolen and misused."

The manufacturer recommends that a hair dryer be used to soften the sticker before removal from Fiberglas or rubber bumpers. After pulling it off, a strong cleaning solvent should then be used to remove the adhesive.

To remove stickers from chrome bumpers, a single-edge razor should do the job, McAllister says. Parking Operations also issues hang tags, upon request. The tags, an alternative to stickers, hang from the rear-view mirror. Only one tag per user is allowed.

Q. I find that the local travel agents are not very efficient, or are not willing to take the time and trouble to find out the best fare. Each time I received a quote from Cooper or Global, I have invariably found better rates through my own inquiry. Under these circumstances, how can the University get benefits when you buy through University approved agencies?

Despite my willingness to buy through University approved agencies, I am buying tickets for my relatives from AAA for the following reason. Each time they issue a ticket and/or reserve a car for us they also automatically provide the travelers free accident insurance of $100,000. This is in addition to any insurance provided by the credit card agencies. However, the University approved agencies I dealt with do not provide such coverage.

A. "The agreements we have with the IVI travel agency represented by IVI/Global locally and the consortium of Canterbury, Cooper and Tiger agencies guarantee that we will receive the lowest available airfare," says Gary Zwonitzer, associate director of Business Services. "If it is determined that we have not received the lowest airfare possible, a refund will be made to the University. Therefore, if the subsequent audit of the travel agencies records indicate that you were not given the lowest fare, the University will be reimbursed for the difference."

"We asked for the guaranteed lowest airfare as a part of the agreements with the travel agencies not only to allow the University to receive the lowest possible price for an airline ticket, but also to eliminate the need for faculty and staff or their office personnel to spend valuable time calling numerous travel agencies to obtain the lowest possible fare."

"Our agreements with the travel agencies did not provide for insurance for faculty or staff members or their families. However, the agreement we have with Diners Club does provide for $150,000 in travel insurance for employees when travel is charged to Diners Club. Our original requests for proposals did not include free travelers insurance from the travel agencies for either faculty/staff or family members. However, this may be an item we may want to include under a future negotiation."

172,192 hours were spent at University computer terminals in 1984...

enough to keep one terminal tied up till 2003!

With so many people using computers these days, aren't you glad the Can Do Crew is hustling to meet the demand?

Administrative Services' Campus Computing division is a lively place...because we're working hard to make things easier for you. We've just opened a brand new Computing Lab in 107 LeFevre Hall—and reserved it exclusively for use by faculty, staff, and graduate students. It's an addition as welcome as the five new systems now operating in residence halls across campus. With seven or eight terminals at each location, these systems are a real plus for students.

And since the computer boom is echoing through more and more departments, Campus Computing's Can Do Crew has added a new service as well. Our Micro Computing Support Group helps you decide exactly which computer system suits your department's needs—and budget. If you're thinking computers, give us a call before you make a move!

Remember Campus Computing's Help Desk for any computer-related questions. Call us at 882-7876 for solutions. We'll do our best to keep you, and your system, humming.

From a system's concept to its delivery and installation, from training to problem-solving...the Can Do Crew in Campus Computing is here for you. And just imagine what we'll be offering by the year 2003.

Saturday Child Health Walk-in Clinic

At the University of Missouri-Columbia Hospital and Clinics we think kids need special attention. That's why we've extended our Child Health Clinic hours to include a Saturday Walk-in Clinic from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. During those times, children under 16 needing immediate attention can be seen by our Child Health physicians with no appointment necessary. Of course the Child Health Clinic is also open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.
